When the personnel of the law firm of Macdonald and Marsh, with offices in the old Trust and Loan Building, 25 Toronto street, Toronto, changed, the old chair, which had been used by Sir John as senior partner, passed into the possession of the new senior member of the firm, the late Mr. William Lount, K.C.

In 1900, when Mr. Lount was called to the bench, the chair was handed over to the junior member, Mr. George A. Kingston, the only Conservative member of the firm at that time, who was retiring.

Some few years later Mr. Kingston was present as secretary of the Borden Club of Toronto at a banquet given by the club at the King Edward in honor of the leader of the Conservative party and shortly afterward asked Mr. Borden to allow him, on that happy occasion in the future to which all Conservatives looked forward as not far distant when he should be Premier of Canada, to make him a present of the chair.

The following telegrams, dated Sept. 21 and Sept. 24, 1911, are eloquent concluding chapters in the history.

Warm thanks for congratulations. I shall accept the old arm chair without fail.

The chair is built in the old-fashioned comfortable style with the high back frames. The frame is of maple and was originally upholstered in green baize. It has recently, however, been re-covered in a more modern style with heavy dark leather.

HOW CABINETS CHANGE

THEORY UNDERLYING CANADIAN DEMOCRATIC SYSTEM.

Technically the Governor-General Rules as Representative of Crown, But the Fact Is That He Takes the Advice of Those Members of a Privy Council Who Have Been Elected to Power By the People of the Land.

Neither in theory nor in practice does our Parliament govern. Parliament imposes taxes, votes money for defraying the expenses of Government, enquires into the Acts of Government, and criticizes as it sees fit, and legislates. These are the principal functions of Parliament, says a writer in The Montreal Standard.

"The executive Government and authority of and over Canada," declares the British North American Act, our written constitution, is vested in the sovereign. In this Dominion the sovereign, King George V., is represented by the Governor-General, who, at present, is the Duke of Connaught, the King's uncle.

The Governor-General, representing the sovereign, exercises the executive powers and theoretically governs. Theoretically, it is said, because although he governs, he governs in accordance with the advice of a certain body of men, known in the constitution as the Privy Council.

"There shall be a Council," says the British North America Act, "to aid and advise in the Government of Canada, to be styled the King's Privy Council for Canada; and the persons who are to be members of that Council shall be from time to time chosen and summoned by the Governor-General, and sworn in as Privy Councillors, and members thereof may be from time to time removed by the Governor-General."

Consideration of this Privy Council takes one back to the beginning of things with respect to the practice of Government as we have it to-day in common with the people of the British Isles, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa—to the beginning of what is known as responsible Government.

The Privy Council of Canada at present contains about sixty members, who, with few exceptions, are members of the present Government, or were members of the Governments of the past. For instance, Sir Charles Tupper, the Hon. John Haggart and the Hon. Hugh John Macdonald are members of the Privy Council as well as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Hon. W. S. Fielding and the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. Lord Strathcona is also a member of the Privy Council although he has never been a member of a Cabinet.

In theory all members of the Privy Council are advisers of the Governor-General; in practice his advisers are limited to those members of the Privy Council who form the Cabinet of the day; and the word cabinet may be defined as "a conventional, but not a legal, term employed to describe those members of the Privy Council who fill the highest executive offices in the state, and who, by their concerted policy, direct the Government, and are responsible for all the acts of the Crown"

The practice, described in simple words, is this—when a Government is formed its members, who form the Cabinet, are sworn in as members of the Privy Council, but so long as they hold office they not only administer the Departments of State, such as Finance, Customs, Postoffice, Public Works, etc, but they are the constitutional adviser of the Governor-General. When a member of a Cabinet goes out of office, he remains a Privy Councillor, but his position is honorary, and he no longer administers a Department of the Government or advises His Excellency.

"The members of the Cabinet or Ministry that advises the Governor-General," wrote Sir John Bourinot in his "Parliamentary Procedure," must be sworn of the Privy Council, and then called upon to hold certain departmental offices of state. They are a committee of the Privy Council, chosen by the Governor-General to conduct the administration of public affairs. They are strictly a political committee, since it is necessary that they should be members of the Legislature. The political Minister of this Cabinet is the Prime Minister or Premier—a title nearly unknown to the written law, and only recognized by the conventions of the constitution."

The Prime Minister is more than the head of the Cabinet. He is its very centre, and the man upon whom its existence depends. Should he die, should he resign or be dismissed the Cabinet ceases to exist, and another cannot be formed until another Prime Minister has been found. The last Prime Minister went out of office by resignation, and it was he who resigned and not the Cabinet, or Government. His resignation of itself dissolved the Cabinet, and it at once ceased to exist.

In theory at least the Prime Minister is the choice of the Governor-General. As a matter of fact the Governor-General selects the leader of the political party dominant in the House of Commons, and this is especially the case where power is being transferred from one party to another.

Once a man has been called upon by the Governor-General to be Prime Minister and has accepted the position, it is for him to select the members of his Cabinet and submit their names to the Governor-General. "The Prime Minister," says Bourinot, "is the choice of the Governor-General; the members of the Cabinet are practically the choice of the Prime Minister."

The Cabinet is not only responsible to Parliament and dependent for its very existence upon a majority in the House of Commons, but every member of the Cabinet must hold a seat either in the House or the Senate. It is this that keeps our executive so closely in touch with the popular will as expressed by Parliament, and gives the British people, under the Crown, the most truly democratic form of Government in the world.

When the fork was introduced into England it was regarded with great contempt as a dainty, newfangled notion, fit only for foreigners, dandies and other inferior persons. To use the fork was long considered a mark of effeminacy or a ridiculous imitation of foreign customs. Thus in a play of Beaumont and Fletcher there is a contemptuous allusion to "your fork carving traveler."

FELL FROM A HAY LOFT

Suffered Tortures With His Kidneys Until He Tried Gin Pills

You might think that Mr. Baker needed a surgeon more than GIN PILLS. But there were no bones broken. His back was strained, which was harder to cure because nothing seemed to do any good. It is the same with a sprained ankle and broken leg. You can set the fracture and it will be well in six weeks—but the sprain may take months to get well.

A BAD FALL

AULDSVILLE, ONT.

"I have been a great sufferer from Kidney Trouble from an injury to my back caused by falling from a hay loft about six years ago. This left my kidneys weak, so that every cold I got would settle in my kidneys and cause intense suffering. I was advised to try GIN PILLS. I found, to my surprise, after taking two boxes, that the pains were relieved and I began to feel better. I am still taking GIN PILLS and feel sure I will be completely cured. I recommend GIN PILLS to all who suffer from any Kidney Trouble'. C. BAKER.

You see, the fall had strained the kidneys and they were affected by the slightest chill. GIN PILLS immediately strengthened the kidneys—soothed any irritation and thus enabled the kidneys to overcome the effects of the fall.

If you are having pain in the back—or trouble with kidneys or bladder through accident or overwork—do just as Mr. Baker did—take GIN PILLS. They will help you—cure you—or we will promptly refund your money. Buy six boxes at your dealer's. If, after taking them, you feel that Gin Pills have not helped you, return the empty boxes and get your money. We will take your word for it. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. "THE LAND OF THE STUNTED POPLAR" HAS AT LAST VINDICATED ITSELF

Chairman of Temiscaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission Speaks Eulogistically of New Ontario and its Vast Resources

AT THE CANADIAN CLUB

"Let us be true to that which nature has provided; true to ourselves, and true to the land which, in my opinion, is the greatest asset which the Province possesses. The greatest asset of the greatest Dominion which the greatest Empire holds."

With these words J. L. Englehart, Chairman of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission, concluded an eighty-minute discourse on Ontario's great undeveloped clay belt, aggregating many million acres of virgin soil, with a layer of from six to twelve inches of black loam that has yet been undisturbed by the settlers' plow.

The occasion of Mr. Englehart's presence in the city was the Canadian Club banquet, which was held last night in the Oriental Hotel, and presided over by Mr. E. L. Goodwill, President of the Club. A great many of the Club members, and also non members were present, and the address given by Mr. Englehart, the speaker of the evening, was one of unalloyed interest, revealing to the uninitiated a mental conception of a land possessing untold possibilities.

Speaking of the splendid agricultural country, of which the City of Peterborough forms the hub, the speaker dwelt upon the necessity of securing a permanent representative of the Agricultural Department. In order to secure the best possible value from the land under the conditions which predominate to-day, we must intersperse brains with manual labour. "Agriculture is a noble pursuit, possessing larger possibilities than anything that you could name, which, gentlemen, is strong language, but, nevertheless, true," said the speaker.

New Ontario.

From the waters of Lake Erie to the fresh waters of North Bay, we have less than eight hundred miles. If we were to follow an imaginary line, passing between these two points, we would pass over what is known as the great clay belt; also some of the biggest mineral deposits in the world. Cochrane, which is destined to become a town of importance, and which has already several railways radiating from it, forms the centre of a zone consisting of, roughly speaking, twenty million acres. Here can be grown all kinds of grains and vegetables to advantage, from Canada No. 1 wheat, to peas that are, unaffected by the weevil.

In Chatham, they market what are termed hand-picked beans, but in New Ontario, we handle beans with a scoop shovel, declared the speaker. Potatoes can be grown there to much better advantages han anywhere else in Onario; this applies especially to seed potatoes. In short, the possibilities of this fertile region are unlimited. Harry F. Gadsby, formerly of Collier's Weekly, who camped up there for several weeks one summer, and is a good authority on such matters, spoke eulogistically of New Ontario and its undeveloped wealth. "Gadsby tried to get up before the sun, but never arose but what the sun was ahead of him," jocularly remarked Mr. Englehart, when speaking of the long days of sunshine, which prevail in that northern clime.

A Sportsman's Paradise.

All kinds of game abound, even to the wild duck, which has been induced to accept the lakes of New Ontario, as a breeding place, which circumstance was brought about by the judicious distribution of wild rice in the lakes, which, having taken root, forms an excellent feeding ground, with the result that New Ontario is destined to become a sportman's paradise. A strong inducement for the settler to seek his fortunes there, is the fact that as soon as he arrives there is someone to meet him. The last year or so, has seen a large influx of English settlers to this district, and it is said that these are not good settlers, especially those who come from towns where they drop their "h's". But, without any discrimination, they are all made welcome, and should they be accompanied by a family, and be without funds, as many of them are, they are not turned adrift, but are taken in hand, and an endeavour made to locate them.

The clay soils of the South require the use of rooth and disk harrows, in order that a suitable bed might be prepared for the reception of the seed. This is not required in the North, where the soil is composed of

Applications for New Position of Sanitary Inspector Were All In Yesterday

WILL BE OPENED SOON

Twenty-eight applications for the position of Sanitary Inspector for the city have been recived by City Clerk Armstrong. The time for their filing closed yesterday at 4 p.m. Evidently the $700 a year salary has made a strong appeal to some, even though the duties of the official have not been outlined. A meeting will likely be called shortly to open the letters, as it had been decided that a Sanitary Inspector is necessary to the city, and particularly in view of the probability of a garbage collecting system becoming a reality.

GRIP IS DREADED

Because It Lowers Vitality—What to Do.

It is not the disease itself, but the dangerous complications that follow it, that people fear with such good reason the lingering coughs, the terrible weakness, and the liability of being attacked by pleurisy, pneumonia or some other serious ill.

We say it is highly important to free the system of every trace of grip and nothing is so good for this as Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation which creates strength and builds up the body.

Mrs. C. L. Edward, Long Branch, N. J., says: "Last February I had a very bad attack of grip and it left me with a terrible cough. For fully six weeks I coughed a great deal, and nothing had any effect on it, until I tried Vinol which soon gave me relief and has since brought about a complete cure."

Can anything be more convincing than Vinol is just what you need to build you up and make you strong? We guarantee it most positively. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

CHURCHILL SPOKE; ULSTER DIDN'T FIGHT MOBS HOOTED KING'S REPRESENTATIVE

They Hooted Churchill but Escort Saved Him From Bodily Harm---Police Able to Keep Order---First Lord of the Admiralty Hanged in Effigy---The Scion of Marlborough Made His Home Rule Speech.

BELFAST, FEB. 8.—"Home Rule day in Belfast," for which the Government has made the strongest preparation in anticipation of serious riot and bloodshed, proved tamer than many a Twelfth of July in recent years.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and mouthpiece of the Liberal Government, defied the Orange leaders in Ulster, and made his long-heralded speech, explaining why the Asquith Ministry favours granting political autonomy to Ireland.

Churchill was hooted and hissed as he passed to and from the Nationalist park, where he delivered the address; he was hanged in effigy from wires suspended across a dozen leading thoroughfares, but at no time was he intimidated.

Ulster did not fight. The Unionist leaders had been awed by the display of force—the Cheshire Regiment, King's Own Scottish Borderers Scots Fusiliers, and Highland Light Infantry, 200 mounted Dragoons, and 1,000 Royal Irish Constabulary—and their influence was used to prevent rioting. The removal of the place of meeting from Royal Ulster Hall, for years the headquarters of the Unionists, and considered sacred by them, to Celtic Park football grounds, in the middle of the Catholic section of the city, also made for peace, and there was little for the soldiers under Col. Count Gleichen, the King's cousin, to do in preserving order.

Thousands of Orangemen Paraded.

The constabulary and the regular Belfast police, however, had their hands ful, as thousands of Orangemen and their sympathizers, dock, shipyard, and mill workers, continually paraded the streets, carrying banners on which opprobious epithets were inscribed. They blocked the route of the Cabinet spokesman to and from the park, and told Churchill in frevid language just what they thought of him and the Home Rule plan in general. Their jeers and booing were terrific, but they contented themselves with this method of expressing disapproval and gave way before the police every time the latter charged to open the way for the automobiles.

That Churchill was impressed with the demonstration was indicated, when he departed from his set speech to express the hope that the time was coming when religious intolerance would be done away with and to assure the Ulster men that their religious rights would always be safe guarded.

There were 6,000 Nationalists inside the tent to listen to the speech, while more than 12,000 others filled the remainder of the park, although they could hear nothing and see very little.

A heavy downpour of rain dampened the spirits of all concerned, but also aided the authorities in preserving order.

Groans and Cheers on Churchill's Arrival.

A number of Orangemen, who had gathered at the station, greeted him with groans and boos, but these were drowned in the hearty cheers of the large crowd of Liberals and Nationalists. There was no disturbance, and the large force of police on duty in the station had a very easy task to perform.

Carried Effigy of Churchill.

In the course of the morning a crowd of Unionists paraded the streets, wearing orange banners, headed by the Union Jack, and carrying an effigy of Mr. Churchill, to which was attached a placard bearing the words "Down with Churchill," "No Home Rule." They proceeded to the Grand Central Hotel, where Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were staying and sang National Anthem. Then they dispersed without disorder.

There was no marked excitement among the workers of the city to-day The tens of thousands of men and women engaged in the shipyards and the linen factories proceeded to work as though the question of Home Rule had not been mooted. A few small crowds, however, were scattered here and there, anxious to see the First Lord of th Admiralty, and watching the movements of the military.

Football Ground Like a Swamp.

Rain fell pitilessly the whole morning. The football ground, where the meeting was held, was a swamp, and the saturated canvas marquee, in which M. Churchill spoke, has sagged threateningly several times. Extra supports were placed under it to make it more secure. Because of the threat that an attempt might be made to demolish the tent, extra guards were placed all around it.

The main thoroughfares leading to the park were crowded with people. Many were on hand "merely to see the show," and contentedly munched their lunch as they held their places along the curb and waited for something to turn up.

A cordon of police was thrown about the hotel where Churchill and the leaders were conferring, and entrance was denied to everyone who could not produce credentials.

John Redmond and other Nationalist leaders joined Churchill. Arrangements for preserving the peace had been made on the most elaborate scale ever witnessed in this city. Detachments of police were posted everywhere, and the troops were held in readiness in their quarters.

Crowd Tried to Mob Churchill.

Matters looked ugly for a moment when Mr. and Mrs. Churchill started for the place where the meeting was to be held. A great crowd which had gathered outside the otel, appeared inclined to rush the First Lord's motor car and tried to block its passage, but a flotilla of escorting motor cars packed with detectives succeeded in worming a way through the grooming throng and got the First Lord safely away.

TORONTO AD. CLUB PRESIDENT TO GIVE ADDRESS HERE

Mr. C. W. McDiarmid Will Speak at the Dinner of the Peterborough Ad. Club Next Tuesday Night

The local business men who have secured tickets, and the few others, who can be accommodated yet with tickets to the dinner in the interests of buyers of advertising space, are now assured of something well worth while, in the address that will be given on this occasion. Mr. C. W. McDairmid of Eyrie Bros., Ltd., Toronto, and President of the Toronto Ad Club, has been secured to address the local buyers of advertising. Another expert buyer and writer of advertising will also be present, and speak for a few minutes.

The subjects of the addresses will permit of practical talks on some phase of retail advertising. Our local men will be privileged in being able to profit from the practical suggestions and criticisms, which will be thrown out by these prominent Toronto expert retail advertisers, who have had long experience in the business.

Other than the business men, who buy advertising space, all citizens of Peterborough stand to benefit much from having a live local Ad Club organized in Peterborough. In addition to increasing the efficiency of local advertising it is purposed that the Ad Club will boost things for the town generally, as well as securing a broader knowledge of advertising for each of its members.

More of the other live cities and towns, in Ontario are going to have live, active Ad Clubs, and we are certain that Peterborough will not want to let any of these other towns get ahead of her in this respect.

A limited number of tickets are in the hands of the committee and are yet available to those who would like to attend the dinner next Tuesday evening, Feb. 13th, at which the question of the Ad. Club will be discussed. The tickes are limited to fifty. Of these there are twelve left. They may be had on application to Mr. J. McNichol, with whom any one may get in touch, by phoning 1388.

GRAIN CONGESTION REACHES ACUTE STAGE

Examiner Special:

WINNIPEG, FEB. 9.—With all the elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur filled to their capacity, and every steamer in the harbour loaded with storage grain, the congestion at the lake ports reached a crisis yesterday. Three hundred cars can now be loaded with wheat lying in their yard, with no prospects for making delivery. At Fort William the C. P. R. had twelve hundred cars similarly loaded. This estimate does not include cars which laid on the siding of both roads between here and the lakes. The C.P.R. can only handle 150 cars each day owing to the cold weather and pressure of other business. The C.N.R. yesterday sent seventy cars from Winnipeg to Duluth.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, FEB. 9—The special committee of the House of Commons on old age pensions decided this morning upon the suggestion of Mr. Verville, M.P. to ask the various trades and labour organizations of the Dominion, as well as charity organizations and representatives of Ontario cities, to submit their views in writing as to the advisability of establishing a system of old age pensions in Canada.

13 DEG. BELOW ZERO AT SPRINGVILLE LAST NIGHT

From different points in the country around the city it was reported this afternoon that a heavy wind was blowing and the snow drifting. No roads were blocked, however, though drifts were rapidly forming. Dr. Marsh stated to the Examiner that a delicate thermometer at his home registered 13 deg. below zero last night, which is sufficiently cold for the average taste.

AN UNKNOWN AUSTRIAN DIES HERE FROM INJURIES STRUCK BY CRANE BUCKET

Foreign Labourer on Trent Canal So Badly Hurt in an Accident Near Campbellford That Death Resulted.

DIED IN THE HOSPITAL

The G.T.R. train from Campbellford, last evening, brought a pitiful story of a wanderer in distress. He was an Austrian, and, being unable to speak a word of English, was known only by the name of Jumbo. Jumbo had been working on the Trent Canal at Campbellford, but yesterday a crane bucket fell on him, crushing his leg badly. He was brought to Peterborough last evening and it was with great difficulty that he was kept alive during the journey, his leg being mangled to a pulp and bleeding profusely. He was met by Messrs. Comstock's ambulance, which took him to the St. Joseph's Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate his leg.

On enquiry this morning it was ascertained that the man had died from shock and loss of blood at 11 o'clock last night, before an operation could be performed. The remains were brought to Lane & Esmo's undertaking establishment, and he will be interred in the St. Peter's cemetery to-morrow afternoon.

Jumbo is a comparatively young man, probably about 30 years of age, tall, and well built. He was accompanied from Campbellford to Peterborough by a medical practitioner of the former town, but he, like others, knew nothing of the man. Inquiries are being made at Campbellford.

England Will Go Ahead Regardless of Opposition of Any Other Nation

CHURCHILL'S SPEECH

Special Wire to the Examiner.

GLASGOW, SCOTLAND, FEB. 9.—England intends to maintain her naval supremacy, regardless of opposition of any other nation, Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, made this very plain in a speech at luncheon in his honour here to-day. "Our naval supremacy" he said, "is an absolute necessity for the preservation of the Empire. It is necessary, therefore, that our Naval programme be continued without regard for any other nation. In the threatened event of continual continental navy increases, Great Britain will simply increase her ratio. By that means we will easily outdistance all other powers to such an extent that it will be hopeless for them to attempt to follow". So far as Germany was concerned, Winston Churchill said that her naval programme was one of expansion. "Naval power for us is a necessity", he said. "But it is a luxury for Germany." He added that England's relations are most friendly at present, with all the foreign powers.

Gladstone's Grandson

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 9.—William Glynne Gladstone, M.P., grandson of Gladstone the Great, has been selected to second the reply to the address from the throne at the opening of the House of Commons. He is regarded as a coming great parliamentarian. He was in Canada last year as Secretary to Ambassador Bryce, when the latter visited the Dominion.

A BALD-HEADED WOMAN

Hair is certainly most necessary to woman. Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could one array to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of hair mars her beauty, happiness, and success. Yet, right here in Peterborough, there are thousands of women who are neglecting or injuring their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time when it will be utterly ruined.

Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use curling irons over-heated, or to excess, which destroys the natural oil of the hair, causing it to split, break, and come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or too often. They use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loosens, loses colour, falls out, and baldness commences, unless proper and prompt precautions are taken in time. Then again, microbes and certain diseases bring about unhealthy scalp and hair conditions.

Almost any woman may rid herself of dandruff and diseased scalp and hair if she will but use the right remedy. We have that remedy, and we will positively guarantee that it will either cure dandruff and baldness or it will not cost the user anything.

That's a pretty broad statement, but we will back it and prove it with our own money. We will return your money if you do not find that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is an entirely satisfactory remedy that will promote hair growth and overcome scalp and hair troubles, that it will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots has been extinguished, the follicles closed, and the scalp is glazed and shiny. It gets its name from the fact that it grew hair in 93 out of 100 cases, where it received a thoroughly hard, impartial, and practical test.

We want you to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic at our risk. You surely cannot lose anything by doing so, while you have everything to gain. You had better think this over, and then come in and see us about this offer. You will be well repaid for your visit to our store. Remember, you can get Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

THE SUFFRAGETTE.

It is significant of the power of the petticoat over ulster, that Churchill got nothing worse than hisses in Belfast, but the minute he crossed the Irish Channel and landed in Scotland a Suffragette gave him a bloody nose.

SUCCESSION DUES.

The revenue from Succession Duties is considered by the Whitney government sufficiently important to be "featured" in the speech from the throne. This announces that the receipts from succession duties last year amounted to a million dollars. We should not have had this revenue if the policy of the Conservatives had prevailed. They denounced these duties as "a tax on the dead," and the present Provincial Treasurer, wanted the percentage of taxation so reduced that the revenue would now be a dribble, instead of a flood. It seems a little in the line of "cheekiness" for the Ontario government to take credit and boast over the resultant sources of revenue, inaugurated by a Liberal government, in face of the opposition of the party now in power.

IS THERE AN EXPLANATION?

There should be some explanation of the fact that the London, Ontario Electric Railway Company, as we are informed by despatches, is to generate electricity by steam for its purposes. The eletric railway company is a business enterprise, and would naturally use the cheapest power. If it finds steam cheaper than Hydro-Electric power, which London has to sell, there is further explanation indicated. Those who heard Hon. Adam Beck, speak in the Opera House here last December, gained the impression that electric light in London was almost as cheap as daylight. Peterborough is committed to the Hydro-Electric Commission, and it is natural that the ratepayers, now that they have got settled down, should want to know why, in London, an inland town, which has to have all its coal brought in by rail, can make steam-generated electricity cheaper than Hydro-Electric power. The Examiner is anxious that the city should be served with electricity at he very lowest possible price, and it welcomed the assurance that the people would be allowed to pronounce on any proposal for expenditure under the by-law. But the London incident is a little disturbing. If London finds steam-generated power cheaper than Hydro-Electric power for tramway purposes, there should be some explanation forthcoming.

AN IMPERIAL ISSUE.

The House of Commons the other night devoted some little time to the consideration of the question of naturalization within the Empire.

It has long been an anomaly that a British subject by naturalization in Canada is not recognized as a British subject outside of Canada, or for that matter outside of any of the self-governing Dominions of the Empire. There does not seem to be any reason why a British subject in Canada or Australia or South Africa should not be a British subject the whole world over; ;but under existing conditions he is not.

Why should there be any necessity for Imperial naturalization? Is not the taking of the oath of allegiance to the King in any part of Canada just as binding and every bit as effective as the taking of a similar oath in London or Liverpool or Glasgow? Why should there be any distinction between imperial citizenship and colonial citizenship, as Downing street still delights to describe our status?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier urged the importance of this point before the last Imperial Conference, as he had done at other conferences, and it is gratifying to know that the present Government is following in his footsteps. The present condition is a reflection upon our status as citizens of the Empire which is incompatible with full citizenship within the Empire, and it should be ended as soon as possible.

It is not a cause for satisfaction when a man, who has been born outside the flag and then naturalised as a British subject, finds that when he goes to Great Britain he is considered as still an alien. Many of our best citizens are men who were born outside the flag, but who have become as loyal British subjects as any of the native born. There is every reason why their status as British citizens should be officially recognised and that they should be placed upon the same footing as those born under the flag.—Ottawa Free Press.

CHURCHILL EXPLAINS THE HOME RULE BILL AT BELFAST

A Measure to Abolish Hatred—Part of General Scheme Making for Imperial Federation—Religious Freedom and English Civil Rights Guaranteed to All

"The Home Rule bill will forever do away with the accursed machinery by which hatred has been manifested in the past."

"It will fit into a general scheme of Parliamentary devolution, leading ultimately to the federation of the empire."

"The Irish throughout the world are a power for good or ill, who have mostly worked counter to British interests."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Belfast, Feb. 8.—The essential features of the Liberal Government's Home Rule bill to be introduced into the British Parliament were set forth for the first time to-day in the course of the speech of Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty.

The bill is to contain provisions for a fair representation in the two Houses of the Irish people, and restrictions will be placed on the passing of laws or the imposition of taxes which might be unjust to any party, while religious freedom is to be secured. The armed forces in Ireland are to be controlled by the Imperial Government, but Ireland is to control its own finances while the Imperial Government will continue its land purchase and pensions schemes.

Mr. Churchill, at the outset of his speech, caught the crowd by appealing to both the loyalty and self-interest of the Irish people to support the Government policy. He criticized the present Parliamentary methods of Great Britain, saying that it was not sufficiently representative of the local and provincial life of the nation. He commented on the fact that England's two rivals for commercial supremacy, the United States and Germany, respectively, were administered respectively by 46 and 23 separate legislative bodies.

In order to keep pace with the world movement, he said, he considered it vitally necessary for England to learn how to combine the fullest expressions of national and local aspirations and activities with the strongest framework of imperial unity. Home Rule for Ireland, he said, he regarded as the first milestone along the road to the eventual unity of the English-speaking races.

Abolish Machinery That Makes Hatred.

Mr. Churchill promised his audience that the Government intended to pass a home rule bill which would be harmonious with Imperial interests, smooth, the path of the British Empire, liberate new forces for its service, and forever to do away with the accursed machinery by which hatred had been manufactured in the past.

This announcement got a rousing reception from the 6,000 people gathered within the tent whose enthusiasm not even the depressing surroundings were able entirely to quench. A steady shower poured through the canvas roof, making the floor an incipient marsh. At interims a band played popular airs intermingled with the Irish melodies, "The Wearing of the Green," and "The Boys of Wexford."

Home Rule All Round.

The Government's Home Rule bill continued Mr. Churchill, would fit into a general scheme of Parliamentary devolution leading ultimately to the federation of the Empire. That was the only way to free the House of Commons from its present congestion.

"Look at our great rivals, the United States of America, and Germany. Both of those powers conduct their business through separate Parliaments."

Mr. Churchill contended that the settlement of the long quarrel between the British Government and the Irish people would be a boon to the Empire beyond compare, as the Irish throughout the world were a power for good or ill, who had in the past mostly worked counter to British interests.

Fair to the Minority.

Without closely particularizing the terms of the home rule bill to be brought in by the Government, Mr. Churchill said that the Irish Parliament and Senate would fairly represent the minority as well as the majority of the people of Ireland.

The Crown will be in a position to refuse its assent to any unjust law and the Imperial Parliament will be able to repeal any such law.

Religious freedom will be secured.

The Privy Council will be able to declare void any law which goes beyond the limits of the home rule bill.

Control of Finances.

The financial proposals of the bill will give a fair start to the Irish Government and invidious taxes will not be able to be placed upon Ulster.

The Irish Parliament will have real control of its finances but the system used must be consistent with the financial system of the United Kingdom.

The Imperial Government will continue to carry out the land purchase and old age pension schemes.

The Irish representation at Westminster will be reduced.

Mr. Churchill continued that the Government is prepared to fight the bill through Parliament and be asked for fair play from the Unionists.

CHURCHILL ASSAULTED BY SUFFRAGETTE

The Fruits of His Belfast Explanation of Home Rule Bill Already Bearing Fruit

LONDON, FEB. 8.—Hisses were the worst Mr. Churchill experienced in Belfast to-day, but when he left the soil of Ulster and landed in Scotland he received a blow. This was from a suffragette, who struck him in the face with a green flag bearing the words: "No referendum for suffragettes!"

She exclaimed as she hit Mr. Churchill: "Take that, you cur!" She was rather roughly hustled by the crowd, but Mr. Churchill said, "Don't hurt her," and the incident ended.

Wit han inglorious ending of the Belfast comedy, it is conceded by Unionists even of that rabid type in opposition to home rule represented by Sir Edward Carson, that can no longer be regarded seriously as a factor. A very significant straw, and showing the way the wind is blowing is the likelihood that one leading London newspaper, which hitherto has fought against home rule tooth and nail is now veering round, if not to approval of Irish autonomy, at least to the acceptance of it under the conditions outlined by Mr. Churchill and agreed to by Mr. Redmond.

Forestry Convention Considers Subject Of Forest Conservation

OTTAWA, FEB. 7.—This has been one of the most successful days in the history of the forestry movements in Canada. The Railway Committee room in the House of Commons was early crowded with visitors from all over the United States and Canada, more than five hundred delegates being in attendance at the Forestry Convention—a ew record. Premier Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier opened the convention and extended to the delegates a hearty welcome.

Premier and Sir Wilfrid.

All through the day the feeling of hearties accord between the Forestry Association and the legislatures was evidenced. The words of Burke, echoed by the Prime Minister in his first speech in the morning, that the State is a great partnership among three parties, the past, the present and the future divisions of the human race, formed the keynote of the whole convention.

This setiment was reiterated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, both at the morning meeting and at the banquet in the Commons Restaurant to-night and again by Dr. Gifford Pinchot, ex-Forecaster to the United States, who posing as nothing save a simple forester, said: "If we look anywhere on our industrial life we find that its future must be worked out along the lines of the elimination of waste, through the maintenance of the greatest amount of physical well-being to the greatest number for the greatest length of time. It is hrough such principles as these of the forester, who, I believe, was the first to attain this long-distance view, and who is maintaining it in the practice of his profession, that we are to work out, I beg to prophesy, the salvation of our nationhood in the future".

The President.

George Y. Chown of Kingston, delivered his Presidential address, reviewing concisely the work of the year. He urged an aggressive forward policy on (1) the taking of the forestry services, both Dominion and Provincial, out of politics, making way for technically trained men; (2) a permanent forest policy, and especially a progressive policy with regard to the treatment of forest reserves; (3) some efficient manner of dealing with slash in order to guard against forest fires.

A feature of the day was a strong and remarkably striking appeal made by Archdeacon Renison of Moose Factory, Hudson Bay Territory, for the employment of native Indians as fire-rangers in the north.

The Porcupie Fire.

Prof. John Macoun, Ottawa, said any fool would have known that Porcupine would be destroyed by fire a week before it happened, unless preventive measures were taken, on account of reports of fires that came down to the newspapers.

Hon. Sidney Fisher explained that he work of the railways with respect to forest fires had been placed under the jurisdiction of the Board of Railway Commissioners.

"In the Province of Ontario during the last forty years there has been more timber destroyed by fire than has been cut," said Hon. W. H. Charlton, M.P., ex-Minister of Crown Lands for Ontario. He advocated a system of dividing the country into districts, each district under the charge of a competent woodsman.

Railways Take Pains.

"We spend more money in fighting fires than probably all the corporations in the Dominion of Canada," said N. Stuart Dunlop, claims agent, eastern division, Canadian Pacific Railway, in Montreal. "If the lumbermen and farmers took the trouble the railways did the forest fires would be considerably fewer," he said.

Aubrey White, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests in Ontario, said that it was hard to get suitable men for rangers.

The Place Of Cochrane & Rogers In Canadian National Affairs

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—"It is believed that Hon. Messrs. Cochrane and Rogers have reached an agreement between themselves." This has reference to the "boundary dispute," which seems to have reached an acute stage in government circles. The significance of the statement lies in the words, "between themselves." Why was Hon. Robt. Rogers given an important portfolio in the Borden government? Not on the score of ability or fitness. The can[illegible]in Manitoba at the late Fe[illegible]ction was directed by Mr. Rogers, chiefly because he was known as a past master in political trickery.

Mr. Cochrane won a seat in the Borden Cabinet by working the machine in Ontario. What care these men for the interests of Canada when their own individual interests are at stake. The one saving element in this case is that selfish interests are opposed to selfish interests, and so we may look for a compromise of such a character that Mr. Rogers will be able to persuade his followers in Manitoba that he has won a signal victory for his province, while Mr. Cochrane will be able to claim that Ontario has the larger gift.

Are the representatives in Parliament to sit with folded arms while these two truckling politicians are parcelling up Canadian territory to serve their own political advantage.

What has become of the boastful promises of the Conservative leaders? What have they done since their accession to office. Practically nothing, but dismiss officials to make way for hungry partisans. We have had in the past governments in which one man power was a feature; now we have a government ruled and led by cliques and adventurers.

Yours, etc.,
MAC.

WITH every new year, the woman who had to earn all or a part of her livelihood, is finding new ways to do so and new niches to fill.

Below are some of the latest and most interesting ways to make herself useful which she has discovered. To the woman who already found her niche in some business or professional work, or in homemaking, I hope these will be interesting as showing what the other woman is doing. To the woman who is still without her niche, perhaps some word here may be directly or even indirectly suggestive. I sincerely hope so, for if there is any person for whom I have a deep and never decreasing well of sympathy, it is the woman who has not yet found her niche in the world's work.

A girl who was studying to be a teacher had to give up her course because her eyes gave out, and further study was a definite impossibility. She is now earning twice as much as most of her classmates who completed the course and became teachers. And her occupation is playmate to invalid children. Through a series of happenings she found out that she seemed to have a talent for playing with children, and especially with lame and sickly children. She was successful in getting such unfortunates to try to use their limbs when everyone else failed to persuade them. Upon this talent she built up her profession. After demonstrating her ability by her success in getting one child who had been crippled by infantile paralysis to use his limbs, she was widely recommended by the boy's physician, and soon had every hour taken during six days a week as playmate to invalid children. In some cases she encouraged and helped the children in the use of their limbs, so that they were eventually cured. In others where she could not cure, she helped, and in still others simply managed to brighten an invalid's existence and teach him to be more cheerful.

"The talents required for such a profession are unusual, but doubtless there are a good many women who possess them, and since the terrible scourge of infantile paralysis has come among us, there would probably be sadly many opportunities for such work.

* * * * * * * * * *

Many specialists in scientific and other lines do not like to do all their reference and routine work themselves, and clever, well-mannered women are constantly finding opportunities in the line of looking up references and arranging manuscripts. Somewhat similar to this is the work which a woman I know is doing in collecting family records for national and historical societies and sometimes for family use.

* * * * * * * * * *

A letter friend sends in this description of a decidedly unusual way in which one woman earned some money.

"Mrs. S. is making a fair income by travelling in towns where summer tourists are wont to go and making it her business to find out what cottages are to rent. She then takes down a complete description of them and their surroundings, number of room, size, colour, etc., and notes if there are any repairs needed. She then does a real estate agent's business, but being interested in her clients and having more details at her finger tips, does the work in a much more individual and careful way than an ordinary real estate agent."

* * * * * * * * * *

A woman whose husband was a butcher, has conceived the idea of using the bones to make soup stock. She puts it up in neat glass jars and sells large quantities. She says that being a butcher's wife is not a necessary requirement for such work but that any woman could probably make arrangements with all the butchers in her vicinity for the use of their waste and would undoubtedly make good pin money in this way.

Who knows but that "Pin-money Soup Stock" may some day be a by-word too!

The Village Arbiter

(Short Story.)

Clang! Clang! The church bell unmusically responded to the vigorous hand over hand movement of Captain Higgins, whose attention was divided between his occupation and the recital of village history.

"Yes, folks will turn out this morning," he said, giving the rope a dexterous swing acquired in early nautical training. "I'm not saying their motives ain't mixed—but they are coming."

Clang! Clang! And he allowed the rope to run its backward journey. "We've got our church folks back, and it's all on account of Toby Sanford, the shoemaker. Toby is a master hand with situations. He don't know fear. It's a word that ain't in his dictionary, but just let him scent injustice—then you know Toby. You've heard of the sarpint that had such an eye that it looked right through a tin pan until it made a skimmer out of it? Well, that's Toby's eye. He ain't so much to look at. Short, so short they say he can't tell whether his throat is sore or his belt is too tight. But leg him see wrong going on, and—well, he's all of ten feet tall.

"He has got considerable money—you would not find that out, perhaps, unless you happened to get into trouble and needed some help—and he pegs away on shoes as though he had a family of little children, instead of only himself. But he always has a kind word, too, and his shop is a great clearing house for trouble. It's just at the cross-roads, and the door is always open, as if to invite you in. The children all go there. They take him the hen with the broken leg and the dog with the lame paw, and every year they hang a May basket for him. They say the birds fly in and hop all over him while he's working.

"This trouble that I speak of all grew out of the uplift that Philury Bean got when she was away. You know Philury has grew right up here with us all, and she has always nagged the whole town with her reforming ideas. She ain't young, Philury ain't. She has sort of stretched her girlhood out, with here and there a touch and here and there a little rimless subterfuge.

"She always run into Toby's to have her heels righted up, and I guess he generally dropped a word or two that righted up her mind. Leastwise, she tried reforming him and trying to put some of her ideas into his head, and he had words with her. Just once, mind you; Toby never has to repeat himself. I guess he always thought considerable of Philury, but he wouldn't countenance her acting out the way she did.

"It started with her uplight. She went away to the city and stayed a spell, and when she come home them that knows her best say they could see as soon as she got down off from the stage-coach that she was as full of purpose as a cat is of electricity when a storm is coming. She didn't come right out at first; she began going round calling and talking in a leading up way. The town is clever disposed ,and the folks set out their good chiny and asked Philury to tea.

"Well, after a spell she gradually let fall that she had a new system of living. It was kind of a mixture of sun-gazing and going out to put the bottom of your feet against a tree to gather electricity, and concentrating the mind. She give out to lecture in the hall, and of course everybody went. The children all set in the front seat and giggled, and the others hung back against the wall as though they expected some sort of fireworks to go off, dangerous. But she made some fair talk, and after a while the whole town most began to get to ketowing to her. This old town is just like the Athenians—hunting for some new thing, and Philury had the uplift disease, and as soon as she blowed her breath on them they all come out to a better.

"The thing nagged along until, first thing we knew, the town was dividing, and the church folks were all going after Philury and her bare foot craze ,and the pews were empty. Some said that Toby's eyes were beginning to blaze, and them that went in there found the shop too small for them. Toby had begun to expand and grow. He seemed to fill the place and the litter of leather was never cleaned up from day to day."

It was clear something was on his mind. He had admired Philury's spirit and took pride in her shoe taps since she was a girl, and no one could get a dissenting word about the high living; but he also loved our old preacher. He knew he was just like a good old shepherd yearning over his lambs. Toby didn't say a word until he heard the old man had took to his bed, sorrowing for his people. Then he took off his leather apron, and swept up his shop.

Clang! Clang! The bell swayed for several minutes, and the listener saw from the open door that the man's prophecy was fulfilled. The road was rapidly filling, and figures were seen coming across the fields and pastures. "Well, Toby was always a man of action. He never waited to sound his depths." Here the captain drew upon his sea life for comparison. "He just up sails, with his own hand on the wheel, and stivered for port.

"The first thing he did, so they say, was to go down to the Four Corners and buy that white house by the willer tree. The next thing he did was to call on Philury and explain to her why he was going to have the right to dictate to her what she should do in the future. The next thing, he called on every family in town and set them right about their duty to the pastor."

The bell tolled with a sweeter and more lingering tone. Heavy feet crossed the threshold and groups gathered about the door. Every face wore an expectant expression. The captain's voice fell to a husky whisper. "They was married last week, and that's them just coming across the yard." The stranger looked at the pair making their way between the lurching headstones of the churchyard, and saw a small man with a fixed and determined expression, a man who wore his happiness with dignity. On his arm swayed the taller Philury, self conscious in her new finery, but evidently manacled in spirit, and happy withal. The bell sounded its final word. Captain Higgins wiped his forehead, and as the pair passed into the aisle he tiptoed, with squeaking shoes, to a better line of vision, and then, protecting his confidence with large palm, he whispered, "He's flying the right colours. He just got Philury in by the reefs and anchored her."

ONLOOKER'S COMPLAINTS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I was surprised to notice in your paper last night the large ad. of the English Hand Bell Ringers, informing the public that they would appear in St. Andrew's Church, and that prices of tickets was 50c., and reserved seats, 75c. I always thought churches were built and maintained to teach religion in, and not to hold concers. The idea of reserved seats in a church. Churches are exempt from taxes and do not have to pay any license and are kept up by their congregations, but if they want to go into the concert or show business, the Chief of Police should see that they take out a license and the city should compel them to pay their taxes. There are plenty of places in the city to hold the concerts in, and I think it is a desecration of the House of God to hold concerts in churches, and it is certainly time this practise was stopped.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the use of your valuable space, I remain.

Respectfully yours,
"Onlooker".

Another Bank For Norwood

On Monday last the Bank of Toronto, under the temporary management of Mr. P. J. Wright of Havelock, opened a branch here, in the premises lately occupied by Mr. J. Hendren and previously occupied by Mr. Walter Girven, opposite the Methodist church property.

This is but a temporary location, it being intended that in the spring a new and suitable building shall be erected in some convenient place.

This is certainly welcome news indicating the beginning of further building operations that are bound to come to restore what our village recently lost by the devastation of fire.

Inasmuch as the same constituency remains, as was there before the fire, it stands to reason that eventually the local volume of business must resume its former proportions, which means that the same extent of building accommodation which formerly existed, must in time, be restored.—Norwood Register.

ARE CELEBRATING SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henry, custodians of the Children's Shelter, are to-day celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. About seventy relatives and intimate friends are present, and the occasion will go down as a memorable one in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Henry. Several brothers and sisters are present, some of whom have not met in years.

A sumptuous repast, followed by music and song, will prevail this evening. Mr. and Mrs. Henry were the recipients of beautiful presents which evidenced the high esteem in which the couple are held.

KENTISH CAKE

An English Delicacy

Few indeed are the table goodies that will be more genuinely appreciated than this, and most housewives will find Kentish Cake quickly vanish unless kept under lock and key. Take one-quarter pound each of butter and powdered sugar and beat to a cream. Then add gradually one and a half cups of flour and three eggs, beating for several minutes, as each egg is added. Stir in large tablespoonful each of Fry's Cocoa, ground almond, and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Then add a level teaspoonful of baking powder, and bake thirty or forty minutes in a greased or butter-papered lined tin. Ice the cake when cold; or you can strew the top with chopped almonds and cocoanut before baking.

Boy Scouts Banquetted

Last night a very successful banquet was held by the Peterborough Boy Scouts in the armouries. Messrs. Coleman Bros. undertook the seemingly impossible task of satisfying the appetites of about fifty two hungry scouts. First, third and fourth troops, conducted by Rev. F. J. Sawer, Mr. Taylor and Mr. Miller respectively, were present. After the boys had done justice to the excellent bill of fare provided, a toast to the King was proposed and was followed by a brief address by Rev. Mr. Sawers.

The following programme was rendered:

Chairman's remarks.
Mouth organ selection by P. Leader Common.
Recitation by F. McNeily.
Mouth organ selection by Scout Ecobision.
Address by the Rev. Mr. Sawers.

At the conclusion of the programme a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Colonel Clegg for his kindness in granting them the use of the armouries, and a very enjoyable evening was culminated by the singing of the national anthem.

Hands Were Badly Frozen

Lying o the railway tracks, with his ears frozen, and his hands badly frost bitten, such was the condition in which a well-known East City resident was found about 9 o'cock this morning. Dr. Young was summoned, to attend the unfortunate man, who was later removed to his home, ad his injuries attended to. Unless complications set in no serious results are anticipated.

FROST IS DOWN FOUR FEET

Some idea of the intensity of the frost this winter was shown yesterday on Gilmour street, when workmen, digging a trench for sewer repairs, found that it had penetrated to a depth of four feet. This is one proof, if the theremometers were not registering the fact every day, that th wintr thas ben unusually severe, and the groundhog must have been, forgot to burrow more deeply than usual.

At the conclusion of the programme a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Colonel Clegg for his kindness in granting them the use of the armouries, and a very enjoyable evening was culminated by the singing of the national anthem.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

WITH every new year, the woman who had to earn all or a part of her livelihood, is finding new ways to do so and new niches to fill.

Below are some of the latest and most interesting ways to make herself useful which she has discovered. To the woman who already found her niche in some business or professional work, or in homemaking, I hope these will be interesting as showing what the other woman is doing. To the woman who is still without her niche, perhaps some word here may be directly or even indirectly suggestive. I sincerely hope so, for if there is any person for whom I have a deep and never decreasing well of sympathy, it is the woman who has not yet found her niche in the world's work.

A girl who was studying to be a teacher had to give up her course because her eyes gave out, and further study was a definite impossibility. She is now earning twice as much as most of her classmates who completed the course and became teachers. And her occupation is playmate to invalid children. Through a series of happenings she found out that she seemed to have a talent for playing with children, and especially with lame and sickly children. She was successful in getting such unfortunates to try to use their limbs when everyone else failed to persuade them. Upon this talent she built up her profession. After demonstrating her ability by her success in getting one child who had been crippled by infantile paralysis to use his limbs, she was widely recommended by the boy's physician, and soon had every hour taken during six days a week as playmate to invalid children. In some cases she encouraged and helped the children in the use of their limbs, so that they were eventually cured. In others where she could not cure, she helped, and in still others simply managed to brighten an invalid's existence and teach him to be more cheerful.

The talents required for such a profession are unusual, but doubtless there are a good many women who possess them, and since the terrible scourge of infantile paralysis has come among us, there would probably be sadly many opportunities for such work.

* * * * * * * * * * *

Many specialists in scientific and other lines do not like to do all their reference and routine work themselves, and clever, well-mannered women are constantly finding opportunities in the line of looking up references and arranging manuscripts. Somewhat similar to this is the work which a woman I know is doing in collecting family records for national and historical societies and sometimes for family use.

* * * * * * * * * * *

"Mrs. S. is making a fair income by travelling in towns where summer tourists are wont to go and making it her business to find out what cottages are to rent. She then takes down a complete description of them and their surroundings, number of room, size, colour, etc., and notes if there are any repairs needed. She then does a real estate agent's business, but being interested in her clients and having more details at her finger tips does the work in a much more individual and careful way than an ordinary real estate agent."

* * * * * * * * * * *

A woman whose husband was a butcher, has conceived the idea of using the bones to make soup stock. She puts it up in neat glass jars and sells large quantities. She says that being a butcher's wife is not a necessary requirement for such work but that any woman could probably make arrangements with all the butchers in her vicinity for the use of their waste and would undoubtedly make good pin money in this way.

Who knows but that "Pin-money Soup Stock" may some day be a by-word too!

The Village Arbiter

(Short Story.)

Clang! Clang! The church bell unmusically responded to the vigorous hand over hand movement of Captain Higgins, whose attention was divided between his occupation and the recital of village history.

"Yes, folks will turn out this morning," he said, giving the rope a dexterous swing acquired in early nautical training. "I'm not saying their motives ain't mixed—but they are coming."

Clang! Clang! And he allowed the rope to run its backward journey. "We've got our church folks back, and it's all on account of Toby Sanford, the shoemaker. Toby is a master hand with situations. He don't know fear. It's a word that ain't in his dictionary, but just let him scent injustice—then you know Toby. You've heard of the serpint that had such an eye that it looked right through a tin pan until it made a skimmer out of it? Well, that's Toby's eye. He ain't so much to look at. Short, so short they say he can't tell whether his throw is sore or his belt is too tight. But let him see wrong going on, and—well, he's all of ten feet tall.

"He has got considerable money—you would not find that out, perhaps, unless you happened to get into trouble and needed some help—and he pegs away on shoes as though he had a family of little children, instead of only himself. But he always has a kind word, too, and his shop is a great clearing house for trouble. It's just at the cross-roads, and the door is always open, as if to invite you in. The children all go there. They take him the hen with the broken leg and the dog with the lame paw, and every year they hang a May basket for him. They say the birds fly in and hop all over him while he's working.

"This trouble that I speak of all grew out of the uplift that Philury Bean got when she was away. You know Philury has grew right up here with us all, and she has always nagged the whole town with her reforming ideas. She ain't young, Philury ain't. She has sort of stretched her girlhood out, with here and there a touch and here and there a little harmless subterfuge.

"She always run into Toby's to have her heels righted up, and I guess he generally dropped a word or two that righted up her mind. Leastwise, she tried reforming him and trying to put some of her ideas into his head, and he had words with her. Just once, mind you; Toby never has to repeat himself. I guess he always thought considerable of Philury, but he wouldn't countenance her acting out the way she did.

"It 'started with her uplight. She went away to the city and stayed a spell, and when she come home them that knows her best say they could see as soon as she got down off from the stage-coach that she was as full of purpose as a cat is of electricity when a storm is coming. She didn't come right out at first; she began going round calling and talking in a leading up way. The town is clever disposed, and the folks set out their good chiny and asked Philury to tea.

"Well, after a spell she gradually let fall that she had a new system of living. It was kind of a mixture of sun-gazing and going out to put the bottom of your feet against a tree to gather electricity, and concentrating the mind. She give out to lecture in the hall, and of course everybody went. The children all set in the front seat and giggled, and the others hung back against the wall as though they expected some sort of fireworks to go off, dangerous. But she made some fair talk, and after a while the whole town most began to get to ketowing to her. This old town is just like the Athenians—hunting for some new thing, and Philury had the uplift disease, and as soon as she blowed her breath on them they all come out to a better.

"The thing nagged along until, first thing we knew, the town was dividing, and the church folks were all going after Philury and her barefoot craze, and the pews were empty. Some said that Toby's eyes were beginning to blaze, and them that went in there found the shop too small for them. Toby had begun to expand and grow. He seemed to fill the place and the litter of leather was never cleaned up from day to day."

It was clear something was on his mind. He had admired Philury's spirit and took pride in her shoe taps since she was a girl, and no one could get a dissenting word about the high living; but he also loved our old preacher. He knew he was just like a good old shepherd yearning over his lambs. Toby didn't say a word until he heard the old man had took to his bed, sorrowing for his people. Then he took off his leather apron, and swept up his shop.

Clang! Clang! The bell swayed for several minutes, and the listener saw from the open door that the man's prophecy was fulfilled. The road was rapidly filling, and figures were seen coming across the fields and pastures. "Well, Toby was always a man of action. He never waited to sound his depths." Here the captain drew upon his sea life for comparison. "He just up sails, with his own hand on the wheel, and stivered for port.

"The first thing he did, so they say was to go down to the Four Corners and buy that white house by the willer tree. The next thing he did was to call on Philury and explain to her why he was going to have the right to dictate to her what she should do in the future. The next thing, he called on every family in town and set them right about their duts to the pastor."

The bell tolled with a sweeter and more lingering tone. Heavy feet crossed the threshold and groups gathered about the door. Every face wore an expectant expression. The captain's voice fell to a husky whisper. "They was married last week, and that's them just coming across the yard." The stranger looked at the pair making their way between the lurching headstones of the churchyard, and saw a small man with a fixed and determined expression, a man who wore his happiness with dignity. On his arm swayed the taller Philury, self conscious in her new finery, but evidently manacled in spirit, and happy withal. The bell sounded its final word. Captain Higgins wiped his forehead, and as the pair passed into the aisle he tiptoed, with squeaking shoes, to a better line of vision, and then, protecting his confidence with large palm, he whispered, "He's flying the right colours. He just got Philury in by the reefs and anchored her."

ONLOOKER'S COMPLAINTS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I was surprised to notice in your paper last night the large ad. of the English Hand Bell Ringers, informing the public that they would appear in St. Andrew's Church, and that prices of tickets was 50c., and reserved seats, 75c. I always thought churches were built and maintained to teach religion in, and not to hold concerts. The idea of reserved seats in a church. Churches are exempt from taxes and do not have to pay any license and are kept up by their congregations, but if they want to go into the concert or show business, the Chief of Police should see that they take out a license and the city should compel them to pay their taxes. There are plenty of places in the city to hold the concerts in, and I think it is a desecration of the House of God to hold concerts in churches, and it is certainly time this practise was stopped.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the use of your valuable space, I remain,

Respectfully yours,
"Onlooker".

STOVE POLISH

Another Bank For Norwood

On Monday last the Bank of Toronto, under the temporary management of Mr P. J. Wright of Havelock, opened a branch here, in the premises lately occupied by Mr. J. Hendren and previously occupied by Mr. Walter Girven, opposite the Methodist church property.

This is for a temporary location, it being intended that in the spring a new and suitable building shall be erected in some convenient place.

This is certainly welcome news indicating the beginning of further building operations that are bound to come to restore what our village recently lost by the devastation of fire.

Inasmuch as the same constituency remains, as was there before the fire, it stands to reason that eventually the local volume of business must resume its former proportions, which means that the same extent of building accommodation which formerly existed, must in time, be restored.—Norwood Register.

ARE CELEBRATING SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henry, custodians of the Children's Shelter, are to-day celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. About seventy relatives and intimate friends are present, and the occasion will go down as a memorable one in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Henry. Several brothers and sisters are present, some of whom have not met in years.

A sumptuous repast, followed by music and song, will prevail this evening. Mr. and Mrs. Henry were the recipients of beautiful presents which evidenced the high esteem in which the couple are held.

KENTISH CAKE

An English Delicacy

Few indeed are the table goodies that will be more genuinely appreciated than this, and most housewives will find Kentish Cake quickly vanish unless kept under lock and key. Take one-quarter pound each of butter and powdered sugar and beat to a cream. Then add gradually one and a half cups of flour and three eggs, beating for several minutes, as each egg is added. Stir in large tablespoonful each of Fry's Cocoa, ground almond, and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Then add a level teaspoonful of baking powder, and bake thirty or forty minutes in a greased or butter-papered lined tin. Ice the cake when cold, or you can strew the top with chopped almonds and cocoanut before baking.

Boy Scouts Banquetted

Last night a very successful banquet was held by the Peterborough Boy Scouts in the armouries. Messrs. Coleman Bros. undertook the seemingly impossible task, of satisfying the appetites of about fifty two hungry scouts. First, third and fourth troops, conducted by Rev. F. J. Sawer, Mr. Taylor and Mr. Miller respectively, were present. After the boys had done justice to the excellent bill of fare provided, a toast to the King was proposed and was followed by a brief address by Rev. Mr. Sawers.

"THE LAND OF THE STUNTED POPLAR"

In speaking of the proposed James Bay Railway, the speaker favoured such a move, inasmuch as the possibilities of the country to be served are worth considering. "It is not James Bay, or Hudson Bay, but it is the key to the situation," continued the speaker. With sixteen hundred miles of shore line around Hudson Bay, and innumerable rivers emptying into the Bay, all of which were navigable, it was a proposition worth considering. With a railway to Moose Factory and Fort Churchill, and at least these rivers as feeders, it would place Churchhill and Nelson in a similar position to Buffalo. Elevators could be constructed, wherein could be stored the immense quantities of grain, which are now diverted by roundabout routes, to other points.

In speaking of Porcupine, Mr. Englehart said that the trouble there was with capitalization. The territory was large, but was difficult of access by the railways, owing to the immense mineral wealth of the land, which they would have to pass over in order to serve that country. Cobalt, which is less than seven years old, has produced sixty-four million dollars worth of silver, and has paid thirty-one million dollars in dividends.

Messrs. E. L. Goodwill, H. R. H. Kenner, P. Cumobell, A. Mowat, W. P. Morris, H. Ritchie, D. Mullholland, W. H. Dunsford, A. H. Stratton, E. C. McLeod, Dr. Amys, W. H. Moore, F. D. Kerr, R. H. TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon pass me to the grave."

WILES OF PARISIAN SMUGGLERS

Smugglers resort to clever ruses to avoid the Parisian octroi collectors One enterprising innovator in an endeavour to avoid the duty on alcohol had it embodied in soap of which 70 per cent was pure spirit.

Then there is the imitation baby carried by a nurse, who, by a judicious squeeze produces melancholy wails. A hearse escorted by four undertaker's men and followed by a weeping family conveyed to the cemetery a coffin sumptuously draped in black velvet which contained 180 litres of alcohol.

One day a cart drawn by three horses rumbled into Paris under the noses of the customs officers. Apparently the cart was laden with square blocks of stone; in reality every stone was hollow and contained alcohol.

First class railway carriages sometimes conceal lace, chronometers and expensive cigars. Motor cars have false bottoms, logs of wood are hollowed out.

One day the people of a little village near the Belgian frontier were waiting for the Bishop of Chimay who was crossing to conduct a confirmation. All the villagers in their best clothes lined the road. Presently the carriage came in sight, crossed the frontier, and the bishop, carrying the pastoral cross gravely, stretched out a hand to bless the custom house officers, who bowed their heads to receive it. Then the carriage rolled on.

Twenty minutes later there came a second carriage, much less elaborately fitted up than the first, containing a second Bishop of Crimay! Suspicion fell on the ecclesiatic, and he was requested to leave the vehicle without delay and his carriage was ransacked from end to end. Of course nothing was found. Not a stain on the character of the bishop, who, naturally was the real one.

CONCRETE FURNITURE NOW

Thomas A. Edison's recent announcement that he would make it possible to build a concrete house for $1,000, is now followed by a promise that in the near future, he will put on the market, concrete furniture, so that newly-weds instead of fitting out their homes on the instalment plan with $450 worth of dubious chairs, tables, etc., could invest $200 and rival "palatial residences" with their display.

The inventor has already made a reenforced concrete cabinet for the phonograph, and pieces of furniture made in the new way were sent from New York to Chicago and back to show what they can stand in the way of resisting handling by freight men. At present the weight of the concrete furniture is about one-third greater than wooden furniture, but Edison expects to reduce the excess to one-quarter. The concrete surface can be stained, Edison says, so as to look like any kind of wood desired. His phonograph cabinet has been trimmed in white and gold. Its surface is like that of enamelled wood. Not only is the concrete cabinet cheaper, Edison claims, but it has better acoustic properties than the old fashioned wood cabinet.

"Can I make concrete furniture?" repeated Edison when the question was asked. "Of course I can. I am going to have concrete furniture on the market in the near future, that will make it possible for the labouring man to put furniture in his home more artistic and more durable than is now to be found in the most palatial residences."

"Will it be cheap?"

"Of course it will. If I couldn't put out my concrete furniture cheaper than oak, I wouldn't go into the business. If a newly married couple starts out with, say $450 worth of furniture on the instalment plan I feel confident that we can give him more artistic and more durable furniture for $200. I'll also be able to put out a whole bedroom set for $5 or $6."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

RENOVATING VELVET.

Fill a basin with boiling water, get a second person to hold the velvet, pile side upwards, exactly over the steam, while you brush up the pile briskly with a stiff whisk.

CLEANING FUR.

Brush the fur well, and, if convenient, remove the lining. Lay the article as flatly as is possible on a table, warm some bran in a pan very carefully, so that it heats right through but does not burn. Rub it while hot into the fur for some time, and then shake out.

CLEANING GREBE.

Remove any lining there may be, immerse the grebe in tepid, soft, suday water, pass through a rinsing bath of hot water, and hang up to dry. Do not shake the feathers in any way while they are drying, but when perfectly dry, smooth them well with an old silk handkerchief.

TO OBTAIN A GLOSS ON LINEN.

An experienced laundress recommends the following: Dissolve half an ounce of borax and the same quantity of gum arabic in a small basin of hot water. Take half an ounce of white wax, and half an ounce of spermaceti; put them in a jar, stand the jar in boiling water, and when the wax is quite melted and liquid, stir in the dissolved borax and gum. Mix all well together, then add a few drops of oil of cloves. Put this by, ready for use.

When the collars, etc., are ready for starching, add a teaspoonful of the mixture to a pint of starch. This gives a beautiful gloss to linen. The ingredients can be purchased quite cheaply at a drug store.

DAMP CUPBOARDS.

Quicklime absorbs moisture, so it is wise to keep a tin plateful of this powder in all cupboards and corners which are damp. Remove and renew the lime from time to time, as, of course, it loses its effect.

HOUSEKEEPERS' HINTS.

Castor oil becomes tasteless if beaten and thoroughly mixed with the white of an egg.

The hot plate of the kitchen stove may be cracked when hot by cold water being upset on it when a heavy boiling pan is being placed on the stove.

To renovate carpets, sponge them with a solution of one part of ox gall to two parts of water; do not make the carpet very wet. Dry thoroughly with clean dusters.

Stained enamelled saucepans should be rubbed with coarse sand and lemon pulp and not cleaned with boiling soda water. After squeezing lemons, save the pulp for this purpose.

Boots that have become hardened by lamp and mud will not crack if a little glycerine be rubbed into them. The leather should be wiped free of glycerine before boots are blacked.

Grease stains on leather may be removed by carefully applying benzine or perfectly pure turpentine. Wash the spots over afterwards with the well-beaten white of an egg or a good leather reviver.

OAT CAKES.

This is a genuine Scotch recipe: Pour some boiling water into a bowl to heat it; then pour it away and replace with as much scalding water as will be required for the cakes.

Into this water stir sufficient oatmeal to make a fairly thick paste and stir it all until it forms a ball. Roll this paste out into round cakes four or five inches in diameter, quarter these, and toast them in front of the fire. The paste should not be touched by the hands and ought to be dry and firm enough to put into the toaster or Dutch oven.

The cakes will eat dry and short and require no butter. The paste must be rolled out quickly, and should be quite warm when put into the toaster.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM WINDOVER.

Death visited the home of Mr and Mrs. Windover, of 184 Brock street, at 3 o'clock this morning and claimed their son, William, aged fifteen years.

The deceased lad, who was a bright youth, had been employed at Gibbs' livery stables for some time, but some five weeks ago he contracted typhoid, which malady was responsible for his death. His demise was a severe shock to his relatives, who have the sympathy of a large number of friends. He is survived by three sisters ,namely: Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Drummond, all of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at the Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. J. H. BUCHANAN.

Death came with startling suddenness to Mrs. J. H. Buchanan of 413 Bethune street, her spirit having taken its flight to the great beyond on Thursday, Feb. 8th, about 8.30 p. m. Her death was a great shock to her family and all who knew her. None but those who have sat in the shadow of a great bereavement can justly weigh such a sorrow as this. She who has gone forth could not be supported on the solitary path by an earthly friend, and yet sympathy, genuine, heartfelt sympathy, has been and is being extended to the surviving relatives, while many silent prayers were devoutly offered to the Great Architect of the Universe. It was a sudden call.

She leaves behind to mourn the loss of a loving mother, a family of five children, three daughters and two sons.

Mrs. A. C. Harman, 413 Bethune street; Mrs. O. C. Callander, 174 Dublin street, and Miss Daisy E. Buchanan, of Regina, Sask.; J. R. Buchanan, 526 Patterson street, and George H. Buchanan of Toronto; besides, three brothers, and three sisters of Pittsburg, P. A.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath;
Thou hast all seasons for their own,
And stars to set; but all, oh, death!"

Funeral notice later.

"USE & OCCUPANCY" INSURANCE

Are you conducting a mercantile or manufacturing business? Have you insured against loss of profits and standing charges should a fire come along? This is shown as "Use and Occupancy" insurance and is a very necessary protection. Enquire about it from an agent of the Manitoba Assurance Company, which makes a specialty of this form of insurance. It is not expensive and it will pay you well in case of loss. Agent, Davis-Thompson Co., Ltd.

AD. CLUB DINNER WILL BE A GREAT SUCCESS

Two members of the Committee, in an hour and a half before noon yesterday, started off with a swing the movement that wil likely culminate in an Ad Club being organized in this city. Nearly thirty tickets were sold for the dinner Tuesday evening, Feb. 13th, at which the local advertising men, and business men interested in advertising, will hear a prominent buyer of advertising, from Toronto—a member of the Toronto Ad Club, who will be present and explain to our local men how much they stand to gain from an Ad Club organized here in Peterborough.

The arrangements have been completed to have the dinner in Hooper's Palm Parlour, which accommodates but fifty. Only fifty tickets have been got out, and as the work of the committee, in getting these into the hands of interested advertisers, is a work of sacrifice on their part, they do not purpose calling on all of the local business men. Those who wish to associate themselves with the movement and profit from the meeting together next Tuesday evening, may secure tickets by 'phoning Mr. J. McNichol, at 1333, or Mr. C. C. Nixon, at 606, as long as the tickets, of which there are now only twenty available, last. Those having charge of the local arrangements are much encouraged at the deep interest that prevails amongst our local men in the matter of increasing the efficiency of their advertising, and the comparative ease with which the tickets were sold this morning in so short a time.

RETURNS TO WEST AFTER VISIT TO HIS OLD HOME

Frank J. Moher of Edmonton, went west recently after a visit to the home of his father, Wm. Moher, of Douro. He is a confirmed westerner and speaks highly of Edmonton, where he has established himself in business.

Fair Directors Are In Toronto

Messrs. John H. Garbutt, Wm. Collins and Chas. Moore, representing the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition attended the Ontario Association of Fairs and Exhibitions, held in Toronto yesterday. Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, Superintendent of Fairs, said that 1911 will go down in the history of agricultural societies as being the most disastrous in the hundred years of their existence, so far as bad weather conditions were concerned. John Farrell, of Forest, claimed that the Provincial government should increase its grant of $62,000 to $100,000 and spoke hopefully of securing it.

The attendance at the opening session, over 400 was the largest in the Association's history.

HEAVY SENTENCE AT COBALT

Special to The Examiner:

COBALT, ONT., FEB. 8.—Five years and thirty lashes was the second sentence handed out in the scandalous immoral club case. The man convicted in this case is a miner, aged 30. Two more arrests were made last night, one of a man of advanced years, prominently connected.

THE WEATHER

There was a decided drop in the temperature last night, and as low as 28 degrees below zero was experienced during the night. It moderated considerably towards morning, however, and at seven o'clock marked 12 below.—W. P.

NURSERY IDEAS

BRUSHING CHILDREN'S HAIR.

Frequent and thorough brushing is desirable for children as it is for grown persons. It not only improves, temporarily, the appearance of the child, but tends to keep the scalp in a healthy condition.

It stimulates the growth of the hair, and prevents dandruff if the brush is of soft bristles. Few little ones, however, like the process, and many are the battles fought over the task.

You will ask: "How am I to get the tangles out of my child's hair?" This certainly requires time and patience. Take a section of the hair in your left hand, holding it firmly, and then proceed with the comb, commencing about an inch or two from the end; when the knots are removed take the comb higher and repeat until that portion of the hair is free from tangles. Then take another section, and proceed in the same way. Much gentleness is required when doing anything of the kind, and it needs a great deal of patience on the part of mother or nurse. When all the tangles are out, brush the hair down its length softly and evenly and if all has been carefully done the child will not dread the repetition.

BABY SUPERSTITIONS.

In Spain the baby's face is swept with a pine bough to bring it good luck.

In Holland garlic, salt, bread and steak are put into the cradle of a new born baby.

When a Grecian mother is putting her child into the cradle to sleep, she turns three times round before the fire while singing her favourite song to ward off evil spirits.

BACON FOR CHILDREN.

If of the best quality and not salt, bacon is a suitable food for children over three years of age.

Quite as valuable is the fat which drips from the bacon while cooking, or if he bacon is fried a slice of bread should be dipped into the fat in the pan.

It strengthens the system and is excellent for the liver. Only good bacon or ham should be given—the cheap, highly salted article will do more harm than good, causing acute thirst, and causing heat spots.

BARLEY WANTED

Sugar Goes Up

Refined sugar went up ten cents a hundred pounds yesterday afternoon, as stated in our issue of yesterday. Referring to the present rise and future prospects a wholesale grocer said the change had been anticipated by those who followed the raw sugar market. "Refined sugars are expected to be more or less unsettled for another month. After that look for another advance to a level even higher than that established during the latter half of 1911, the theory being that the world's visible supplies are from one to one and a quarter million tons shorter this year than last."

OFFICERS ELECTED

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, held last evening, the following officers were elected:

Hon.-Pres.—J. C. Lang.
President—Fred Holmes.

Rally For Men

Say, brother mine, you will find a warm church, warm hearts and a warm welcome awaiting you at the rally for men and boys, to be held next Sunday afternoon at the Park street Baptist church at 3 p.m., under the auspices of the Helping Hand Bible class.

His Honour Judge Huycke has kindly consented to be present and deliver an address upon "The Investment of Influence," a real live, important subject. You will be a better man for hearing it.

Mr. Frank Pratt and others will furnish special vocal music for the gathering. Don't forget to bring the other fellow, even though you may forget to come. It's the other fellow we want as well as you. Every man and boy in Peterborough made welcome.—Com.

PRESENTATION TO PRESIDENT

The members of the Intermediate Leaders Corps of the Y.M.C.A. surprised their president, Wm. J. Hastie, last night, by presenting him with a beautiful Bible, with the following inscription on the fly leaf: "Presented by the Intermediate Leaders Corps of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association, to Wm. J. Hastie, their president, on the occasion of his leaving for Toronto, as appreciative evidence of faithful work."

The presentation was made by J. J. Thompson, to which Mr. Hastie replied, thanking the members for their kindness, stating that it was a pleasure to be associated with such a fine crowd of fellows. Mr. Hastie leaves on Sunday for Toronto.

INNOCENT MAN WAS HANGED

Hamilton came of a wealthy, proud and aristocratic family. His exclusiveness excited the prejudice of envious neighbours. He was a trader, driving stock to settlements in Mississippi, where he made much money and some friends. He was, on a return trip that had proved successful, accompanied by Dr. Sanderson, a rich planter, residing near Natchez. Sanderson came to Kentucky for a double purpose—to enjoy his friend Hamilton's hospitality, and to buy slaves in kentucky for service on his Mississippi plantation. To buy these slaves he brought with him a large sum of money, of which fact Hamilton was fully aware. Their route, on horseback, lay through a wild and thinly settled portion of the Indian territory, as the vast region immediately south of Kentucky was then called. Dr. Sanderson was taken at the outset with a severe illness which harassed him through the greater part of the journey. Arrived in Barren Co., Hamilton and his friend went to the residence of Hamilton's father, where it took several weeks for Sanderson to recover health.

Soon after Sanderson's recovery, young Hamilton and his father's guest left the house, Hamilton acting as guide for nine miles, to a point where the road forked, one branch leading to a neighbouring county, where Sanderson proposed to attend a sale of negroes at public auction. The two men were seen together at various points along the nine-mile stretch, the last time at a place three-quarters of a mile from the forks. Hamilton soon after returned alone. Sanderson's riderless horse came the night following, to the Hamilton residence.

Sanderson was never again seen alive. Several days having elapsed without any word from the missing man, suspicion arose that he had been foully dealt with. The people turned out en masse to search for his body. Covered with brush and briars it was found near the road. The dead man's hat was discovered in a hollow stump, while under a log close by appeared a brass horse pistol with the hammer broken. In the murdered man's head was found a number of shot and a piece of the pistol's hammer. Under the lining of the hat was secreted a list of thirty-three $100 Mississippi Bank bills, their numbers and an enumeration of those to whom the bills were payable.

When Hamilton was arrested, bills corresponding to the list found in Sanderson's hat were taken on him. It was further shown by the state that he had borrowed the pistol from Col. Gorin, of Glasgow, that the shot in Dr. Sanderson's head corresponded in size with the shot bought a few days before by Hamilton, that Hamilton's overalls, concealed in his father's barn, were bloodstained. They were fully identified by the accused man's sister.

For the defence it was urged that Sanderson and Hamilton were intimate friends; that, for many days, they had travelled together through a wild country; that a little neglect during his sickness would have caused Sanderson's death, and Hamilton have thus secured the money. Mississippi money was, at that time, under discount to Kentucky, and Kentucky money under discount in Mississippi. Hamilton being about to visit Mississippi, while Sanderson needed Kentucky money to buy slaves, they had, for mutual accommodation, exchanged money. Hamilton proved that he had, in order to make up the sum needed for the exchange, borrowed $1,000 from a Glasgow bank. Hamilton further declared that he had borrowed the pistol from Col. Gorin to lend to Dr. Sanderson, who desired it for personal protection. When leaving Sanderson, Hamilton gave the pistol to his friend.

As to the blood-stained overalls, Hamilton averred that they had been stolen by a negro to go to a dance, where he got into a fight, involving much blood-letting. The negro had, it was claimed, concealed the garments in the barn till an opportunity might offer to efface the bloodstains.

Hamilton's defence lacked the corroboration then deemed necessary. John Rowan, one of the most celebrated of the many famous jurists whom Kentucky has given the country, defended Hamilton with masterful skill and ability. The prosecution was conducted by Solomon G. Sharp, destined himself to meet, a few years later, with a tragic fate. Thoroughly convinced of Hamilton's guilt, Sharp showed him no mercy. Hamilton's immediate relatives were almost alone in believing him innocent. He died protesting innocence.

The sequel came in 1869, when Gen. Richard H. Rousseau, of Kentucky, then United States Minister, was visited at Tegucigalpa, Honduras, by Col. Gibson, a rich planter from near Vicksburg, Miss. Col. Gibson informed Gen. Rousseau that thirty or thirty-five years before, a man, hanged for murder in Eastern Mississippi, had made on the gallows' threshold, a confession, clearing up the mystery of Dr. Sanderson's death.

The condemned man confessed that he and a companion, both fugitives from justice, were in hiding in the ravine where Dr. Sanderson's body was subsequently found. Seeing Sanderson approach, they rushed forth, dragged him from his horse, and wrenched the pistol from his hand. They struck him with the pistol, breaking the hammer, part of which remained in his head. Having robbed their victim, the murderers concealed his body and fled. They had heard of Hamilton's execution for the murder, but maintained an obdurate silence. One of the guilty men was, soon after Hamilton's execution, led to the scaffold for another murder, but kept silent as to his share in the Kentucky tragedy. The survivor felt it a duty to clear up the mystery.

An Afternoon With Jobling

I found Jobling at home. That did not surprise me, as he is usually at home on Saturday afternoon. I expected Jobling to be in, and I was not disappointed. Neither was I disappointed when he scowled at my cheerful "Afternoon, Job." I knew him too well. In a world of mixed emotions, Jobling is a safety valve which prevents the steam of joy from rising too high. Every man has his use.

Mrs. Jopling came forward, a tired smile brightening her worn face, and placed a chair for me. I sat down.

"How's tricks, Job?" I ventured.

"Tricks?" repeated my friend. "You ought to have a hunch. I notice you kept on your overcoat."

I sat tight, and he blew on his fingers.

Jobling continued: "Stay where you are, and I'll tell you a little family history. It's good. Of course the pipes are frozen. Only the roof leaks and we had a few pans full in the kitchen, we would be forced to melt snow or antagonize the neighbours."

"By Jove, that's hard luck, Job," said I. "Have you sent for the plumbers?"

"Plumbers? No chance. I owe every plumber in the town. We once had a plumber boarding here to save time and avoid quarrels. I'll thaw out those pipes myself with warm clothes or we'll all thirst to death. I don't think the furnace gives enough heat to melt snow. But wait. That's the smallest fly in the butter. John, the oldest boy, is not here. You noticed that?"

"Where is John, you ask?" queried Jobling. "Well, John went yesterday to visit a sick friend. A good boy, John. While John was in the house the sick friend was discovered with smallpox, and the whole crowd were quarantined. That will do for John for about two weeks. Next?"

"You're sure in hard luck, Job," I sympathized. "If there is anything I can do——"

"Do?" repeated Jobling. "I'll tell you what you might do. You might find the cat."

At this there was a howl from one of the youngsters on the floor. Jobling turned and looked at him. There was a lot in that look. The youngster saw some of it evidently, for he grew quiet at once. Jobling turned again to me.

"Where was I?" he asked. "Oh yes, the cat. The cat left the house yesterday, probably in an effort to get warm. Since then the kids have gone mad."

At this, Mrs. Jobling mildly protested.

"Yes, mad," repeated the man of the house. "The only quiet kid is the one that ate part of that lizard that came through the tap. I wish I could find that cat. I'm fond of children. That's how I got this burn."

He caressed his face as he spoke.

"I noticed the scar on your face," I said. "Where in the world did you get it?"

"Get it?" he growled, turning a fiery eye on Mrs. Jobling. "I was that goat, that's what. I acted Santa Claus at the Sunday school concert. Some one's little dear set fire to my whiskers with a candle." He sighed resignedly. "But I shouldn't kick about that. I was lucky to get off with my life, besides ten dollars to the tailor for fixing up my fur coat."

"Well, one must amuse the children sometimes," I said, turning for support to Mrs. Jobling. She smiled her approval.

"I believe in that," said Jobling. "It's a fine thing. We were all young once, and we liked it. But there is a limit. We reached the limit last Christmas. We had a Christmas tree. That's where the lace curtains went. Someone knocked over a candle."

"That was unfortunate," I agreed.

"But it was a great Christmas. It started a spirit of goodwill going that has kept up all winter. It was the best possible beginning to a hard winter such as we have been having."

"Yes, indeed," said Mrs. Jobling. "It is hard for us to imagine how the poor must suffer these cold days and nights."

While we spoke, Jobling sat taking in every word.

"Hard to imagine?" he began. "It's not hard for me. I went broke at Christmas time buying presents for people I don't like. Every man I bought a box of cigars for sent me a dinky little card with frosted insults on it. Every man I hit with a card came across with a box of cigars. I sent four express parcels that went astray and haven't arrived yet. When the people get them they won't know whether they are for last Christmas or next."

A hurried knock at the door interrupted Jobling's discourse. It opened and a figure darted through.

"Hurroo!" shouted the youngster, for it was no other. "I gave 'em the slip. Got out a back window and escaped when they weren't looking. No smallpox for me!"

Jobling raised his hands above his head.

"You young duffer!" he yelled. "We'll all be quarantined."

There was a general howl from the children at this, John taking the lead. I seized the opportunity to make my escape.

"I trust to your honour, Jobling," I said, as I passed out the door.

And Jobling is a man of honour. He never split. N.K.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

CAMPBELLFORD WON FROM ALL SAINTS 4-1

Easterners Were Too Strong for Local Seven in Trent Valley League Fixture at Brock Street Rink Last Night.

It was Campbellford night at the Brock Street Rink, last night, when the Campbellford team beat All Saints in a Trent Valley League fixture, by 4 goals to 1. Nine-tenths of crowd hailed from the burg down the Canal, and they had a hilarious time when their favourites took the lead in the second half. About one hundred and fifty fans arrived on a special train and enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The Saints had only a handful of supporters, and in their case, it was like playing a game away from home.

It was a strenuous, hard-fought exhibition, both teams going hard all the way. It was a case of head straight for the nets by the nearest route and look out for the cars. The players waded into each other for a vengeance, and Billy Whitty of Sterling, who handled the bell, had a path worn to the penalty box before the contest was over.

Campbellford earned their victory. They had a lot of speed and their forwards came down together and shot nicely. Had it not been for the sterling work of Wilson, the Saints' goaler, the visitors would have at least doubled their score, as they were pegging away at the All Saints' nets, like miniature Gatling guns. Wilson generally managed to drive them back as fast as they were shot at him. The Saints were shy on team work and their individual efforts were headed off pretty effectively by the Campbellford defence.

For Campbellford, Shannon, at rover, and Meyers, at right wing, were the pick of the forward line. Shannon had lots of speed and handled his stick nicely, while Meyers had a bullet-like shot from the side, and his pegs were generally straight on, too. Smith and Tate both did good work on the defence. Wilson was the star of the All Saints' team, giving a splendid exhibition in the nets. He was worked overtime and that he had only four registered against him, speaks well for the manner in which he looked after his position. Anderson was the pick of the forwards, while Reynolds did some nice rushing. The Saints broke into the scoring column early in the battle. In thirty seconds after the face-off a neat scoop shot from Anderson sifted past Grant, and the local team were in front. They managed to hold their advantage until near half-time, in spite of the fact that the Campbellford team had many openings. Wilson stopped shot after shot, and it was not until the half was nearly over that he was beaten by a bullet-like shot from Meyers. The score remained at 1-1 until half-time.

Campbellford had considerably the better of the affray after the breathing spell. Soon after play had recommenced, Smith came through with a nice rush, and although Wilson picked off his shot the Campbellford cover, followed in and slammed the rebound into the nets, putting his team in front. A little later Meyers beat Wilson, with a long, low shot from the wing, and before time was up Weston had shoved another past Wilson in a scrimmage.

The victory of the Easterners puts a different complexion on the race in this section of the Trent Valley League. Campbellford, who have lost only one game to the T. A. S., have a chance to tie up the district by beating Havelock twice, and T. A. S. in the return game, provided T. A. S. beat All Saints when the teams meet again. The teams lined up as follows:

Great Interest In To-night's Big Game

Cobourg Are Running an Excursion and Will Bring a Big Crowd of Supporters on a Special Train---Lawson Whitehead Will Referee---Great Sheet of Ice Ready.

No hockey game in Peterborough for some time has created so much excitement as the Cobourg-Peterborough intermediate O. H. A. fixture at Brock street rink to-night, and there is every reason to expect a record crowd when the teams are sent away, at 8.15 o'clock. Lawson Whitehead, coach of the Trenton Junior team, will referee the battle, which promises to be the most exciting of the season. Cobourg are coming with a two-goal lead and two hundred supporters on a special train, confident of winning the round. On the other had the Petes are determined not only to beat the visitors to-night, but to do it decisively. The winning team will play in Midland on Monday night, with the return game on Wednesday. There is a grand sheet of ice—the best of the winter—ready for to-night's battle, and the teams will have no fault to find with the conditions. The Rooters' Club will be out in force and altogether it looks like a big night. The teams will line up as follows:

Has Entered Semi-finals

Peterborough is giving Oshawa a run for their money in the Bonspiel, which is being held in the Lake-shore town, and it would not surprise some of the local fans to see some of the silverware of the Oshawa Club at the G. T. R. station in the course of the next day or two. Skip R. M. Waddell has his fighting clothes on, and, having successfully reached the semi-final stage of the primary, last night, is prepared to enter the next lap with do or die determination to provide some additional ornament for the local curling club.

The following skips will journey to Toronto on the 13th, where they will battle for supremacy with the Granites of that city: Messrs. Matthews, Davidson, McIlroy, Yeates and Waddell.

The return game will be played here on the 16th.

Game At Keene

Villagers Defeat Campbellford St. Mary's

Keene rink saw its first game this season on Tuesday night, when the local seven defeated St. Mary's, Campbellford, by a score of eight to three. St. Mary's played under difficulties, three of their best being on the sick list—Shannon, Clements and Farrel. Keene's stars were Short and Handley, while "Dutch" Dunk, "Toby" Keating and Brother "Billy" rolled up the Trent mens' three. Keene plays the return game on St. Mary's ice Feb. 16th, when Shannon expects to reverse the score.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

That Peterborough seven have a grand little team. Denison of Peterborough, is rated as one of the best intermediates in the O. H. A. Jack Sprat says Peterborough will defeat the champion Preston seven.—Toronto News.

The "Hustlers" accept the challenge of the Dominion Express Six Wheelers, but as a number of the former's men are at present unavailable they accept as the "Hustlers" and not as the Canadian Express Hustlers.

Last night the Canadian Express Hustlers won a fast and exciting game from the Terrible Seven, by four goals to three.

The game was well contended and at no time could an opinion be offered as to who the winners would be. After five minutes' play the terrible Seven scored, and this was the only goal of the first half. On commencing the second half the Hustlers made a grand rally and scored three goals in succession. The score then stood at 3-1, in favour of the Hustlers. After a few more minutes of play the seven scored and shortly afterwards equalized their antagonists' score. About five minutes before play ended, however, the Hustlers again found the net and won a close game.

For the Hustlers, Sarginson was good in goal, and in consideration of the fact that it is nearly three years since Ferguson covered sheet ice, he was in splendid shape. Butsed also played a fine game. Patterson was the star of the seven and Nicholls came a good second. In goal, Hamilton was like a stone wall.

Slumberland Sharp thought he had a holiday last night, but he discovered himself acting as penalty time keeper. As he fell asleep, however, and it his watch fell on the ice, it had to be taken from him. The line-up was as follows:

The Ottawa Citizen says: A member of the Ottawa University Amateur Athletic Association stated yesterday that "Moose" Hefferman would not be permitted to play with Stewartons or any other team in the Inter-provincial. The Inter-collegiate has a rule which prevents its players competing in any other league, and of course it will obtain in Hefferman's case. President Frank Ahearne is hot after the university star, and it is likely that he will succeed in getting him. The New Edinburghs would not protest, for they recognize the fact that the Stewarton defence is weak and would like to see the "Yellow Kids" strengthen. Don Brophy was out with the Stewartons yesterday and Hefferman will probably make his debut to-night. Billy Chartrand is another possibility for the line. Brophy certainly has the goods on him and will be worked out at cover in the event of Hefferman not making the grade.

Speaking of Heff's work in the Laval game the Citizen says: Frank Hefferman, the Ottawa captain, was the most conspicuous man on the ice. His rushes were always dangerous and his dropping back to cover in the second half was a good move, as his blocking was very effective.

Canadian League

Hamilton Herald: What do you think London offered Joe Keenan to manage the Cockneys next season? The old chap is beginning to show the grey hairs fairly well, but he can still hold his own with the youngsters, especially around third base, and his wide experience on the diamond makes him a valuable man for any team. Yet all they wanted to pay was $85 a month. That is some salary for the manager of one of the paying teams in a C class league, and the wonder is that Joseph did not jump at the offer. Just think, fellows, 85 real greenbacks each month and a boy to carry your hat and bring water to you at the end of each inning. It certainly looks like a princely salary, but when one realizes that Fielder Jones was offered $20,000 a year to manage the Chicago White Sox and turned it down, it can be readily seen why Keenan hesitates instead of jumping at the offer. It would be hard to get the poorest player in the league to attach his name to a contract at that salary, and it is no wonder that Jo-Jo has not signed. In Hamilton the mascot gets more than London offered Joe. If Keenan cannot come to terms with the Cockneys he may figure in a deal by which he will play with Hamilton this year.

GUELPH'S ENTERPRISING

GUELPH, FEB. 8.—Guelph will be represented in the Canadian Baseball League, and with a strong team, if the people of Guelph will assist by encouraging subscriptions, and the city council will give a grant.

This was the information given out to-day by President W. A. Mahoney, who holds the franchise.

"If there is an opening game here," he said, "you can bank on it that the team will be here for the season. The schedule will be struck off early this year, which will make it easier to arrange the dates for the grounds, and the season will be a week shorter, closing the Saturday after Labour Day. The pitchers and catchers will report on May 15th. We need about $1,200 to insure the team starting, and we are confident that the citizens will assist us. The gate receipts last year were $8,356.18, this being the local club's share, and this year we hope that they will be greatly increased by better patronage. So it is now up to the people. If they assist, we have a good manager, and good men behind the team, as well as some good players, and Guelph will be right after the pennant."

FITZ IS NEEDHAM'S FRIEND

Hamilton Herald: Frank Fitzpatrick, a ball player who has ranked as one of the stars in semi-professional company at Buffalo, has turned down an offer to play with the Buffalo International League team, and will go to Worcester of the New England League. Fitz is a great friend of George Needham, the new manager of the Guelph team, and may be seen with the Leafs before the season is very far advanced.

REDSKINS NUMEROUS

Hamilton Herald: Indians promise to figure prominently in the Canadian League this year. London has signed an Indian pitcher, and now comes the announcement that Guelph has an Indian catcher on its roster. George Lee has signed an Indian infielder for Hamilton, and if the redmen continue to find berths in the league, the box scores next season will look like an Indian list.

BASEBALL YARNS

(By Billy Evans)

KIDDING NEW ARBITRATORS IS REGULAR ST. LOUIS PROGRAMME

John Mullen, who debutted as an American League umpire last year, is 32. Because of his youthful appearance, he was subjected to a lot of raillery from the fans. Mullen made his St. Louis bow as my partner. There are some Mound City fans who sit in the third base section of the grand stand and enjoy nothing more than a kidding match.

"Say, Billy, what's you son's name?"

"You can call him John," I said.

On my next trip to St. Louis I introduced another new umpire, Harley Parker, about twice the size of Mullen. When we walked on the field, Parker loomed as large as myself. Friend fan was in the grandstand.

The day previous I worked in another city with Mullen. Naturally when the fans saw me, they expected to see Mullen. Imagine their surprise when they saw Parker. I was waiting for some rooter to ask me my partners name, when my friend with the strong voice yelled:

"My, how John has grown in three weeks." It gave me a good laugh, but Parker didn't appreciate the joke. It wasn't until I explained the situation that evening that he joined in the laugh.

LUCKY FOR JIM DELAHANTY, HE DOES NOT LET LITTLE TROUBLES FRET HIM

His sunny disposition was sorely tried in Washington one summer. The season before he had had a big success at bat. The he played a month in Japan. He returned and made a poor start in the league season. He couldn't hit and the fans roasted him One darkey fan, in particular, never failed to hoot every time Del slipped up:

"Say, Mr. Delahanty, why didn't youall stay in Japan?"

But Del always kept cool.

Last year his knee was hurt and two doctors could not agree on a diagnosis. Although suffering, Del smiled and said:

"Better call another doc. I never was stuck on tie games. Let's reach a decision."

One day after his recovery, Del and some teammates went to Windsor for the races. Deli placed a bet in the third race and his horse was last in a big field. Oscar Stanage, the catcher, asked him:

"How are things going, Del?"

"Fair," replied Delahanty. "I had a bet on a broncho in the third, but I dont know whether he was last in that event or first in the fourth."

THE SNAKE HABIT

If Turley Mathers had not had an attractive personality he never would have lasted as a figure in society, because the most amiable of hostesses might be pardoned for disapproving of a caller who insisted on skinning snakes on her front porch and demanding admiration for their lines and colours.

The year he spent the summer at Wigwam Lake is still recalled solemnly as a landmark by the cottagers. All the children were going around dragging snakes after them because Turely had taught them how to catch and hold the creeping things safely, and more mothers went into hysterics that year than had in the century preceding. Snakes in the hammock, where you are taking a nap, or in your pet hatbox or in Johnnie's tool chest, are hard on one nerves, to say nothing of the possibility ever present in the parental mind of Johnnie's being fatally bitten by a 10-inch garter snake.

The worst of it was that Mathers was a person of scientific attainments and had a perfectly valid excuse for studying snakes. Nobody could say he did it to be unique or troublesome.

If you feebly said you weren't crazy about snakes Mathers simply drew a long breath, fixed you with a pityingly stern glance and lectured to you on your sins. When he had finished you were in such a flabby state that you would have let a snake perch on your forefinger and sing "The Sweet by and by," because you were so painfuly conscious of your uneducated mind.

Mathers met Clara Baysworth out West when, her party and his combined for a camping trip through a noted canyon and the acquaintance progressed at the rate of 10 miles a minute until the fatal moment when the stage driver silently pointed with his whip to the side of the sun-baked road. There, lazily stretched out, lay a rattlesnake. Mathers says it was a mere baby snake of a foot and a half or so, but if you had inquired of the others any of them would have told you it was a horrible monster six feet long, with cerise eyes and a foaming mouth.

Before anyone realized what he was doing, Mathers, with a gurgle of pleasure, had slipped to the ground, swept the snake into a heap with his straw hat, deftly grabbed it around its neck with three fingers and held it up to be admired. Persons who do the unusual are instantly pronounced crazy by everybody else, so the conviction instantly settled upon the stageload of travelers that any man who would deliberately pick up a rattlesnake must be insane. Clara Baysworth got her voice first as Mathers still holding his prize, started to climb back to his seat by her side.

"Go away!" she got out in a strangled voice. "If you come any nearer I'll stick hatpins into you."

The distracted coachload echoed her cries. Fathers clasped their sons to them and glared at Mathers, women shrunk into corners and fixed him with imploring eyes. Clara frowned at him, pale and desperate.

"Why—" Mathers began soothingly and put one foot upon the hub of the wheel. But a series of shrieks arose from his victims.

"I—I hate you!" Clara Baysworth told him wildly.

"He's a perfect beauty," Mathers announced firmly, "and I want him for a specimen." Then he shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, well," he said, "I suppose I can strangle the little beggar."

His fingers tightened their clasp around the scaly neck and presently the rattler hung limp. Putting it in a convenient box and stowing the box in his pocket Mathers remounted the coach, but the atmosphere was strained.

For 20 miles he tried to reform Clara Baysworth. He told her frankly that he was pained and displeased by her foolish prejudice, but even that did not move her. She regarded him with alien eyes.

"I'll listen to you," she said, when you stop being so perfectly foolish. And if you ask me again to marry you while you are carrying that thing around with you I'll scream!"

Somebody who was brave opened the box the next morning to see the dead snake and the camp nearly broke up as the rattler winked one eye and waved his tail at the horrified meddler, having survived his choking, as Mathers had known he would. Mathers paled before Clara Baysworth's accusing eye.

"You certainly have nerve," she told him, "to ask a girl to endure things like this all the rest of her life! I don't care whether it's science or not! You might experiment with guinea pigs or ducks."

"I'll chloroform them!" Mathers offered miserably.

"You will not!" Clara told him. "They might have nine lives like a cat, and come to life again, and I cannot stand snakes for parlour ornaments, dead, sleeping or alive! It's between me and your squirming friends, Turley!"

For a long time Mathers looked at her. Then picking up the rattler he walked to the edge of the cliff and hurled him far out.

"There!" he said simply, as he returned and spread out his empty hands.

"Do—do you suppose it h-h-hurt him wh-wh-en he landed where you threw him?" Clara wept.

Then for the first time Mathers laughed. "Oh, you consistent women!" he said. "I wouldn't have had much time to study snakes anyhow, since I've got you to figure out the rest of my days!"—Chicago News.

What Followed a Cut
A Magistrate's Wonderful Experience With Zam-Buk
Mr. J. E. Arsenault, a Justice of the Peace, and station master at Wellington, on the Prince Edward Island Ry., has had a wonderful proof of the healing power of Zam-Buk. He says:
"Four years ago, I had an accident. I slipped in the station and fell on a freight truck, sustaining a bad cut on the front of my leg. I thought this would heal, but instead of doing so it developed into a bad ulcer and later into a form of eczema which spread very rapidly and also started on the other leg. Both legs became so swollen and sore, that I could only go about my work by having them bandaged. My doctor said I must stop work and lay up.
"After six months of this trouble I consulted another doctor, but with no better result. I tried all the salves, liniments and lotions I heard of, but instead of getting better I got worse.
"This was my condition when I got my delight that first box gave me relief. I continued to apply it to the sores, and day by day they got better. I could see that at last I had got hold of something which would cure me, and in the end it did.
"It is now over a year since Zam-Buk worked a cure in my case, and there has been no return of the eczema or any trace of it."
Such is the nature of the great cures which Zam-Buk is daily affecting. Purely herbal in composition, this great balm is a sure cure for all skin diseases, cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poisoning, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, cuts, burns and bruises. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

SEEN AND HEARD

An umbrella which has survived the storms and loans of 120 years is now in the possession of Sewall W. Smith, of Skowhegan, Me., who received it 20 years ago, when it was said to have been one hundred years old. Mr. Smith's umbrella has a staghorn handle, whalebone ribs, a chased brass ferrule and a staff the size of a broomstick, and weighs two and a half pounds. It has been recovered but once in the twenty years, otherwise it is just as received.

Prof. Elmer Gates performs a very interesting experiment by immersing his hands and arms to the elbows in separate vessels filled with water just to the point of overflowing. By withdrawing his thought absolutely from one hand and concentrating it on the other he so expands the blood vessels in the latter, by sending an extra supply of blood to it, that the water in the vessel in which it is overflows quite perceptibly. To further prove this power of thought concentration, he transfers the thought from one hand to the other until the other vessel overflows.—Nature.

Miss Vi Fraser and Miss Margaret McGrath were in Lindsay last night, attending the Bachelors' dance.

The friends of Mrs. Ray Tisdall will be pleased to learn that she came through an operation successfully at St Joseph's Hospital this morning.

Misses Ida and Rosamond Mulholland, 265 Reid street, were hostesses at a delightful soiree at their home last night, from six until ten.

Mr. C. McNeil of the Grand Seminary, Montreal, who has been visiting Mrs. J. Sheehan, and other friends in the city, has returned to Montreal.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Symonds of Montreal, passed through the city today, returning from Bobcaygeon, where they have spent the past two months.

Mrs. Daniel O'Connel, 371 Downey street, gave a reception at her home yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Geo. N. Gordon poured coffee; Mrs. (Dr.) F. P. McNulty poured tea and seven charming young ladies served luncheon.

Miss Annie Double was the guest of Mrs. Howden Sherbrooke street, at a party given by the latter at her home recently. Music and games, together with a sleigh drive, formed a portion of the programme for the evening. Miss Doubie left for her home in Emily this morning.

IMMIGRATION PROSPECTS FOR NEXT MONTH

An immigration boom is promised in March and April by Mr. Howson, local immigration agent, but as the demand equals the prospective supply, no fears are entertained as to the satisfactory disposition of all who make Peterborough their terminus. That is, providing they possess no antipathy for work, and are ready and willing to assume the defensive in the race for independence.

An Examiner reporter, during the process of absorbing a little heat in Mr. Howson's office this morning, ascertained the fact that there have already been in the neighbourhood of one hundred and fifty applications for help, and indications are that these figures represent but a small number of those who are yet to come.

For some unaccountable reason, there has been a falling off in the immigrations figures for the month of January, as compared with previous years, but Mr. Howson predicts, upon the good authority of the advices which he has already received, that the decrease will fade into oblivion with the arrival of the new comers who have already announced their intention of immigrating to Canada's distant shores during the next two months.

"We can make the proud boast," said Mr. Howson, "that we have never yet failed to place a man, who was ready and willing to work, and this within twenty-four hours after his arrival in the city, unless for some reason or other the prospective employer was unable to get here for a day or so. Then of course, he would have to wait."

Through the medium of the Peterborough Examiner, Mr. Howson receives applications from all over Ontario, having received one from Simcoe county, and another from Norfolk county this week. The writer in both cases quoted an extract from a recent issue of the Peterborough Examiner, which announced that Mr. Howson was about to receive a number of new arrivals. The Norfolk writer went one better and stated that two years ago, while perusing the columns of the Examiner, he saw an account of the work which was being conducted by the immigration office of this city. He wrote to Mr. Howson at the time and later received a man who suited him so well that he remained with him up till this week. He is now endeavouring to secure another through Mr. Howson.

F. A. ROBERTSON COUNTY MASTER

The annual county meeting of East Peterboro' was held in Orange Hall, Norwood, on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 6th, and was largely attended. Reports from the two districts showed a large increase in members and all primary lodges in a flourishing condition. County Master Robinson was chosen to represent the County at the Grand Lodge at Kingston in March.

After the general business was all transacted, the following officers were elected and duly installed by P. Co. M. Joseph Moore, of L. O. L. 281, after which the lodge closed in due form:

ADVERTIZE IN THE EXAMINER.

BELIEVES THE CITY SHOULD ACQUIRE THE STREET RAILWAY

Ald. Gordon Advocates This Step With the Securing of Cheap Power—What Calgary Has Done With Municipal Ownership of Traction Lines.

CONTROL EXTENSIONS

Public ownership of the Street Railway contemporaneous with the securing of cheap power by the city is a proposition that Ald. Gordon says has every appearance of being a profitable investment.

The power question has been under consideration for a long time and the feeling is beginning to obtain that the city is approaching the opportunity of securing power at a favourable rate and under conditions that have been hoped for.

Depends Upon Cheap Power.

If we can get power here at the figures that we expect, and can get a certain number of horse power, we would be in a good position to consider the question of the municipal ownership of the street railway. It requires about 150 horse power to run the system every day. We would easily have that surplus and could use it for the railway and charge to running expenses.

The city should make an effort to obtain possession of the line before the company begins its proposed extensions. The system should be extended into those sections which the city wants to build up rather than it should be carried out by the company. Some may think that I am going too fast in advocating this step, but I believe the same principles apply to municipal business as to your own personal business, and it is well known that the man who looks around for openings and gets out after business is usually the most successful.

This proposition depends upon securing cheap power and I believe that is becoming a more definite possibility every day. If we could secure a cheap railway rate for the citizens, there is no doubt of its being appreciated. The matter seems to be more feasible than most people imagine and it is very likely that it will receive some consideration from the Council during the coming months.

What Calgary Did.

Ald. Gordon stated that Calgary's efforts with its street railway system have been most successful and gave the following information:

The City of Calgary, Alta., having a population of 35,000, successfully launched an up-to-date street railway service, July 5th, 1909. For several years capitalists endeavoured to get the franchise, claiming that it could not be operated at a profit. The city, however, did not give this away, but voted $476,000 to built and operate it as a public utility, and although it was not anticipated that more than operating expenses would be received for a few years, it has been a success from the start, beginning with twelve cars of the most modern type, pay as you enter. It returned the city interest charges and a surplus of $10,000 for contingent account during its first six months' operation.

Construction was commenced September, 1908, and one-half mile of track was laid that fall, during the paving of the main street. On May 1st, 1909, work was again proceeded with on the arrival of rails and material. Twelve pay-as-you-enter cars, 41 ft. 6 in. long were ordered, and the work of construction was pushed day and night with a view of having a portion of the system in operation for the Alberta Fair, July 5th, which was accomplished by a close margin, the power generator arriving July 1st, and two cars on July 2nd. The railway officially opened at 8.00 a.m. on July 5th with two cars, operating from the centre of the city to the Fair grounds, a distance of about one-half mile, to the great surprise of the citizens and visitors generally, as it was not expected possible to carry out the work in such time.

After a completion of the work as first estimated a surplus was saved sufficient to purchase six additional cars 46 ft. 6 in. long, which were receive July 1st ,1910, giving an equipment of 18 cars. In September last year a further by-law was voted to extend the line 24 miles and purchase 12 additional cars and equipment, making the total 30 cars, at a cost of $484,000.00.

These cars have been received, and 22 miles of additional extensions constructed, with two miles more to complete, which will be carried out by November 1st, giving a total mileage of 40 1-2 miles and 30 cars.

A further by-law has been passed by the Council to a vote of the ratepayers Oct. 3rd, for $375,000 to construct 12 additional miles of track, purchase 18 passenger cars, one sceme and one sprinkler car, add to car barns and equip the system with all modern appliances which will be carried out in the spring of 1912, and place the system second to none.

Employers are paid a sliding scale on a profit sharing basis, which give them the highest wages in Canada, representing after six months' service 28c. per hour up to one year. 30c. per hour for the second year, and 32c. per hour for the third year, as a guarantee, which has during the past exceeded this.

Politics are not permitted to enter into the operation of the system, the Superintendent being the sole judge of qualifications necessary, and dismissals are made subject to employees having the right to appeal to a committee composed of the five oldest men in the service (who have not at any time been suspended) to arbitrate with the Superintendent, should any dispute arise.

Calgary has grown during the past two years from 35,000 to an estimated population of 60,000 inhabitants, as shown by the railway receipts compared for July 1910 and 1911 as follows:

Earnings.

	July 1911	July 1910
	$39,147.75	$23,474.15
Net profit.	$16,739.82	10,141.00

The above net profit is clear of all charges covering operating expenses, interest, sinking fund, and 5 p.c. of the gross revenue as a contingent fund, provided to cover accidents to the public and the employees, and provide for renewals and contingents of all kinds not other wise provided for.

The surplus in this account for the year ending June 30th, 1911, was $13,771.72, which added to the sinking fund (provided for the same period) of $9,370.55, amounts to $23,141.27, or more than twice that set aside by private corporations as a renewal or contingent fund.

Therefore it is clearly shown that Calgary is operating its municipal railway is doing so on a sound and business basis, and controls its own streets without dictation by any monopoly, conserving the profits, which for the year 1911 will amount to over $100,000.00 for the reduction of taxes, and local improvement, besides operating a 5,000 gallon electric car sprinkler over the streets covered by the railway, without charge.

BATTLING WITH THE FLAMES IN ZERO WEATHER

Mercury Stood at 22 Below While Fireman Fought Harvey Street Fire

LIST OF THOSE AFFECTED.

John Sweeney, wife, and five children.
A. Nash, wife, and one child.
John Smith, wife and seven children.
Building worth about $1,000.
Contents estimated at $500.
Insurance, $400, carried by John Smith.

This is a revised list of the individual losses incurred in the disastrous fire which destroyed a double frame house on Harvey street, on Saturday afternoon, in addition to rendering three families homeless.

The fire was one of the hardest propositions that the firemen have had to contend with this winter, taking the form of a battle with the elements, in addition to the actual work of combating the flames. The danger which constantly confronted the firefighters in the performance of their duties, was two-fold, as not only were they exposed to the risk of being struck by falling embers, or suffocated by smoke, but also the huge masses of ice which hung suspended from the burning ruins.

From 12 o'clock until 4 in the afternoon, three streams of water were played steadily upon the burning building, and any water that went wide of its mark, only served to add to the spectacular features of the ice encrusted ruins. The water frose almost as soon as it fell, forming itself into many grotesque shapes, and greatly impeded the work of the firemen. On more than one occasion the men were preparing to relax their efforts, believing, as they did, that the fire was out, only to be brought back by the appearance of a tiny jet of flame emitting from an ice-covered partition, or some other obscure portion of the building. In one or two instances the fire ensconced itself in the partitions, and had to be literally chopped out, as the ice, which had formed over the top, acted as a protecting guard, and prevented the water from having the desired effect.

Shortly after three o'clock a portion of the roof fell in, carrying with it a heavy burden of ice. The work of putting the final crimp on the flames was then only a matter of minutes. At four o'clock the men returned to the station, only to be called out about eight o'clock in the evening to extinguish a small blaze, which, fanned by the wind, was beginning to assume dangerous proportions.

The house, which was a frame structure, with an outside coating of plaster, is a total loss. A sideboard, several chairs and a table were among the goods that were salvaged, as also a large cooking stove and a baby carriage.

As stated in Saturday's issue of the Examiner, the fire originated from the chimney, and when the firemen arrived it was bursting through the roof in a manner that tended to offset any possibility of saving the house from its doom.

AD. CLUB DINNER WILL BE A GREAT SUCCESS

Arrangements Are Now Completed for the Meeting of the Local Buyers of Advertising Space and the Local Ad. Writers.

Everything has shaped up well for the dinner to-morrow evening, Tuesday, February 13th, at 6.15, when the local buyers of advertising space and local ad. writers will meet in Hooper's Palm Parlours to hear matters of vital concern to themselves discussed. The chief speaker to address the meeting will be Mr. C. W. McDiarmid, of Ryrie Bros., Limited, Toronto. Mr. McDiarmid has had many years' experience in retail advertising. His ads. in the Toronto dailies always have a distinctive individuality. Therefore it is only reasonable to anticipate that Mr. McDiarmid, who is the President of the Toronto Ad. Club, will have something to get off to our local men that will be well worth their while.

The dinner is on at 6.15 sharp, so that it may be over at eight o'clock, and those having other engagements for the evening will be able to get away in time to fulfil them. Owing to pressure of time in connection with their own regular business the members of the local committee have not been able to see all of the local business men, who from their own personal interests, will want to attend this gathering. Two members of the committee in a few hours on Thursday last disposed of over 30 tickets. Since then several more have been sold, which leaves a limited number still available, which may be had by 'phoning Mr. J. Nichol at 1333. The one regret on the part of the committee is that they have not been able to find it convenient to call personally on all of the local business men who should be interested in this movement and they trust that those who have not been called upon will consider this notice as meant personally for them and will accept the invitation to be present, first having secured a ticket, since the accommodation is limited to fifty.

The question has been raised in connection with this Ad. Club meeting as to who the philanthropist is behind it and who is to benefit personally. To this the committee reply that no one person expects to get a silk hat or other emolument out of it, but each one who is privileged to attend will benefit to as great an extent as he sees fit to profit by the ideas and suggestions that are going. The principle on which the Ad. Clubs of America, and those now in successful operation in Ontario, have been organized, is that of: "We benefit only as we benefit others— our gain comes from serving others."

BOURASSA IS AGITATING FOR REPEAL OF NAVY BILL

Nationalist Press Publishing Declarations From Conservative Members---Deputations of Chinese From British Columbia Wait Upon The Government---Boundaries Bill to be Left Over.

OTTAWA, FEB. 12.—A deputation of the Chinese residents of British Columbia, this morning, waited on the Minister of Trade and Commerce and the Minister of the Interior, asking for certain relaxations in the present immigration regulations. They want better treatment of the wives of Chinamen now in Canada. They were promised consideration, but there is little chance in view of the present condition of public opinion in British Columbia.

There is a persistent rumour in the corridors this morning that the Federal Government has practically decided to leave the Manitoba Boundary bill until next session, in order to give further time for negotiations.

So far no indication has been given as to the settlement of the claims of the Roman Catholic Church that separate schools, now existing in Keewatin territory, to be added to Manitoba shall be safeguarded. There is a growing belief that settlement will be of a character so as to throw the whole responsibility upon the Government of Manitoba.

Apart from parliamentary demonstrations in the Commons last week, by Mr Albert Sevigny of Dorchester, and in the Senate by Hon. P. A. Choquette, there has been a remarkable recrudescence of anti-navy agitation on the part of Mr. Bourassa and his machinery.

Whether the visit of Armand Lavergne to Ottawa last week, with his Orange neck tie, had anything to do with the revived agitation, can only be guessed. But there is agitation, and it is getting hot.

Not only is Mr. Bourassa, himself, over his own signature, denouncing Borden Dreadnoughts and Laurier Niobes, but the Nationalist press is publishing declarations by leading Conservative members of the House of Commons, for a repeal of the bill.

ROWELL WILL FIGHT FOR HUDSON BAY PORTS AND TARIFF REFORM

TORONTO, FEB. 10.—The Liberal leader is determined to secure from the Government a definite pronouncement regarding its stand upon the boundary question.

The negotiations that have been going on at Ottawa for weeks past have it is said, given Ontario no shore line on Hudson Bay beyond the Nelson river.

The opposition has taken the stand that Ontario is entitled not only to the port of the Nelson river, the value of which is problematical, but to one at the mouth of the Churchill river. A resolution giving effect to this view will be introduced in the House on Wednesday next.

It will be moved by Mr. Rowell, and seconded by Hon A. G. MacKay in the following terms:

"That in the judgment of this House the province of Ontario is entitled to its own hinterland, and to have its westerly boundary extended north to the 60th parallel north latitude, so that its northerly boundary shall be the same as that of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, but in order that the province of Manitoba may have access to an ocean going port on Hudson bay through its own territory this House is prepared to approve a settlement whereby the westerly boundary of Ontario shall be extended north to the Churchill river, and shall then follow the middle thread of the Churchill river northeasterly, to deep water in Hudson bay.

"That this House respectfully protests against any settlement of the boundary which shall deprive Ontario of any portion of her hinterland south of the Churchill river, and which does not secure for Ontario a good port on Hudson bay for ocean going vessels".

The opposition will lose no time in bringing before the House the promised measure to reform the assessment system by giving municipalities the right to tax and assess land at a higher rate than improvements. Mr. Rowell has given notice of a bill which will be along the lines of the Fripp measure of two years ago.

The proposed measure will give any municipality the right upon the presentation of a petition signed by one per cent. of the ratepayers to vote upon a by-law.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

A WOMAN OF COURAGE.

Peterborough has, at least, one woman with the courage of her convictions on the woman suffrage question. On this page is found a letter written by Miss Adeline E. Roberts of Young's Point. It gives seven good reasons why women should not vote. There is no need to canvass nor assent to them. Miss Roberts is a little sarcastic in her references to man, but, bless your heart, we men—especially those who are married—bear too much home truths—have to submit to too many home thrusts to resent her arraignment of our little weaknesses. Some women want the power to vote; and many of them are good women, too: that is, good in the sense of being amiable, home-loving and home-building treasures. But, from recent exhibitions, we are led to think that the militant women advocates of suffrage for their sex; the violent, vixenish, bellicose suffragettes are not of the women we love, and hold dear, and have married, or want to marry. And after all, that is the chief consideration. Men only value women as they show themselves complementary, by all the graces that heaven endows the sex with, to the perfection and complete rounding out of man's existence in the holy estate of matrimony; and anything that will detract from one of the graces that make woman lovable, should not be regarded as desirable. Miss Roberts shows her courage in risking the antagonism of her sex—for nothing human, can equal the hatred of women for each other when the occasion arises; and even a new hat may be the occasion. And the risk is even greater in a leap year, when the special privilege allotted to ladies gives larger hope for the triumph of the cause, generally represented by the suffragettes. They will denounce the writer of the letter as a traitor and a weakling, and apply to such leap-year defection on the part of a member of the gentler sex, the fiery language of Tom Moore:

O, for a tongue to curse the slave,
Whose treason, like a deadly blight,
Comes o'er the councils of the brave,
To blast them in the hour of might.

ONLY ONE CANADA.

There is only one Canada. There is no east and west, that is, so far as common progress and interests go. The east wouldn't be the east it is, but for the west, and the west needs the east as the complement of its conditions of growth. In this view it is necessary to strain every nerve to provide adequate transportation for the rapidly growing wheat production of the Canadian West. It would be just as logical to stop settlement and soil development, and wheat growing in the west from lack of transportation as to stop the sun from shining from lack of shade trees. Let the sun shine and plant the trees. We must continue to fill up the West, because we cannot stop the movement. It has gained such momentum as to be independent, to a large extent of government aid, it must, necessarily, continue, and we must meet the situation it creates. If Great Britain and Germany burden themselves with the work of building immense navies, that find themselves almost yearly displaced, and obsolete by new developments in plans and building—navies that are of problematical value,—surely Canada can afford, even if she cannot afford, financially, to make provision for not checking growth and development, by providing every possible avenue of outlet. This has equal interest for both east and west. Our interests commercially and financially, are identical, and they should be so politically and socially. We must, then, each give and take so as to maintain relations united in feeling and in interest. We find the tariff a disturbing question at present. We must not allow it to be a dividing question. There must be reasonable demand and reasonable concession on both sides. We must devise a middle way that will be as far as possible equitable in the interests of both east and west. We must—and that is a more difficult matter than tariff adjustment—get rid of the entangling and disrupting influences at work at present to destroy national unity and harmony of citizenship. We may and can well differ in politics, religion and economic ideas; but we certainly can be big enough to mutually subordinate ourselves to each other in non-essentials, and, united on the one grand essential of Candian unity, Canadian harmony of citizenship, made possible by one common aim, make Canada one in all ways. We must subordinate all minor matters to the greater ideal. Aaron's rod must swallow up the Egyptian rods of distrust, jealousy, and sectarian strife, in the interests of one Canada.

SEVEN REASONS WHY WOMEN SHOULD NOT VOTE

A Peterborough Lady Presents Them in a Letter to the Mail and Empire

Sir,—The exceedingly convincing article, "To Vote or Not to Vote," by Clementina Fessenden, in Thursday's Mail and Empire, must have called forth an admiring acquiescence from all who read it. Mrs. Fessenden proves by her unanswerable arguments that women do not desire to have the vote, do not need the vote, and ought not to have the vote. Let us run over her various arguments, and note the sound judgment, excellent reasoning, and thorough knowledge of both sides of the subject which characterize them.

1. Women cannot fight, therefore they should not vote. Fighting, as all intelligent people are well aware, is the real business of life; questions of health, of education, of social and moral reforms, of economics, weigh naught against the ability to kill. All "civilized" (?) citizens should know how to hurt and destroy. A woman's poor best is but to heal and to save. Therefore, she can hardly yet be called sufficiently "civilized" to be allowed to exercise any direct influence on legislation.

2. Women's interests have been shown to be perfectly safe (?) in the hands of men. Who can doubt the truth of this statement? Men are such unselfish, self-effacing creatures that even when women's interests or welfare clash with men's interests or men's pleasure they invariably sacrifice their own interests in favour of those of the other sex. What sensible woman would deny that men understand the needs and interests of women, and know what is good for them infinitely better than women do themselves?

3. All government rests ultimately on force, to which women cannot contribute. Although this is the 20th century, it is humilating to contemplate the fact that men have not yet reached a sufficiently high stage of development to be capable of exercising reason, intelligence, commonsense, wisdom and moderation in government. We still live in the age of tyrants, and by force and compulsion are coerced into being law-abiding citizens. Although the enfranchisement of women does not mean that they would immediately take the reins of government into their own hands, but simply that they would have the power of voting for or against political candidates and legislative measures, which is all that 90 per cent. of men voters ever do, still somehow, somewhere, somewhen, force is required ,and women have not got it.

4. Undesirable women would get political power. It is a well known fact that all men are desirable voters, even the drunken profligate, who lives on his wife's earnings, and ill-treats and starves her. (He is a man, you see, but she is only a woman. The fact that men are men and "women are women," and, therefore, "different" from men, is an important one, and should never be forgotten.) Among those men who hold political power we may look in vain for one whose aims and motives are not high and pure, uninfluenced by bribery and corruption.

5. The enfranchisement of women would divert them from their home interests. "Women's sphere is the home," of course, we all admit that. Numbers of prominent lady supporters of anti-suffrage have left their "sphere" in order to mount the public platform and tell us so. Legislation has no concern with education, care of children, betterment of the homes and surroundings of the poor, improvement of moral and social conditions. Therefore, why should women have any voice in the legislation of the country? The "woman's place is the home. By all means let her stay there; let her surroundings be unsanitary, let tradesmen sell her adulterated foods and impure milk, let her husband desert her, let her be underpaid and overworked by unscrupulous employers The men, who are so capable of looking after women's interests, will see that all these evils are remedied—in time.

6. The majority of women do not want the vote, and should not be compelled to action by the minority who do. In Australia, in New Zealand, in Colorado, in Washington, the percentage of registered women voters who cast their ballot is between 80 and 90 per cent., and not infrequently in excess of the male voters, plainly proving that women who wish to vote are very much in the minority! How many of this 80 or 90 per cent. are compelled to vote by the minority who vote because they want to, and not on compulsion, and why does that minority let off the 10 or 20 per cent. who do not vote at all? They can hardly be using quite enough "force" perhaps.

7. Women are unfit by the laws of nature to endure the severe strain of public an dpolitical careers. Women are, of course, well able to endure the lighter "careers" and labours which fall to her share as the "weaker sex." Long hours of factory work, for instance, shop work, scrubbing, washing, but such strenuous physical exercise as going occasionally to the polling office to cast her ballot (which is all that a large percentage of men voters do) cannot be expected of her. It must be left solely to the stronger sex, many of whom, before the severe exertion of voting are obliged to fortify themselves, and each other, internally, with strengthening potations ,and may be seen after any election, being assisted from the polls in a condition of complete exhaustion.

Yours, etc ,
ADELINE C. ROBERTS.

CANADA CANNOT WAIT EXPANSION MUST GO ON

East as Keenly Interested in Breaking the Grain Blockade as the West—New Ground Must be Broken Also—Change to Mixed Farming Cannot be Forced.

The congestion in the West ,the inability of the railways to move the Western crop, is sometimes discussed here as if it were a purely Western question. "We are very sorry for the Western farmer; but really," we hear it said, "it cannot be helped. The Western farmer must build more barns, grow less wheat and go in for mixed farming, the way they do in France". All this advice means that the West must not expand as fast as it has been doing. The West must wait for the railways to catch up. Less new ground must be broken. less wheat must be grown, because the railways cannot handle the wheat.

The East Needs the West.

It does not seem always to be quite realized down here that we in the East are in precisely the same boat with the Western farmer. Let it be freely admitted that the western farmer has been living and working at high pressure—raising huge crops of wheat on vast areas of land, breaking up new ground—tearing up the soil with gasoline tractors. We in the East have been moving at the same pace. Compare the quiet, rather slow Toronto of twenty years ago with the rushing, busy city of the present day. Remember that the population of Toronto has doubled in twenty years, and that its bank clearings have trebled in ten years. What was the cause of this expansion, not only in Toronto, but in every industrial and commercial centre of Ontario? The answer is, the rapid development of the Prairie Provinces. Cobalt silver has done something, but not nearly as much as Western wheat, and the promise of more wheat. It was this that attracted to Canada in six years nearly nine hundred million dollars of British capital. It was this that attracted to Canada in ten years nearly two million immigrants. It was this that caused our trade to grow from $239,000,000 to $700,000,000. It was this that caused the marvelous growth of manufacturing industries in Canada. We have all been living largely on the eWst, and on the hope of Western expansion. It was that expansion that attracted the eyes of the world to Canada, and caused it to be said that Canada would some day be the leading nation of the Empire.

Must Be No Check.

Eastern men, manufacturers, bankers, merchants, cannot afford to listen quietly to the suggestion that the expansion of the West must be checked. The moment they cease to break new ground in Saskatchewan and Alberta we cease to break new ground in the cities and towns of Ontario. The moment agricultural expansion in the West is checked, financial, commercial, and industrial expansion in the East is checked. Our bankers, manufacturers, merchants in the East owe it to urge upon the railways and the Government to build more and more miles of railway, to serve new districts, and to furnish new outlets. Who will ventur to-day to repeat the argument used eight years ago that the Grand Trunk Pacific was not necessary? A Western Conservative says that we need to-day not only a third, but a fourth transcontinental railway. Men are talking of the Hudson Bay Railway and the Panama Canal as means of relieving the congestion. And the West must raise next year, and the year, and year after year, not only as much wheat as this year, but more and more. We cannot afford to pause for an instant. The West must expand, or Canada will not expand.

Conditions Have Changed.

Twenty years ago Canada was crying for immigrants in vain. The great fertile plains of the West lay unbroken, their stores of wealth neglected. The railway was stretched across the plains, but there was little wheat to be carried. Now, the immigrants have come, and the traffic has come, more than can be handled, not by one railway, but by two. The ground has been torn up by gasoline tractors, each breaking thirty acres a day. Now the railway companies, which used to complain that they could not find enough work to do, tell us there is too much to do, and that the West must not go on at its present rate piling up work for them to do.

The farmer may have to turn to mixed farming ,but the change cannot be forced, and the country cannot afford to stand still while he changes his methods. Let it be remembered, too, in justice to the farmer, that he was attracted to Canada by the promise of farming under easier and quicker conditions than those which prevail in older lands. "At present," says one of the railway pamphlets, "your toil is bringing you but little returns. The same effort expended in Western Canada will bring you in a few years to a position of independence." The page is adorned by a picture of a man threshing his wheat direct into the car. In a word, we are all in the same boat with the farmer; we must help him out if we would help ourselves. The railways and the country as a whole must find ways and means to market, not only the present crop, but larger and larger ones. We cannot afford to allow the progress and expansion of the West to be checked for a day.—Toronto Star.

THERE'S NO REACTION IN CANADIAN REVENUE

One Hundred and Thirty-six Millions of Revenue and a Record Surplus of Thirty Millions of Dollars

The retrograde step taken by the Canadian electorate last September, while operating unfavourably in other spheres of national interest, has not yet had any reactionary effect on the national revenue.

When Hon. T W. White, Minister of Finance, makes his budget speech in the Commons next month he will have an unprecedented revenue and a record surplus of probably over thirty million dollars to announce.

This harvest, however, is of course, the result of Hon. W. S. Fielding's sowing and the credit must go to the late government. The budget figures for the full fiscal year may be fairly closely estimated from the figures for the first ten months ending with January 31st, as issued by the Finance department to-day.

Up to the end of the month the total revenue was $109,566,983, an increase of $14,756,231 over the corresponding period of 1910-11. The revenue for February and March promises to give the same rates of increase and for the full year the revenue should show an increase of about eighteen millions, thus bringing the total revenue up to approximately $136,000,000, or a hundred million dollars more than the total revenue of Canada, when the Laurier government took power in 1896, as compared with $117,784,000 for last year.

Expenditure on consolidated fund account for the ten months has totaled $70,655,588, an increase of a little over five millions.

For the full year the expenditure on revenue account will probably show an increase of from seven to eight millions over last year, bringing the total up to about $96,000,000, as compared with $87,774,000 for the preceding year. The surplus of revenue over all ordinary expenditures should therefore be about thirty-one millions as compared with twenty millions last year.

On capital account the expenditure for the ten months has been $24,624,073, or a little over one million less than for the corresponding period of 1910-11. Indications are that the surplus of revenue consolidated fund expenditure will practically meet every item of expenditure on capital account, including some twenty-five millions spent on the National Transcontinental Railway.

For January the revenue totalled $10,084,035, an increase of nearly one million over the preceding January.

IN FAVOUR OF UNION

At the Sprinville Presbyterian Church yesterday a vote was taken among the congregation on the subject of Church Union. Although the complete returns are not available it may be stated that about three quarters of the congregation expressed themselves as being favourable to the proposed union.

Do you know that more real danger lurks in a common cold than in any other of the minor ailments? The safe way is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a thoroughly reliable preparation, and rid yourself of the cold as quickly as possible. This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

PLAIN WORDS TO RICH AND POOR

Possession of Riches No Bar to the Lord's Favor—The Sin of Selfishness.

Madras, India, Feb. 11.—The Foreign Missions Investigation Committee is here. Our finest auditorium, the Victoria Hall, was crowded to hear Pastor Russell. He spoke here twice to-day. We report one of his discourses from the text: "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich; and He added no sorrow therewith." (Proverbs x, 22.) He said:

The thing which strikes me specially as I visit your great city for the first time is the marked contrast between the palaces of your superior quarter and the hovels of Blacktown—the contrast between great riches and great poverty. But think not that I have come into your midst to speak words which would engender strife or even discontent. Rather my message will be one of peace. I bear you the Message of the Kingdom of God's dear Son—the Kingdom for which we have all so long prayed, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven."

The inequalities, mental and physical, which prevail amongst us as members of a fallen race, produce naturally our inequalities as respects wealth and social conditions; it is well, therefore, that we should not accept the rabid views entertained by many, but we should think soberly, dispassionately. We should not be quick to think of the wealthy as robbers of the poor and injurious to the general welfare, wholly selfish and under Divine reprobation. We should remember that God Himself is very rich. All the gold and the silver are His, and the cattle upon a thousand hills, with infinite power, beyond human comprehension.

We should remember that it is written that "Abraham was very rich," and that his riches did not interfere with the fact that he "was the friend of God," and that to him God gave that great promise secured by the Divine oath, which is the basis of all hope for the blessing of the world: "In thee and in thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Other noble characters on the pages of history are noted as having possessed great wealth. Many of us have erred in thinking that the wealthy are to be measured by other standards than are the poor. And could anyone properly urge that if rich and poor be measured by the same moral standards the poor would be found more noble minded than the rich? We think not.

We should therefore view the matter of poverty and riches philosophically. Both poor and rich should be encouraged to use faithfully the opportunities which they possessed and to wait patiently for the Lord's time and way for the introduction of the new order of things which He has promised, assured that it is not in our power to either hasten or delay the Divine program.

The Apostle says, "Charge those amongst you who are rich that they trust not in uncertain riches." The history of centuries corroborates the Apostle's words. The rich and prominent of one day become the poor and forgotten of another. "Riches take wings" in a manner that poverty rarely imitates.

The talents and opportunities which have brought great wealth to some of our prominent Americans have brought wealth and prosperity in smaller measure to those associated with them in their enterprises. Indeed, in some respects the entire world, and particularly America, owes them a debt of gratitude for their energy and perseverance in the exercise of their talents and opportunities along such broad lines. And if some of these have been negligent of their opportunities for the redistribution of their wealth in the interests of their fellow men, all the more should this throw a halo of honor about the heads of those who have remembered that wealth, like all other great talents, is to be used, not too selfishly, but for the public good.

My mind took this course of reasoning as I looked at the handsome edifice occupied by the Y.M.C.A. of this city, and I was informed that it was the gift of one of our American merchant princes, Mr. John Wanamaker, of New York and Philadelphia. I said to myself, Behold an instance in which riches have been generously expended, even in a far-off land, for the benefit of the masses, and with a desire to promote clean and noble manhood along Christian lines.

Another of my countrymen, Mr. Rockefeller, has done much to promote the enlightenment of the world by the introduction of system into the business of oil refining. The low prices thus obtained have permitted the use of oil in thousands of humble homes, where its price would have been prohibitive without Mr. Rockefeller's business genius for organization. He has thus assisted in lighting India. And even the rewards of his enterprise, represented in enormous wealth, he is daily seeking to turn into useful channels for the blessing of humanity.

Even if we must dispute the wisdom of investing millions in great colleges for the teaching of Higher Criticism and Evolution and thus for the undermining of the likeness of the Bible and of a living faith therein, we must, nevertheless, compliment the evident good intention and must trust that the Lord will not hold a generous heart responsible for the terrible evils which are sweeping over the world, breeding discontent and anarchy as a result of unwise and improper direction of wealth.

In this connection I must not neglect to mention that generosity and public spirit are not associated merely with Christianity. Even here, on the opposite side of our globe, you have doubtless heard of our great steel manufacturer, who declares that if he has any belief in a religious way he is a Buddhist, and thus much in sympathy with the religion of millions in India. This man of genius, while putting into practice methods of steel manufacture which have greatly reduced the cost thereof, and thus benefitted the world, incidentally reaped for himself a huge fortune. Noble spirited, he has publicly announced his intention to use his vast wealth in the public interest, wisely declaring that it is a shame for any man to die very rich while so many fellow-creatures are very poor. All over the world Mr. Carnegie's generosity and public spirit are manifested in public libraries which he has freely donated.

It is not for us to discuss the wisdom or unwisdom of Mr. Carnegie's gifts or whether he could have done better; it is for to congratulate our race upon the generosity of this one of its number and upon his proper appreciation of his relationship to the race as manifested in his desire to give back to the public the rewards of his genius.

Not so familiar with the rich of India, I nevertheless counsel them with the Divine Message, to "trust not in uncertain riches"—to make not these the treasure of their hearts—rather to consider them as blessed opportunities for doing good to their fellow-men. I counsel them that the riches of Divine favor alone endure for eternity. If they are enterprising and ambitious, let their eyes rest upon the great "prize," which the Master called, figuratively, "The Pearl of Great Price"—a share in the Messianic Kingdom.

The Gospel of the Kingdom is for rich and poor, male and female, white and colored, on the same terms. God is not a respecter of persons. For a time He was a respecter of nationalities; for a time He confined the offer of joint-heirship with Jesus in the Kingdom to those Jews who would hear and respond to the Message. But after gathering out the "Israelites indeed," after begetting these by the Holy Spirit, the call was made general and has been sent to the four quarters of the earth.

Tradition says that one of the Apostle, St. Thomas, brought the Message here to India, and we are pointed to his tomb. No matter whether the tradition be true or false, the facts stand: (1) the Gospel privileges have stood open to India and to every nation for centuries; (2) The Gospel was not sent to convert India nor any nation, but merely to bear witness. That witness has been borne and I am re-echoing it to-day. The Message is for the calling, instruction, sealing of as many as desire to walk in the footsteps of Jesus, and no others. Only those who appreciate this great offer will sacrifice every earthly interest in order to obtain this "Pearl of Great Price." The masses have no ear to hear God's Message—they have no desire to self-sacrificingly take up their cross and follow the Redeemer.

However, all God's purposes shall be accomplished; His Word shall not return unto Him void; it shall accomplish that which He pleases. It will find the elect number of saintly characters whom the Father foreordained shall be with the Redeemer and share His glory throughout His Messianic reign.

I have a special word for the encouragement of the poor of India and of every land. I wish the poor to realize this truth, namely, that poverty is not unfavorable to their best interests for eternity, but, on the contrary, is assistful. Hence the Scriptures tell us that "not many great, wise, learned or rich" will be heirs of the Kingdom, but, "chiefly the poor of this world, rich in faith." (I. Cor. i. 26-28; James ii 5.

It is not that God more highly esteems the poor than the rich, but that they have less to fill and satisfy their hearts now and are, therefore, more hungry and thirsty for the right way of the Lord and more ready to hearken to His voice, which says to both rich and poor, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." The rich usually feel less weary and less heavy laden—they have more to console them in the things of this present time. The poor, on the contrary, having fewer of the blessings of the present, are hungering and thirsting for the better thing for the future and thus meantime find the Lord and are glad to receive His blessings upon His only terms—full consecration of mind and body, time and purse.

Our text is an epitomized statement of the Gospel of Christ. All God's blessing for our race will come through the Seed of Abraham—Christ. The giving of His Son to be man's Redeemer and Deliverer from sin and death was God's blessing to man—making man rich. Messiah, having died for the redemption of the world, is about to bestow upon men the Divine blessing promised to Abraham. "In thee and in thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

That blessing to the non-elect world will be a glorious opportunity for rising up out of sin and death conditions to full human perfection in the image and likeness of God—as Adam possessed this before his fall. It will mean the bringing of the earth to the conditions pictured in Eden. The earth, God declares, He formed not in vain, but to be inhabited. At present man is in a condition of enmity and separation from His Creator and his earthly home is disordered. God's footstool, for six thousand years, has been the scene of a terrible reign of Sin and Death.

The only hope is in Messiah's Kingdom, which God has promised shall be established for the overthrow of Satan, the abolishing of ignorance and superstition, the enlightenment of mankind and the uplift of all the willing and obedient and for the destruction of the wilfully wicked in the Second Death. But before the Kingdom could be established a redemptive work was necessary for the satisfaction of Justice on behalf of Adam, the sinner, and his race involved with him. By the grace of God Jesus has appeared, and, as a corresponding price, has died, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us back into harmony with God and bring in the glorious and long-promised thousand years of restitution.—Acts iii. 19-21.

Eighteen centuries ago Jesus accomplished His redemptive work and was rewarded, in His resurrection with glory, honor and immortality. Ever since then He is at the right hand of Jehovah God, merely awaiting the Divinely ordained time when He shall take unto Himself His great power and reign. Of that time we read prophetically, "Ask of Me, and I will give Thee the heathen for Thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for Thy possession." (Psalm ii. 8.)

But why so long a delay between the time when He appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself and the time when He shall appear in His glory to establish the reign of righteousness and lift up the world of mankind for whom He died? The Bible alone answers this question, and oh, how much we are interested in its answer! It tells us that in this interim between the death of the Saviour and the inauguration of His Kingdom a special and great work is to be accomplished according to the Divine arrangement—the calling and the choosing of a faithful few from amongst the redeemed race to constitute a Royal Priesthood, to serve and reign in association with the Saviour.

These heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ our Lord are variously described in the Scriptures. Under one figure they are spoken of as being members of the Body of which He is the Head. Thus is shown the oneness of Christ and His faithful followers. In another picture Jesus is spoken of as the heavenly Bridegroom, and the Church is described as His espoused. At the second coming of Jesus His espoused virgin Church is to be made alive from the dead and thus to be married to the Bridegroom and become His Bride and joint-heir to the glory, honor and immortality which are His by virtue of the heavenly Father's arrangement and of the Saviour's worthiness—faithfulness unto death, even the death of the Cross.

Thus seen, God, the Fountain of every good and every perfect gift, proposes, first, to make rich the Church, the Elect of this Gospel Age. Theirs will be heavenly riches, a spirit nature, glory, honor, with our Redeemer—"far above angels, principalities and powers and every name that is named." The blessing of the Lord will make these rich indeed, and after they shall have entered into the riches of this reward, in the First Resurrection, they will be absolutely perfect. God will add no sorrow to that completed blessing. All the imperfections of the present will be past and we shall be like our Redeemer and share His glory and see Him as He is.

And as for the world, we have already seen that God is waiting to be gracious to all who will accept His favors. He is waiting for the completion of the Church of the First-born, who constitute "a kind of first-fruits unto God of His creatures (James i, 18). He is waiting for the Kingdom Class to be fully selected, fully developed, fully shaped and polished in the Redeemer's likeness before bestowing the blessing upon mankind through natural Israel. The blessing of the world will require a thousand years for its outpouring upon every nation, people, kindred and tongue. "They shall obtain mercy through your mercy," (Rom. xi, 31.) The blessing will come to natural Israel and, gradually, through natural Israel, to other nations.

Gradually the blessing of the Lord will be making rich all who will come under the terms of the New Covenant, and of Messiah's glorious reign. By the close of that thousand years the world will be perfect—no more sighing, no more crying and no more dying. The blessing of the Lord will have made rich, and then what? He will add no sorrow. The lessons of Sin and Death will have been learned before mankind will thus be enriched by the Saviour through restitution processes and uplift from sin and death.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. "THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

It was true the trio were parted; the charmed circlet broken; snapped suddenly with such bewildering haste that she scarcely realized what the breach meant. But despite the attendant regret, how excellent, how good a thing it was to be freed from the weight of so much anxiety. That the climax should have come so soon was essential, and welcome in more ways than one, for the men were inseparable during Paul's leisure hours. They were either driving or shooting, or tramping the country together, or arguing and smoking their heads off in the keeping-room. Under such circumstances could she have married, settled in East Weyberne, and left those dear, stupid things in undisputed possession of the old Manor House? Of course not. If by any mischance or miscarriage of Paul's weakened nerve Felix discovered——. A slight sound caught her ear. She held up the candle and looked anxiously across the room to behold Felix standing overwhelmingly large an dsubstantial in the now wide open doorway.

He had slipped a cloth dressing-gown over his pyjamas, and he looked wonderfully handsome, his face flushed with sleep, his fair hair picturesquely rumpled; the ends of his moustache bent upwards.

"What is the matter?" he asked, astonished.

"Nothing," she returned hurriedly. "I thought I heard a noise."

"I heard a noise; was it you?"

"Yes," she said, relieved; "I kicked over a stool."

"I heard voices as well, Agnes. To whom were you speaking?"

"Felix, you were dreaming. To whom should I be talking in the middle of the night?"

"That is what I want to know. To whom were you speaking?"

"To no one; it's your imagination. I can't stay here in the cold answering silly questions."

"You will stay here until you have told me. To whom were you speaking, Agnes?"

"How tiresome you are, Felix! It was Paul Farley."

"Farley? What on earth brought him down?"

"He thought you were seriously ill; he had an idea you were worse."

"What made him think so? Did you infer it when you wrote that card for me?"

"I? Gracious, no! Mr. Farley is very foolish; he has always some crochet or other in his head."

"I don't agree with you. He has always struck me as particularly free from——"

He walked across to the table, stooped and picked up the telegram Paul had dropped and forgotten in his anguish, and in the violent reaction it had sustained. He unfolded it and read: "Felix worse; dying. Come at once.—Agnes."

The Squire's face was a study in consternation.

"This brought him! Where is he?"

"Gone," she faltered, beginning to feel frightened at the steely glint she saw coming into his eyes.

"To Weyberne Hall. He said he could easily awaken James, and I said I thought he had better not stay here, as there was no accom——"

"You fool!" he exclaimed, with distended nostrils, catching her by the arm and shaking her; "Agnes, you fool! Do you want the lad butchered?"

"No, I don't; you know I don't. What do you mean?"

"I mean you have gone the right way to work to bring about an atrocious tragedy. Don't you see what you have done? Mrs. Wycherly sent this," tapping the telegraph form, "and you—you have gone and played into her hands; you have driven the boy straight into that mad devil's arms. Why didn't you keep him? Why didn't you come and tell me he was here? You know the trouble and pains I've been at to prevent the issue your quintessence of thoughtlessness has now brought about."

"I was not thoughtless; I thought too much. If there had been less to consider I might have thought of this. I did it all for the best. Felix, I——"

"Bah! You women are all alike. You commit the most egotistical folly and then say you did it for the best. It was the best possible worst you could have done, and why in the name of commonsense did you tell him there was no accommodation here? You could have had a fire lighted in this room if you were afraid of his coming upstairs in the middle of the night. It seems to me you have become remarkably prudish and audaciously untruthful all in the twinkling of an eye, and I should like to be made acquainted with the reason of this undue haste to eject Farley and the—worse than prevarication—deliberate lie you told? What's it all about and whither does it end?"

"I had no idea it was prudish not to ask him to stay when there was nowhere for him to sleep; and the lie, Felix, was on your account. He was gone then, and I did not want you upset. Jack said you were not to be excited or worried, and I meant to carry out his instructions to the letter. I was thinking more of your health than of Mr. Farley's comfort."

"You could have considered both had you the wit, as I remarked before. If you were bent on not disturbing me, an easy chair by the fire down here would have been preferable to turning him out again a night like this. I wonder when he had anything to eat last. I suppose you—there's no use in crying, Agnes; that won't undo it. There only remains to set about doing what lies in our power to intercept, if possible, or failing, to lessen the consequences. You had better dress, and by that time I shall be ready for you to help me with my coat. I expect it will be weeks before I can get this arm back without assistance."

"Are you going out?" she asked, wiping her eyes.

"Yes, I am going to call up Ralph, and take him with me to the Hall. I must find out whether Farley has arrived there; if not—the deuce take her!—he's at The Larches, and it will be as well, now I'm a bit crippled, to have the man with me when I pay the widow a nocturnal visit. She is back in Weyberne," he added, as he reached the door. "But how on earth did she get Farley's address? Hare didn't know it."

He knit his brows, intently studied the telegram in his hand for two seconds of time, then suddenly his face cleared; he turned, sprang upstairs, and knocked sharply at Rose Pilgrim's door.

"What about that letter, Rose, addressed to Mr. Farley?" he asked, when he had made her comprehend the drift of his questionings. "Did you post it or not? What did you do with it?"

Obliged to Quit Business

So Dreadful Was the Suffering From Itching Piles

After Twenty Years of Pile Torture Relief and Cure Came with Dr. Chase's Ointment

You take no risk and you make no experiment when you use Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles. Many doctors still cling to the idea that nothing but an operation will effect a cure. But operations are expensive and dangerous and often fail in their results. Some have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment after operations had failed.

Dr. Chase's Ointment truly has a wonderful record as a cure. Here is a case which was reported recently:

Mr. John P. Marshall, 14 Barnes road, St. John's, Nfld., writes: "For upwards of twenty years I was troubled terribly with itching piles; at times so bad that I was obliged to lay up, unable to attend to business.

"I tried many treatments without benefit, until I accidentally read of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found at last a cure by using this ointment. I only used one box and part of a second one when I was completely cured, and have had no return of the piles. That was eighteen months ago, and, needless to say, I attribute this cure to Dr. Chase's Invaluable Ointment."

Many sufferers from piles have tried so many scores of treatments that they cannot believe that cure is possible. In order to convince the skeptical we are always willing to send a sample box free to anyone who encloses a two-cent stamp to pay postage.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

SHE signs herself "A general houseworker.

She was moved to write to me by my little talk about the woman who solved the maid problem by trying to share some of her interests with her maid and takes a friendly interest in the latter's affairs.

She does not have any use for this solution and she is evidently decidedly bitter about the whole question. And yet I am delighted with the opportunity to give over my space to-day to quoting fragments from her letter, because she is evidently a person of intelligence who has thought much on the subject and because she is, as she herself says, "a member of that much discussed class," whose point of view on the problem which they constitute seldom gets public expression.

I spoke of the girl who looked her would-be mistress over very carefully before deciding she would not have her.

She retorts, "When you take into consideration the fact that the employer sometimes pays nothing to an employment office manager but the girl pays a very large percentage, you can see that she has a right to see what she is getting."

I wrote of a mistress who paid good wages, did some of the cooking herself and still could not keep a maid.

She explains, "From my own experience with the lady who cooks, I can truthfully state that the havoc made by a Kansas cyclone is as nothing compared with the kitchen after the 'lady' has done some cooking She usually comes in at the last moment, all dressed up and having probably forgotten to order something she intended having for dinner, tries to make something out of a tin of sardines and two eggs and dirties every dish, pot and pan in the kitchen."

I spoke of a woman with four children who had difficulty in getting a helper and she gave these little hints as to why a maid prefers a place where there are no children—"The children are mostly very unmannerly, take out all the kitchen spoons and lose them; never eat anything that is prepared, always want something different, have no table manners to speak of, spill food on the floor and make a disgustingly dirty table cloth."

The woman who solved the servant problem by taking an interest in her maid's affairs, she says, "makes me weary. The people who pretend to do that, really talk always about themselves, their people and their money."

She concludes her letter with these general hints, "Try to be polite. I know this is hard for some people. Punctuality is politeness. Hang up your clothes. It is not a houseworker's place to wait on you personally. Supply nice dish towels, not old flour bags; cheese cloth for dusters, not old seamy white rags; brushes for cleaning silver, not your husband's old underwear—these are all right for rubbing off the stove, but not for other things. Do not expect a girl to wear black. It is dirty. Do not expect her to answer the doorbell when she is frying potatoes unless your house is heavily insured. Learn to sit properly at the table and do not stick your heels out so that the girl will stumble when she is playing the double role of butler and cook. I am sorry I have no more time to mention a lot of other things, but will let this do for the present."

Yes, I know some of this is bitter and prejudiced and is all very strongly put, but is it any more so than much of what is said in my lady's living room on the other side of the case?

I never can speak of the servant problem without thinking of what was said to me by a woman who had been for many years the head of an employment bureau. Asked her with which party she thought the most of the trouble between mistress and maid lay. She said, "As far as my observation goes it's about six of one to half a dozen of the other. And yet," she added, "I blame the mistress more, because if they are so much better bred and better educated as they claim to be, they ought to know better."

My correspondent's remarks are bitter and prejudiced, but I am not half so much ashamed of her as I am of the mistresses who by reason of the breeding and education they claim, should be more gentle and tolerant and are not.

And bitter or not bitter, there certainly is much in what she says to make housewives think. Maybe the faults she mentions are not yours, but perhaps they can suggest others of which you are guilty.

I am quite ready to admit that they had that effect upon me.

Roy Gilray Pays A Sunday Morning Visit To St. Luke's Church

Written for the Examiner by Roy Gilray

The parish of St. Luke's, Ashburnham, was formed chiefly through the exertions and by the liberality of the late Rev. Mark Burnham, B.A., who not only gave the site for the church but also aided largely in its erection, and for two years contributed generously to the clergyman's support. The first service was held on the 9th of July, 1876, the late Bishop of Toronto, Right Rev. Dr. Bethune, officiating in the morning, and the first incumbent, the late Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, preaching in the evening. The only building then erected was a small schoolroom.

Very soon the little school house was found inadequate to the needs of the constantly increasing congregation, and at a meeting held Sept. 4th, 1876 it was unanimously decided to build a new church. Under auspicious circumstances the new edifice was opened Sept. 23rd, 1877 and consecrated the following May, all indebtedness having been removed.

On May 17th, the Rev. Mark Burnham, the generous and loyal friend and supporter of St. Luke's, was called to his well earned rest at the age of seventy-three.

The Sunday school had as its first Superintendent, Mr. George C. Rogers, who met an untimely death by drowning, April 20th, 1883. His body was not recovered until May 6th. Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, during the memorial service, in referring to his sad death, said in part: "He was such a noble character, and he was such an earnest and devout churchman, so cheerful and unassuming, so bright and happy and helpful to all, in church and Sunday school, in business and social life and recreation, that our loss as a congregation and a community is, humanly speaking, irreparable."

In 1883 the old school room was torn down ,it being found too small for the increasing number of Sunday school scholars. A very commodious and well-designed structure was erected, with library and infant-class room, according to modern ideas.

In 1886 the chancel, which had been very small, was enlarged to double its size, and formally opened by Rev. Rural Dean Allen, M.A.

In 1888 the present pipe organ was placed in the church.

A beautiful memorial, in the form of a new chancel altar, credence table, sedilia, communion rail, choir seats and prayer desk, all executed in solid oak, in memory of the late Honourable Robert Hamilton, was presented to the church by Mrs. Hamilton in 1896.

St. Luke's has been singularly fortunate in receiving gifts from her admirers. A communion service from Wm. McCullough; three years' free insurance from Hon. Geo A. Cox; pulpit from Wm. Wand; font from the Ladies' Aid Society; the church bell from the Sunday school scholars; brass alms dish from Mrs. Soanes; brass lectern from Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Smith; corona from Dr. Burritt; brass reading desk for the altar from the brothers and sisters of the late Mary Bradfield; brass font ewer from Mr. Grassett;; silk chalice veil and silk markers for Bible and Prayer Books from Miss Godfrey; and several memorial windows in loving memory of Thomas and Dorothea White, Charles Bertram Orde, Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers, Mrs. Isabelle Balfour Calcutt, Mr. and Mrs. William Mills and Miss Clara Mills. Another gift, which did not take the form of a stained glass window or a gilded altar, but which was none the less appreciated, was the faithful work of the sexton, Jacob Friend, who at the commencement of the parish, volunteered his services without remuneration. Mr. Friend passed to his reward in 1888.

The first Rector, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, M.A., who for fourteen years laboured unceasingly for the upbuilding of the parish of St. Luke's, was greatly beloved by his parishioners. It might almost be said that he gave his life for St. Luke's; owing to overwork and failing health he was compelled to give up all work and journey to Denver, Colorado, to regain his lost vitality. Four years later, having recovered sufficiently to take up his work again, he was transferred to Christ church, Winnipeg. But the strain proved too great, for in the following year he entered into rest, leaving behind him in the parish of St. Luke's a memorial that testifies to the noble work he did.

Rev. Mr. Symonds, in reference to his life, said in part: "The fourteen best years of Mr. Bradshaw's life were spent in the work of building up this parish. Upon one of the walls of St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, built by Sir Christopher Wren, is this inscription: 'If you seek his monument look afound you.' May we not say the same of Mr. Bradshaw; this church, this school house and rectory, this congregation are his monument. I do not think it an exaggeration to say that his very life is here; its energy is transformed into these walls, those large lists of baptisms and communicants."

Rev. Herbert Symonds, M.A., Professor of Theology in Trinity College, Toronto, was the next regular rector, having been preceded by Reverends Warren and McCleary, who remained only a short time. After nine years' faithful work, during which time St. Luke's made rapid strides, Rev. Mr. Symonds received an intimation from the governing body of Trinity College school, Port Hope, that he was chosen to become the Headmaster of that school.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., of Omemee ,was appointed to succeed Rev. Dr. Symonds. He remained with the congregation till last year and was followed by Rev. F. J. Sawers, M.A., who came to Peterborough from Lakefield. Mr. Sawers is another Peterborough boy who has "made good." He is a great admirer of Rev. Dr. Symonds, having been associated with him at Trinity College School, Port Hope, and Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal.

Last Sunday morning was not a good one for church going. Too cold this time. How odd, there is always something wrong with the weather or with ourselves when it comes time to go to church on Sunday morning.

I directed my steps towards Ashburnham and visited St. Luke's. The church occupies a commanding position reflecting the good judgment of those who selected the site. The interior presents an inviting appearance. Entering the vestibule I noticed a printed sheet outlining the law regarding Sunday observance. This is the first time I have ever seen any notice in a church relating to the Sabbath, other than the commandment, commencing: "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

The weather proved too severe for the furnace, for it was quite chilly inside.

There was a fair congregation present, but the empty seats predominated. However, I am informed that this is not the case at the service in the evening, when the edifice is well filled with an appreciative audience.

The choir, which in this church is ungowned, was somewhat small, a reaction, no doubt, of the very successful concert they gave last Friday night.

The parishioners of St. Luke's are very enthusiastic over the prospects of their church. With a rector, whom everybody admires, full of zeal for his work, they are looking for a great expansion in all branches of the church work.

Rev. Canon Morley of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, sought to enlist the support and co-operation of the parish of St. Luke's in the great undertaking of providing funds for the completion of the Cathedral he represents; a Cathedral which will be a monument to the glory of God, a source of inspiration to the church, and a lasting honour to the diocese of Toronto.

He chose as his text Nehemiah, 2: 20, "The God of Heaven, He will prosper us; therefore we, His servants, will arise and build; but ye have no portion, no right, nor memorial, in Jerusalem." Nehemiah was sore at heart. He deplored the condition of Jerusalem and the sad plight of the Jews. Throwing himself down before God he spent many days in fasting and prayer.

Looking upon our own walls, have not the hearts of all true churchmen been pierced as they viewed the unfinished Cathedral, crying out, "Let no more reproach come upon us, oh Lord, let us up and build?"

The work begun by the late Bishop has been handed down by the order of divine right to the present Bishop, who realizes the tremendous responsibility resting upon him as Bishop of the fair diocese; that the honour of this diocese is at stake. The entire Church of England are watching him to see if he possesses enough spirit and energy to take up the work.

He realizes that Toronto is fast becoming the centre of ecclesiastical, educational, political and commercial life. In years to come millions of people as they are drawn to the city, will look upon that Cathedral, if unfinished, as a huge monument of imbecility, if finished, as a monument to our loyalty to our God; that our church is divine; that our system is the best system for the development of character, and for bringing men to be like Him who lived on this earth, like our Lord Jesus Christ.

The building wil ltake time. Like Nehemiah, the Bishop has established a system and has appointed leaders. The people are being informed of the condition of affairs and are called upon to build the great Cathedral. It will require vigour, promptness and energy. The walls of Jerusalem were rebuilt in six months. Three years have been allotted as the time in which to complete St. Alban's.

It will constitute the spiritual home of all classes, therefore the co-operation of all is essential. The burden should not be borne by a few. Each one can do something and should do it heartily and cheerfully.

By co-operation we do not bean simply an association of individuals but a covenant with God and with one another as we recognize that the hand of God is in the work.

It will be costly.

It will be a delicate and difficult problem requiring the co-operation of all.

It will have a large issue. In the end it will be a useful and noble triumph.

It will prove a magnificent opportunity for a demonstration of the greatest event in the history of the Canadian church.

It will be a memorial to the grand work of our forefathers, the men of wonderful foresight, of Christian statesmanship, to the memory of such men as John Strachan and Arthur Bethune.

It will prove a splendid opportunity for this congregation to arise and assist in helping to build this great Cathedral as a testimony to what God has done for them spiritually, morally and mentally.

SOURCE OF DANGER

The cutting of ice in Chemong Lake, near the highway, the farmers have beaten as a short-cut, is considered a source of danger by some of the residents of the vicinity. One of them stated to the Examiner that the law demands that such be carried on at a certain distance from temporary roads over the ice and that a fence be built around it as a further protection. Neither condition had been complied with, he said, and it was felt that it should be somebody's business to look after this work.

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering, and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by all dealers.

Lost His Hair, Beard and Mustache

Terrible Plight of a Pennsylvania Man Reported by a Prominent Citizen

"About two years ago my hair, beard and mustache started to come out in spots. These spots were entirely bare of hair.

Seeing PARISIAN SAGE advertised, I purchased four bottles and after using two of the bottles, the hair came in until now I have as good a head of hair as I had before this trouble started.

Please bear in mind that PARISIAN SAGE is not guaranteed to grow hair on bald heads.

In Mr. Galder's case the hair root was not dead, and there is no good reason why PARISIAN SAGE should not do just what he writes it did.

"The next time Mr. Galder came into my store after purchasing the PARISIAN SAGE," writes the druggist who sold him, "his appearance was so changed I did not know him."

PARISIAN SAGE is without doubt the most efficient hair grower, beautifier and dandruff cure in the world, and people who are wasting time with ordinary commercial tonics should wake up.

PARISIAN SAGE will banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp; will put life, lustre and beauty into faded hair, or money back. It is a most delightful and refreshing tonic for men, women and children. Large bottle 50 cents at Wm. Madill's and druggists the country over.

"Provincial Prohibition Parliament" Opens Massey Hall To-morrow

Massey Hall, Toronto, will be the scene of one of the biggest temperance demonstrations ever held in Ontario, when the National Temperance Congress and Ontario Provincial Convention opens its session to-morrow, Feb. 13th.

The annual conventions of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance have been developed into what has been termed a "Provincial Prohibition Parliament." Every church and Temperance Society in Ontario is entitled to representation, and delegates attend from all parts of the Province representing different phases of temperance thought.

Special interest attaches to this year's convention on account of the Dominion features. A National Temperance Congress will be held, at which delegates will be present from every Province in the Dominion.

From British Columbia the energetic Secretary of the Local Option League, Rev. Dr. Spencer, will be on hand, and Rev. W. C. W. Fortune of Edmonton, with some other stalwart workers from Alberta, are coming. Representatives are also expected from Saskatchewan and Manitoba. From the East, George E. Full, one of the veteran leaders of Prince Edward Island is upon the programme, together with Rev. H. R Grant, Dr. A. J. McDonald of Nova Scotia, and E. N. Stockford of New Brunswick.

The province of Quebec will be especially well represented, not only by the workers in the Quebec branch of the Alliance, but in the French Catholic organization of the Anti-Alcoholic League. His Honour Chief Justice F. X. Lemieux and other leaders in the great movement in Quebec will also be at hand.

In addition to the delegates, many people from all parts of Ontario and the Eastern Provinces will, no doubt, take advantage of the special cheap rates, arrangements having been made by which a single fare return rate has been obtained from all points in Canada, east of Port Arthur upon the Convention plan.

The Convention opens on Tuesday morning, at 9 o'clock, at which session the Annual Report of the Executive will be presented and the President, Mr. Joseph Gibson, of Ingersoll, will present his annual address.

Tuesday afternoon will be taken up with a Workers' Conference, at which practical questions relating to the organization and conduct of Local Option and License Reduction campaigns and law enforcement will be discussed.

On Tuesday evening the Dominion Congress will be opened by a public mass meeting. Mr. John R. Fougall of Montreal, proprietor of the Montreal Witness, and Dominion President of the Alliance, will occupy the chair. Addresses of welcome will be given by His Worship Mayor Geary of Toronto, and Mr. Joseph Gibson, President of the Ontario Alliance. These will be replied to by Secretary W. G. W. Fortune of Alberta, after which Mr. F. S Spence, Canadian Government representative to the Hague, will present a report of his trip. Special music will be furnished by the Alexander Choir, assisted by Douglas Stanbury, boy singer.

The interesting feature of Wednesday morning session will be a roll call of the counties of the Province. As the name of each county is called, the President of the County organization or some other representative will respond, giving the present situation and prospects for work in that county. This will be followed by an address upon the Provincial situation by the General Secretary, Rev. Ben. H. Spence.

On Wednesday afternoon Dominion questions will be conducted. There will be a roll call of Provinces, at which a representative from each Province will report as to progress in their respective Provinces.

Thursday morning, questions of Dominion-wide interest will be discussed, some of those taking part in the programme being John H. Roberts, Montreal; E. N. Stockford, New Brunswick; C. B. Keenleyside, Sask.; Dr. D. Spencer, British Columbia; H. R. Grant, Nova Scotia, and F. S. Spence, Toronto.

Thursday afternoon will be purely a business session of the Ontario Convention. This will be followed by a special reception from six to eight o'clock, after which a public mass meeting will be held, addressed by His Honour Chief Justice F. X. Lemieux, Quebec; Rev. Dr. P. A. Baker, National Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America; Mr. George R. Full, of Prince Edward Island. Special music by the Alexander Choir and Douglas Stanbury.

Business session of the convention and congress will be held Friday morning and afternoon.

The policy will govern the action of the temperance forces of the Province for the next twelve months will be determined at this Convention. The likilihood is that arrangements will be made for the most sweeping Local Option compaign that there has yet been. It is expected that over 1,000 delegates will be in attendance.

VALENTINE SOCIAL, Tuesday Evening, February 13th, commencing at 8 o'clock, under auspices of St. Peter's T.A.S. in St. Alphonsus Lyceum. A good time is assured. All welcome. Tickets 25c. 3d-35

And $3000 is the Approximate Amount of City's Weekly Butter Bill

Peterborough consumes 1,000 pounds of butter a day according to an estimate based on the wholesale trade of late, and at present only a small quantity is produced within or around the city. At least supplies are coming for the most part from out of town.

On account of the shortage in butter in Montreal warehouses and of the existing scarcity throughout the country the price went up a cent to-day and is now 40 cents among retailers with wholesalers receiving but little under this sum.

Locally, consumers are largely dependent for the time being upon supplies brought mostly from Montreal. There is, of course, some local manufacture, but it is limited. The butter held in storage here was exhausted long since, and it is known that supplies have been taken from storage since October last. Montreal warehouses report exceedingly light supplies with buyers willing to accept anything.

Figures recently published show that the situation is tense in the Montreal butter market and large houses state that prices are likely to be higher.

There is not much likelihood of relief for the situation until the first of April according to those who follow the market and in the meantime it is hardly to be expected that prices will show any reduction, and it seems rather that they will go higher if the conditions mentioned are fulfilled.

Peterborough citizens are paying $2,800 a week for butter if the estimate of 1000 pounds a day is correct, and it is possibly slightly under the exact figures. It is likely that the city's butter bill totals at least $3,000 a week with the present price at 40c. a pound.

A GREAT LAWYER SAID

"If I had my way" a famous lawyer once said "I would make good health as contagious as measles."

Just think of it—suppose you could catch good health as easily as you catch cold—this would be a poor world for doctors and druggists.

Mrs. T. A. Trapp who lives in Arlington, N. J., has found the next best thing to catching good health. She says "A few weeks ago I contracted a cough which annoyed me a great deal as I was badly run down at the time. It kept me awake at night and distressed me greatly. After two weeks of this I began to take Vinol and one bottle not only caused my cough to disappear but I feel much better in every way and can sleep well again."

If you can't literally "catch" good health, you can at least recover it and build yourself up by taking our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol. It makes weak folks strong, and we guarantee it to give perfect satisfaction. Your money back if it does not. McDerraid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

THE WEATHER

Although the temperature has moderated considerably, there is still room for further improvement along that line. This morning at seven o'clock the thermometer marked 5 degrees below; lowest during the night, 9 below zero. Sunday morning it was 15 below zero, lowest during the night 23 below.—W. P.

WILL HOLD A CONVENTION HERE

Rev. J. H. Long concluded a series of services last evening, which he has been conducting at the Bethany Tabernacle throughout the past week. He left for Toronto this morning. Rev. Dr. Zimmerman, Rev. Mr. Chandler and Rev. J. H. Long will hold a convention in this city about the middle of next month. Following the convention a series of revival services will be held.

STOVE EXPLODED WITH DIRE RESULTS

The hot water reservoir of Mr. Steven Gaskins, 103 Hunter street, froze up Saturday night, with the result that when a big fire was started in the stove the following morning, it blew up. Fragments of the stove flew in all directions, and, in one or two instances, penetrated the brick wall. Fortunately no one tried to impede the progress of the flying pieces either intentionally or by accident, therefore, no one was injured. The fire department was summond, and order was soon restored.

The damage to the contents will be in the neighbourhood of $100, and to the building, about $75.

URGING THE REPEAL

Bourassa Presses Borden on Naval Question

INTERVIEWS WITH M.P'S

Montreal, Feb. 12.—Mr. Henri Bourassa and his friends appear to be determined upon the repeal of the naval bill. Le Nationalist yesterday contained a number of interviews on the subject. Sir Rodolphe Forget, M.P., says: "In reply to your telegram, I may say that I am in favor of the repeal of the naval law."

Mr. Honore Achim, M.P. for Labelle: "I said during my campaign that the measure was a bad one and I have not changed my opinion. I say that the law should be repealed."

Mr. J. O. Lavalle, M.P. for Beauharnois: "My opinion as to the repeal of the law has never changed, and I will be in favor of any measure to this sense, provided it may be presented in a proper way and not in the hurried manner as proposed in certain quarters. The shelving of the Laurier project and the attitude of the Government on the question is satisfactory to me."

Mr. Paul Emile Lamarche, M.P. for Nicolet: "Logic and singerity are still the best policies to act upon. The consequence of the 21st of September have not caused me to change my opinion so often expressed. The law should be repealed and I hope the executive itself which will respond to the voice of the people."

Mr. Albert Sevigny, M.P. for Dorchester: "The naval law will be repealed."

Mr. J. P. O. Guilbault, M.P. for Joliette, said: "I am as I have always been, against the naval bill of the Laurier Government."

Mr. Joseph Rainville, M.P. for Chambly Vercheres: "I am with all my heart in favor of the repeal of the naval bill. As a matter of fact, what serious argument can be brought forward favoring its continuance, for both Imperialists and autonomists condemn it? In fact, the Imperial authorities ask for nothing else than that preached by the Nationalists during the last campaign and the attitude of the Laurier Government is all the more strange, as they had read the report of the Imperial authorities."

Mr. J. M. Tellier, M.P.P. for Joliette, and leader of the Opposition in Quebec: "I fought the naval bill and I have not changed my opinion since."

Mr. Jos. Sylvester, M.P. for Montcalm: "I will be happy to see the law repealed because we promised the people that nothing would be done without consulting them and for the reason that the measure is absolutely useless."

DENOUNCES TREATY.

Ex-Premier Clemenceau Says France Has Been Bullied.

Paris, Feb. 12.—The Senate Saturday afternoon voted for the ratification of the Franco-German treaty in regard to Morocco. The vote was 222 to 48, which showed that about thirty members abstained from voting.

The ratification of the accord, with the concurrence of the Chamber of Deputies, was signalized by a dramatic speech by ex-Premier Clemenceau, in which he characterized the treaty as a "diplomatic monster." He attacked the concessions made to Germany, saying that the negotiations should not have been taken up under the threat of the Panther's guns. He doubted if the accord would be an instrument of peace, as he saw no indications of good will and moderation on the part of Germany, which five times since 1870 had menaced France with war without provocation.

Mr. Clemenceau closed the debate with a characteristic criticism of the treaty, which he declared could not possibly be defended. France had her finger on the trigger and should have said "No" to the negotiations conducted "under the guns of Agadir." The attitude of the nation in the recent crisis, however, was an excellent omen for the future and he added: "All peoples have a right to their share of life and that is what Germany has denied France since 1870." He repudiated any idea of rapprochement with Germany and said that the defeat of 1870 ought not to involve a state of vassalism.

Premier Poincare said that while the treaty was not perfect, it was necessary to ratify it as a matter of policy and in the interest of the triple entente.

Train Runs Off Track.

Montreal, Feb. 12.—The Grand Trunk train which left Toronto at 9 a.m. Saturday for Montreal, left the track near Lancaster, Ont. The engineer remained at his post and applied the emergency brakes. There was no injury either to passengers or to rolling stock. The cause of the accident is supposed to have been contraction of the rails, due to the unusually cold weather. The passengers were taken on to Montreal by a special train after twelve hours' delay, the track being blocked for some time.

MILLIONS OF FOLKS USE ONLY CASCARETS

They Never Have Headache, Biliousness, Sluggish Liver or Bowels or a Sick, Sour Stomach

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish intestines—you always get the desired results with Cascarets and quickly, too.

Don't yet your stomach, liver, and bowels make you miserable another moment; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the poison and effete matter, which is producing the misery.

Take a Cascaret now; don't wait until bedtime. In all the world there is no remedy like this. A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. No more days of gloom and distress if you will take a Cascaret now and then. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Extradition Mix-Up.

London, Feb. 12.—An interesting legal point has arisen in connection with the case of "Monte Carlo Wells," who was arrested in England recently on behalf of the French embassy. One of the conditions of the recent extradition treaty is that a handed-over prisoner "must be accompanied with all his goods and chattels" and financial effects recovered under proceedings following the arrest.

The result of this procedure has been that money, securities and other effects which Wells had in England have all been secured by the prosecution on behalf of the French embassy, and it seems possible that the French depositors in Wells bank, who, it is alleged, were defrauded of $200,000 might get back most of their lost savings.

But a development has occurred. Wells became bankrupt many years ago—about the time he was sentenced at the Old Bailey in March, 1893, in connection with the patent frauds, when the chief victim was a sister of Mr. Justice Phillimore. From that bankruptcy there has never been any discharge, and now the official receiver has garnisheed all discovered property of Wells, amounting, it is believed, to $150,000, in the interests of the bankruptcy creditors.

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so?

The general health of women is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

DAM BREAKS AWAY IN B.C.

SEVEN CHINESE MISSING

Vancouver, Feb. 12.—The bursting of a dam at a small lake near Union Bay, Saturday afternoon let loose an immense flood of water, which coursed down the valley, destroying forty-five dwellings with a property loss variously estimated at between $20,000 and $30,000. Seven persons, all of whom are believed to be Chinese, are missing.

The accident occurred about 5:30 p.m., when, through the heavy rains, the dam used by the Canadian Collieries and owned by Mackenzie & Mann, in generating power for their plant at Union Bay, collapsed. The residents of the district, known as Chinatown, had but five minutes warning before the huge body of water swept down the valley. Many fled to the surrounding highlands, while others sought refuge on the tops of their houses. When the flood reached the settlements its depth was estimated at fifteen feet.

The dwellings, which were mostly of the shack variety, were broken up like matchwood and carried along on the crest of the wave, being hurled aside as the valley broadened, and the tide of water emptied itself in the sea. The Chinese and Japanese sections in the districts are reported entirely destroyed.

Other buildings which shared in the ruin were the Co-operative store, the main business house of the district, and the Government telegraph station.

A large number of the residents had narrow escapes from drowning. Those who took refuge on tops of shacks were carried along by the swirling current, many of them only escaping when the broadening expanse of water hurled their shacks to dry land on either side of the road as it made its way to Union Bay.

Seven More Victims?

Prince Rupert, B.C., Feb. 12.—Word was received here that indicates that seven men may have been lost on the west coast of Graham Island, which is one of the Queen Charlotte group. The tragedy follows the oil rush in the neighborhood of Otard Bay, about eight or ten days ago.

John Slater, an oil expert representing the British Columbia oil fields of Vancouver, with Messrs. McLaren and Stark, left Musset with supplies for a drilling outfit near Otard Bay. The supplies were put on a schooner and in tow of a gasoline launch owned by Henry Edershaw, an Indian storekeeper of Musset and three other Indians. The seven men started for Otard Bay. The vessels report having seen them in passing Tahara Point, eight days under a high wind, the schooner sailing under its own sails. Nothing has been seen of the party since.

WANT FLAT RATE.

Toronto Hotelmen Say Five Per Cent. Tax Handicaps Them.

Toronto, Feb. 12.—The Toronto Hotelkeepers' Association are on the warpath. Before the present session of the Legislature is at an end the executive of the association will make a suggestion to Provincial Secretary Hanna, asking for the removal of the five per cent. tax on bar receipts over $60. As an alternative, the Toronto hotelkeepers suggest the establishment of a general flat rate on gross receipts for the whole province. The abnormally high taxes that the Toronto hotelkeepers have to pay coupled with the fact that their annual license amounts to $1,600, appears to be a big enough handicap without the five per cent. tax, they say.

The license for hotels outside the city limits, say at the Humber, is not much more than $120 per annum, and yet it is alleged that these hotelkeepers often take in as much as some of the Toronto bars with heavy expenses to meet. By the proposed new arrangement the Toronto men would not be compelled to bear the burden of contributing nearly all the tax on bar receipts for the province.

For nearly a year the local hotelkeepers have been furnishing the Government with a sworn statement of their recipts, so, they declare, that it would be quite easy for the provincial license department, with all the data they have at hand, to strike a graded flat rate for the entire province.

Found Body In Mill Race.

St. Catharines, Feb. 12.—The body of John Dick, who had been missing from Merriton for the past week, was found yesterday morning in a raceway under Riordan's paper mill, the water having been drawn off for that purpose.

Dick was a Scotchman, 32 years of age, having been in this country about three years. For some time he had been employed at Riordan's and, being intoxicated, strolled back there a week ago Saturday night, and evidently fell into the water.

PROBE WILL CONTINUE

U. S. House Will Investigate "Money Trust"

CLARKE TAKES FIRM HOLD

Washington, Feb. 12.—Despite the most determined opposition within and without the party, the House of Representatives, through its committee on currency and banking, will investigate the money trust, and the investigation will be thorough and searching.

Standing almost alone among the leaders of the House, Speaker Clark has taken the position that an enquiry must be made. The committee on currency and banking, to which the largest share of the investigation has fallen by assignment of the caucus, has passed a resolution for an immediate investigation.

The enquiry will go into the entire subject covered by the Lindbergh resolution, which includes combinations of bankers, violations of the Sherman anti-trust law, conspiracies in restraint of trade, control of exchange and discount and misuse of money in speculation schemes.

Speaker Clark announced Saturday afternoon that he was heartily in favor of the investigation, and intimated grimly that if the committee did not investigate a way could be found to make them do so.

The opposition to the enquiry has been tremendous. Led by such men as Representative Martin Littleton of New York, who sought to block the Stanley Steel enquiry; Jefferson Levy of New York, who represent J. Pierpont Morgan's district; James Lloyd of Missouri; Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, who combined with Cannon when the latter was seeking to defend his throttling rules; Patton and Conrey of New York, the whip and assistant whip of the House; Bell of Georgia, and Garner of Texas, the fight was so desperate that it almost proved successful.

KILLED AT CROSSING.

Grocery Wagon Driver Meets Death at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Feb. 12—Morris Studnetz, a Russian Jew, 30 years old, living at 377 Sherman avenue north, was almost instantly killed at the Sherman avenue crossing of the Grand Trunk Railway, when an eastbound passenger train about nine o'clock Saturday morning crashed into the grocery wagon which Studnetz was driving across the railway tracks.

The body of the victim and the top of the wagon were carried several blocks by the train before it could be stopped. The gates at the crossing, which are ordinarily used for the protection of the public, were out of order when the accident occurred, and the railway company's watchman was also absent at the time, owing, it is said, to his being sick. The body of Studnetz was removed to the city morgue, where Coroner Hopkins opened an inquest at noon Saturday. The enquiry into the circumstances of the man's death will be continued at the central police station on Thursday night of this week.

COULD NOT SWEEP FLOOR

Was So Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.

It is hard to do housework with a weak and aching back, and no woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well.

The weak, lame and aching back comes from sick kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney trouble. Mrs. Harvey W. Brownell, Northport, N.S., writes:—"I now take pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad at times I could not sweep my own floor. While looking through your B.B.B. Almanac I saw Doan's Kidney Pills were a great remedy, so thought I would try a box or two. After using five boxes I was completely cured, and I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. In ordering direct specify "Doan's."

PETERBOROUGH INTERMEDIATES ARE IN MIDLAND TO-NIGHT

The Peterborough Intermediates left on the 6.30 G. T. R. train this morning for Midland, where they clash with Eddie Gould and Company to-night, in a third-round O. H. A. game. The local team is in good spirits and the boys are determined to keep up their winning gait. Harvey Sproule of Toronto, will referee and will also handle the return game here on Wednesday night. The team will line up as follows:
Goal—Derocher.
Point—Glover.
Cover—Beams.
Rover—Giroux.
Centre—Park.

May Have Sudden Death Game With Mt. Forest

This will be a notable week in local hockey circles. To-night, the intermediates play in Midland, while the return game will be played here on Wednesday night. If the fortunes of war favour the Petes they will be called upon to play a sudden-death game in Toronto on Friday night with Mount Forest, the conquerors of the Toronto Argonauts. It is quite probable that the Bear Cats will also have to play a semi-final game this week, their opponents being the winners of the Varsity-Orillia series, which will be decided to-night. Both competitions will be all over within the next two weeks.

The Bear Cats will practise to-night at 7 o'clock and a full attendance is expected. The youngsters may have a semi-final game this week and it is important that every player should be out to-night for a good workout.

Bell Telephone Co. Team Defeated The Tool-Room

The C. G. E. Tool Room and the Bell Telephone Company teams, the two leaders in the Mercantile League clashed in a League fixture at Brock Street rink on Saturday night before a large and enthusiastic crowd, the "Hello" tavern putting the rollers under the C. G. E. bunch, by a score of 4 to 2. Half-way home the teams were on even footing, but the victors outscored last year's champions 3 to 1, in the second half, and deserved to win. They had the weight and used it; their checking being close and hard all the way. P. A. Weatherstone refereed the battle satisfactorily. The Bell team is now leading the Mercantile League. The Clerks and C. G. E. Machine Shop meet to-night at 10 o'clock.

O. H. A. Finals Will Be Completed Next Week

W. A. Hewitt says in the Toronto Star Weekly:

The championship hockey season now coming to a close has been most successful in every respect. The continuous cold weather has been the salvation of the game, and in the O. H. A. there has been no cessation in the play. Every night since the first of the year the hockeyists have been hard at it, and as a result the championships are nearing decision for possession of the J. Ross Robertson, senior, intermediate and junior cups. The O.H.A. Executive has decided not to take any chances on a break in the weather and games are being ordered to be played every other day, so as to complete the schedule while the ice is good and hard. When the break comes in the weather it will probably be a harbinger of spring, and the O.H.A. does not intend to be caught napping. Championships decided on keen, fast ice are a source of satisfaction to all concerned and there is then no question about the best team winning.

At the rate of progress made so far the O.H.A. finals will be played the week of February 19. The Kingston mess will probably come out all right, and the first of the senior finals will be played here next Saturday night with the Frontenacs of Kingston.

The semi-finals in the intermediate and junior series will be played this week, with Preston, Mount Forest and either Midland or Peterborough competing. The Preston team look like a sure thing for the finals with either Midland or Peterborough as their opponents, though some of the fans are inclined to think that Mount Forest will be in at the finish.

In the junior series Toronto Canoe Club's big 11 to 0 victory in Oshawa makes them favourites for the semi-finals. The Canoeists will likely be pitted against Woodstock-Berlin winner, while Peterborough and Orillia will probably be drawn together in the semi-finals.

Altogether there should be some great hockey in the semi-finals and finals. The fans are guessing at the winners, and the way one picks them is as follows:
Senior—Eaton's.
Intermediate—Preston.
Junior—Toronto Canoe Club.
Still, there is nothing so uncertain as hockey.

PREMIER KAI PRESIDENT

Special to The Examiner:

PEKIN, FEB. 12.— While an edict promulgating the abduction of the emperor of China was posted here this morning, there is a stipulation which may upset the whole arrangement, namely, that Premier Yuan Shi Kai gets the Presidency instead of Dr. Sun. Another report says that the Manchus have accepted all the conditions.

WAS HALDANE'S MISSION FAILURE

Examiner Special:

BERLIN, GERMANY, FEB. 12. — The reports that Lord Haldane's mission here to help in the reduction of armaments had proven a failure, was responsible for a big decline in the prices in the Bourse to-day. It is believed that the rumours of failure are incorrect. No arrangement will be made till Haldane has consulted with his colleagues in England.

"PRAY AS YOU WORK"

Special to The Examiner:

BRANTFORD, ONT., FEB. 12. — "Pray as you continue your work at the bench" is part of the instructions handed to the men engaged in the "Men and Religious" movement here to-day, in connection with the twenty-four hour chain prayer scheme. Cards are being passed about the big manufacturing establishments with the idea that during every minute of to-day and to-night some one is engaged in silent prayer for the success of the movement.

Sore Chest Croup

You often have pains in the muscles, in the side, the back, the neck, or chest. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense.

Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation, so thoroughly drives out pain, as "Nerviline," which is without an equal for penetrating, soothing, pain-relieving power.

Nerviline simply can't fail to cure, because it's a perfect antidote for all the pains and aches that invade the family.

Nerviline

"For ten years we have used Polson's Nerviline in our home," writes Mrs. M. E. Graves of Freeport. "For hard, croupy colds there is nothing better. In case of a chill; sudden cold, or neuralgia, Nerviline cures before the trouble gets serious. I have used Nerviline for chronic rheumatism and lame back and find it a wonderful remedy."

HALDANE HAD GOOD RECEPTION

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 12.—Viscount Haldane, Minister of War, returned from Germany to-day enthusiastic over the reception that had been given by the Kaiser and other officials of the father land. He declared that the friendliness manifested toward him eclipsed all expectations, although he did not issue any official statement upon his arrival. He indicated by his manner that he believed the trip would have a tendency to lessen the tension between the countries.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Yesterday at the George Street Methodist Church Sunday School anniversary services were celebrated.

To mark the event special addresses and special music were delivered. In the morning the pulpit was occupied by the Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul's, who preached an appropriate sermon. The anthem "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping" (Wheeler) was ably rendered by the well-balanced choir, and Mr. W. Miller sang effectively the sacred solo "Salvation" (Armstrong) while Miss Josie Callander and Mr. C. Thornton were responsible for a duet entitled "Homeward," (Hall). In the evening the music was no less attractive. The choir rendered the anthems "The Unseen Kingdom" (Lane), and "O Love that will not let me go" (Shanke), while Mrs. J. H. Renwick, the popular soloist, was heard to advantage in "Hear my cry, O Lord" (Wooler).

The pastor, the Rev. Isaac Couch, who preached in the evening, chose for his subject "The Spirit and Sphere of the Religious Life, and, in part, said:

It is not an uncommon thing for a business man to say he has no time for religion. That acknowledges a complete ignorance as to the nature of religion. Too busy for religion? Why, that is as bad as the old complaint that you can't see London for houses. These houses are your religion. These crowded days are your religion. It is in them that you carry on your religion. If you are too busy to attend to religion rest assured you will never do so.

The essence of religion is the one act of faith by which you surrender yourself as an instrument of religion. Secondly, God is going to produce the fruit of the vine through the branches. This world and its government are all to be brought in subjection to Him.

Thirdly, what is required of us is that we shall become instruments of God. That in these daily operations the will of God shall be done upon earth. Therefore, to withhold yourself from religion is certainly a delusion.

When God plunges you in business he does not take you out of religion. He simply gives you your sphere. If you can't make bricks out of clay how on earth are you going to make them out of straw?

What would Christ's religion be if it didn't make business better, and society purer. It is through our work in life that our religion should assert itself. The will of the Master is to be observed through these vocations in life.

When Christianity comes it is not a call at all from the ordinary work of life to a cloister, or to elaborate ritual, it is simply the grace of God shining more brightly.

Martin Luther realized that the teaching of the medieval school was in contrast to the New Testament. He realized that in the artisan, in the labourer, there were more credentials for the Kingdom of Heaven than in the monk and nun, and accordingly the Protestant truth has attained its high modern ideal.

Are you a business man? If you are, take and grapple with your business and in it show your interest in Jesus Christ. Every humble act of your calling rendered to the community, is a service rendered to the Lord Jesus Christ.

If you are a singer, sing; if you are a painter, paint; but do it all in Jesus Christ.

FACE WAS LITERALLY COVERED WITH PIMPLES.

Four Different Doctors Did Her No Good.

Two Bottles of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS Cured Her.

Bad blood is directly the cause of the face breaking out in pimples, and it is impossible to eradicate them unless you put your blood into good shape

Burdock Blood Bitters is compounded from roots, herbs, barks and berries, and is without a doubt the best remedy procurable for the purpose of driving all the blood impurities out of the system.

Mr. Geo. E. Miller, Clavering, Ont., writes:—"Last fall I was very much troubled with pimples. My face was literally covered with them. I went to four different doctors, but they could do me no good. One day a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got two bottles, and before I had taken all the first one, the pimples had nearly all disappeared, and by the time I had taken all the second one the pimples had disappeared completely, thanks to Burdock Blood Bitters. I would advise anybody who is troubled with any blood trouble to use Burdock Blood Bitters.

CURED OF CONSTIPATION

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box.

"MY STOMACH IS FINE

Since Taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets"

Mrs. J. Merkhuger, Waterloo, Ont., enthusiastically recommends Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. Her experience with them, as she outlines it, explains why.

"I was greatly troubled with my stomach", she writes. "I had taken so much medicine that I might say to take any more would only be making it worse. My stomach just felt raw. I read of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and a lady friend told me they were very easy to take, so I thought I would give them a trial and really they worked wonders. Anyone having anything wrong with his stomach should give Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets a trial, they will do the rest. My stomach is fine now and I can eat any food."

One of the many good features of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is that they are so pleasant and easy to take. The relief they give from heartburn, flatulence, biliousness and dyspepsia is prompt and permanent. Try one after each meal—they'll make you feel like a new person.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet

For Schools, Hotels, Banks and Private Residences

Heretofore it has been impossible to install a Sanitary System of inside closet without water works and sewage, and you will agree with us when we say that the present outdoor system of closets are not only very insanitary, but are at the same time one of the most fruitful sources of both moral and physical ills.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet is constructed principally for families and public bodies who live in a district where it is impossible to have waterworks and sewage. It can be placed in any part of a Residence, Store, School, Hotel, Bank, etc.

We have secured the Agency for this valuable Sanitary Closet, and invite investigation of its merits.

PREMIER OF CHINA OUT OF POLITICS

Special to The Examiner:

PEKIN, FEB. 13.—Yuan Shi Kai, Premier, and the strong man of China, surrenders his political life with the abdication of Manchus, in a courteous note to President Sun, yesterday, he said: "The edict is perfectly clear and abdication absolute. Personally, I am simply a plain ordinary citizen of China, and am quite out of politics".

C. C. James Goes To Ottawa

Deputy Minister of Agriculture Appointed to Administer Act for Encouragement of Agriculture

OTTAWA, FEB. 12.—Hon. Martin Burrell to-day introduced his bill for the aid and encouragement of agriculture. The Government, he announced, had been fortunate in securing the services of C. C. James, for many years deputy minister of agriculture for Ontario, as a special commissioner to administer the act. While he did not want to commit the Government to the principle of cash contributions as a permanent policy, the bill provided for the present for direct grants of money to the provinces in proportion to their population. There was no desire to favour this, that or the other province.

Photograph Taken From Window

Of Studio During the Morning---Had to be Pried Open

One of the show windows of the Mendel studio was pried open a few days ago and the picture of a young man purloined in broad day light. The picture was last seen about 9.15 in the morning and it was gone about ten o'clock. The photograph was a particularly good work of a manly looking and attractive young man. No clue remained as to who committed the theft and the reason for taking the picture is unknown. There is just the possibility that some admirer took it, but as to whether it was a young woman or some one else is the specially interesting part of the affair.

THE CARELESS GROCER.

Blundered, and Great Good Came of It.

"Two years ago I was a sufferer from stomach trouble, so acute that the effort to digest ordinary food gave me great pain, and brought on a condition of such extreme nervousness that I could not be left alone. I thought I should certainly become insane. I was so reduced in flesh that I was little better than a living skeleton. The doctors failed to give me relief and I despaired of recovery.

One day our groceryman left a package of Grape-Nuts food by mistake, so I tried some for dinner. I was surprised to find that it satisfied my appetite and gave me no distress whatever. The next meal I ate of it again, and to be brief, I have lived for the past year almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. It has proved to be a most healthful and appetising food perfectly adapted to the requirements of my system.

"Grape-Nuts is not only easily digested and assimilated, but I find that since I have been using it I am able to eat anything else my appetite fancies, without trouble from indigestion. The stomach trouble and nervousness have left me, I have regained my plumpness and my views of life are no longer despondent and gloomy.

"Other members of my family, especially my husband, (whose old enemy, the 'heart-burn', has been vanquished) have also derived great benefit from the use of Grape-Nuts food and we think no morning meal complete without it." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

PETERBORO TEAM IS CONFIDENT OF VICTORY HERE TO-MORROW NIGHT

The Peterborough intermediates returned from Midland at noon to-day not discouraged at the 10-2 beating they received in the northern town last night. They are confident of trimming Eddie Gould's team in the return game here to-morrow night and feel that they have a fighting chance to win the round. They had no breaks in the luck last night and the majority of Midland's goals were scored when the Petes were a man short through penalties. It was an even battle in the first half and for ten minutes in the second period, the teams fought along without scoring. Then injuries to Glover and Coughlin seemed to demoralize the team for a while and Midland ran up a score. Derocher played a remarkable game in the nets, making stop after stop of a sensational nature. He was getting three or four in succession and weeded them out in marvellous fashion. Bearss and Coughlin did the scoring for Peterborough. The latter tallied on a rebound on a combination rush with Kelly and Park and Coughlin scored the last just before time was called on a rush up the side. Gould, Chase and W. Beatty were the stars for Midland.

THE AUTO SHOW PROMISES TO BREAK ALL RECORDS

Contrary to the usual custom of opening an Automobile Show on a Saturday, the Toronto Show, being held at the Armouries, will be opened on a Wednesday. February 21, is the date and the opening promises to furnish lovers of automobiling in Toronto and the surrounding district with a magnificent exhibition of the latest products of a steadily-growing industry. Pleasure and commercial cars and all the various accessaries of both lines will be completely covered by the many individual exhibits.

There are several features about this year's exhibition that immediately give it a place far in advance of all exhibitions of former years. The decorative and illuminating arrangements are this year combined with most artistic and effective results. The whole ceiling of the immense Armouries, which has always been hard to beautify, will be hidden by a false ceiling, in the shape of an immense Union Jack, formed of hundreds of yards of red and blue bunting, and outlined with thousands of individual electric lights. In the centre of this flag will be hung an immense crown, fromed itself of a thousand coloured incandescent bulbs. The whole effect will be a riotous picture of patriotic beauty and, besides greatly adding to the appearance of the hall, will furnish a brilliant light. Other lighting arrangements are also provided and the wiring of the hall for all the electric power that will be used during the week of the show is no small task. An expert electrician, Mr. H. West, will have charge of this end of the exhibition, while Mr. Trahan, an expert in decorative effects, will look after the rest of the beautifying arrangements.

Mr. E. M. Wilcox, manager of the local show, and who also held the same position in regard to the Automobile Exhibition, which closed in Monareal, on Saturday night, returned to the city yesterday morning. "There certainly seems to be a tremendous boom in the automobile industry," he said. "Why, one dealer at the Montreal Show sold more cars in the first day there than he had sold during the entire week of the show last year. It is estimated that there will be fully a thousand more automobiles on the roads of Quebec this spring than there were last year. The people who visited our Show there were certainly more in earnest about automobiling than ever before. They came to look at the cars with an eye to buying, and when they saw something they liked they bought it. The truck is coming more and more into favour with the tradespeople and the industry has shown a tremendous growth in the commercial cars.

PETERBORO BOY KILLED BY FALL IN THE WEST

Mr. Harvey Sharpe, Who Left Here Six Years Ago, Met Death Under Tragic Circumstances

Word was received in the city last night concerning the death of Mr. Harvey Sharpe, who was killed in Edmonton yesterday afternoon by a fall, presumably from a building, as the deceased was a paper hanger and decorator, by trade. The late Mr. Sharpe was about twenty-seven years of age and was well-known in this city. He left here about six years ago, and has resided in the West ever since, with the exception of two years, which he spent at home.

He was unmarried and is survived by a mother and one brother, John, both of whom reside at 489 Sherbrooke street; also one sister, Margaret, the latter residing in New Ontario.

Full particulars concerning the young man's tragic death, and the arrangements for the funeral are not yet to hand.

King George Presides At Meeting Of Cabinet

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, FEB. 13.—King George personally presided at a Cabinet meeting in Buckingham Palace this morning, having first lengthy audiences with Right Hon. Winston Churchill regarding the recent changes in the Admiralty, and with Lord Haldane, respecting his visit to Germany. It is stated that His Majesty who is undoubtedly a naval expert, himself, was not altogether satisfied with the changes effected, by Winston Churchill during the Royal visit to India. At a full Cabinet meeting, later, the King approved the speech from the throne, to be delivered to-morrow. It is known that it contains an announcement that the Government will push through the Home Rule bill, the disestablishment of the Welsh Church and the extension of manhood suffrage, all contentious measures, which will make the session memorable and prolong it well into next winter. Bonar Law, the Canadian leader of the Unionist Opposition is here and has had many caucuses with his lieutenants. The Opposition feels strong and able to fight Home Rule to the last ditch, notwithstanding the fact that Church ill's last campaign in Ireland and Scotland, last week, did much to reassure confidence in the movement throughout England.

DEBATE ON CANAL COMPANY'S CHARTER

OTTAWA, FEB. 13.—The bill to renew the charter of the Montreal-Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal Co. was before the Railway Committee of the House of Commons this morning again, and provoked another bitter fight in regard to the claims of Ontario. Hon. Frank Cochrane was pressed for a declaration of the Government's policy, but sat dumb. Finally, after a vigorous debate, the preamble of the bill was adopted, and this was referred to a sub-committee for adjustment in such a way as to safeguard Provincial rights, as well as those of the Company.

MONTREAL HAS FATAL FIRE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, FEB. 13.—Major Rogers, of the Victoria Rifles, and manager of Abbey's Salt agency here, and a man at present unidentified, were burned to death, and George Woodburn was so badly injured that he died on the way to the hospital, when fire, followed by an explosion, broke out in the building at Craig and Stanloine streets, this afternoon. Twelve girls employed in the upper stories of the building, had narrow escapes, being rescued by spectators who placed a ladder up to the windows and assisted them to the street. Four of the girls were badly burned. The cause is supposed to have been from the combustion of chemicals. The fire was extinguished with ten thousand dollars damage.

Sorest Corn Removed Without Pain, Quickly

No wonder Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor sells so well. You see it is different from any other remedy you have ever used. Does not merely relieve the pain temporarily, but is guaranteed to remove the meanest, sorest corn or callous no matter how long it has bothered you. Get a 25c. bottle of "Putnam's" to-day and prove it. The name tells the story—Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor, which is sold by druggists.

Adopts The Policy Of Liberal Party

TORONTO, FEB. 13.—The Liberal platform as promulgated prior to the general election: "In order that the Government may enter seriously upon the problem of the settlement and development of New Ontario we propose the creation of a Department of Immigration and Colonisation to be presided over by a Minister of the Crown, who shall devote his whole time and energies to this important work. Among other matters, to the promotion of settlement, building of roads, insuring other necessary transportation facilities, providing drainage requirements, assisting pioneer settlers to secure loans to a limited extent on the security of the lands occupied by them, repayable over a term of years, and giving special assistance to pioneer schools.

Acceding to the pressure of the Opposition and the call from Northern Ontario, cognisant of the protests from the Boards of Trade in the Province and the secession movement in the northwesterly districts, Sir James Whitney announced in the Legislature on Monday that the Government would ask authority to borrow $5,000,000 to be spent on the development and colonization of the Provincial hinterland, and the appointment of a man of experience and capacity to handle this department of the work. Sir James made the announcement after the routine proceedings of the afternoon were completed. It came as a surprise to the members of the House.

Mr. Rowell Congratulates.

Mr. N. W. Rowell, the Liberal leader, was quick to take advantage of the situation. "I congratulate the Prime Minister," he said, "on making this announcement. The only question which arises is whether the proposals are adequate to meet the situation. I am glad to see that our campaign for New Ontario development is having effect." (Liberal cheers.)

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

WHO RULES AND GUIDES?

The world has not got far out of the grip of superstition in the past four hundred years, and seems to be even more under its influence than at that time. Everybody will admit that Christopher Columbus had the luck against him as regarded by the superstitious. It will be remembered that he embarked on his voyage of discovery of a new world, on Friday, (Aug. 3rd, 1492), an unlucky day in the calendar of the superstitious. In spite of that, he succeeded—he had "good luck." There have been those who have even gone so far in their disregard of "signs," to get married on Friday, and we have never heard that their married life was less smooth than many who were married on the lucky day in the lucky month. When one comes to reason on the matter a little there doesn't seem to be any reason to attach luck and unluck to particular days and dates. The good Lord launched the world and sent it spinning into space with definite laws, He divided time into day and night and we have no record that He made one day better than another. It was man divided time into named days, weeks and months, but for all that one day is the same as another in the eyes of the Power that divided the light from the darkness. If we accept an overruling Providence as guiding the destinies of man and the world, we are showing small respect if we act on the belief that "Friday" the "13th" and "signs" are more powerful than the power that holds the world and all its people in the hollow of His hand.

NEWMARKET CANAL.

The Dominion Government seems to be living under a self-denying ordinance—giving up things. At the behest of the Nationalists they have abandoned the Canadian navy, and, for some other reason, have put the Newmarket Canal on their long, do-nothing list. The wisdom of this abandonment, with only fifteen per cent. of the total cost to be expended, is dealt with in a speech by Hon. Mackenzie King in North York Mr. King is reported as follows:

"You ought to bring that young gentleman (Mr. Armstrong, M.P.) back, and have him resign his position and contest it over again on the issue of the Newmarket Canal" suggested Mr. King, with regard to Mr. J. A. M. Armstrong's statement in the House of Commons that he had spoken at different places through the riding in opposition to the continuation of the canal, and found the sentiment of the people generally in favour of stopping work. "I have found nobody who heard him make those statements at meetings here," said the speaker. He thought that the representative of the constituency ought to be called to account when he misrepresented their views. He referred to th resolution passed by the Newmarket Board of Trade that morning, and asked, "Are these men totally without knowledge of what would be of benefit to this county?" Statements in disparagement of the work had been so persistently made that people came to believe them, but it had been undertaken not as a party or political job, but with the support of municipal councils, and men of both parties, and after a careful engineering investigation. Surely it ought not to be stopped with 85 per cent. done, except after another careful study of the engineering situation. Yet the Government did not even tell the people why it was stopped."

At a largely attended meeting of the Liberal Association of North York, distinct conedmnation was expressed in a resolution, unanimously carried by standing vote, of the stoppage of work on the Newmarket Canal. "The small expenditure," said the resolution, "necessary to complete, and the great advantage that would accrue to the county by the operation of the completed canal call for its immediate completion. Not only will it serve to cheapen transportation, but it will afford drainage and reclaim thousands of acres of the valuable land."

At one time there was as strong hostile jibe at the Trent Canal as at the Newmarket Canal. It was only local faith in it, and loyalty to it that kept the Trent Canal to the front, and forced the general public, as well as Government, acceptance of its advantages. If some members of Parliament could justify their existence as such, as well as the Trent and Newmarket Canals, they would be doing mighty well.

EDTIORIAL NOTES.

The Grand Trunk Pacific intends to do some heavy lifting. The official statement has been handed out, that the Grand Trunk Pacific will erect a thirty million-bushel grain elevator at Fort William. This is twice the capacity of the largest grain elevator in existence.

Dr. Cook, the "polar liar" is coming to Toronto to lecture. And he will find congenial conditions. The Toronto people like to be "buncoed." They swallowed too man yfairy stories and ghost stories during the September elections, not to lend a willing ear to a prize prevaricator like the "great" 'Arctic explorer.

Even the Conservative Hamilton Spectator is moved to complain about Mr. Duff, Ontario's Minister of Agriculture. It says:

"The department is one of altogether too great importance to be left with an individual not in all ways fully competent to handle it. It is going to be speedily more important, too, and must become so, if Ontario is to hold her own with her sister provinces of the Dominion. The Spectator would like to see Mr. Duff make good; the fact that he is the object of such general criticism does not indicate that he is doing well.

CALLING THE TUNE.

(London Advertiser)

The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto World finds that all the Nationalist members interviewed on the subject demand the repeal of the Laurier naval law. Mr. Sevigny's motion to that end will probably come before the House this session. It will at least force the Government into the open. If the law is wiped out, the Government must be ready to put something in its place, or announce to the world that the greatest of the British self-governing dominions feels no immediate duty to aid the mother country in maintaining British supremacy of the seas.

Mr. Borden, forced by his Quebec allies do accept Mr. Savigny's motion, will probably hold out a shadowy hope of future action of some sort, but whatever he may say, the moral effect upon the British people of the repeal of the law will be humiliating to Canadian pride and loyalty. No fine phrases will conceal the ugly fact that the Prime Minister of Canada is doing the bidding of men who are opposed to any conceivable form of naval expenditure, and who won their seats in Parliament by playing upon the fears of the habitants with the conscription bogey.

The Nationalists are consistent in calling the no-navy tune, but what of the Conservatvies who dance to it? There are no more cogent arguments for the Canadian navy project embedded in Hansard than those of Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster. Every Conservative member from British Columbia is committed to it. The Laurier scheme met with partisan denunciation in every English province, on the ground that the naval force was inadequate. The Prime Minister of British Columbia asked then, and asks now, for a complete fleet unit on the Pacific Coast. The members for Victoria, in the House of Commons, made this his election cry. Another Conservative group, headed by the Montreal Star, clamours for a gift of Dreadnoughts to the mother country without delay. Mr. Borden cannot frame a policy which will meet all he views of his motley following. The best he can hope to do is to frame a trimming, temporizing speech, which will merely postpone the inevitable collision.

A FARMER WRITES ABOUT SHEEP

Since Farmers Can't Get Help from Their Representative They Must Do Their Own Thinking and Acting

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice in the Review a letter from a Mr. Raglan Richmond, one farmer that seems to have responded to the call for help, and commends the stand Mr. Burnham proposes to take in voting against the proposed reciprocity treaty with Australia; so as to prevent ruinous competition with Canadian farmers in the matter of mutton. Why does Mr. Burnham ask the advice of the farmers? Why does he not give the farmers advice, as he is supposed to do; if he can't do his own thinking how can he be expected to think for others? He should tell the farmers, that they are raising, as I see stated, 800,000 fewer sheep than will supply the home market with wool. He should tell the working man how he is going to get mutton at a price he can afford to pay, when the farmers of Canada by not growing sheep, produce a scarcity, that brings up the price? A scarcity that demands the importation of 179,000 sheep for slaughter in Canada per year to supply the needs of the market in default of local supply. This default explains why some three millions of frozen mutton was imported from Australia last year to meet the demand of local consumption. This means it seems to me, that there is a demand for mutton that must be supplied, and if the farmers of Canada won't grow enough mutton to meet the home demand, they should not object to mutton being imported from Australia, at a price which will permit the working man, and people of moderate means, to buy it. Since the farmers can get no help from their representative unless they tell him what to do, they had better depend on themselves, and if they want to grow sheep, why let them grow them and they will have sal, for their sheep and their products.

Yours truly,
FARMER.

The Pressing Problem Of Railway Service To Cope With Wheat Growth

The extraordinary rapidity with which the Canadian West is filling up with settlers has forced upon the railway corporations serving the world's great wheat fields, the urgent necessity for the immediate provision of increased transportation facilities. During the past decade, more than 1,700,000 home-seekers have entered the Dominion, and throug the three trans-continental rail way systems have strained every nerve and have constructed some thousands of miles of road, they have failed to keep pace with the requirements of the ever-increasing multitude that continues to flow in. Forecasts for the year which has just opened, go to show that the immigration during the next few months will exceed the stupendous record set up last year, and that upwards of half a million new settlers will make their way to the Canadian shores and boundaries.

The need of the Western Prairies as the result of this great tide of newcomers has not been lost sight of by the railway corporations and the programme of construction that has been mapped out for the coming summer completely overshadows anything hitherto attempted in any one season. The Canadian Pacific Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern companies will all enter upon the most extensive programme of work in their respective histories, and with appropriations already put aside for extensions, and the projects approved by the board of railway commissioners, the amount of work accomplished will be subject only to the restriction created by a possible shortage of the necessary labour.

In no portion of the Canadian West is the railway development for 1912, rendered necessary by the rapidity with which the country is being peopled, more marked than in the Southern portion of the Province of Saskatchewan. This territory has been somewhat neglected in the past but the magnificent lands in which the districts bordering on the northern states abound, have proved their worth in the enormous yields that have been secured, and the railway interests have at last awakened to the possibilities of this hitherto unconsidered belt.

At the present time this country is served only by the main Soo road running from St. Paul, Min., to Moose Jaw, and the short line of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Winnipeg to Lethbridge, crossing the former at Weyburn, and extending to a point some 70 miles west. This line is to be continued during the present year, some 100 miles further west, construction beginning simultaneously at the Lethbridge end and continuing eastward for a distance of 70 miles, so that only a small portion of the road will remain unfinished at the close of the year.

Approval has been granted for the construction of a line, by the Grand Trunk Pacific from Regina through Weyburn to link up with the Hill roads at the International boundary, thus supplying another main connection between the United States and Canada. The Canadian Pacific programme includes the construction of a line from Swift Current, through to the Winnipeg-Lethbridge line, which will afford through communication, without a break from Chicago through Weyburn, to the famous Peace River country, to which so much attention has been turned during the past few years.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has also announced its intention of building from Brandon, Man., in a westerly direction, paralleling the Canadian Pacific line to Lethbridge. This line will pass through Weyburn as will also a line joining up the present main line of the Canadian Northern Railway from Winnipeg to Edmonton to the same company's line to Lethbridge.

This remarkable development will have the result of making, as one example, out of many, Weyburn, a town that some few years ago was considered a neglible quantity, one of the greatest railway centres in the Canadian West, and will open up an entirely new territory for the marketing of the productions of the factories of the eastern provinces of Canada and the great industrial centres of the United States.

During the past year some scores of new towns came into being as the logical result of the remarkable programme of railroad construction that was carried out and the immensity of the work of 1912 will undoubtedly be followed by similar greater expansion of population and industry. The territory to be served by the three trunk roads, running parallel, immediately north of the international boundary, is as yet hampered by the lack of transportation facilities, and consequently has not progressed at the same rapid rate as has marked the growth of the central and northern sections of the province. There is no doubt, however, that the extensions to be undertaken by the railways this year will produce most marked result in the development of Southern Saskatchewan, and that the surprising growth that has been identified with the past few years in the history of a number of the northern and central cities will be reproduced and possibly exceeded.

Catarrhozone

Cures Permanently BRONCHITIS, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, CATARRH

Throw medicine to the dogs. At best they are unpleasant, often useless. You are suffering from some disease of the throat, nose, or lungs, Doctors call it Bronchitis, Asthma, or Catarrh, or it is a slight or severe cold. Germs cause these diseases—they have a common root.

CATARRHOZONE is little drops of healing carried by air to the exact place where Catarrh exists. Observe, Catarrhozone not only destroys the cause, but immediately repairs the result of diseased condition.

Catarrhozone is endorsed by doctors, druggists, and by thousands of Canadian people who have used it.

Catarrhozone

Yes, Sir, it is taken in air.

"Little drops of healing" carried by air to weak places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

ORANGEMEN ANGRY AT CAPT. TOM WALLACE, M.P.

Over His Vote on Lancaster's Bill—Cold Attitude at London Meeting—Not Even Asked to Speak

Capt. Tom Wallace, M.P., is no longer the popular Tom that he was with the Orange lodges before he obeyed the crack of the party whip and stepped into line against E. A. Lancasters No Temere Bill in the House of Commons a few weeks ago. Capt. Wallace has always been given a warm greeting when he visited Toronto lodges.

It was different the other night, when he dropped in at a Toronto lodge (The Star's informant, a prominent local Orangeman, withheld name and number), and the son of the late stalwart, Hon. N. Clarke Wallace must have felt the chilling change.

Few of the brethren spoke to him, and he was not even asked to speak.

Imagine Capt. Tom Wallace at an Orange Lodge meeting and not even asked to speak!—Toronto Star.

Note.—Capt. Tom need not be cast down. "There are others." He should have heard the remarks made in condemnation of the course of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., on the Lancaster bill., which were made at the monthly meeting of the Peterborough Protestant Federation, on Feb. 2nd. In spite of the 500 copies of Hansard disributed in the interest of squaring himself, speaker after speaker—and their names and remarks would, if printed, create a mild sensation—scored the local member in a way to make sore spots on any but a very thick skin. "Capt. Tom" may congratulate himself that he was only forced to keep mum and not have his ears tingle with denunciatory remarks of a course utterly inconsistent with his campaign and proclamation promises.

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que. — "Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise." — Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y.—I run a sewing machine in a large factory and got all run down. I had to give up work for I could not stand the pains in my back. The doctor said I needed an operation for womb trouble but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did more for me than the doctors did. I have gained five pounds. I hope that everyone who is suffering from female trouble, nervousness and backache will take the Compound. I owe my thanks to Mrs. Pinkham. She is the working girl's friend for health, and all women who suffer should write to her and take her advice.—MISS TILLIE PLENGIG, 3 Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

By JOHN MARCH

"I met Denham, sir, and he offered to post it for me at East Weyberne, so I let him, because—"

"Thanks; that's all I want to know."

He shut himself into his room, looking white and worried. Agnes did as she was bidden, dressed herself quickly, and returned in the nick of time to assist with the Squire's coat-sleeve. She followed him downstairs into the keeping-room, and there watched him select and equip himself with the weapons he considered most likely to instil a soupcon of wholesome fear into the minds of a ruffian and presumably a maniac, and, at the same time, do the least amount of mischief, the least possible danger of life and property.

"May I go with you, Felix?" she asked very coaxingly and withal very earnestly.

"Most certainly not," he rejoined decidedly. "I don't know what I should be taking you into. I can't form any idea what to expect. All I know is that if I find him alive, or in such a condition as will admit of his being nursed back to health, I shall be able to—to forgive you, Agnes."

"And if he is dead, what then?" she burst out, clinging to him in great distress. "Felix, Felix; how can you be so unkind? You delight in showing me that you have not a tithe of the affection and consideration for your sister that you have for Paul Farley, and he is not even a very old friend. You have only known him four months. You had not seen or heard of him six months ago; and yet you are wrapped up in him. Everything must go down before the infatuation; and natural affection. Everything in the world sinks into insignificance beside his safety; you—Felix," she exclaimed, somewhat hysterically, "it's a pity Mr. Farley is not a woman, then you could marry him and have done with it all."

"Have done with all what?" he asked, wholly undisturbed by the outbreak.

"All this nonsensical anxiety about Mr. Farley. You know you are far from well yourself, and Jack said if you took cold in that shoulder it might become permanently stiff. Yet you get out of a warm bed to walk to Weyberne Hall this bitter cold night, and I daresay you will go without half enough on."

"Would you like me to stay at home and let Farley take his chance?"

"N—o, I don't want any harm to come to him; and equally as much I don't want you to risk—. Felix, if he is at the Hall you will leave him there, won't you?"

"If he is at Weyberne Hall I shall leave him there; if at The Larches I shall bring him back here with me. I have no time now to argue the point as to whether or no I make myself ridiculous respecting Farley's safety, or whether I have more regard for him than for you not even if you were talking sense, which you are not. You don't seem to be at all clear as to what you really want or wish. You don't want him murdered, and you don't wish me to try to prevent it. You have all at once become absurdly and unwarrantably jealous of the boy, and behave as if you were averse to my bringing him back to the house for a few hours' shelter. The next thing I shall hear will be that you are bespeaming yourself and conducting yourself in this contrary manner all for the best. I don't understand you, Agnes. I don't understand why you should grudge me Farley's friendship and intellectual society. In a few months you will be married, and I think you ought to feel glad to know I shall have his companionship to fall back on. You might search the world over and not find a nicer, a more modest, and gentler chap than Farley, and I don't understand why you should have developed this sudden hysterical temporary dislike. I say temporary advisedly, because I feel sure it can only be a passing prejudice, which in all probability, when he sees it, Farley will lose no time in removing. Now, I can't give you a list of instructions to carry out in my absence, because I have such a vague idea as to what may be required; but you won't go far wrong in having the kitchen fire lighted and plenty of hot water ready in case of emergency. Help me with this ulster, Agnes, and see to the fire in my room, it's low. Make a respectable one. I shall not object to a good toasting when I return. Good-bye! Kiss me, and forget differences, and behave prettily to Farley if he comes."

She followed him down the hall; saw him turn in the direction of Ralph's cottage, and closed the door swiftly in the face of the bitter cold wind. She had never felt so nervous, so uncomfortable, so ill at ease in her life as she did now.

"Oh, dear," she whispered to herself, "I hope he is safe at Weyberne Hall."

Many Years an Invalid—Untold Agony From Headaches

Dizziness, Sinking Spells and Excessive Weakness Disappear With Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Nearly every woman will read with interest the letter of Mrs Geo. Bradshaw, quoted below. It tells of years of great suffering from nervous Headache and other symptoms arising from weak, watery blood and a starved and exhausted condition of the nervous system.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Cosy Nook, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I am glad to state that I received benefits from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which I failed to get any place else. I was troubled for many years, in fact from my early womanhood, with weak, watery blood, and given to dropsy. I suffered untold agonies from nervous sick headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, in fact was a semi-invalid for many years. I tried many kinds of patent medicines and got no help, and tried every new doctor that came along, but all failed to help me. Doctors told me I had no blood, and that my heart and kidneys were diseased, and that I had so many complaints there was not much use in doctoring up one or two. Four years ago I took six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and was glad to see I felt better, and then got six more, and they have cured me of many of my complaints. When I began taking Nerve Food I weighed 110 pounds and to-day I weigh 130, and am 45 years old.

DOG NUISANCE BY "THE PUP"

At London Sessions, Wm. Cook, 65 a labourer, was found guilty on a charge of stealing a dog, valued at £50, the property of Hbt. Attenborough, of Knightsbridge. A list of convictions dating back to 1864 was produced against him. These included two terms of five years' penal servitude, for stealing a dog and dog collar, and all the remaining convictions were in connection with dog-stealing.—Sergt. Hawkins stated that the prisoner commenced his criminal career at the age of 17, and he did not think he had been convicted for any offence other than in connection with dog stealing. Since his release from prison he had assisted in the recovery of stolen dogs — evidently knowing where they had gone to. (Laughter.) He had been convicted on 26 occasions.—The judge (Mr. R. Wallace) sentenced the prisoner to 18 months' hard labour.—"The People," Jan. 28, 1912.

My master pays me $3 a week. I spend $2 chiefly on beef and bread and would have had a farm, only it's gone in a mine. Men when not mining the public, catch us and make a big profit. Some dogs say it's trading on margin, but it isn't. I overheard a big man talking about a dog scare; he makes muzzles for 75c. a dozen and sells them for 50 cents each, a better trap, he says than Porcupine.

Quite Long Enough.

An unanswerable retort was heard at a North Country dog show. At the man who brought up a brisk but undemonstrative whippet, an affable attendant scoffed: "That'll win no prize, lad," he remarked finally. "What's wrang wi' him?" was the surprised answer. "Wrang! Haven't A been tellin' ye? Why, look at his legs, one legs are na' lang enough."

Not lang enough? Why, they touch the ground—did ye want them any langer?"—"People's" Jan. 28, '12.

We dogs are a valuable asset, and millions are spent on breeding for shows and sport. My master gives me a —— of a time when he's vexed, but what is a silent tomb.

Yours for a wag,

THE PUP.

THE FIRE HALL HENS ARE BUSY

It has always been understood that the Fire Station is a hive of industry for those connected with it, and even the Chief's hens seem to be imbued with the spirit of industry. There are no present signs of hook-worm among the fowl, for this morning Chief Howard collected twenty-six newly-laid eggs, almost worth their weight in gold. It was eggs that a burglar tried to steal from a residence rather than carry away jewelery, which, he thought, might be fake stuff. The Chief's collection was valuable in this season of cold storage and the pickled variety. The Chief was carrying a bag of eggs today with the greatest care, for every one of them was worth about ten times its usual value. The Chief will have to put a special guard on to watch those hens, for, at 26 eggs a day they are more productive than a Cobalt holding at the present time.

Spoke On The Niagara Tragedy

Rev. J. R. Webb preached an eloquent sermon at the evening service at Murray street Baptist Church, last Sunday, taking as his subject, "Lessons that have been brought home by the tragedy at Niagara a week ago". He particularly emphasized the necessity of being prepared at all times for death, as the appointed hour often comes unexpectedly to those in full possession of their health. A large congregation was present.

Deserving Cases In Need Of Help

Anyone desirous of assisting the families of Mr. A. Nash and John Sweeny, who lost all their worldly possessions in the Harvey street fire, can do so through the medium of Relief Officer Miller, or Mr. Cochrane, of the Children's Aid Society. The families are at present being cared for by neighbours. Money, clothing, furniture, or any article that would be of material assistance in placing these families upon their feet, will be very acceptable, and if placed in the hands of Mr. Miller or Mr. Cochrane, will be distributed with advantage, to those concerned.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Solves the Problem of Good Hair

After Prof. Sabouraud confirmed the germ origin of dandruff, science was confronted by a new problem which was not solved until the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide being the first successful preparation compounded in harmony with this new theory, becomes the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ.

Since then, numerous preparations said to be "just as good" as Herpicide have been thrown upon the market; others have adopted Herpicide claims, and without making any change in their remedies, but none have ever reached the same degree of popularity. Everywhere this remedy is recognized as the one genuine dandruff germ destroyer. As a result Herpicide has more satisfied users than all other hair preparations combined.

Being the original remedy, users expect more astonishing results from Herpicide than they would look for from any other preparation and they usually get them. So wonderful has been the success of this germicide that it is now recognized as the standard hair remedy of the world.

Case Postponed Until Friday

The case of William Shaw and Elsie Parks, charged with vagrancy, which was to have been re-opened yesterday was postponed until Friday next. When Magistrate Edmison entered the County Court room in the among the fowl, for Monday morning, reporter there. In the hopes that the 'legal lights' in the case would eventually put in an appearance, a wait of about fifteen minutes was instituted, but to no avail. There was nothing doing. An adjournment in the case until Friday was inevitable.

Kennough Re-Arrested

Editor Examiner:

HAMILTON, ONT., FEB. 12. — George Kennough, the young Canadian Express clerk, who told a sensational story of being gagged and bound in the office when eighty-five thousand dollars was taken some months ago, and given three months' imprisonment for the theft of a trifling amount, was re-arrested this morning on a charge of conspiracy. J. D. Chilman is serving a year for receiving the stolen moneys. Kennough's arrest for the second time leads to expectations of startling disclosures.

Lower Abougoggin, Westmoreland Co., N.B., Feb. 12.—(Special.) — "I had a severe attack of La Grippe, which developed into Diabetes and Bright's Disease, but Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me. Yes, I am seventy years old but I am in good health again and I hardly need to tell you I am well satisfied with Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Such is the story of Damien Boudreau, one of the oldest and most highly respected inhabitants of this place. It shows what a boon Dodd's Kidney Pills are to the old folks. They cure the Kidneys, clear the dregs of disease out of the blood and make the old feel young.

Dodd's Kidney Pill cure the Kidneys. Good kidneys mean that there can be no impurities left in the blood. And the man or woman who has good pure blood can laugh at nine out of ten of the ills to which the flesh is heir. They are the one sure cure for all diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases such as Rheumatism, Backache, Lumbago and Heart Disease, which are caused by impure blood.

Choir Concert Great Success

The concert given by the choir of St. Luke's church on Friday evening was one of varying interest and of such a nature as could not fail to appeal to all lovers of good music. In spite of the adverse weather conditions, there was a fairly large audience. What they lacked in numbers was more than counter balanced by the close attention, and the appreciative applause which invariably followed the clever interpretation of a difficult selection by the performers.

The violin solos by Mr. Frank Whitehouse, were exceptionally well rendered, as also were several vocal solos by Mr. and Mrs. Greenslade.

A male quartette consisting of Messrs. Greenslade, Turner, Dudley and Moore brought down the house with a humorous selection, and was followed by a reading by Mrs. R. Allen, who displayed excellent ability as an elocutionist.

Other numbers on the programme which received a very effective handling were as follows:

Oh Canada, Beloved Fatherland, Lavallee—The choir.

Piano solo, selected, Miss Alberta Rehill.

Song, 'The Carnival,' Miss Rhoda Phillips.

Glee—Hail, Smiling Morn, the choir.

Oh, Who Will O'er the Downs so free, the choir.

Trio—A Little Farm Well Tilled — Messrs. Greenslade, H. Moore, J. Banks.

Quintette, 'Johnny Sichmoker, W. Bayley, S. Logan, E. Logan, B. Lipsett, A. Lipsett.

Double quartette, 'The Soldiers Farewell, members of the choir

CANON MORLEY IN THE CITY

The Rev. Canon Morley of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, preached on Sunday morning, in St. Luke's church and in the evening in St. John's, on behalf of the Cathedral Building Fund.

Much enterprise has of late been thrown into this project and it is intended to make St. Alban's as large as some of the Cathedrals in England and be a great ecclesiastical monument in Toronto. The whole diocese of Toronto is being appealed to on behalf of the project. Nearly $100,000 of the estimated $300,000 is already in sight.

PUBLIC ABATTOIR SCHEME GIVEN SCANT ENCOURAGEMENT

Municipalities From the Province Asked for Measure to Provide for Inspection of Meat for Sale Before and After Slaughter.

ALD. ANDERSON FAVOURS IT

Nearly fifty municipalities of the Province of Ontario were represented by a deputation that waited on Hon. W. J. Hanna and Hon. Dr. Reaume yesterday afternoon with the object of securing a measure to prevent the sale of diseased or otherwise imperfect meat, offered for sale in the cities and towns throughout the province.

The expressed desire of the deputation was that the government should allow municipalities to maintain public abattoirs at which all meat marketed or sold within their boundaries would have to be inspected.

The idea that the farmer who kills one or two animals a year should be obliged to secure an inspector's stamp before and after killing did not find favour with Mr. Hanna, according to reports.

"Do you expect to make the farmer bring an animal in eight or ten miles for a double inspection?" he asked.

"If so, nothing can be hoped for in the present house. Your scheme brings it down to the local butcher or the farmer, and in 99 cases out of 100 his meat is all right. The jobber is a different question."

No Means of Telling.

Dr. Howitt, Medical Health Officer of Guelph: "We have absolutely no means of telling in the stores whether or not it is diseased meat. We want power from the Government to insist on inspection before and after killing."

Mr. J. F Mackay, Berlin: "Every trace of disease is cut off meat before it is brought to the local market, and if the farmer finds he cannot do that, the chance is he sends the diseased carcase in under some other form, such as sausage or bologna."

Leave the Farmer Alone.

Dr. Roberts, Medical Health Officer of Hamilton, considered the scheme as proposed by the deputation supremely difficult for the reason, he said, that from one-half to two-thirds of the Legislature was made up of farmers, "who are sensitive to anything affecting their pockets. If we could get inspection of meat in larger quantities, I think we could let the small farmer go for the present."

Ald. Anderson Favours It.

Ald. Anderson spoke on this subject at the last meeting of the Peterborough Council advocating a measure to provide for the thorough inspection of cattle on the hoof and after it is prepared for sale. He suggested that a public abattoir be secured where an inspector could examine the meat when it is ready for the market. "It does not make much difference," he said, "whether it is conducted by the municipality or by a private concern, as long as a thorough and efficient inspection is secured. The city could establish it and levy a charge upon the wholesalers and retailers who brought cattle there for slaughter.

To the Examiner Ald. Anderson cited the effects of inspection in packing houses, asserting that numbers of hogs are now condemned which, under the old method, would have been marketed. Many of those selling meat to-day have not the necessary qualifications to decide whether it is absolutely pure and free from disease or not. Some farmers are unscrupulous enough to offer for sale meat which they know should not be brought to the market. It is often the cow with a lump on its jaw or with other ailments that is prepared for sale. Sometimes this may be the result of ignorance, but in any case the consumer should be protected.

In the People's Interests.

Ald. Anderson feels that inspection of this kind is a forward step in the interests of the people and another of the safeguards that are being provided to-day as a protection for the public's health. The details would have to be carefully worked out and the butchers would doubtless strongly protest, but in cases of this kind it was not a question of profit or convenience or similar secondary considerations, but it should be the general welfare of the public that should be remembered.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE STAMPEDE."

"The Stampede," as presented at the Grand Opera House on Saturday proved one of the most enjoyable and meritorious produc[tions] its kind seen here this seas[on] the audience were loud in their approval of the presentation. There is a strong, well-defined action and the plot abounds in striking situations, the climax of which is reached at the end of the fourth act. Scenically, the production leaves nothing to be desired, the setting for the third and fourth acts representing the council rock of the Witch Creek Indians from which a view may be had of the surrounding desert, being very realistic. "The Stampede" is presented by a most capable company, the roles being looked after by accomplished artists. Miss Lillian Buckingham, as Wigna, carried off the major honours. There is a possibility that "The Stampede" will be seen here again later on in the season. The company is assured of a warm welcome.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES

The Y. M. C. A. boys were to have been entertained by the Y. W. C. A. House and Gymnasium members at a Valentine party to-morrow evening. The party, however, has been postponed for a week, owing to the boys' enthusiasm for hockey, and their wish to attend the game to-morrow night.

The Educational Committee of the Y. W. C. A. invite all members and friends of the Association to attend the stereoptican lecture to be given by Miss McRae of the Normal and Public School staff, this evening, in the Association parlours. "Pictures That Have Lived" will be thrown on the canvas as Miss McRae tells how to study a picture, so that one may see all that is in the picture.

Seats Were In Demand

Everything points to a most successful performance by the Belmont Minstrels in their entertainment on Thursday and Friday of this week. The rehearsals have been snappy, and full of ginger and the programme throughout has not a single dull moment or a drag anywhere. The musical first part is replete with song hits, well rendered, this part being featured by splendid solo work as well as by effective choral singing. There is a list of specialties in the olio that would be worthy of any minstrel performance. The plan for the general public opened this morning, and while there was a brisk demand there are many good seats left yet.

IN SECOND PLACE

In November last, the local branch of the Woodmen of the World occupied twenty-sixth place in the honour roll of the Society. To-day they are in second place with Brantford leading. This pre-eminent position they have gained through the medium of an aggressive membership campaign, which they have conducted. Its per capita tax is sufficiently large to enable it, to energetically push its growth, thus constantly adding to the membership.

Last evening twenty-two new members were initiated into the Order, and thirty-four applications were received. About two hundred members were present, and a short musical programme was provided. The officers have sanguine hopes of increasing the membership by two hundred and twenty by the first of April.

ASKED HER DRUGGIST TO GIVE HER SOMETHING.

She Had a Bad Cold, So He Recommended Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. James Warren, Edmonton, Alta., writes:—"Just a few words in favor of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A short time ago I contracted a bad cold, and tried several remedies, but had no good results. I asked my druggist to give me some good cough medicine he could recommend, so he told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I can safely say I have never tried anything like it. The first dose gave me relief, and I was completely cured of my cough before I had finished one bottle. It is the best cough remedy I have ever tried, and I can recommend it to everyone."

It is a remedy without an equal for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all affection of the throat or lungs.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY, FEB. 14

"To-morrow is Saint Valentine's day.
All in the morning betime,
And I, a maid at your window,
To be your Valentine".

—Hamlet.

Cupid, in the guise of a blue-coated postman, proves that the age of myths and legends has come down to the present. The little god's arrows are just as pointed and surely directed as in the storied age in which he wrought havoc among hearts in his own realm. Through the centuries his bow has twanged incessantly with welcome sound to the youth of generation succeeding generations. His means of approach have varied, but the effectiveness of his work of love has never been impaired. And to-day, he even enlists the toiling postman, some of whom have not been sufficiently imaginative, perhaps, to realize the part they are playing in luring victims for Hymen's sacrifice.

St. Valentine's Day will bring joy to some and disappointment, in the same measure, to others. In spite of the materialism of the age there is a redeeming remnant of poetry that responds to the old customs that are linked with the lore of St. Valentine's Day.

As far back as 1608 history records incidents of Saint Valentine's Day such as parties where maidens and bachelors would meet and each write their names upon separate billets. These billets were then rolled up and drawn by way of lots, the men taking the girls' billets and vice versa. After the drawing each girl and man found themselves with two valentines. However, there seems to have been but little attention paid to but one, for the man became the devoted cavalier of the girl whose name he drew. It seems, after all, to have been the man's privilege to choose and the girl's drawing amounted to a mere form. There was dancing and a supper where each bachelor appeared wearing a heart on his sleeve bearing the name of his valentine. Quite frequently the couple became real sweethearts and married. In every case the man remained bound to the service of his valentine like some mediaeval knight of romance to his lady love. The men were, of course, always anxious to draw the names of pretty girls. There was an equal number of both sexes, however, and even the most unattractive girl found a valentine as well as her fairer sister. Numberless tricks were used by those who were already sweethearts in order that they might get together after the drawing.

In Shakespeare's time the custom of challenging a valentine anywhere was an unwritten law. The challenge consisted simply of saying "Good morrow, 'tis Saint Valentine's Day!" and he or she who said it first on meeting a person received a present. Later, the custom changed, and the gentleman alone gave the present if he was challenged by the woman he loved. In the days of the quill pens and high-priced postage the manufacture and transmission of valentines through the post was an expensive luxury, for the sentimental poetry had to be written on thick sheets of gilt-edged paper. The first page of the sheet was always adorned with a gilt paper Cupid which had been carefully pasted on. Such silly verses as "The Rose is red,

The Violet is blue,
Sugar is sweet,
And so are you"

usually followed. Frequently these valentines were delivered by servants. Then came the age of printing and the reduction of postage and Valentine's Day became a busy time for the post office employees and has remained so ever since, increasing each year.

Even though the origin of Saint Valentine's Day may be rather vague "all the world loves a lover" and it will never question the right of this lover to send out his missives of tenderness to his sweetheart on this particular day, so the pretty custom of sending valentines is likely to continue for all time.

SIGNS IN EAST HERALD A RISE IN PRICE OF TEA

LONDON, FEB. 12.—The tea world knows no famine, at least, not now, yet, signs in the east assuredly indicate a rise in the price of the national beverage. Cheerfully we have sipped our favourite blends of Ceylon and Indian teas without giving a moment's thought to the inevitable rise in price these times were bound to bring. Tea-drinkers have been exceedingly lucky up till now, because tea is about the only article of everyday diet that has remained within the reach of the average housekeeper's buying power. Perhaps a word of praise for the far-sighted policy of the tea lords is in keeping. The growing tide of the higher cost of living has swept against the fundamental policy of their business in vain. That policy has been immense sales with a low margin of profit. However, the time is at hand when they will be compelled to revise the retail price of their different blends—indeed, some merchants have already done so.

Numerous conditions contribute towards a higher price for tea. First in order, comes the universal tendency that makes for more of the comforts and luxuries of life—a tendency which is largely responsible for the higher cost of living. Second, the world is hungry for more rubber, and tea lands can be readily and profitably turned into rubber plantations. Thousands of acres of these lands are acquired by rubber planters year after year, so that even now the decrease in the world's tea area is quite perceptible. Thirdly, while the tea area of India—and Ceylon especially—is decreasing, the market for tea is constantly widening. Moscow tea buyers now compete with the representatives of the New York and London Tea Lords, and it's a certainty that if the market continues to widen, while the world's tea area decreases, the housewife will have to pay more for her favourite beverage.

GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR

You pay a premium for first class fire insurance protection. Why not get it? If you are willing to pay the established rates why not demand the best policy your money will buy? You want the protection of the strongest Company. Do not be put off with anything inferior. Insist upon a policy in the Liverpool & London & Globe. Agent, W. H Hill.

$20,000,000 FOR WORK IN WEST

Expenditure Proposed by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway

West of Winnipeg, on the main line, 185 miles to be built. East of Fort George and 150 miles West of Fort George, leaving only 200 miles to be built in 1912 between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert. A total number of 500 miles of branch lines to Moose Jaw, Brandon, Calgary, Battleford, Prince Albert and the Alberta Coal Fields will be complete, and the building of the line from Calgary to Lethbridge will be started. Hotels will be erected in Edmonton and Regina, of 150 rooms each, and the Terminals at Regina will be inaugurated between Winnipeg and Regina, and Winnipeg and Fort William. This work will all be done this summer if the supply of labour is sufficient, and the steel can be secured for the laying of track.

Departing Employee Was Banquetted

Assistant Superintendent Leadbetter of the Prudential Staff, was dined by his fellow employees at Hooper's banquet hall, on Saturday evening. The occasion was his departure for Maryland, Virginia, where he will continue to be a valued employee of the Prudential staff. He was made the recipient of a handsome travelling bag, which was accompanied by an address. Mr. R. Sedgwick made the presentation, and a brief address was given by Mr. J. J. Allen, Superintendent. He made special reference to Mr. Leadbetter's enterprising ability, and to the untiring services which he rendered to the firm during his five years as assistant superintendent. He concluded by wishing the departing guest every success in his new field of labour, a desire which he had no doubt would materialize.

Mr. Leadbetter and family left this morning on the 7.42 train for Maryland, via New York City.

OSLER RIGHT; YOUTH SUCCEEDS AGE

Gray Hair is First Sign of Age ---Harmless Remedy Restores to Natural Colour

Osler isn't the only man who turns down old age. In the business world the "young man" is always the one who picks the plums. It is an age of "new thought," "new talent," etc., and the old man is passed by in the race.

One of the first signs of coming age is the appearance of gray hairs. When you see them, act promptly. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will correct this sign, which so often deceives people into thinking that age is really upon them. It is a well-known fact that Sage and Sulphur will darken the hair. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur combines these old-time remedies with other agents, which remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize the druggists to sell it under guarant that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't look old before your time. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-day, and see what an improvement it will make in the appearance of your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agent, Warne Ding Company.

SUCCESSFUL RECITAL

An interesting event took place in the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon, when a recital was given by the pupils of Miss Pearl McKee.

To remark on the performance of any individual would be an injustice to the whole, suffice it to say that the various contributions were rendered in a very pleasing manner, and what made the recital the more attractive was the youth of the performers.

Following is the programme as rendered.

Mr. McFarlane's Addresses

Last night's meeting in Gospel Hall was well attended, and those present were heard to say it was good to be here. Mr. Macfarlane spoke on Isaiah 26.3: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee, because he trusteth in Thee." He showed that peace was obtained at Calvary, was maintained now on the throne, and retained by the believer by trusting in God. He is a very forcible speaker and will continue every night this week.—Com.

Package Goods Has Added To Cost Of Living

TORONTO, FEB. 13.—The passing of the sale of groceries in bulk to the present day method of putting them up in packages, is claimed by Mr. Hugh Blain, a prominent wholesale grocer of Toronto, as one of the primal causes of the advanced cost of living as far as groceries are concerned.

"The evolution in trade in recent years has gradually put upon the market, in package form, many lines of goods that were formerly sold in bulk. These goods being put up, under well advertised brands, and in more or less attractive packages, have gradually attracted the attention of the consumer, and to-day we find a large percentage of goods, that were formerly bought and sold in bulk, now being bought by consumers in packages, and here it might not be out of place to remind the consumer, that to some extent at least, the enormous sums of money spent annually in advertising food products and putting them up in expensive packages, are paid for by the consumer, and this to some extent, adds to the cost of living.

WILD DUCK CAUGHT ON THE ICE

Several small boys were seen yesterday chasing a wild duck over the ice on Little Lake until they finally captured it. The bird was out of its element on the slippery surface and was unable to get started on the wing. It is possible that after coming from the water it had remained too long sunning itself on the ice and its wings had become frozen and it was rendered helpless.

Residents in the south end state that it is a long time since they saw so many wild ducks wintering along the river from the C.P.R. bridge down to the locks. The presence of these fowl can scarcely be credited as a sign of an open winter.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders Later come dropsy, stone rheumatic pains and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and aches and make you well again.

AID FOR THE NORTH

Sir James Says Government Will Spend $5,000,000

IS WARY OF QUESTIONS

Toronto, Feb. 13.—Five million dollars as an appropriation for the colonization and development of the whole northern part of the province known as New Ontario, was an announcement made by Sir James Whitney in the Legislature yesterday afternoon.

"The Government intends," he said "to ask the House during the present session for authority to borrow a sum of money, not exceeding five million dollars, for the purpose of colonization and development in New, or rather Northern, Ontario, including not only the Temiskaming country, but the country in the vicinity of Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William, the Rainy River district and other localities in the northern portion of the province."

N. W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, rose to his feet. "I must compliment my hon. friend, Sir James Whitney, on this announcement," said he. "The question is, Is this amount enough? I see that our campaign for the development of New Ontario is beginning to take effect."

Sir James rose from his seat again with a smile on his face. "My hon. friend opposite is peculiar," he said. Luckily anyone who is able to read even the newspapers saw what I had announced in my campaign addresses regarding the Government's determination to assist in the development of New Ontario in every way possible. If my hon. friend can give credit for this to any person, thing or organization, I have nothing more to say."

Up bobbed Allan Studholme. "This little stove mounter has been urging this very thing since 1907," he said, "and all the Boards of Trade of the province have been urging it, too. I am glad to hear this announcement from Sir James Whitney, and if he wants to take all the credit for it, he is welcome to it."

This was at the end of the afternoon session, and a minute later the House was adjourned. Scores of Conservative members flocked around the Prime Minister to congratulate him and numbers of them hastened out of the chamber to telegraph the important news to their constituencies.

Sir James during the afternoon session of the Legislature, commented on the questions that had been put to the Government about certain matters of legislation. Particular reference was made by the Premier to Mr. Rowell's queries. The rules of the House, said Sir James, did not permit of the information being given at this time. With regard to the enquiry about the Manitoba boundary question, this was not allowed, as a general discussion the matter would shortly come up on the floor of the House. "I can assure my hon. friend," said Sir James, "that whatever his anxiety is regarding this boundary question, ours is just as great, in order to get the facts before the public. Several of the other questions asked for information about persons in the employ of the Government taking part in the elections. Under the Garrow resolution no person depending on salary he received from the Government was permitted to take part in either provincial or Dominion elections."

The question regarding the Hydro-Electric Commission's transference to a Department of the Government might better be left until Hon. Adam Beck was in the House, when he could answer it. To this Mr. Rowell agreed.

Several of the questions were enquiries as to what the Government intended to do in certain matters pending legislation. Sir James said that the information could be given as information to private members, but not for general information, nor was it in order to ask if statements made in newspapers were true.

Hon. Mr. Hanna introduced a bill to amend the Vaccination and Inoculation Act. A clause is added providing penalty for refusing to order vaccination, refusing to issue proclamation and disobeying the order. These sub-section were necessary, the former act making no provision for contravention of the act on the part of doctors. The section providing that it is lawful for school trustees to enforce the production of a certificate of vaccination before allowing children to attend school is omitted entirely. A new provision follows to the effect that where it is deemed necessary by the medical health officer, owing to the presence, or threatened presence of smallpox, he may require a certificate of successful vaccination from pupils attending high schools, colleges and universities.

Mr. Hanna also introduced a bill to amend the Maternity Boarding House Act.

Under the new arrangement the duty is to cast upon the person registering the duty of seeing that every birth is properly attended to and registered under the Vital Statistics Act. The present act merely required that every birth that took place in the house should be attended by a regularly qualified medical practitioner, and cast the duty on no one person.

Another amendment to the Motor Vehicles Act was introduced by Mr. Hanna, which will prohibit motor vehicles from passing a stationary street car, whereas the old act permitted them to pass at the rate of four mile an hour. A special [illegible]

For the first offence the penalty will be $50 or one week's imprisonment. Proposed amendments to the Highway Travel Act will be inclusion of all motor vehicles, instead of those drawn by horses or a traction engine, and the devil-strip right of way has been made to apply generally, instead of as in larger localities. This means that vehicles going south and east have the right of way.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take two cups of granulated sugar, add one cup of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly. Any housewife can easily prepare it in five minutes.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe, if the genuine Pinex is used. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you, if you ask him. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

MANCHU RULE TERMINATED

Three Declarations Are Issued—Abdication Edict

REPUBLIC IS ACCEPTED

Pekin, Feb. 3.—The abdication of the throne of China by the Manchu dynasty, after nearly 300 years of power, was proclaimed in an Imperial edict at noon yesterday.

Another edict declared that the throne accepted the republic, while a third approved all the conditions agreed upon by Premier Yuan Shi Kai and the Republicans.

The provisions and stipulations of the edict are said to be almost identical with those previously reported.

The Mongolian princes, who have been leaders in the anti-abdication agitation at the court, have cabled to Dr. Sun Yat Sen, insisting that unless Yuan Shi Kai gets the Presidency they will consider themselves entitled to take further measures against the establishment of the republic.

The momentous step by which the Manchu dynasty yields up its power and agrees to change from an absolute monarchy to a representative Government, was notified in three simultaneous proclamations.

Although the final act of abdication had been awaited for some time, the posting of the edict with the declaration that it was an accomplished fact caused profound excitement.

The second edict approving of all the conditions agreed upon between Yuan Shi Kai and the republican representatives, created even more astonishment. It had been expected that the Manchus would demand conditions which would safeguard many of their privileges, but according to the proclamation, their surrender is unconditional.

The third edict informed the viceroys and provincial governors of the retirement of the throne from political power, and instructed them to continue doing their duty and to preserve order throughout the land. It declared that the step taken by the throne was in order to meet the wishes of the people.

Yesterdays abdication of the Chinese throne by Pu Yi, the child Emperor, brings to an end the powerful Manchu dynasty, which has reigned in China, since 1644. The boy ruler has been on the throne since Nov. 14, 1908, when the Emperor Kwangshu, his uncle, died. His father, Prince Chun, was appointed regent and was the chief figure in China for three years.

Surrounded by a large number of princes of the Imperial clan and Manchu officials with reactionary ideas, the regent was brought face to face with a revolutionary movement in favor of modern reforms. He endeavored to placate both parties, but ended by causing general dissatisfaction, which led to his resignation on Dec. 6, 1911.

How The Ford Was Started

"I never could have built up a business that would have taken me out of the United States and into Canada, as my automobile business has done," said Henry Ford recently, in speaking of the building of the immense addition to the Ford Branch factory at Walkerville, Canada, "if the common council of Detroit had persevered in a threat it made when I first began to experiment with the horseless buggy.' This council did me the honour to threaten to pass an ordinance forbidding me to run my automobile at any time of day except between 12 o'clock midnight, and 4 a.m. That was the only car in Detroit at that time, and it only took a few trips down the street to gain that tremendous notoriety.

"Being one who likes to get a little sleep, that awful threatened ordinance effectually interfered with the advancement of the automobile business in Detroit. There was one kind thing about it however: it didn't limit me to fifteen miles an hour during the four hours I was allowed to run. There wasn't any use for speed limits or traffic policemen in those early days."

A GREAT ATTRACTION

Carrying real Indians, wolves and bears in order to give a play the desired atmosphere is going the limit. That is what is being done by the managers of the "Daniel Boone or the Trail" Co., that comes to the Grand on Saturday, Feb. 17. The story of the play is a romantic one in theme and thrilling situations. The many exciting incidents that occur during the life of this famous pioneer has given the author ample room to elaborate on. The burning of Boones' home by the Indians closes the first act of the great drama of pioneer days. The second act finds Boone and his brave wife, Elizabeth Jane, homeless in the mountains. The many daring escapes and hardships endured by them makes the story of Daniel Boone strong in sentiment. Each act and scene follows another one, showing beautiful stage settings with nothing but the rocky mountain trail for its background. Real Indians, wolves and bears are also worked in the exciting climaxes of the play. A screen curtain is used in separating the audiences from the stage in the snow storm scene, where Boone has his fight for life with wolves. This scene is one of the features of the drama and so much so that the moment the stage is set and the curtain is ready to rise on this act the stage boys invariably climb to the fly gallery and do not come down until the wolves have been driven back into the cage. Lovers of the better style of romantic melodramatic productions will find in Daniel Boone a real treat.

Honor For Sir Edward Grey.

London, Feb. 13.—The King has appointed Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a Knight of the Garter. This distinction is limited to members of royal families and a few of the highest among the nobility. It has been conferred upon Sir Edward Grey undoubtedly at the Premier's suggestion and is construed as the Government's answer to the attacks, particularly on the part of Liberals, on Sir Edward's foreign policy.

NO MORE DISTRESS FROM THE STOMACH

No Dyspepsia, Gas, Heartburn or Indigestion Five Minutes Later

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at your drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to cure any case of Dyspepsia Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

MOVING UP TOWN

The Electric Installation Company Will Remove to No. 430 George Street

The Electrical Installation Co., Limited, of 293 George street, will move into more convenient and central premises in a few days. Lease of the store premises, No. 430, George street, has been secured, and is now being fitted up by Contractor Alderman Johnston, after plans to suit the various kinds of electrical goods and merchandise. Manager Ash has had a successful year, the business having grown month by month. The necessity of securing a location nearer the centre of the city has been strongly felt, with the result that the Company has made arrangements to move up town in a few days, where they will be in closer touch with the business thoroughfare.

Suffered With Nerve Trouble For Two Years.

IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE FOR HIM TO SLEEP.

Diseases of the nervous system are very common. All the organs of the body may be sound while the nervous system alone may be diseased, therefore it is necessary for anyone suffering from any nervous trouble to procure a remedy which will at once quieten the nerves and build up the system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will do this for you, providing you give them a fair trial.

Mr. Chas. W. Wood, Montreal, Que., writes:—"For two years I had suffered with nerve trouble, and it was impossible for me to sleep. It did not matter what time I went to bed, in the morning I was even worse than the night before. I consulted a doctor, and he gave me a tonic to take a half hour before going to bed. It was all right for a time, but the old trouble returned with greater force than before. One of the boys, who works with me, gave me half a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took them and I got such satisfaction that I got another box, and before I finished it I could enjoy sleep from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m., and now feel good."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WEDDING BELLS

HAMILTON—ILES.

A quiet wedding was celebrated last night, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Gooley, 189 Reid street, when Miss Lydia Iles was united in marriage to Mr. Edwin John Hamilton, Rev. J. G. Brown officiating. The groomsman was Mr. W. J. Gaynor, while Miss Fannie Edney assisted the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will reside in Peterborough.

ROSE—BLOIS.

A very pretty wedding took place on Monday, February the 12th at two o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. T. J. Blois, Rubidge street, when her only laughter, Mary A. (Mollie) was united in marriage to Mr. William Stewart Rose, the Rev. Mr. Webb officiating. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing room, which was prettily decorated for the occasion with palms and ferns, the predominating colour scheme being pink and white. The bride, who was attired in a beautiful dress of rich ivory satin with pearl trimmings, carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley and was given away by her uncle, Mr. Walter Blois, of South Parkdale, Toronto. The wedding march was played by Miss Viola George of Port Hope. During the signing of the register, Miss George sang "Because."

The bride and groom left on the 4:28 train for a short trip to the Eastern States, the bride travelling in a smart tailored suit with mink furs and hat to match. The happy couple were the recipients of a host of beautiful gifts and carried with them the best wishes of their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose will, on their return, reside on Rubidge street.

THE WEATHER

There is a spring-like feeling in the air to-day, and already the sun is beginning to have some little effect on the accumulated snow banks of successive storms. The winter is not over, however, but the worst is probably past. Temperature this morning at 7 o'clock, 4 below zero; lowest last night, 6 below.—W. P.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

MORE THAN A RAY OF HOPE OF WINNING THE ROUND FROM MIDLAND

Referee Harvey Sproule Wires Impressions of Last Night's Battle to the Examiner---Derocher Put Up a Phenomenal Game in the Nets for Peterborough.

Examiner Special.

MIDLAND, ONT., FEB. 13.—(By Harvey Sproule)—Midland defeated Peterborough Intermediates, in the first of home and home games, here, last night, in the second round by 10 goals to 2. The half-time score was 3-1, also in the local's favour. The game was fast, from end to end, and although the checking was close and hard, the contest was void of any rough work. Each team drew fence for the visitors.

The veteran "Rollie" Glover was pressed into service, replacing Bond, who was injured recently, on the defence for the visitors.

Th former received a slight gash in the face, in the last half, in a mix-up, forcing him to retire, and the game finished six a side. Midland had considerably the better of the play in the final period, although it was very even in the first half. Derocher put up a phenomenal exhibition in the nets for the "Lift-Lock" City aggregation. Three of the counters registered against him were accidentally turned into scores off his own team mates. The return game will be played in Peterborough to-morrow night, and the visitors have more than a ray of hope of pulling down the eight-goal lead, as they are a great scoring team on their own ice. The locals, however, are figuring on a victory win in Peterborough and the contest should be a corker.

Referee—F. H. Sproule, Toronto, Ont.

ORILLIA TEAM TO PLAY HERE ON FRIDAY NIGHT

The Bear Cats will go into action on Friday night, when the speedy Orillia team, last year's junior finalists, will be here to play a junior semi-final game. The game should be about the fastest junior game seen here in a decade. The Northerners have a great reputation, but the Bear Cats are not backing up any on that account, and are determined to keep up their winning streak. The boys are in good shape after their rest up and will go after the Orillia team from the drop of the hat. They will practise to-night at 7 o'clock, and a full turnout is expected.

Monster Crowd To See To-morrow Night's Game

The biggest crowd for many seasons will be at Brock street rink to-morrow night when the Midland team will be here for the return game with Peterborough in the third round of the intermediate O.H.A. Every fan in Peterborough will want a chance to see the team that beat Peterborough and as Midland are running a big excursion as well, there will be a crowd that will bulge the side of the rink. The Petes will go into the game and battle for the round eight goals behind. They are determined to make Midland go the limit and the crowd may count on seeing one of the most exciting and hard fought battles ever seen on local ice. Harvey Sproule will referee and the teams will be sent away at 8.15 o'clock sharp. The line-up of the Peterborough team will be announced to-morrow.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

Sporting Editor Examiner,—Kindly settle the following pool on the Peterborough-Midland game last night: "A" has a score of 10 to 4, in favour of Midland; "B" has a score of 8 to 2, in favour of Midland. Which wins? Hockey Fan.

Answer—"B" wins. The correct percentage is .833. "B" has a percentage of .800, and "A" of .714.—Sporting Editor.

The Bear Cats had a lively practice at Brock street rink last night and will work-out again to-night at 7 o'clock sharp. A full attendance is expected as the team will probably be called upon to play Orillia this week.

The Clerks defeated the Canadian General Machine Shop in a Mercantile League fixture at Brock street rink last night by 4 goals to 2. It was an interesting battle all the way. Rollie Weir of the Bear Cats refereed satisfactorily.

Curling Notes

Following is the result of the games played by the ladies of the Peterborough Curling Club for the pans presented to the club by Mr. Cameron:

Mrs. Travers	Mrs. Coulthard
Skip 7	Skip 8
Miss Archer	Mrs. A. Hall
Miss Perks	Mrs. Grant
Mrs. McLean	Mrs. Hill
Mrs. Matthews	Mrs. Ritchie
Skip 7	Skip 16

The Orillia cup game stands postponed until February 19th.

Four rinks went to Bobcaygeon yesterday afternoon, where they will enter the second lap of the competition for the Fitzgerald-Bottum competition. They will remain for the bonspiel, which commenced to-day.

Five rinks of the Toronto Granites are expected here on Friday, when friendly games will be played at the Charlotte St. rink. The rinks to meet the visitors will be skipped by Messrs. R. Neil, G. Read, R. Sturgeon, H. Taylor and A. Moore.

Mr. Harstone will take a rink to the Cobourg bonspiel, which commenced to-day.

The return game in the Capon-Waddell Trophy is being played in Toronto to-day, with Skips Davidson, Matthews, McIlroy, Waddell and Yeats in attendance. They will play a friendly game with the Toronto aggregation this evening. In the first half of this competition, which was played here two weeks ago, Peterborough was down one shot.

There will be a meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club to-night, at 8 o'clock, at the Brock Street Rink. A full attendance is expected, as business of importance is to come up.

NATIONALISTS DOWN ON NAVY

Sevigny Will Force Consideration of Demand to Repeal Naval Act

OTTAWA, FEB. 12.—The agitation over the demand for the repeal of the Naval Law by Mr. Bourassa and his allies is fast approaching fever heat.

Apart from the parliamentary demonstrations in the Commons last week (by Mr. Albert Sevigny, of Dorchester), and in the Senate by Hon. P. A. Choquette, there has been a remarkable recrudescence of the anti-navy agitation on the part of Mr. Bourassa and his machinery.

Whether the visit of Armand Lavergne to Ottawa last week, with his orange necktie (and it is said that the Grand Master himself possesses a similar proof of the Orange-Nationalist allies) had anything to do with the revived agitation can only be guessed. But there the agitation is, and it is getting hot.

Not only is Mr. Bourassa himself over his own signature denouncing the Borden Dreadnoughts and the Laurier Niobes, but the Nationalist press is publishing personal declarations by leading Conservative members of the House of Commons demanding the repeal of the Naval bill.

Forget Too.

Among those who insist upon the immediate repeal of the Naval bill are Sir Rodolphe Forget, the boss of the party in Quebec, Mr. Achim of Labelle, Mr. Lavallee of Bellechasse, Mr. Lamarche of Nicolet, Mr. Guilbault of Joliette, and Mr. Rainville of Chambly-Vercheres.

Sevigny's Declarations.

But most significant of all is the statement of Albert Sevigny that "the Naval bill will be repealed."

On the other hand, the Imperialist members of the Conservative party are told that nothing will be done until after a consultation with the Admiralty.

This will not satisfy the Nationalists. They want their pound of flesh. They want the Naval act repealed and they will not be happy until it is done. If it is done, they will then consent to the clean slate being adorned with some new figures upon condition that the said figures shall be submitted to the people before final adoption.

INJURED FOOT CURED.

"I speak for Zam-Buk because it cured me of a terribly bad foot," says Mrs. Alice Berryman of 190 John St. North, Hamilton. She adds: "The injury was caused by a wagon wheel, and the sore was on my right foot. It became very inflamed and swollen and so painful that I fainted away. In spite of treatment, the wound got no better and the foot became more and more swollen until it was several times its usual size. The flesh was terribly bruised and blackened and it was quite impossible for me to walk. My husband's mother at last brought me a box of Zam-Buk. This was applied to the foot and it was surprising how soon I found relief from the severe pain. A further supply of Zam-Buk was obtained and I persevered in using this balm alone. In a couple of days the swelling had gone down considerably, the discoloration was less distinct and the pain was banished. In four days I could go about as usual; the bruised and injured foot had been thoroughly cured by the timely use of Zam-Buk."

Did you ever ask yourself: "How is it that Zam-Buk is so popular?" It is because it is superior and different to other salves. Contrast them! Most salves are nine-tenths animal oil or fat. Zam-Buk hasn't a trace of animal fat in it. Most salves contain mineral coloring matter. Zam-Buk is absolutely without! Many salves contain poisonous astringents. Zam-Buk doesn't.

Zam-Buk is actually more powerfully antiseptic than crude carbolic acid. Yet it stops instead of causing pain and smarting when put on a wound.

It heals more quickly than any known substance, abscesses, ulcers, eczema, blood-poisoning, cuts, scalp sores, chaps and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 1c stamp for trial box.

POISONED FINGER HEALED.

Mrs. Frank St. Denis of 208 Thompson St., Winnipeg, speaks for Zam-Buk because it cured her of a poisoned finger, which had caused her days of agony. Hear her experience. She says:

"One morning, while washing, I felt a slight pain in the end of my finger. This gradually got more acute until by the evening of the next day the end of the finger had become swollen and hard and so blue I became alarmed.

"The pain from it was almost too much to bear. It made me turn quite sick! Poultices of first one kind and then another were applied, but seemed to give me no relief. My daughter-in-law, who had had some previous experience with Zam-Buk obtained a box for me. I anointed the sore place liberally with this balm, and in a few hours, the throbbing aching pains were subdued."

Further applications of Zam-Buk gave me more ease, so that I could get a little sleep. In a few days the nail came off, but after that Zam-Buk seemed to reduce the inflammation quickly. I continued its use until in the end it had brought about a complete cure.

A New Bullet For The Ross Rifle

It is understood that intimation has been received that the issue will be made shortly. The bullet has a velocity of 2,700 feet per second, and will penetrate an oak tree thirty-eight inches in diameter, at five hundred yards. It goes so much faster and is in the air so much less time that the wind has comparatively little effect on it.

At five hundred yards it will penetrate

Hard steel plate 7-16 inches thick,
Brick and cement 9 inches thick,
Loose sand 30 inches thick,
Hardwood, with grain, 38 inches,
Softwood 58 inches,
Clay, 60 inches,
Peat or turf, 80 inches thick.

With the new bullet, it is expected considerable improvement in scoring at the rifle ranges. Only men equipped with Ross rifles will be able to use it until the Lee-Enfield rifle is reconstructed, as the chamber of the Lee-Enfield now in use in the old country is not built strong enough to discharge the needle-pointed, high-power bullet with safety to the man behind the gun.

With the new bullet, the marksman will be as effective at 800 yards as he is at 500 yards with the old bull-nosed bullet. The new bullet will rise so little in the air that shooting at 800 yards it will not rise higher than a man's head, and accordingly all the ground within 800 yards will be dangerous. Thus the range at which sights may be "fixed" will be increased from 500 to 800 yards.

VALENTINE "SURPRISE"

Last evening, the 12th inst., was the occasion of a delightful Valentine "surprise" party, given to the residents of 453, Water street, members of the Margaret Cox Home office staff, in this city. The affair had all the charm of spontaneity, yet through everything ran a vein of well arranged method which wrought complete harmony and evidenced the fact that much thought had been exercised in planning the entertainment. There was not a dull moment, the games were exceedingly interesting and, of course, typical of the season.

Supper was served at 10.30 and the dining table was most artistically decorated and lighted with red, wax candles. A valentine centre-piece of red hearts being placed around a vase of pink carnations. Mrs. Reazin, of Lindsay, did the honours and presided in a charming and acceptable manner—indeed the chaperon, in this instance, proved a most popular addition and won much admiration.

After supper, the evening was concluded with music, instrumental and vocal, in which Mr. William Miller, George street Methodist choir, played a prominent part, assisted ably by Mr. Burton Throop. The guests in all, numbered twenty.

New Church Will Be Built

Preparations are under way for the erection of a new Presbyterian Church, at Fowler's Corners. Teams are busily engaged in hauling brick and other necessary material for the work. Rev. Mr. Curry, pastor of the Lakevale charge, has been rendering very efficient service in connection with the work at Fowler's Corners, and with the completion of a brand new edifice, a further impetus to the work is anticipated. Lakevale, the name by which the present church is known, will revert to the new one following its completion.

Neglected Colds Lead to Consumption

Unless a complete cure is effected the inflammation passes rapidly to the throat's bronchial tubes and then to the lungs.

You can't make new lungs any more than you can make new fingers or a new nose—hence consumption is practically incurable.

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the lungs and air passages.

Catarrhozone
Guaranteed to Cure

The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists—germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and cure comes quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed—sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills—it's pleasant, safe, and guaranteed in every case. 25c., 50c., and $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers. By mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Government Will Have No Improvements in Tariff Bill

DEADLOCK IN THE SENATE

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—The Government last night clubbed Mr. Guthrie's amendments to the tariff commission bill. The debate was resumed and occupied most of the day.

Hon. G. E. Foster pointed out that with the information gathered by the commission before Parliament and the people of Canada, no Minister would ever be able to shield himself behind generalities in framing his tariff. There was neither Toryism nor Gritism in absolute facts, and this commission was told to get absolute facts.

Hon. W. T. White replied to the leader of the Opposition by reading from a speech of Sir Wilfrid, in which he declared himself in favor of a tariff commission such as they have in the United States. The Premier pointed out that Ministerial control of the commission was necessary in pointing out the superior urgency of certain lines of enquiry.

W. F. Maclean (S. York) thought too much definition or limitation would prevent the desirable flexibility of the commission. It should be given a free hand, but be under the direction of a responsible Minister.

Hugh Guthrie (South Wellington) moved several amendments to remove the commission from the direction of the Minister, to substitute a report to Parliament for a report to the Minister and to strike out the sub-section providing for investigating trusts, mergers and combines by the commission. All were lost, the first on a vote of 40 to 76.

The last amendment provoked quite a vigorous debate. F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) claimed that the Government were taking away from the judges of the land, not the power, but the fact of investigating trusts, mergers and combines.

Hon. F. W. White declared it was surprising that all the trusts, mergers and combines, had sprung up since Sept. 21. He indignantly denied that he was connected with any trust, merger and combine, and told Hon. Frank Oliver that if he kept himself as free from sinister influence he would do well.

Dr. Clarke (Red Deer) thought the inalienable prerogative of Parliament to preserve, which Britain had cut off a king's head and curbed the power of the House of Lords, was jeopardized by the further tyranny of the trusts.

W. F. Cockshutt (Brantford) declared that there was more chance for protection being introduced into England than free trade into Canada. Of course, there would be no place for a free trader on the commission. Would the Minister of Militia, if he wanted a rifle to arm the militia, leave it to Andrew Carnegie and Rev. J. A. Macdonald? They would choose a gun that would not go off. So would the member for Red Deer with the tariff.

Mr. Cockshutt thought the 500,000 workers employed by the manufacturers were worthy of consideration. They were struggling just as hard as the farmer.

The Government yesterday declined to accept the amendment of the Senate to the enquiries bill. Hon. Mr. Lougheed, for the Government, declared that the proposal by Senator Kerr that persons employed to make enquiries should be for five years debarred from holding public office, was a design to wreck the bill. The proposal stands at the deadlock stage, and will come up again on Thursday.

Senator Kerr said that, while the Government might not know it, a person appointed as investigating commissioner or an expert, who had the same power, might have the idea of becoming an applicant for a Government place. It would be a monstrous thing to have a man investigated by a person who could condemn him for the purpose of obtaining his place.

Mr Lougheed said that under no circumstances could the Government accept the amendment proposed. It was no doubt in the power of the Senate to pass the amendment and destroy the bill if they saw fit, by passing the amendment. Senator Kerr had dwelt upon the desirability of insuring impartiality on the part of the commissioners. He would point out that the Government had to take full responsibility for the character and work of the commissioners they named to carry on investigations.

Urges Debate on Navy.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—Mr. Paule Emile Lamarche, member for Nicolet County, has given notice of a question to ask the Government if it is their intention to set aside a date for the discussion of the resolution of Mr. Albert Sevigny, member for Dorchester, concerning the repeal of the navy bill of the Laurier Government.

Mr. Lamarche explains that the object of his question is to reply to the taunts of the Liberal press, who maintain that the French-Conservative members were not sincere in their election promises to ask for the repeal of the navy bill. As the Sevigny resolution now stands on the order paper, it seems almost impossible that it can be discussed in Parliament owing to the amount of more pressing business.

Lavergne Keeps Out.

Quebec, Feb 14 The report to the effect that Mr. Armand Lavergne had left for South Renfrew, to speak in favor of Hon. George P. Graham, is unfounded.

Mr Lavergne is at his seat in the Legislature. When interviewed yesterday he said that his health was not good enough to allow him to take part in an election fight at the moment.

ANOTHER MILLION

Ontario Will Expend That Sum on Good Roads

REAUME ANNOUNCES BILL

Toronto, Feb. 14.—Another million dollars has been set aside by the Provincial Government out of the consolidated revenue of the province in aid of the improvement of public highways. The same amount, which was set aside some time ago, having become exhausted, provision is being made by the Government to continue its policy of defraying one-third of the cost of building good roads throughout the province.

Announcement to this effect was made in the Legislature yesterday by Hon. Dr. Reaume, Minister of Public Works, when he introduced a bill to amend the act to aid in the improvement of public highways.

The existing act is to be amended by providing that the management of all road improvement under the Highway Improvement Act is to be centralized in a capable county road superintendent or engineer, appointed by and acted under the direction of the county council. A foreman or inspector is to be placed by the road superintendent or engineer in charge of any works which he personally can't oversee, but a member of the county council shall not be so employed.

In future the clerk of every county, before the first of every February, shall publish a detailed statement of all expenditure on or in connection with county roads or bridges for the preceding year. At least 100 copies of the statement shall be printed, and any elector in the county who applies shall be supplied with one. To the Lieutenant-Governor in council is given power to strike from the approved plan of the county roads system any roads which the Minister of Public Works finds has ceased to be used or for any other reason is not of sufficient importance to be constructed and maintained as a county road.

In resuming his remarks on the debate on the speech from the throne, Sir James Whitney declared that he had little more to say. "There is one matter, however," said the Premier, "that I must refer to. Observations have been made—playfully, I suppose—that the Government had abandoned a policy, about something or other. I presume it is the transfer of the Hydro-Electric Commission to a Department of the Government that is referred to. I want to say that no proposed policy of this kind has been abandoned."

Sir James then set forth the facts connected with the "determined and bitter opposition" of the Laurier Government, their helping of private companies to get and retain control of the waterfalls in Eastern Ontario, also the failure of the Hydro-electric to make progress against such a determined opposition. The idea then arose of transferring the Hydro-electric to a Department of the Government.

"But there was a Dominion election on Sept. 21," said Sir James. "The blight was removed." (Applause.) "The darkest hour is just before the dawn. The work of combatting the Hydro-electric has been removed. The people of Canada have endorsed the Hydro-electric policy. We will, for the present, defer the transfer of the Hydro-electric, but when the proper time comes, the transfer will be made to a Department of the Government."

J. C. Elliott, West Middlesex, said the Government was still wandering in the wilderness. Every year the speech from the throne was containing references to less and less progressive legislation. The Government was going back instead of forward.

Mr. Elliott said that 1909 was the last year in which the revenue of the provinces was seen sufficient to meet the estimates.

"The Provincial Treasurer points with pride to the succession duties, yet he sent up a wail about the succession dues when the Ross Government was in power that you'd have thought he would never soil his hands with anything like succession dues."

Echoes of the reciprocity campaign resounded through the legislative chamber when Mr. Elliott referred to the neglect of the Government in investigating the combines in existence, that increased the cost of living.

Mr. Elliott also referred to the action of the Government in "fighting tooth and nail to defeat Allan Studholme, the only representative of the labor interests in the Legislature.

Hon. I. B. Lucas reviewed the policy of the Government, and what he described as the lack of policy and indefiniteness on questions of public policy that characterized the attitude of the leader and all the members of the Opposition.

On bilingual schools, he said, neither Mr. Rowell nor his adherents had any policy.

"They find amusement in the differences of opinion said to have been expressed on this subject by the Attorney-General and the Minister of Public Works.

"In his speeches," he said, "he expresses no new ideas, no point on which anyone could form an opinion, no distinctive policy around which public opinion could be marshalled. The Opposition's charges against the expenditure of the Government were general, but he declared that not one item of the Government's expenditure could be challenged."

Mr. Lucas further referred to the Hydro-electric policy, and asked what stand the Liberals took on that? Hon. A. G. MacKay had been advocating a flat rate for Hydro-electric power for Owen Sound. Does that not look like sectional appeal? What do my honorable friends on the opposite side of the House think of that?

J. T. Hart (East Simcoe) referred particularly to the bilingual school question, and said there was not a man in the House who would object to the French language being used as a medium to teach English in the schools.

W. McDonald (Centre Bruce) protested particularly against the educational policy of the Government and the abolition of certain model schools.

A. H. Musgrove (North Huron) said the model school question was not a contest between parties, but between the candidates. When model schools were first established, there was as much oratory as there is now. Teachers, he said, preferred normal to model schools.

Mr. McCormick (E. Lambton) moved the adjournment of the debate.

One Dead In Fire

Montreal, Feb. 14.—A fire and an explosion wiped out the life of one man and injured four other persons yesterday afternoon.

Major John Rogers, manager of the Canadian Abbey's Effervescent Salt Co., for the past eight years, was so badly burned that his body was unrecognizable.

George Woodburn, employed by the J. W. Hughes Co., was caught on the second flat and was terribly burned. His recovery is doubtful.

The damage will not exceed $20,000, about equally divided between the two firms of J. W. Hughes and Abbey's Effervescent Salts Co. The losses are covered by insurance.

Can Make Bodies Transparent.

London, Feb. 14.—The London press is deeply interested in a discovery said to have been made by a German physician. Prof. Spaltenholz, who, by the use of two complicated organic chemicals, makes the human body transparent after death.

The Daily Mirror says: "As a result of this discovery dissection will be unnecessary, as the Spaltenholz process makes not only the whole body but the bones transparent, so the full mechanism of human life is displayed.

FRANCE MUST ARM

Her Legislators Agree on Necessity For Development

THE OTHERS ARE DOING IT

Paris, Feb. 14.—The future activity of France on the land and the sea and in the air was indicated in the discussions yesterday in the two Houses of Parliament, of the army and navy budgets.

The trend of the discussion was that France must strongly develop all her lines of defence and offence so as to hold her rank among the great powers and maintain her alliances, and thus exercise an influence in the world for peace.

During the discussions of the naval budget in the Chamber of Deputies, Gaston Thomson, former Minister of Marine, chairman of the naval committee, declared that it was an irreducible minimum. France was ready to practice a pacific policy which involved the limitation of armaments, but the policy of peace meant that she must be solidly armed. "America couples her proposal for an international arbitration with activity in naval construction. England never built so many battleships as now. Germany, Austria and Italy are all developing their navies," he said.

Senator Alexandre Millerand, speaking in the Senate, outlined the aviation program of the Government, for which from $4,500,000 to $5,000,000 yearly is asked. Fifteen dirigibles, he said, would be constructed, but the special arm of France was the aeroplane. This year the army could mobilize 334 aeroplanes, divided into 27 squadrons, and manned by 344 officer pilots, and 344 observers. An aeronautic regiment was also to be constituted.

In the Chamber of Deputies, Mr. Delcasse, Minister of Marine, answering the critics, said that it was not in the interests of France to increase automatically the number of ships built in a ratio with those built by other powers. It sufficed for France to have forces enough to ensure security in the Mediterranean, and he insisted that that was amply assured by the program.

The Chamber of Deputies last night adopted the naval program by a vote of 458 to 73. M. Delcasse, Minister of Marine, in submitting the proposals, said that France must have enough warships to ensure security in the Mediterranean, but that it was not necessary to keep pace with the construction activities of other nations. An additional article was adopted prohibiting the giving of Government contracts to firms which have, or have had within a year, members of the Senate or Chambers on their directorate or as legal counsel.

The Senate adopted the aviation program, for which approximately $5,000,000 yearly is asked.

Meredith Appointed.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—An order-in-council was passed yesterday morning appointing Chief Justice Sir William Meredith special commissioner to investigate the affairs of the Farmers' Bank. The scope of the enquiry is to be very broad, as is shown by the order-in-council. He is directed to report into the incorporation by act of Parliament of the Farmers' Bank of Canada and the organisation thereof.

The application for and the giving by the Treasury Board of the certificate permitting the bank to issue and commence the business of banking.

The conduct and operation of the business of the bank, the amount of capital subscribed and paid up, the causes of the suspension and failure, the extent of the liabilities and the value of the assets thereof.

Just Spite, Says Shuster.

Southampton, Feb. 14.—W. Morgan Shuster, who was shown the despatch from St. Petersburg about the detention of his associates in Persia while he was waiting here for the North German Lloyd steamer George Washington, on board of which he is proceeding to New York, said: "I know nothing of this matter, but presume that it is a continuation of the campaign of the Belgian officials to foster M. Mornard's candidacy for the treasurer-generalship of Persia by currying favor with the British Government and by attacking the Americans. My accounts were balanced to a cent with the Imperial Bank of Persia when I left on Jan. 11. I regard the charges as absurd on their face and purely political."

Forty-Six Drown.

Nagasaki, Japan, Feb. 14.—The Japanese steamers Ryoha Maru and Mori Maru were in collision off this port yesterday, and were so badly damaged that both sank almost immediately. Thirty-two of the former's crew and fourteen of the latter's were caught between decks and drowned, the remainder being rescued by steamers that witnessed the disaster.

The Ryoha Maru was a steamer of 81 tons net, built in 1878, at Hiogo, Japan, and owned by the Yoshida Keitaro, while the Mori Maru was a steamer of 1,109 tons net, built at West Hartlepool, Eng., in 1890, and owned by the Yoshida Seiko.

Serious Fire at O. A. C.

Guelph, Feb. 13.—Fire was discovered in the third floor of the Biological Building at the Ontario Agricultural College at noon yesterday.

Two alarms were turned in and both college and the city fire departments responded. Considerable damage was done, as there were valuable specimens in the building.

The cause of the fire is thought to have been short-circuiting of wires.

Fireman Lannan fell and fractured is skull.

By JOHN MARCH

Despite her secret misgivings, she lost no time in procuring Rose's services for the kindling of the midnight fires. She decided upon one in the parlour in case Paul should be unhurt and well enough to disappoint their hospitality by refusing to occupy the visitor's room. She knew Felix's role, and if Paul came wounded, bleeding, and ill, Felix would take possession of him in his usual kind, protective, ubiquitous way ,and leave her ,Agnes, the right person to see after him, entirely out in the cold. If Paul escaped comparatively uninjured and fairly well—and she hoped and prayed he might—he was perfectly competent to take care of himself. He could pass a portion of the time in the parlour and leave, as he originally intended, by the first morning train.

Still, the outlook was disquieting and terribly unconventional, though Felix was the last person in the world to wittingly harass them. If he knew; if he guessed her dilemma; his rigid sense of decency would receive a severe shock, and he would be a vast deal more distressed and nonplussed than they. Dear Felix! Dear, proper, straight-laced Felix! Dare she tell him? No ,a thousand times, no. If worse grew into worst she would rather tell Jack. Felix would storm and rage; he would accuse her of aiding abetting a fraud. He would declare her sympathies were enlisted on the side of what was licentious and low; that such purient instincts only pandered to the worst forms of depravity and vice; to a state of loose, lax morality. She knew; oh, she divined, exactly, clearly and perfectly, what Felix would say!

Bending forward impetuously with the poker she gave the fire a vicious stir, then sat erect and stared at the brilliant flame.

"Oh dear; are you safe? Don't for heaven's sake come here. If you dream of preserving your secret keep out of Felix's way."

She wandered aimlessly round the room the night was well-nigh past. She lifted the blind of the French window and peeped into the moonlit garden. She stood there, her nerves ajar, watching and waiting and listening—listening for what? Dear life, what was she listening for?

* * *

The night was dying, Rowena Wycherly would soon see its ghostly grey dawn, and he, her life's great love, had not yet come.

Not a glimmer of light shone from the windows of The Larches. The blinds were drawn, the grey stone house nestling among the trees lay wrapped in slumberous stillness striped by inky shadows traced with the moon's pencil from behind the reflected larches. The lower half of the boudoir window was open, an inch of the fluttering blind was bent back, and a pair of hazel eyes gazed stealthily down the drive and held the approach to the gate. Rowena, insufficiently clad in a cream silk evening gown, had knelt in her tedious, cramped position for hours, unmindful of the stinging bite of the wind; watching for a sign from the emissary she had despatched upon a delicate mysterious mission; a purpose that represented life or death to her—a gay laughing, dancing life; a long, hot summer of maddest love; or the void, frozen stillness of death's long winter.

At last! A shadow glanced over the intensified whiteness of the gate. It was the shade cast by the burly form of her ambassador; and he, the wary veteran of a host of rough drunken campaigns, had sworn that he would not return to The Larches alone. She shrank back, laughing softly, crouching behind the wainscot, until the crimson camellia in her hair touched the dark wood. Heavy footfalls echoed from the frozen gravel, advancing nearer and nearer, in regular monotonous precision, till they stopped suddenly beneath the boudoir window, and their welcome sound was replaced by a low, not unmusical, whistle. The smile died on her lips as she tore the blind aside, leaned out bare-necked, and looked into the upturned, brutal, drink-sodden face of the man below.

"Alone!" she gasped; "alone!"

"I met everyone on them trains," he said, in a subdued whisper, "since I sent the telegram, 'cept the larst then I went into the Goose and Gridiron for a glass, an'—an' missed the beggar."

"You good-for-nothing, drunken knave!" she exclaimed, perking out her arms with a violent gesture, indicative of an ungovernable desire to strike could she reach him. "Not one shilling, one penny; not a farthing reward—"

"Hello, milady; not so fast. Stop! I've not finished. Listen. Comin' out o' the public-house I see Pointer, an' I arsked who'd come along o' the mail, an' he says on'y one passenger—the young secretary chap from the Hall. I followed hard arter him, and I seed Miss Fleming a-lettin' of him in at the garden winder. I thought maybe yer might be weary o' waitin', so I came to tell yer he's there, an' I'm a-goin' back to watch the house."

"Perhaps he will stay there all night."

"Not he, milady. The Squire's a-bed. Miss Agnes, she couldn't keep him over the night; 'twould get to the doctor's ears. He'll go to the Hall, else to the Popinjay, and then'll come me chance."

"Bring him to me, Denham; bring him unhurt, and I'll make the one hundred pounds two."

"Good, milady. I'll bring him if I hev to fitch him out o' the Manor."

"How long do you think you will be?"

"I dunno; depends on how long he stops there."

"If you are obliged to use force, don't strike too hard, Denham. If he has to be hurt I will do it myself."

"Very good, milady. You shall hev him with a whole hide, or me name's not Joshua Denham."

The man slouched across the garden into an adjoining field, and from thence over a couple of marshes into the Squire's shrubbery, crawling round to the front hedge.

"Two hundred pound! My certy! A roarin' price for the likes o' him. With her darned beauty to entice a personable man, what can the wench want of that sickly, mealy-mouthed chap. I'm afeard virtue ain't her strong point."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Reaping the Whirlwind.

The Larches had awakened from its period of darkness and sleepy repose. Lights shone through the drawing-room windows; a curious, sensuous shade diffused itself over the mellow tinge of the pictures; over the carpet, which seemed to glow with living flowers; over the artistic taste that wrought such artful splendour from the variety of decoration adorning the room.

On a couch, drawn close to the fireplace, almost touching the marble figure of a woman veiled in her own nude beauty, Paul Farley lay, his eyes closed, his face pale, a smear of blood across one temple. Rowena knelt by his side ,bathing his forehead with Eau-de-Cologne She was crooning to him in little abrupt melodious whispers, and alternately stroking his dark hair.

"I told you not to hurt him," she said, looking at Denham, who stood awaiting further orders. "I believe you have killed him!"

"No fear, milady ;he ain't dead, nor near dead. He's a bit stunned. You see, ma'am, I were forced to give him a tap. I couldn't have carried a long chap like him a-kicking, struggling, and a-bawling; not comfortable like. You've the brandy, ma'am, and the salts; is there anything else I can get?"

"No; you can go. Take the key out of the door, and lock it after you."

Denham efficiently carried out his mistress's orders ,and remained a few minutes in a soliloquous mood on the landing, scratching his head.

"I'm blowed!" he muttered thoughtfully. And as no other inspiration was forthcoming, he repeated. "Well, there; I'm blowed!"

It took time but at length Rowena won him from his lethargy, and he awoke, first to the strange loveliness of his surroundings ,and then to the chill of her presence—to the horror of the beautiful face bending over him. He struggled to a sitting posture, and stared at her, fear and abhorrence written on every line of his face. He was terrified, and showed it. Nevertheless, Rowena met the look with a tender smile and calm melancholy grace.

"You are afraid of me. Why?"

"Because you act like a mad woman. Why behave so extraordinarily? Why resort to assault and abduction? Why outrage common decency by employing force and violence to retain me here against my will?"

"Why? Because no other method would have availed."

"Rowena, have you no self-respect; no womanly instincts; no healthy heavenly germs in your nature to beget self-abnegation, self-effacement? Is there nothing in creation, either in the heights above or in the depths below; nothing better, worthier, dearer, than yourself?"

"Nothing," she said in a hoarse voice, pent with passion, throwing herself full length on the leopard skin. "I have no more generous instincts in my nature than you have in yours. You did not scruple to deceive me ,and deceiving me, let Mr. Hare take the consequences of that deception. Itried to kill him, but I did not succeed; and I am glad, because I am at liberty to revenge myself on the real culprit I meant to kill somebody, because the thirst for blood has been on me for some time past. I only wonder I have not killed the child. You see, Paul, homicidal mania is in our family, on my father's side. It was latent in me; might have remained so, had every desire in life not been frustrated. Never, in one instance during my whole existence, have I gained one single thing upon which I set my heart and mind. I have sown affection and reaped hate. I have sown kindness and reaped treachery. Then you ask whether I have no self-effacement. Have you no sense of the ludicrous?"

He stared at the beautiful creature grovelling and plucking the fur from the rug at his feet. He was frightened and bewildered. He had no manner of doubt but that the crisis in his life had come. He was up here alone at the Larches, miles from any other habitation. Not a creature, with the exception of the drink-sodden laborer on the other side of the door and a little idiot child to hear him even if he succeeded in b aking the windows and shouting. Had his sin been so great as to warrant a violent death at the hand of a maniac? Possibly; was he not holding the safety of three perhaps four lives in the hollow of his hand? Why had he persisted in the disguise which had wrought misery and catastrophe to the homes of those who had taken him on trust, and been kind to him?

If the horror were coming, he hoped it would come soon. There was little use in prolonging the agony, though Felix was alive, and naturally he now wished to live. And this was his punishment—no doubt well earned: Never to be able to tell them he was sorry—sorry for the grief he had caused those dear friends. They would find out. Agnes in her distress, would cling to all that was left of him. He would become a painful memory to those he loved, especially to one for whom he would have laid down his life. He had never intended to see Felix again. He had been determined on that score. But to be in the world and to know that Felix, too, was there. To hear of him. To think of him. To dream of him, would be a God-given boon; would, ah. Rowena's hands were creeping upwards and he feared that they were coming about his neck.

He sprang to his feet, unwisely acting under the influence of his intense dislike to her caressing touch.

She obeyed immediately, and, flushed with success, he added: "Now, open the door."

"Never," she whispered with a cunning Laugh. "You are my prisoner. Paul. My stolen property. I am going to keep you here."

"You can't. Some one will surely come," he creid, goaded to desperation by the expression in her eyes. "I will break every window in the house if you don't open the door."

"Do it," she said, looking at him admiringly. You are at liberty to wreck the contents of the room. You shall do anything you please; anything that amuses you. If you consider the old china and bric-a-brac worthy of your strength I shall feel they were worth the mint of money they cost and of some practical use at last. Here," she screamed excitedly, diving beneath an ebony cabinet and bringing out a pair of small revolvers, "I know a better game than that—let us shoot."

She laughed mirthfully with something of the old childish lik in the laugh.

"I don't want to shoot," he said. trying to be calm and pressing her down into her chair; "I only want one thing. I want—dear Rowena, will you let me go?"

"There is nothing else I could deny you. I can't let you go. I should never see you again, and then I might as well be dead? Yes, let's both be dead. You first, then I."

She sat smiling at him. He had his hand on her shoulder. He was trembling in every limb and terribly upset. He had not the slightest idea what he was saying but he was talking to her in a persuasive, soothing tone, when she raised her hand and pointed the muzzle of the weapon close to his face.

"Stand still; let me kill you; or, sit down, if you like. I can aim straight.

It had come then, the crucial, the awful moment had come. He staggered back into his chair, panting, half swooning, wondering in a vague, silly way at the curious scuffling in the fold of the curtain behind him. The next instant a ringing yell made his blood run cold. It forced open his eyes, and he saw something white dash past, to spring with the agility of a panther on to the lap of the woman opposite him. With the impact the revolver kicked and simultaneously with the stinging pain in his left thumb, he heard a hoarse, tuneless voice shrieking: "She shan't hurt you man, kind man. The goat shall hurt her; the goat shall hurt her; like she hurts me—so—so—so!"

Half fainting, half dazed, and full of excruciating pain, he stared at the horrible scene before him. Guy's red bony fingers were fastened round his mother's slim white neck. He clung there, shrieking to Paul to run away, to hide himself now, while the goat held her. The woman struggled to her feet and tried desperately to throw him off. She struck sickening blows at him with the butt end of the revolver; she scratched ,fought, writhed, lost her balance, and fell back in her chair with the strong fingers locked, smelted into an iron grip by the frenzy of the mad paroxysm consuming him.

Several times Paul essayed to rise from his chair. He had a confused idea that he could persuade the boy to leave hold, to let go his choking, gurgling victim. But constant anxiety and loss of nerve power, combined with this present supreme horror had completed their work; he was powerless to move or speak, utterly unable to interfere between the rocking creatures, the yelling boy and the gurgling woman.

The beating of the jewelled hands gradually became more feeble, the face lost its marvellous beauty, the passionate heaving of the full white bosom grew less, and watching against his will the awful agony, the revolting torture, he fainted.

How long he remained unconscious he was unable to conjecture; but slowing regaining his senses he awoke to a strange, weird stillness. The fire had burned hollow, the boy's screaming had ceased; nevertheless, he still clung tenaciously to the stiff upright figure of a woman whose crown of corn-colored hair coiled and waved above a dead, black, distorted face.

He closed his eyes; he felt sick, ill, almost dying; his teeth chattered,and he shook with the chill of the fast-cooling room, with the cold atmosphere that was forming, circling round the rigid corpse.

"Oh, heavens; was he to be locked in there to stare forever at that hideous sight?

Hark! There were voices outside; someone had wondered at the prolonged silence; someone was coming to see if all were right, as it should be. The key grated in the lock, the handle was wrung round by a powerful hand, the door flung open, and three men trooped in. Felix was foremost. He looked at the frightful shape of death with the boy kneeling on its stiffening lap, uttered an exclamation of amazed horror, and hastened across the room to Paul.

"Are you hurt?" he said briefly.

He said something in response; he did not know what. He was ill, weak, wounded, utterly broken down and cowed. Seeing through a blurred mist the face of his deliver he just raised his arms feebly and clung to Felix's neck.

"Oh, Felix, dear Felix," he said, tearfully, "get me out of this room."

"I will; don't give way yet, there's a good fellow. The boy strangled her."

"She was going to shoot me—the boy has a liking for me—he came from—somewhere and—did that."

"Ralph!" the squire said, without turning, "give Mr. Farley your arm and walk back with him to the Manor, then take the cab and go for Dr. Hunter."

"As to you, Denham," he added. when the door closed, "you skulking fool; you abominable brute and kidnapper; separate those two!"

The severance was appalling. Guy's lust of hate, the reaping of the dislike, the unkindness, neglect, heaped upon him; sown broadcast across his poor life, and culminating in one ungovernable desire for vengeance, apparently was not even yet sated, and he absolutely refused to give up his ghastly prey.

Crippled With Sore Back

Kidneys Were Badly Diseased and She Didn't Know It

Was Completely Cured by Less Than Three Boxes of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Women are very often deceived and mistaken in regard ot kidney disease. The pains in the back are attributed to other derangements, and kidney disease is allowed to run on and on until beyond the reach of medical science.

There is needless suffering, and life itself is risked, because backache is not recognized as the most marked symptom of kidney disease.

There is no treatment which so quickly relieves and cures kidney pains in the back as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. As proof of this read Mrs. Patterson's letter:

Mrs. Richard Patterson, Haldimand, Gaspe Co., Que., writes: "I will gladly say that I was cured of kidney trouble by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. When I began using this medicine I was crippled with sore back and did not know what was the trouble. In looking over Dr. Chase's Almanac I saw Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills advertised and decided to try them.

"I had not used two boxes before my back was all right, and before I had completed the third box was entirely cured. There has been no return of the old kidney trouble, and I therefore believe the cure to be permanent."

One pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers, or Edmandson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Itching and Burning on Face and Throat

Sores Disfigured So He Dreaded to Appear in Public, No Rest Night or Day. Cuticura Ointment Cured.

"Six months ago my face and throat all broke out and turned into a running sore. I did not bother about it at first, but in one week's time the disease had spread so rapidly over my face and throat and the burning itching sores became so painful that I began to seek relief in different medicines, but none seemed to give me any relief. The sores disfigured my face to such an extent that I dreaded to appear in public.

"I suffered terribly and could get no rest night or day. At last a friend advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I had about given up hope, but thought I would have one more try, and so I used a little Cuticura Ointment, and it helped me from the start. I continued using it and in six weeks' time was completely cured, and can say I would advise anyone suffering from skin disease to use Cuticura Ointment, as it is the best healing balm in the world." (Signed) Roscoe Good, Seven Persons, Alta., Feb. 18, 1911.

FOUND RELIEF ONLY FROM CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little girl when only a few weeks old broke out on the top of her head and it became a solid scab. Then her cheeks became raw and sore and after trying different remedies found relief only from using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It lasted six months or more, but after a thorough treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment never had any return." (Signed) Mrs. W. S. Owen, Yadkin College, N. C., May 26, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most successful treatment for skin and scalp troubles of infants, children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 54 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

Health Declines When Kidneys Fail

After experimenting for nearly 30 years Dr. Hamilton discovered an absolute specific for weak kidneys. His pills of mandrake and buttermut cure permanently.

Can you afford to delay? No, your interest compels you to use this certain cure now—to-day. Only take Dr Hamilton's Pills, and an absolute recovery is guaranteed. In thousands of cases relief has been instantaneous. Such was the experience of James G. Gordon of Marysville.

TWENTY YEARS A SUFFERER.

"My kidneys bothered me for twenty years. I had gnawing pains in the back and my limbs ached with weariness all the time. My digestion was poor, and had specks before my eyes.

"Dr. Hamilton's Pills helped me from the first day. Relief was immediate. They restored me, and my health's better than ever."

Hamilton's Pills Cure

All complaints kindred to kidney disease are prevented by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Their use insures you against Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and liver trouble. No house should be without such a valuable medicine. Sold everywhere by druggists, 25c per box, or five for $1.00.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

Thomas William Burgess, who swam the English Channel, was born at Rotherham forty years ago. He began life as a blacksmith, and when only fifteen left England and settled in Paris, becoming a naturalized Frenchman. He manages a pneumatic tire business.

He is a splendidly built man, fully six feet in height, with huge shoulders, chest and limbs. Swimming has always been his favourite pastime, and he has won many races in France.

The following incident will serve to illustrate the nature of the man: On August 28 he spent six hours in the water as a kind of preliminary canter. The conditions were not favourable and there was really no serious intention of getting across the Channel.

Two days later he made his great effort. On August 30 and 31 Burgess covered no fewer than forty-two miles and was in the water eighteen hours. He was four and a quarter miles off the French coast when he gave up owing to cramp and sickness, but once he was on board the tug he seemed as fit as ever.

The hotel at Dover was reached about three in the morning, and at 7.30 Burgess, having refreshed himself with sleep, was eating a mighty breakfast. Walking on the front later in the morning, the idea occurred to him that a swim in the bay would be a refreshing novelty, and he actually went in, challenging and beating a local champion in a sprint with the trudgeon stroke.

TEARS ON LANDING.

Mr. Weidman, the Dover swimmer, described the end of the great feat as follows:

"It was rather a funny thing. When we got near the shore I jumped overboard and swam with Bill and urged him on for all he was worth. We gradually got on shore, and when the water was about up to my knees I said to him, 'Bill, just put your feet down.' Gradually he got his feet down and stood upright. Then he staggered and was about to fall, but I said to him, 'Take it easy, Bill. There is plenty of time. Be careful.' He nearly fell, and I caught him and helped him up the sand banks and laid him down.

"Why, he started crying like a child. This fairly upset me, and I began to cry, too. When he got right ashore I said to him, 'Bill, you have saved me a big job, because you see I had set my mind on having a try at the Channel myself.'"

SOME WHO HAVE TRIED.

The list of attempts to rival Captain Webb's feat is a monument to pluck and skill. Over and over again have some of the swimmers tried, only to have success snatched away when it was almost in their grasp. Particularly notable are the efforts of Jabez Wolffe and Montague Holbein. Some of the most notable attempts have been:

1901—Aug. 24 and 25: Montague Holbein's first attempt. Starting from Cape Grisnez, he swam to five miles of England, and gave up. In the water for twelve hours forty-six minutes.

1902—July 31: Holbein started from France, and swam for twelve and a half hours, covering about thirty miles.

1902—Aug. 27 and 28: Holbein started from Cape Grisnez, and swam to within one mile of England.

1904—Sept. 7: Burgess's first attempt. Swam fifteen miles in eight hours, in a rough sea, and gave up within six miles of France.

1905—July 28: Burgess swam to within four and a half miles of Calais. Was in the water for twelve and a half hours.

1905—Aug. 24: Miss A. Kellerman swam for six hours twenty-two minutes.

1906—July 18: Wolffe's first attempt. Swam for ten hours, and got within five miles of France.

1906—Aug. 30: Burgess swam and drifted forty-two miles in eighteen hours.

1907—Aug. 5: Wolffe was in the water fifteen and a half hours, covering forty miles, and got within three-quarters of a mile from Cape Grisnez.

1907—Aug. 5: Heaton swam for ten and a half hours, and got within four miles of French coast.

1907—Sept. 16: Wolffe swam for eleven and a half hours, and got within two miles of French coast.

1908—July 6: Wolffe swam for fourteen hours, and got within three miles of France.

1908—Aug. 17-18: Burgess swam within one mile of Cape Grisnez, after swimming fifty miles in twenty hours.

1908—Sept. 19: Wolffe swam for nearly fifteen hours, and got within 440 yards of French coast.

1911—Aug. 28: Heaton swam for seventeen hours, and got within one and a half miles of the French coast.

1911—July 21-22: Wolffe started from French coast, swam for fifteen and a half hours, and reached within 800 yards of the English shore. Distance covered during swim thirty-three miles.

1911—Sept. 2-3: Wolffe swam for fourteen and a quarter hours. Started from Sangatte, and reached within a mile of St. Margaret's Bay.

WEBB'S PERFORMANCE.

It was in August, 1875, that Captain Matthew Webb announced his intention of attempting to swim the Channel. In the same year Captain Paul Boynton had paddled across in a patent life-saving suit, but that was a very different sort of thing to what Webb proposed doing. Three years previously, too, J. B. Johnson made an attempt to swim from England to France, but it ended in a fiasco.

Webb started on August 12, but failed, mainly owing to being carried nine miles out of his course. On the 24th he made another attempt. He dived from the end of the Admiralty Pier, Dover, at one in the afternoon, the sea being calm and warm. At midnight he was thirteen and a half miles from his starting point, while by nine the next morning he was within three miles of Calais.

Two hours later he landed on Calais sands opposite the bathing establishment, having been twenty-one hours and forty minutes in the water. His only mishap was being stung (as was Stearne on his recent attempt) on the shoulder by a jelly fish. Soon he was in bed, "tired out, but happy," as a report at the time put it.

Webb at the time was twenty-seven and a half years old, his chest measuring 40 1-2 inches, his height was 5 feet 8 inches, and he weighed 204 pounds pounds.

WHEN THE WATERS RAN COLD

(Short Story.)

The month was January, and the winter was a bitterly cold one. We were living in Waterloo, Iowa, then, and father was driving a dray. I was only four years old at the time, yet some of the circumstances I am about to relate fastened themselves indelibly on my memory, and furnish a setting of remembrance round which the story of father's adventure, as I have often heard him describe it, gathered until it became one distinct whole.

Father's dray was one of those two-wheeled vehicles still to be seen in the eastern cities of our country, but now very rare in the west. Old Frank, father's trusty dray horse, was a large bay, intelligent, faithful and obedient. The day was one of the coldest of that winter. The sky was cloudless, and a strong gale blew from the north-west. So piercingly cold was the day that no other teamster had ventured out, and few pedestrians were to be seen.

Father was kept very busy throughout the forenoon. Finally but a single job remained to be done before Old Frank could be put in the barn and father go to a belated dinner. Someone wanted a load of ice. Father drove to the bank of the river, above the dam, where the ice harvesters had been at work. The Cedar river at Waterloo is a considerable stream, and is now crossed by several five-span iron bridges. At that time it was crossed by but a single wooden structure.

The place where father went for his load was deserted by the ice harvesters. The river here stretched away for a mile or two to the north-west and down this stretch the wind, unhindered, seemed almost to double its speed and keenness. The bank sloped gently down to the edge of the water. Here father backed up his dray to within a few feet of the ice and left his horse standing, while he prepared to cut and load the ice. It was but a few inches thick where he began splitting off cakes of it with his axe.

He was making rapid headway with his work, and had secured and loaded nearly as much as he wanted, when a considerably larger piece split off than he had anticipated, including the portion on which he stood. Taken by surprise, he was precipitated into the water, which at this point was ten feet or more in depth, with a strong current. He was clothed to the point of clumsiness. He wore a heavy overcoat, with a strap or belt tied round it, a heavy cap and a pair of thick sheep-skin mittens. He came up somewhat farther out in the stream than where he had gone down, and nearer thinner ice. He soon succeeded in throwing his hands over the edge of the thin ice, his mittens freezing fast instantly.

Then he found that he could maintain himself in this position for an indefinite period, although the strength of the current constantly drew his legs downstream and up under the ice to which he was clinging. To have clung thus until help could arrive would have been a comparatively easy matter under ordinary circumstances.

But although he was in plain sight of the flour mills on each side of the river, and within possible hailing distance of the bridge which spanned the river below the dam, and in sight of perhaps a dozen houses, no person was visible. The small chance of anyone appearing on this bitterly cold day was even smaller at this particular time, as people generally were at their midday meal.

Father made an effort to raise himself up on the ice to which he was clinging. But at once it broke, and he was again submerged. There was the gravest danger that before he could again secure a hold on the treacherously thin ice he would be drawn under the thicker ice. He pulled his hands out of his mittens, and again succeeded in anchoring himself to the thin ice. He paused only long enough to get his breath before making another attempt to escape, for his case was fast becoming desperate. The cutting chill of the air and water was making him numb, and still more helpless than the burden of his clothing rendered him. Several times, however, in the next few desperate moments did the splintering ice break his hold and each time he was fortunate enough to get a new hold before being drawn under. While working thus he drew nearer, partly by design to the river bank, where the faithful old horse was standing.

At last an inspiration seized him, and knowing how well the horse obeyed his least word, he called to old Frank to back up. The old horse backed a few steps in a slow and deliberate manner. Father watched with keen anxiety, lest he back too far, and dray, horse and all be precipitated into the icy stream. But his fears were groundless, for when the dray was as near the edge of the ice as father dared risk having it come, the horse stopped at a word of command.

For the now thoroughly chilled man to make a few desperate lunges toward the shore and the wheel of the dray did not require long. By great good fortune he succeeded in reaching the thicker ice near the shore without being wholly cast adrift from the thinner ice in his progress shoreward. Then by one last supreme effort he lunged far enough forward to grasp the dray wheel with one hand. With that leverage he drew himself enough farther to get hold with the other hand also.

So exhausted and chilled was he by this time that with the upper portion of his body resting over the edge of the solid ice and his hands holding to the wheel, he would scarcely have had power to draw himself out of the water. But taking a firm grasp of the wheel as possible, he chirruped for the horse to go ahead, and again the animal responded, and father was dragged from his icy bath.

Summoning all his strength and will power he succeeded in gaining his feet. Knowing that he must get home at once, and that if possible he must walk rather than ride, in order to avoid being utterly chilled and seriously frozen, he started the horse homeward and staggered along as best he could. I was home and happened to be anxiously peering out of the window in the hope of seeing father, whom we had been expecting. Finally my eyes beheld a sight which I shall never forget.

Up the street a block or two was old Frank, coming home with the dray, and on the sidewalk came a man whom, in spite of his condition, I recognized as father. His clothing was frozen stiff, while from all over him hung icicles, literally by the hundred. He reached the house and soon made a change of apparel. Remarkable as it may seem, he was not seriously frozen anywhere, nor did he suffer any particular inconvenience afterwards as a result of his involuntary and somewhat prolonged plunge bath.

SUREST TONIC IN THE WORLD

IS "FRUIT-A-TIVES" THE GREAT FRUIT MEDICINE

Like fruit juices, "Fruit-a-tives" acts on the great blood purifying organs of the body—namely the liver, bowels, kidneys and skin, and stimulates all these parts to increased activity. The splendid nerve tonics and intestinal antiseptics, combined with the intensified fruit juices, make "Fruit-a-tives" the finest of nerve tonics.

On the stomach, "Fruit-a-tives" acts as a soothing tonic and allays all irritation.

By purifying the blood—strengthening the nervous system and regulating kidneys, bowels and skin—"Fruit-a-tives" builds up the whole system as nothing else will.

"Fruit-a-tives" is a really wonderful medicine—being made directly from fresh fruit—and is the intensified juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit. It is mild in action—pleasant to take—and is a tonic of inestimable value.

CUSTOM IN TABLE SERVICE

The refinement of a family is plainly indicated at the dinner table. With the present high prices of living the mistress of the house may not be able to afford expensive appointments or elaborate meals, but all the arrangements should be fresh and dainty and everything good of its kind. In America we have a preference for fair, white linen, yet it is better to use a clean, white oilcloth and paper napkins rather than soiled damask. In French chateaux inhabited by families of aristocratic pretensions the former is sometimes found. For camping out it is very convenient.

If the table is in good condition, linen place doilies and centerpiece are much used for breakfast and luncheon and occasionally for dinner. These should be all white, according to the present fashion. A plain white napkin should be placed under the meat platter if the meat is carved on the table. For dinner a fine white damask cloth never goes out of fashion. Elaborate lace trimmed affairs are sometimes used for luncheons. A cotton flannel "silence" cloth protects the table from the heat of the dishes and makes the upper cloth lie more smoothly. Cotton flannel disks or pads are often put beneath place doilies.

Napkins were formerly ironed in halves and quarters, but according to a new fashion they are folded in such a way as to form three divisions, perhaps because this makes them look larger. Napkin rings are out of fashion, as people are not supposed to use the same napkin twice. Many people cannot afford the large wash which this entails. For dinner napkins of generous size are used, smaller ones sufficing for breakfast and lunch.

Silk and satin decorations have had their day. They are seldom seen now and in good taste, because we instinctively feel that all table ornaments should be of washable material, since they are liable to become soiled.

Only so much silverware should be used as can be kept bright and shining. China or glass should be substituted for the rest. Nothing looks more desolate than a tarnished silver tea set or butter dish.

It is now thought extremely inelegant to place toothpicks on the table or, indeed, to use them in public. Yet we read that when these were first introduced into England, some three or four centuries ago, those who used them were thought over-fastidious! The spoon tumbler also is now frowned upon. It is better to place on the table at each place the spoon needed for the first course, a table or soup-spoon for dinner, and a dessert or large teaspoon at lunch when bouillon cups are properly used. The spoons needed for the later courses should be ready on the side table. At breakfast a teaspoon is placed beside each tea or coffee cup. The old fashioned casters are seen principally in old curiosity shops. It is thought better to have the dishes properly flavored in the cooking. Bottles of catsup and Worcestershire sauce look ugly on the table.

Salt cellars with spoons, rather than salt sprinklers, should be used in private houses. The latter are very appropriate in hotels and restaurants, where they reassure the consumer as to the pristine condition of the salt.

Everything should be cleared away between meals. To see a table always set at all hours of the day and night looks too much like a boarding house.

The plates and glasses should be put at each place, with the right side up. It is not thought good form to put a whole pile of plates before the master or mistress of the house. They should, of course, be warmed for a hot meal or fish course. For late dinner soup plates should be used.

Will Be Returned

CHICAGO, FEB. 3.—The sum of $3,000, advance sales for a concert by Jan Kubelik, will be returned. He was to have appeared to-day in a big programme, but while manicuring his nails, the file slipped and cut under the nail of one of the fingers that produce his artistic triumphs. So he has "hung up the fiddle and the bow."

Kubelik will collect heavy finger insurance for the file accident. His 10 digits are insured in Lloyd's for a total of $235,000 or at the rate of $23,500 a finger. The company made no discrimination as to digits. There is a difference in the fingers on the matter of artistic education, but all looked alike to Lloyd's.

Under the terms of his policy Kubelik is entitled to all his expenses while his finger is in bandages and all the money he would have received from his engagements. As engagements in Milwaukee and Madison, Wis., were cancelled to-night the insurance company will be liable for a round sum.

The next question is who is responsible for the losses of the managers with whom Kubelik contracted to appear.

The Orchestra Hall management lost $3,000 here and the cancellations in Milwaukee and Madison mean additional losses. If Lloyd's must settle these losses the total will approximate the full insurance on the finger.

Kubelik cannot, he says, do justice to himself with his sore digit. Besides, it is painful.

"I was about to go to a manicure," he said, "but I was in a hurry and here it is."

He held up the index finger of his left hand. It was dressed in cotton antiseptic. A number of concerts in other cities also will have to be postponed.

HORSE'S LEG SWELLED

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by "Nerviline."

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. "I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

Nerviline is a Trusty Liniment

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters, recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large bottles of Nerviline 50c; trial size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet
For Schools, Hotels, Banks and Private Residences

Heretofore it has been impossible to install a Sanitary System of inside closet without water works and sewage, and you will agree with us when we say that the present outdoor system of closets are not only very insanitary, but are at the same time one of the most fruitful sources of both moral and physical ills.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet is constructed principally for families and public bodies who live in a district where it is impossible to have waterworks and sewage. It can be placed in any part of a Residence, Store, School, Hotel, Bank, etc.

We have secured the Agency for this valuable Sanitary Closet, and invite investigation of its merits.

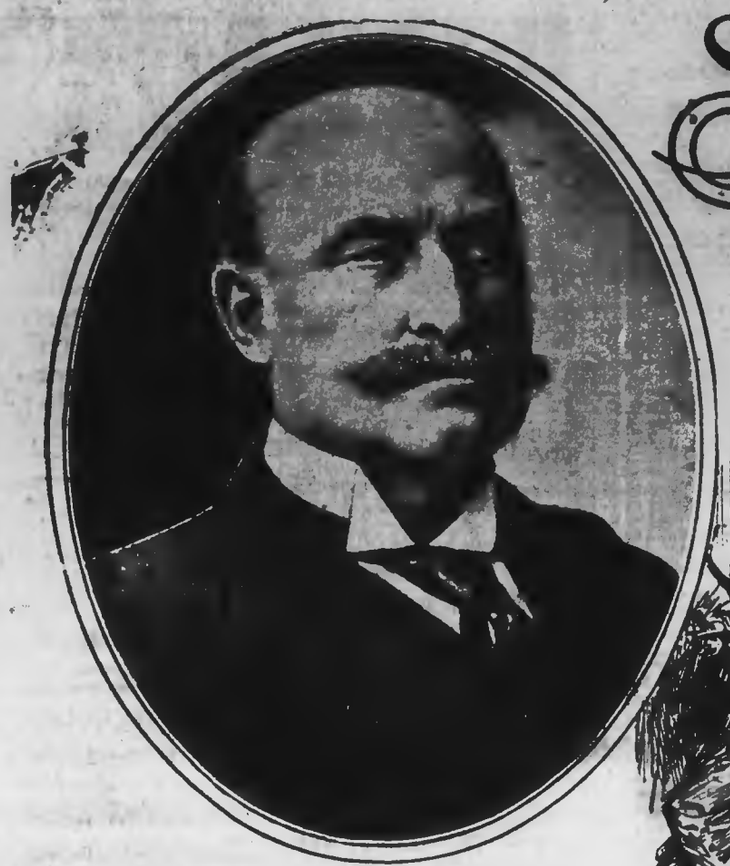
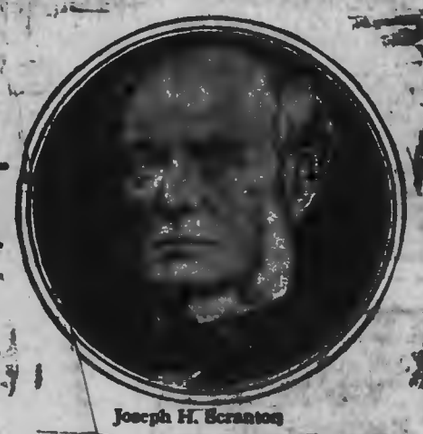
SCRANTON of SCRANTON

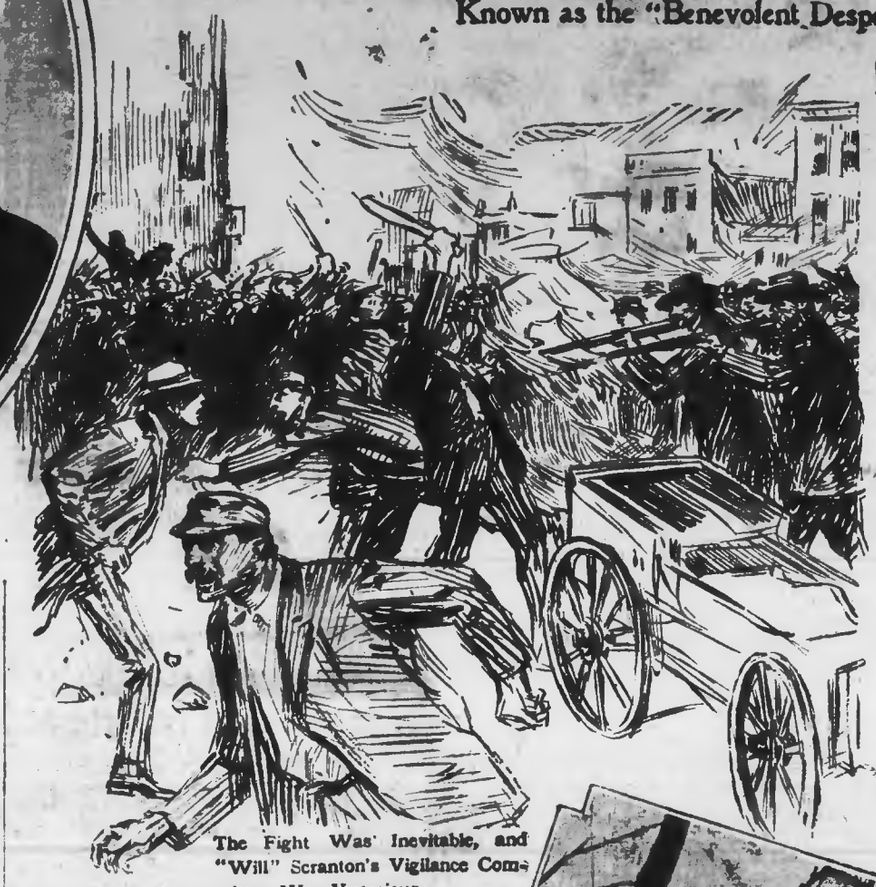
Personality of the Man Who Is the Dominant Figure in the Rich Pennsylvania City— Known as the "Benevolent Despot"



William W. Scranton



Joseph H. Scranton



The Fight Was Inevitable, and "Will" Scranton's Vigilance Committee Was Victorious.

William W. Scranton's Residence.

VIRTUALLY a feudal lord transplanted from the age of chivalry to the twentieth century is William W. Scranton, of Scranton, Pa.

A "benevolent despot" he is called by those familiar with his affairs;" "a mediaeval baron at once the very soul of the community about him, yet apart from it all."

He is a strange mixture of relentless strength, thoughtful benevolence and absolute justice, described by this comparison made by his friends.

"Well, well! What is it?" he said brusquely, almost antagonistically, to a reporter whom he received in his private office in the building of the Scranton Gas and Water Company.

Then, almost in the same breath, added hospitably, "Take a chair. Here—near the fire, where it is warm."

There were half a dozen boys in the outer office, but Mr. Scranton, worth more than twenty million dollars, did not ring for one. He went to the wood bin, selected a suitable fagot and placed it himself on the hearth, then raked aside some dead ashes.

In response to the explanation of the reporter's visit, "O, there isn't much to say about me," he said, straightening to his six feet two inches of height and brushing his ash dusted hands together. "My father was the man, the one who did things. The city was named after him and his two cousins; at least, they named it after themselves. The city had nothing to say about it," he added, laughingly, "for they owned it."

"William Henry was the first to come here to work the iron mines. He induced his son-in-law, Selden T. Scranton, to join him, and later Selden's cousin, Colonel George W. Scranton. It was an uphill fight, and Colonel Scranton persuaded my father, Joseph Hand Scranton, to put money into the scheme. My father came here from Augusta, Ga., to look after his capital, and he stayed here.

"He was a hard worker and a man with brains, Joseph H. was, and from 1853 to the time of his death was manager of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company. He was also the first president of the First National Bank of Scranton and president of the Gas and Water company. After his death I was manager of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company, and at one time owned the Scranton Steel Company, which I incorporated myself, but after consolidation with the Lackawanna Iron and Steel Company I confined myself to the Gas and Water company, which my father had started. That is the only enterprise in which I am actively interested at present."

A Fighter from Youth.

On the achievements of his father and his work in developing the city Mr. Scranton spoke freely, but a reserve for which he is noted constrained him from talking of himself. Yet his has been a spectacular career, and the sixty-eight years of his life, more especially the forty-seven of his business life, are coincident with the rearing of a city of more than one hundred thousand souls in a wilderness of rock and scrubby forests.

William W. Scranton has always been a fighter. He inherits it from his father, he says, and conditions of his early life fostered this spirit. He was educated at the Scranton High School and at Phillips Andover Academy, and though his father was then worth his millions the young man was allowed to cultivate none of the enervating habits frequent among the sons of wealthy men. He was sent to Yale, but he went to the university with no doubt in his mind of what was expected of him there. He went there to work, and to work hard both outdoors and in. His wonderful physical strength and stamina made him excel in athletics, and he was bow oar and steersman of the famous Wilbur Baron four oared crew at Yale, the first to beat Harvard for two consecutive years in the university races.

He graduated in 1865 and returned to Scranton to work in the puddling furnace of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company.

"My father was manager of the company," he said, "but he had the right idea. I did not go directly into the office to mismanage affairs and endanger the business he had built up with years of wearing labor and much invested capital. I went to puddling, and the very knowledge of that simple process of puddling, together with sound and powerful muscles, afterward netted me hundreds of thousands of dollars."

When he was proficient in puddling young Scranton went into the rolling mills and from one department of the works to another until he knew the iron business from the ground up.

After two years as a laborer he was made superintendent of the puddling mill, and in 1871 superintendent of all mills and assistant to the president. Three years after that, his father having died, he was made general manager of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company.

A trip through Europe opened his eyes to the laxity of manufacturing methods employed in America, and he began extensive improvements to the Lackawanna plant. William Scranton never spares expense to accomplish what he believes will better his business, and he cannot bear to work with anything which is not the best. In rapid succession he raised and enlarged the blast furnaces, constructed new blast engines and housed them in a separate building, and installed rapid direct acting engines at one of the largest mine shafts, which made it possible to lift 2,000 tons of iron ore in a day instead of 400 tons with the old fashioned engines.

Threatened by Strikers.

It was in 1877, while he was manager of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company, that William Scranton was called upon to fight in earnest, and he was not found backward. On July 24 of that year the workers in the rolling mills walked out and were joined by the men from the machine shops, the puddling mills and the mines. The men in a body marched to Scranton's office. The mob was unruly and threatening, but the manager received them coolly in his office. Friends had pleaded with him to escape by horseback, but he ignored them and said he "guessed he'd kind of talk it over with them."

He had already learned the verdict of the company regarding the demands of the strikers, and "talking it over" meant telling the men that their demands would not be met.

The leaders threatened, but Scranton, surrounded by hundreds of angry men, sat at his desk toying with a heavy inkwell.

"There was something suggestive about the way his ironlike, sinewy fingers caressed the inkwell," says one who was present. "It somehow made it appear like a missile."

"I am no judge as to whether the demands of you men are just," said Scranton as an ultimatum, "but I flatly refuse to concede to them. This is by order of the company. They state that they are unable to meet your demands."

That was the end of the conference. The men threatened, but Scranton sat there immutable, unafraid. To their threat to burn the company's general store he replied by swearing in thirty special policemen armed with rifles, who guarded the store.

The ranks of the strikers swelled. There were whisperings of secret meetings in Father Mathew Hall, the Hall of the Good Templars, Washington Hall and other places. The city was in a state of terrorism and the younger men were banded into a vigilance committee, of which William Scranton was the leader.

At a public meeting of more than three thousand strikers on the flats near the old silk mills a resolution was read alleging that William Scranton had stated he would have all the men he wanted before winter working for him at thirty-five cents a day and living on mush and molasses.

Victorious Vigilance Committee.

"To the blast furnaces!" yelled some one. There the workers fled from the mob. Then the strikers marched to the car shops of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, where some of the men joined them and others fled. Father Dunn, a Catholic priest, was among them trying to restrain them, but they marched on through Washington avenue.

Mayor McKune rushed into the crowd and tried to dissuade the men from violence, but he was knocked down by a stone which struck him in the head, and several hit him with sticks. Father Dunn fought his way to the Mayor's side and protected him. The strikers marched on through Washington avenue toward Lackawanna avenue, with the Mayor, escorted by two of their number, in the van shouting:—

"Close up all your shops!"

At the intersection of the two avenues a number of the vigilance committee, William Scranton at their head, were waiting. The regular police, the Mayor and many of the leaders urged the mob to disperse. On they marched. There was a quiver in the ranks of the vigilance committee as though they would have given ground, but the leader was firm. It was a question of mob rule or order. The militia was engaged at Binghamton and Pittsburg, and on the vigilance committee depended the safety of the city.

Sticks and stones began to fly from the ranks of the mob, swelled by hundreds of strike sympathizers, who are accredited with causing most of the trouble. There was a flash over the heads of the leaders of the strikers. Then another and another. None heard an order given to the vigilance committee, but some of the members fired into the mob. It was too late then to retract. The fight was inevitable, and "Will" Scranton's vigilance committee was victorious. Three of the strikers were killed.

Shortly after the end of the great strike William Scranton came to an open break with the directors of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company. There was no dissatisfaction with the man himself, but the directors did not approve of his programme of improvement.

"All right," said Scranton. "If you gentlemen do not wish to make steel rails by modern, cheap methods I will make them myself and show you how it is done, to your own cost."

So he went to Germany to study the Bessemer process of steel making, but the secrets of the system were not to be bought. That is where William Scranton's broad back and knowledge of puddling proved of intrinsic value. He spoke German as well as any Teuton, and, dressing as a laborer, he sought work in one of the great Bessemer plants. After he had worked long enough as a puddler to learn all there was to be known in that department he went to another plant and obtained work in a different department. When he felt he could return to America and build a plant of his own he hired one of the best German engineers and, after a skirmish with the German authorities, who tried to cause his arrest, went back to Scranton.

First Complete Steel Works.

Then followed an example of the ability and the tactical genius of the man. Four years after he had put the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company on a paying basis—for labor troubles and mismanagement had brought about a sad financial condition after the death of his father—he had built a complete and modern plant for the manufacture of steel rails within a mile of the old company's works.

It was the first Bessemer steel works and the first complete factory for the making of steel rails in America, and in a few years, although it remained the private property of one man, was rated fourth of the eleven Bessemer plants in the country.

The new works were called the Scranton Steel Company, and steel rails were turned out so well and so cheaply that the owner was able to undersell the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company and forced that company to make advances with a view to consolidation.

William Scranton held out until he obtained terms which were satisfactory, and the two companies were merged in the Lackawanna Iron and Steel Company.

Meanwhile William Scranton had become president of the Scranton Gas and Water Company, which had been founded by his father and a Dr. Benjamin H. Throop. His reservoirs were the only available water supply for the new company, so that William Scranton sold thousands of dollars' worth of water yearly to the concern. He made his own price and refused to lower it even when the Lackawanna Iron and Steel Company removed their plant to Buffalo because water cost them so much. He still holds stock in the company, although he is not active in its affairs.

It is a case of the way in which the interests of the Scrantons usually dovetail one into another. Both with William Scranton and his father, Joseph H. Scranton, it has always been. One thing at a time, but get all there is out of that one thing. It is because of his father's teaching that William Scranton confines his energies to the gas and water company.

"I believe as does Andrew Carnegie," he says, "that it is best to keep all your eggs in one basket. But you want to watch that basket as a baseball fan does the bulletin board."

The waterworks, which is the largest privately owned plant of its kind in the country, is the result of the foresightedness of Joseph H. Scranton in conjunction with a private quarrel in which his friend Dr. Throop and Martin L. Newman figured.

In the early days of the city of Scranton there were but few springs, and wells were scarce. Rather than dig wells most of the residents and the manufacturing plants purchased water from Newman at the rate of a cent a gallon. Dr. Throop had but little practice in the early days, because the out of door life of the Scrantonians was so conducive to good health. To increase his budget the physician carried on a lucrative trade in milk. Perhaps this was not the reason, but it is certain that he did considerable business with Newman, the water merchant. Newman became suspicious that Dr. Throop was making a much greater profit on the water than he was at a cent a gallon, and raised the price. This led to an altercation in Dr. Throop's yard and he ordered Newman from the premises.

Beginning of Water Works.

"I'll fix your water business!" he yelled after Newman. "Not another cent will you get out of this town for water."

Less than half an hour later a tramp stopped at the physician's house to ask if he could find work for him.

"From your accent I guess you are an Englishman, aren't you?" asked Dr. Throop.

"Yes," said the man.

"Then you may know something about digging wells."

"Yes, sir; it was my trade."

"You are the man for me," said Dr. Throop. "I will give you all the work you want."

So he set the Englishman to digging a well on his land at thirty cents a day. While the work was progressing he suggested to Joseph H. Scranton that they form a company, lay pipes to dwellings and factories and supply water more cheaply than Newman was doing.

The company was formed with Scranton's money, being capitalized for $25,000 with a privilege to raise it to $75,000. A chain of wells was sunk, but it was found necessary to use the Lackawanna River. At that time it was possible to use the river water for drinking, but it has lately become so polluted with sulphuric acid from the mines that it is useless and an iron pipe placed in the river will be quickly eaten away.

That was the beginning of the water company which made Dr. Throop the possessor of millions of dollars and laid the foundation for the great plant now operated by William Scranton. When he became president of the water company, in 1879, he had only one small reservoir and the system had a reserve capacity of thirty million gallons. It could supply four million gallons of water a day, and is valued at more than $10,000,000.

It has now, independent of the lakes recently purchased from the Consolidated Water Supply Company, a reserve capacity of more than six thousand million (6,000,000,000) gallons in twenty reservoirs and is capable of delivering thirty million gallons of water a day.

Recently William Scranton constructed ten miles of fine macadamized roads traversing his property near the lakes from which the water is supplied. All the roads connect with the main turnpike, which is owned by a corporation and for the use of which a toll is charged. The roads constructed by Mr. Scranton at an expense of more than $125,000 are free to the public and have opened a vast park to the city of Scranton. An attempt to thank Mr. Scranton on the part of the city caused him to resort to the gruff manner which he often assumes.

"Purely private, purely private," he said to those who offered him the gratitude of the city. "I want good roads so that I can ride over them with my automobile and visit my dams. That is all. If the city can get any good out of them, all right."

That is the way William Scranton does things for others. He will benefit the city when he sees an opportunity to do so practically, but he will take no credit for it. Not long ago he bought up all the outstanding stock of a company which was about to fail, and in which he considered persons had been led to invest because the project was connected with his name. It was a company for cutting ice from Scranton Lake. It is generally considered that Mr. Scranton acted to save innocent investors, but he will not admit it.

"My name has never been connected with a failure," he says, "and I will not let it be now. Selfish again, you see."

His Title of "Feudal Lord."

It is this hearty interest in the city and his rugged strength and aloofness that have gained for him the title of "feudal lord." Even his home carries out the idea. On a hill in the heart of the city stands the old house in which his father lived and which he still uses. About the grounds are high stone walls, for all the world like the grim parapets about a mediaeval castle. Although his public works and property are open to all, his private estate is just as strictly guarded, and none enter the grounds within the stone wall except for business or social purposes. The railroad runs near the grounds, but William Scranton prefers to remain there, where his father lived and in the home he loves.

Even into business he carries this hint of the feudal system. He regards his employes as under his protection as well as under his command. Most of them have been with him for years and he wishes only men who intend to remain in his employ for life. They are a contented lot and seem mightily satisfied with their conditions and with their work. With them he is inexorably just, as in all things, never giving way an inch from what he deems right, but rewarding them for the service they render.

Not long ago a man who was close to Mr. Scranton, one of his confidential clerks, was in temporary trouble financially and allowed his gas bill to run unpaid for three months. The company turned the gas off from his house and he went to Mr. Scranton about it, explaining that he was hard pressed and asking that the gas be turned on again.

"Well, why did they turn it off?" asked Mr. Scranton.

"Because my bill was overdue," said the man, who had worked for Mr. Scranton fifteen years.

"Well, then, it will have to stay turned off," said Mr. Scranton. "Why don't you pay the bill?"

And the gas did stay turned off until the bill was paid, although two weeks later Mr. Scranton gave the man a substantial increase in salary.

This does not mean that the owner of the waterworks is penurious. On the other hand, he will spend any amount of money to keep up the reputation of his business and to make improvements. No expense is too great when it is to develop and make perfect his water or gas system.

Five years ago a man who built a house eight blocks from a gas main asked to have pipes laid to his building. William Scranton knew that the applicant for gas service owned the property between his residence and the gas main and that no other buildings were likely to be erected in the street, but he had the eight blocks taken up and gas pipes laid.

"If I buy his gas for a hundred years," says this man, "I won't use enough to pay him for the operation, but that is the way he does things. And it was not a favor, either, for I am not popular with him."

It is easy to see that William Scranton looks upon his father as a man among men. He is not given to sentimentality, but anything with which his father was connected seems to be sacred to him.

His Father's Advice.

John I. Blair, wealthy financier, organizer of the Blair system of Iowa and one of the original directors of the Union Pacific Railroad, was then president of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company. Between him and William Scranton there was a personal feud of long standing, and while Scranton was away Mr. Blair went to the stables and had a groom remove the horse and carriage, which were used in the company's barn under guard. William Scranton immediately notified the directors of Mr. Blair's conduct and asked them if they wished to rescind their own action. They replied that they did not, and reprimanded Mr. Blair.

An order was given to Scranton authorizing him to remove the horse and carriage. Armed with this, he went to the company barn, showed it to the watchman and led the horse from the stall. Half a dozen stablemen moved to hitch the horse to the buggy, but William Scranton waved them aside and himself put the harness on the animal and drove off home.

"Yes, my father was a wonderful man," he said to the writer, "and he did some good business in his day. There was money in the iron business then. According to his diary, in 1867 the capital of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company was $1,200,000 and it earned $1,151,000, almost one hundred per cent. The following year the capital earned more than 110 per cent.

"It was from my father that I learned to confine myself in the main to one project. Although he was actively interested in the iron works until his death, he put most of his energies into the development of the Water and Gas Company. Then, too, he was the first president of the First National Bank in 1863 and held the position until his death in 1872. I am a director of the bank, which now has a capital of more than $1,000,000 and a surplus of more than $1,200,000.

"That is about the sum of my interests now—the bank, the Scranton Gas and Water Company and the Lackawanna Iron and Steel Company. I believe in concentration, you see.

"A picture?" he said in reply to a request. "Not of me. I do not like that kind of publicity and I haven't any picture. I don't like them, and it has been a veritable superstition with me. I have refused to be photographed again and again.

"Besides, there is no reason to print my picture. My father was the man who did the things that count. I have just been thinking of a passage he wrote in his diary. It is a quotation from Josephus, I believe. It was his motto and the kind of advice he used to give to his son. Let me see if I can find it."

Mr. Scranton stooped to fumble in a desk drawer for his father's diary. He is sixty-eight years old, but the big muscles bunched in his back and shoulders as that it was easy to believe the stories they tell in Scranton about his lifting 1,800 and 2,000 pounds dead weight when he was thirty-seven years old.

"Here it is," he said, producing a small, well-thumbed book. "It's in my father's own handwriting and it is the key to his success. It made him what we Scrantons try to be—a man.

"It was dinned into my ears and here it is:—The longer I live the more certain I am that the great difference between men, between great and the insignificant, is energy—invincible determination, an honest purpose once fixed, and then—death or victory. That quality will do anything that can be done in the world, and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunity will make a two-legged creature a man without it."

TAXI DRIVER WAS A ROBBER

Remarkable Story of How a Woman Was Held up When Being Driven From a Paris Theatre

A startling adventure of a lady detective, who engaged a taxicab to take her home from the theatre reveals the fact that there are among the drivers of Paris, men who are really highwaymen, criminals whose object is the robbery of their fares The lady had been shopping in the afternoon, and on paying off her taxicab the chauffeur inquired if she would not perhaps want his during the evening, when it is not always easy to find a cab. The lady happened to be going to the theatre that night, and arranged that he should call and take her there and back. After the performance, and while the mass of the audience were looking for conveyances in all directions, the lady in question was mightily pleased to find her cab waiting for her, and having settled herself in a corner, congratulated herself on her good luck. It was raining heavily and the windows were blurred, and being tired she half dozed off without noticing where her cab was going. In about twenty minutes, when she ought to have been home, she noticed that it was very dark outside. She knocked at the window, and the chauffeur stopped and opened the door, showing that they were in one of the alleys of the Bois de Boulogne. "Madame," said the man, "I do not wish to do you any harm, but you will be good enough to give me at once all your money and jewellery. Do not cry out or make any fuss, and nothing will happen to you, otherwise I shall be obliged to ensure your silence."

The lady stripped her neck, ears and fingers, and handed all her jewellery and her purse to the thief. "I regret, madame," he added, "the necessity which compels me to leave you here, but you can understand why I must do so, and, if you make any complaint, I know your address and who you are, and I shall settle your business for you without more ado." So saying, he made the lady alight, and drove rapidly away with his booty, leaving his unfortunate victim in satin shoes and evening dress to find the best of her way home.

Day Nurseries.

The opening of the new Stockbridge Day Nursery brings into public notice the successful work of the Edinburgh Day Nurseries Association. The association conducts in different districts of the city establishments on charitable lines for the reception of children under school age whose mothers are forced to go out to work during the day. The children are received from 6.30 a.m. to 6.30 p.m., the charges being 8c. for each child under eighteen months, 6c. for each child over that age, and 5c. for every additional child from the same family.

BETTER THAN PICTURED

A consoling discovery has been made by some humane people who are endeavoring to induce members of the fair sex to dispense with the plumage of rare birds, which are left to die in agony after wings have clipped off. It is discovered that some at least of this wonderful plumage has been obtained from such homely birds as guinea-fowls, turkeys and pigeons, the flesh of which has figured on many a dinner table. The feathers, which are to adorn hats of various shapes and proportions, are prepared in a most artistic manner, and are carefully dyed and glazed so as to resemble those of the particular birds whose plumage they are intended to imitate, and, as they seem to give complete satisfaction, there is, after all, some hope for the poor rare birds whose beauty has rendered them victims to fashion.

SKIRT MARKER

There are a number of devices for marking the bottom part of a woman's skirt, but it remained for a North Carolina woman to patent the ingenious contrivance shown here for marking the upper part. This little tool is also designed to mark coat and jacket lengths. A holder is clamped to the edge of the dining-room table, or any table for that matter, and the marking point is held in this holder adjustably. It can be turned up or down. To mark the upper portion of a skirt the woman for whom the garment is being made puts it on and stands at the edge of the table. When she turns around in a circle the chalk point marks a circle on the skirt, or at the bottom of the coat or jacket, as the case may be. Unless the marker is stationary, as in this instance, it is impossible to describe such a circle that is the same distance from the ground at all points.

BABY O'TOOLE

The American Medical Association Define Him a Perfect Child

Do you want to know what a perfect three-year-old baby should weigh and measure, and what he should eat and do each day? There are a pair of proud grandparents in Toronto who can tell you.

This model child lives in Chicago, but his father, Mr. C. J. O'Toole, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Toole, living at 129 Beatrice street, Toronto. The boy who is claimed to be a physically perfect child for his age is Master Charles Elmer O'Toole, and his measurements, taken on his third birthday, the 28th of August last, have been adopted and copyrighted by the American Medical Association and the National Congress of Mothers as a perfect standard of physical development for babies.

His development is all the more that a few days after birth several physicians considered him too delicate to live. But last summer at the State Fair n Iowa, where his parents then resided, he was scored 96½ points out of 100 on the score card adopted by the New York Child Welfare Exhibit. With his score as a basis, a uniform score card has been compiled and copyrighted, to be used in future competitions and these cards, with medical facts printed on the back, are to be distributed in every waiting-room throughout the States, in pursuance of a plan of campaign by the American Medical Association and the National Congress of Mothers for the improvement of the human race.

The following are the measurements of the boy as taken a few days ago:—Weight, 35 pounds; height, 35 inches; chest, 20 inches; head, 19 inches. His day is planned very systematically, as follows:—7 a.m. breakfast of soft boiled egg, toast, milk and orange juice; 8 to 11 a.m., walk and play; 12 noon, lunch, consisting of three saucers of cereal, with half a pint of cream, Graham bread and one glass of milk; 2 to 5 p.m., afternoon nap; 6 p.m., supper, of one shirred egg, Graham bread, milk and apple sauce; 7 to 8 p.m., exercise and bed.

Displeased with Church "Sittings."

At a meeting of Inverkeithing Town Council a letter was read from Mr Ovis'on, a local resident, in which he pointed out that he had been offered three sittings in a pew in the Parish Church which he understood was occupied by Mr. Duncan Morrison, his wife, and three of a family. He failed to see where he could get sittings for three should they all turn out. He did not want to be insulted in the same manner as he had been in the old pew, and he would leave the Parish Church severely alone. (Laughter.)

Centenarian Dead.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

DURING 1911

Canada's population exceeded 7,000,000.

The poulation of the United Kingdom exceeded 45,000,000.

In one night 1,785 homeless persons were found in London.

Nearly two million acres of wheat were cultivated in Great Britain.

A decrease of over eight millions was effected in the National debt.

Families or separate occupiers of dwellings in England and Wales totalled eight millions.

Greater London possessed a population of 7 1-2 millions, and the County of London 4 1-4 millions.

Great Britain owned 22 Dreadnought, battleships, Germany 16, the United States 13, and France 10.

British coast stations dealt with nearly 40,000 wireless telegrams.

Military airmanship was voted $500,000 by the Government.

No fewer than sixty-three airmen were killed, of whom seven were Englishmen.

Considerably over 700,000 workpeople in Great Britain belonged to trade unions.

The railophone device for telephoning to and from moving trains was installed.

Old-age pensioners totalled over 900,000, of whom women were in slightly greater proportion than men.

Monoplanes were built that could fly eighty miles an hour, and biplanes that could cover sixty miles in the same time.

Unless in receipt of salary as officers of the British House or Ministers Members of Parliament were voted salaries of $2,000 a year.

Death duties were levied upon the estates of eight millionaires in England, the aggregate amount of the fortunes being over $55,000,000.

A PECULIAR DOG

The Owners Believe it the Re-Incarnation of a Slave

An award recently conferred on Frederic Mistral has called forth a peculiar letter from him concerning his dog, a French poodle or canche, whom he believes to be the re-incarnation of an ancient Roman slave. The society recently gave the poet a prize in consideration of his fondness for animals. In return Mistral wrote a letter in which he says: "It was not without astonishment that I received the good news of the Prix which the Society of Help for Animals conferred on me. After reflecting a good deal, I have come to the conclusion that my good dog Barboche, of which I send you a photograph was not a stranger to my good fortune. The sad Barboche, whom I took in as a waif a few years ago is a mysterious creature. I found one day in one of my usual walks through the country a fragment of one of those little old Roman grist mills, which they used for grinding their wheat, and which were turned by slaves who had been condemned to that work for some reason or other. When I came home I dropped the thing in the yard in front of the house. My dog Barboche bounded for it at once, and made frantic efforts to turn it with his paws. He was so earnest in his efforts that I had to take the stone away from him lest he should wear himself out turning it. This performance of turning the stone is repeated every tme that I give it to Barboche. The conclusion of it is that I have come to believe that my poor caniche is the re-incarnation of a slave of ancient times, belonging probably to some Gallo-Roman master, who was very hard on his slaves. This at any rate, seems to me to be he only explanation of this extraordinary fact.

TEST THE COWS

To Pay A Cow Must Give 4,000 Pounds of Milk.

Before a cow can return a profit of even one per cent., she must give over 4,000 pounds of milk per year, says C. F. Whitely, of the Dairy Branch, Ottawa. On examining the records of 1,600 cows for last year, Mr. Whitley found that 35 per cent. gave less than 4,000 pounds; that is, seven out of every twenty cows scattered over several counties could not be said to yield any profit above the cost of feed. A comparison between two herds in Ontario, one of eleven cows and the other of five cows, showed that every time the eleven cows filled one factory mil kcan the five-cows filled not one, but three similar cans. The five-cow herd gave an average yield of 12,068 pounds of milk each that tested 3.3 per cent. of fat, thereby showing a profit of $80 per cow. Thus one good cow equals sixteen of the poorer kind. To determine the worth of the individuals in any herd, the cows must be tested regularly and properly. Dairy records show that some cows produce milk at a cost of 65 cents per 100 pounds, while others under the same roof run up the cost to $1.20. There is everything to gain in taking up cow testing.

SHOT A COUGAR

An Exciting Incident Recently in a Vancouver Park.

A very unusual incident—the hunting and shooting of a cougar in a city park — took place at Vancouver. In the world-famed Stanley Park the keepers some time ago discovered a dead deer. Poison was laid and traps were set, but the marauder escaped and the continual toll of dead animals, despite all night watching and various other expedients, baffled every one. At length a hunt on a large scale with dogs and experienced hunters took place. The animal was "treed" and one shot fired, with the result of wounding the animal. The cougar dropped from the tree, wounded one of the dogs badly and escaped up another tree. Four more shots were put in and the animal fell dead. —Rod and Gun.

FISH AT PRINCE RUPERT

A Huge Fish Freezing Plant Has Been Erected in That City

The waters surrounding Prince Rupert teem with halibut, ling and grey cod, salmon, sole, herring, etc., the market for which is unlimited, and with the completion of the railway the fish can be in transit to the Eastern markets on the same day as caught, thus assuring, with speedy transportation, their arrival in first-class condition at destination. The new cold storage plant of the Canadian Fish & Storage Company building is constructed of reinforced concrete throughout. The foundation is built on solid rock, and is of sufficient strength to carry the building to the height of ten storeys. The present structure is six storeys high, and can be extended as soon as trade permits. The daily fish freezing capacity will be sixty tons, and the storage capacity of frozen fish about 6,500 tons. The ice-making plant is of 25 tons daily capacity, and space has been left for an additional 25 tons for future installation. Over 30 miles of piping was required for the refrigeration installation. Twenty-three carloads of cork were used in the building for the flooring and for the partitions between each room.

A WEAK, ACHING BACK CAUSED HER MUCH MISERY

Could Not Work and Had No Ambition For Anything.

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Mrs. W. R. Hodge, Fielding, Sask., writes:—"A few lines highly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For this last year I have been troubled very much with nasty sick headaches, and a weak, aching back which caused me much misery, for I could not work and had no ambition for anything. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and kept me from sleeping at nights, I tried many kinds of pills and medicines but it seemed almost in vain. I began to give up in despair of ever being well and strong again, when a kind neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and am thankful for the relief I obtained from them, for have been never in trouble with a sore back or sick headaches. I will always say Doan's Kidney Pills for mine, and can highly recommend them to any sufferers."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TAXI DRIVER WAS A ROBBER

Remarkable Story of How a Woman Was Held up When Being Driven From a Paris Theatre

A startling adventure of a lady detective, who engaged a taxicab to take her home from the theatre reveals the fact that there are among the drivers of Paris, men who are really highwaymen, criminals whose object is the robbery of their fares The lady had been shopping in the afternoon, and on paying off her taxicab the chauffeur inquired if she would not perhaps want his during the evening, when it is not always easy to find a cab. The lady happened to be going to the theatre that night, and arranged that he should call and take her there and back. After the performance, and while the mass of the audience were looking for conveyances in all directions, the lady in question was mightily pleased to find her cab waiting for her, and having settled herself in a corner, congratulated herself on her good luck. It was raining heavily and the windows were blurred, and being tired she half dozed off without noticing where her cab was going. In about twenty minutes, when she ought to have been home, she noticed that it was very dark outside. She knocked at the window, and the chauffeur stopped and opened the door, showing that they were in one of the alleys of the Bois de Boulogne. "Madame," said the man, "I do not wish to do you any harm, but you will be good enough to give me at once all your money and jewellery. Do not cry out or make any fuss, and nothing will happen to you, otherwise I shall be obliged to ensure your silence."

The lady stripped her neck, ears and fingers, and handed all her jewellery and her purse to the thief. "I regret, madame," he added, "the necessity which compels me to leave you here, but you can understand why I must do so, and, if you make any complaint, I know your address and who you are, and I shall settle your business for you without more ado." So saying, he made the lady alight, and drove rapidly away with his booty, leaving his unfortunate victim in satin shoes and evening dress to find the best of her way home.

Day Nurseries.

The opening of the new Stockbridge Day Nursery brings into public notice the successful work of the Edinburgh Day Nurseries Association. The association conducts in different districts of the city establishments on charitable lines for the reception of children under school age whose mothers are forced to go out to work during the day. The children are received from 6.30 a.m. to 6.30 p.m., the charges being 3c. for each child under eighteen months, 6c. for each child over that age, and 5c. for every additional child from the same family.

SAGEINE CURES DANDRUFF—IT IS SOLD WITH W. J. KENT'S GUARANTEE OR MONEY BACK

Dandruff is a hair destroyer and SAGEINE is the only preparation that will positively kill the destructive little germ. SAGEINE will bring life and beauty to dull faded hair and make it grow in thick and luxuriant. Sageine grows beautiful hair, soft and fluffy. It is a most delightful dressing; it is not a sticky or greasy and is daintily perfumed. Get a large bottle to-day from W. J. Kent, only 50c. We know you will realize how well you spent the small amount.

BETTER THAN PICTURED

A consoling discovery has been made by some humane people who are endeavoring to induce members of the fair sex to dispense with the plumage of rare birds, which are left to die in agony after wings have clipped off. It is discovered that some at least of this wonderful plumage has been obtained from such homely birds as guinea-fowls, turkeys and pigeons, the flesh of which has figured on many a dinner table. The feathers, which are to adorn hats of various shapes and proportions, are prepared in a most artistic manner, and are carefully dyed and glazed so as to resemble those of the particular birds whose plumage they are intended to imitate, and, as they seem to give complete satisfaction, there is, after all, some hope for the poor rare birds whose beauty has rendered them victims to fashion.

SKIRT MARKER

There are a number of devices for marking the bottom part of a woman's skirt, but it remained for a North Carolina woman to patent the ingenious contrivance shown here for marking the upper part. This little tool is also designed to mark coat and jacket lengths. A holder is clamped to the edge of the dining-room table, or any table for that matter, and the marking point is held in this holder adjustably. It can be turned up or down. To mark the upper portion of a skirt the woman for whom the garment is being made puts it on and stands at the edge of the table. When she turns around in a circle the chalk point marks a circle on the skirt, or at the bottom of the coat or jacket, as the case may be. Unless the marker is stationary, as in this instance, it is impossible to describe such a circle that is the same distance from the ground at all points.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glycerie compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

BABY O'TOOLE

The American Medical Association Define Him a Perfect Child

Do you want to know what a perfect three-year-old baby should weigh and measure, and what he should eat and do each day? There are a pair of proud grandparents in Toronto who can tell you.

This model child lives in Chicago, but his father, Mr. C. J. O'Toole, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Toole, living at 129 Beatrice street, Toronto. The boy who is claimed to be a physically perfect child for his age is Master Charles Elmer O'Toole, and his measurements, taken on his third birthday, the 28th of August last, have been adopted and copyrighted by the American Medical Association and the National Congress of Mothers as a perfect standard of physical development for babies.

His development is all the more that a few days after birth several physicians considered him too delicate to live. But last summer at the State Fair n Iowa, where his parents then resided, he was scored 96½ points out of 100 on the score card adopted by the New York Child Welfare Exhibit. With his score as a basis, a uniform score card has been compiled and copyrighted, to be used in future competitions and these cards, with medical facts printed on the back, are to be distributed in every waiting-room throughout the States, in pursuance of a plan of campaign by the American Medical Association and the National Congress of Mothers for the improvement of the human race.

The following are the measurements of the boy as taken a few days ago:—Weight, 35 pounds; height, 35 inches; chest, 20 inches; head, 19 inches. His day is planned very systematically, as follows:—7 a.m. breakfast of soft boiled egg, toast, milk and orange juice; 8 to 11 a.m., walk and play; 12 noon, lunch, consisting of three saucers of cereal, with half a pint of cream, Graham bread and one glass of milk; 2 to 5 p.m., afternoon nap; 6 p.m., supper, of one shirred egg, Graham bread, milk and apple sauce; 7 to 8 p.m., exercise and bed.

Ladies of society and influence use no other.

SALVIA is a non-sticky preparation, and is the ladies' favourite. A large, generous bottle, 50c. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines Canadian distributors. Also sold at Payne's Drug Store.

Displeased with Church "Sittings."

At a meeting of Inverkeithing Town Council a letter was read from Mr Ovinston, a local resident, in which he pointed out that he had been offered three sittings in a pew in the Parish Church which he understood was occupied by Mr. Duncan Morrison, his wife, and three of a family. He failed to see where he could get sittings for three should they all turn out He did not want to be insulted in the same manner as he had been in the old pew, and he would leave the Parish Church severely alone. Centenarian Dead.

George Hancock, a Penarth dockman, died at Penarth at the age of 101. He retired from active work at the age of eighty-five. He attributed his longevity to plenty of hard work as a lad, the regular life he led, and in a great measure to the systematic way in which he took his holidays.

DURING 1911

Canada's population exceeded 7,000,000.

The poulation of the United Kingdom exceeded 45,000,000.

In one night 1,785 homeless persons were found in London.

Nearly two million acres of wheat were cultivated in Great Britain.

Families or separate occupiers of dwellings in England and Wales totalled eight millions.

Greater London possessed a population of 7 1-2 millions, and the County of London 4 1-4 millions.

Great Britain owned 22 Dreadnought battleships, Germany 16, the United States 13, and France 10.

British coast stations dealt with nearly 40,000 wireless telegrams.

Military airmanship was voted $500,000 by the Government.

No fewer than sixty-three airmen were killed, of whom seven were Englishmen.

Considerably over 700,000 workpeople in Great Britain belonged to trade unions.

The railophone device for telephoning to and from moving trains was installed.

Old-age pensioners totalled over 900,000, of whom women were in sightly greater proportion than men.

Monoplanes were built that could fly eighty miles an hour, and biplanes that could cover sixty miles in the same time.

Unless in receipt of salary as officers of the British House or Ministers Members of Parliament were voted salaries of $2,000 a year.

Death duties were levied upon the estates of eight millionaires in England, the aggregate amount of the fortunes being over $55,000,000.

A PECULIAR DOG

The Owners Believe it the Re-incarnation of a Slave

An award recently conferred on Frederic Mistral has called forth a peculiar letter from him concerning his dog, a French poodle or canche, whom he believes to be the re-incarnation of an ancient Roman slave. The society recently gave the poet a prize in consideration of his fondness for animals. In return Mistral wrote a letter in which he says: "It was not without astonishment that I received the good news of the Prix which the Society of Help for Animals conferred on me. After reflecting a good deal, I have come to the conclusion that my good dog Barboche, of which I send you a photograph was not a stranger to my good fortune. The sad Barboche, whom I took in as a waif a few years ago is a mysterious creature. I found one day in one of my usual walks through the country a fragment of one of those little old Roman grist mills, which they used for grinding their wheat, and which were turned by slaves who had been condemned to that work for some reason or other. When I came home I dropped the thing in the yard in front of the house. My dog Barboche bounded for it at once, and made frantic efforts to turn it with his paws. He was so earnest in his efforts that I had to take the stone away from him lest he should wear himself out turning it. This performance of turning the stone is repeated every tme that I give it to Barboche. The conclusion of it is that I have come to believe that my poor caniche is the re-incarnation of a slave of ancient times, belonging probably to some Gallo-Roman master, who was very hard on his slaves. This at any rate, seems to me to be the only explanation of this extraordinary fact.

TEST THE COWS

To Pay A Cow Must Give 4,000 Pounds of Milk.

Before a cow can return a profit of even one per cent., she must give over 4,000 pounds of milk per year, says C. F. Whitely, of the Dairy Branch, Ottawa. On examining the records of 1,600 cows for last year, Mr. Whitley found that 35 per cent. gave less than 4,000 pounds; that is, seven out of every twenty cows scattered over several counties could not be said to yield any profit above the cost of feed. A comparison between two herds in Ontario, one of eleven cows and the other of five cows, showed that every time the eleven cows filled one factory mil kean the five-cows filled not one, but three similar cans. The five-cow herd gave an average yield of 12,068 pounds of milk each that tested 3.3 per cent. of fat, thereby showing a profit of $80 per cow. Thus one good cow equals sixteen of the poorer kind. To determine the worth of the individuals in any herd, the cows must be tested regularly and properly. Dairy records show that some cows produce milk at a cost of 65 cents per 100 pounds, while others under the same roof run up the cost to $1.20. There is everything to gain in taking up cow testing.

SHOT A COUGAR

An Exciting Incident Recently in a Vancouver Park.

A very unusual incident—the hunting and shooting of a cougar in a city park — took place at Vancouver In the world-famed Stanley Park the keepers some time ago discovered a dead deer. Poison was laid and traps were set, but the marauder escaped and the continual toll of dead animals, despite all night watching and various other expedients, baffled every one. At length a hunt on a large scale with dogs and experienced hunters took place. The animal was "treed" and one shot fired, with the result of wounding the animal. The cougar dropped from the tree, wounded one of the dogs badly and escaped up another tree. Four more shots were put in and the animal fell dead. —Rod and Gun.

FISH AT PRINCE RUPERT

A Huge Fish Freezing Plant Has Been Erected in That City

The waters surrounding Prince Rupert teem with halibut, ling and grey cod, salmon, sole, herring, etc., the market for which is unlimited ,and with the completion of the railway the fish can be in transit to the Eastern markets on the same day as caught, thus assuring, with speedy transportation, their arrival in first-class condition at destination. The new cold storage plant of the Canadian Fish & Storage Company building is constructed of reinforced concrete throughout. The foundation is built on solid rock, and is of sufficient strength to carry the building to the height of ten storeys. The present structure is six storeys high, and can be extended as soon as trade permits. The daily fish freezing capacity will be sixty tons, and the storage capacity of frozen fish about 6,500 tons. The ice-making plant is of 25 tons daily capacity, and space has been left for an additional 25 tons for future installation. Over 30 miles of piping was required for the refrigeration installation . Twenty-three carloads of cork were used in the building for the flooring and for the partitions between each room.

A WEAK, ACHING BACK CAUSED HER MUCH MISERY

Could Not Work and Had No Ambition For Anything.

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Mrs. W. R. Hodge, Fielding, Sask., writes:—"A few lines highly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For this last year I have been troubled very much with nasty sick headaches, and a weak, aching back which caused me much misery, for I could not work and had no ambition for anything. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and kept me from sleeping at nights, I tried many kinds of pills and medicines but it seemed almost in vain. I began to give up in despair of ever being well and strong again, when a kind neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and am thankful for the relief I obtained from them, for now I am never in trouble with a sore back or sick headaches. I will always say Doan's Kidney Pills for mine, and can highly recommend them to any sufferers."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Readhouse Gets Job.

Toronto, Feb. 14.—W. Bert Readhouse, who has been for the past three years secretary to the Minister and to the Department, has been appointed Deputy Minister of Agriculture, in succession to C. C. James. Mr. Readhouse has been relieved of what may be described as the "outside" work by the appointment of C. F. Bailey, B.S.A., live stock specialist attached to the institutes branch, as assistant deputy minister. The Deputy Minister will, as before, have supervision of the executive work of administration, which has grown so enormously that it will occupy the entire time of one man.

The assistant deputy minister will have supervision of the outside work of the Department, which is growing in importance. This includes the work of the district representatives. The system of district representatives has grown very rapidly in the past few years. It has been under the direction of the Deputy Minister, but has rapidly assumed too large an importance to be handled in that way. It will, therefore, be placed in charge of the assistant deputy minister, who will have an opportunity of giving personal attention and personal oversight, which will result in increasing its efficiency and popularity.

Troops Ordered to Mexico.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 14.—That four companies of the Twenty-Ninth U. S. Infantry, stationed at Fort Niagara, opposite Niagara-on-the-Lake, have received secret orders to be in readiness for service on the Mexican frontier was learned last night. The troops expect to leave the fort this week.

WAS TROUBLED WITH

Headache

AND Constipation.

After Suffering For Two Years Was Cured By

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Headache of whatever nature is nearly always symptomatic of other diseased conditions, rather than a disease itself, but in most cases a disordered stomach, constipation, or bad circulation is the chief source of the difficulty. Burdock Blood Bitters removes the cause of the trouble through its cleansing, strengthening and tonic action on the stomach, liver, bowels and blood. Mr. Wm. Redmond, Cardigan Bridge, P. E. I., writes:—"I have been troubled with headache and constipation for about two years. After trying every doctor I knew, a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I found myself, after using one bottle, getting much better, and after using three bottles I was completely cured.

"After then I was on a visit, and found my cousin very sick, and the doctor told her there was something wrong with her head. I told her to use Burdock Blood Bitters and she was cured in a short time. I can safely recommend it to all."

FIGHT BEGINS TO-DAY.

British Parliamentarians Assemble to Create History.

London, Feb. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—To-day the King will open what is certain to be the most exciting session of Parliament within recent years. It is unlikely, however, that the most momentous questions will be reached until after the Easter debate on the address, which will probably occupy a fortnight and will be followed by financial matters.

There is not the slightest doubt but that many Ministerialist supporters are uneasy through the mammoth character of the program, embracing home rule, Welsh disestablishment, and electoral reform, to say nothing of women's suffrage.

Concerning the last named, militant suffragettes have, it is rumored, what is called a big surprise awaiting the Government, unless women's suffrage is mentioned in the King's speech. It is unlikely the speech will contain such a reference, so we may anticipate another orgy of window-smashing. The police are making full preparations.

Regarding home rule, Unionists are confident that any allocation of Irish customs to the proposed Dublin Parliament will split the Liberal ranks hopelessly, but, unless Redmond obtains this, his Parliamentary authority will be seriously jeopardized.

Nobody claims that there is any general enthusiasm for Welsh disestablishment, and a campaign against it is being pushed vigorously throughout England.

It is improbable that the question of electoral reform will be touched until autumn.

Outside Parliament, the feeling grows that there will be a general election this year. The rates of insurance against this have risen during the last week.

A THIRD PARTY?

Temperance Men Will Ask For Support First.

Toronto, Feb. 14.—The Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance has determined to form a third party in Ontario if neither of the leaders in the Legislature will support their demands.

Following is the resolution, composed of three clauses, brought in by the business committee yesterday afternoon, and which, after much heated talk, was adopted, clause by clause:

"That the Dominion Alliance reaffirm its policy of abolition of the barroom and drinking in clubs and the treating system, and the imposition of such further restrictions upon the liquor traffic as will most effectively curtail its operations and remedy its evils.

"That a deputation be appointed to go before the leader of the Government and the leader of the Opposition in the Legislature to speak for this convention for the introduction embodying the policy of the Alliance.

"That seven men be appointed by this committee to comprise that deputation to wait upon the leaders of the Government and the Opposition to-morrow at noon."

Burned Her Child.

Halifax, Feb. 14.—"I put the baby in the stove and burned it. I'm sorry now, but I did it when the feeling came over me."

These were the words of Ada McCarron, the wife of James McCarron of this city, in confessing to the police yesterday afternoon that she put her five weeks' old child in the hot blast stove in her house and burned it alive. She said she did this nine days ago and then spread the story that the child had been kidnapped from the cradle. Mrs. McCarron is locked up on a charge of murder.

When the police visited the woman's house in the north end the day the child disappeared, they examined the hot blast stove from which the ashes had been removed. It was then cold, but that was four hours afterwards. The ash barrel was searched and but little bones were found there, whether human or not remains to be proved.

It is believed that the woman is mentally unbalanced.

Force of habit says "porridge should be cooked all night."

But that habit was formed a long time ago when people had to make porridge out of oatmeal instead of rolled oats.

Even yet some women through force of habit, are cooking Tillson's all night, though 15 minutes is ample.

They forget that where oatmeal was coarsely ground oats, Tillson's is thinly rolled oats. So filmy and thin are the Tillson flakes that they can be cooked as thoroughly in 15 minutes as the coarse particles of old-fashioned oatmeal could be in a whole night.

Tillson's Oats

Puree of Oysters

Bring a quart of oysters to boil in their own liquor. Drain. Chop the oysters fine. Return the oyster liquor to the fire. Add two tablespoonfuls of Tillson's Rolled Oats. Simmer fifteen minutes. Add the oysters, rub through sieve, return to fire, add one pint of milk and cream, cook carefully until heated. Season and serve. If too thick another half cupful of cream should be added. If too thin add one beaten egg yolk.

Your grocer has Tillson's. Two sizes—25c and 10c. Each 25c package contains a handsome piece of English Porcelain Tableware.

Irishmen Disappointed.

London, Feb. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The home rule bill, as announced by Winston Churchill, is being discussed all over Ireland and general disappointment is expressed over the financial proposals. Various public bodies suggest that if Ireland is not given full control of all taxes levied in the country a national convention should reject the proposal.

Patrick White, M.P., last night said that unless under home rule the Irish Parliament had full and free legislative authority the bill would be useless.

At a meeting of the executive of the United Irish League, held at Drogheda, N. T. Murphy said that the only measure of self-government acceptable would be one that would give Irishmen full power to deal with everything concerning Ireland and full control of every tax.

Turks Were Beaten Off.

Derna, Tripoli, Feb. 12.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The Turks in force made two determined attempts to rush the Italian lines last night, but were beaten off after desperate hand-to-hand fighting. The Turks used hand grenades, but these had little effect.

The Italians were greatly aided by dogs, which gave warning of the approach of the Turks. They also threw their searchlights on the advancing forces. The Turks lost sixty killed, while the Italians lost three killed and 22 wounded.

THE FARMER'S LESSON.

Old Silas Boggs had three strong boys
Named Bill and Tom and Ed.
They longed for distant city joys,
So one day all three fled.
Old Silas turned to solemn, then.
When none were arms so stout;
Machinery did the work that men
Had heretofore turned out.

And when the boys came back next year,
Vacation days to spend,
They found instead of being drear
Farm life was joy, sans end;
Electric lights blazed all around,
In every room and nook;
Machinery plowed the fertile ground
And did all work but cook.

Then Tom and Bill and Brother Ed
Agreed they all would stay,
But Silas Boggs just shook his head
And murmured gently: "Nay;
You quit the sod for city pave,
Go back to town you drift;
You left me sadly in the lurch,
But science never will."

Any pigeon fancier who wants to enter a bird in a slow race need but communicate with Charley Otto. He has one he thinks is positively the slowest feathered biped in the world. Otto has been a pigeonist for a good many years and during the St. Louis exposition of 1904 he took part in the pigeon fly. His birds were all marked by the usual identification bands on their legs, of course. All got in but one, and in the seven years that have passed Mr. Otto had completely forgotten about that bird.

"But the other day when I went into the cote," says Otto, "I saw an old pigeon there that looked familiar. He seemed to be perfectly at home, so by and by I picked him up. Sure enough, it was Thunderbolt II., the pigeon that didn't report after the St. Louis race."

"And was he in good health?"

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Otto. "Perfectly good health. A little thin, perhaps—trained down pretty fine by the exertion of the race—but otherwise all right. Only his two nails were worked down to the quick by the long walk."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

TEMPERANCE PEOPLE COMPLAIN OF LAX ENFORCEMENT OF LIQUOR LICENSE LAWS

LOOK TO OPPOSITION

"The strings hang loose with regard to the administration of the License Law in the Province of Ontario to-day. In New Ontario the pretence at enforcement has almost degenerated into a periodic collection of taxes from illicit dealers."—Executive report of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance.

"And I would do another thing. I would go to the leader of the Opposition. (Applause.) Do you know it's a hopeful sign of the times to have a clean man like Rowell at the head of affairs. Mr. Rowell, maybe, does not suit all of us, but the more I have been thinking it over, the more I think he is a man to look to for leadership. But let us beware of becoming identified with one party or any parties."—Mr. Joseph Gibson, in his address.

The Whitney government's administration of the liquor laws came in for a striking straightment at the meeting of the executive of the Ontario Bratch of the Dominion Alliance yesterday morning. Among the striking clauses in the report of the committee as given by General Secretary, Ben. H. Spence, were the following:

"Steamboats are allowed all summer to run bars in defiance of the law," he read, "and fines are collected some time during the season. On railroad lines dining cars serve liquor in defiance of the law, unhindered and unmolested. In many frontier towns and in other places, the license holders defy the law in a way which apparently shows that they have no fear of the license authorities.

"Something should be done, and something must be done, to remedy the present intolerable condition.

"The situation in the Province of Ontario to-day is not creditable to the present Administration. Inefficient local inspectors, an apparently disorganised Provincial staff, together with sinister political influence, have brought about a condition that is regrettable, in the extreme.

"For a number of years praise was given to the present Government for the marked improvement in law enforcement throughout the Province. With the change of Government came a change of commissioners and inspectors, and the new men were, generally speaking, an improvement upon their predecessors and more diligent in the performance of their duties.

A Decided Falling Off.

"During the last few years, however, there has been a decided falling off along this line, and to-day things

DEADLOCK IN SENATE

Examiner Special.

OTTAWA, FEB. 14.—The expected clash of the Government, with the strong Liberal majority, in the Senate, came in the early hours of this morning, when Hon. Senator Lougheed, representing the Government, flatly refused to accept an amendment offer by the Liberal majority, in the Senate, to the Enquiries bill. Hon. Senator Kerr, Liberal, plainly had a majority of members in favour of his amendment. Lougheed said it would defeat the end of the Government in introducing the bill. Kerr persisted in calling for a vote, but the Conservatives made a deadlock. The matter comes up again on Thursday.

"LONE HAND" MAKES PLEA FOR NEGLECTED HUSBAND

He Failed to Recognize His Own Wife Because She Was Out So Much.

GIDDY SOCIAL WHIRL

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—As a type of a class, I ask space to declare that Lent cannot come a minute too soon, if it will put an end, or even put a brake upon the maddening whirl of festivities that reduces us mere men to pawns in the game of home life. I am treated as a nonentity, a negligible quality, and I feel like it. Morning, afternoon, evening, and night, I am left alone. On rising on Tuesday morning, I noticed a lady passing through the upper part of the house. I gave her good morning as politely as I would, and she politely responded. There seemed to be something familiar about her appearance, and I made remark to her to that effect. She seemed to take my remarks kindly, and I continued: "You greatly resemble my wife, and I think my wife is a lovely woman; but she will curl in the morning. This, and afternoon receptions, and five o'clock teas, and bridge parties and other junkettings in the evenings separate us so much that we have become, to some extent, strangers, and I hope you will excuse my insisting on your resemblance to my wife".

These words seemed to vex the lady, and she asserted, with some heat, that she was my wife, and enforced her assertion in a manner that all married men will admit, left no doubt of the genuineness of her identification. I really wish Lent would come, so that I might get a chance to become acquainted with my wife: so that I can, in some way, get to know whether I am a married man in good standing, or a widowed benedict.

Yours truly,
Lone Hand.

Funeral Of Mrs. Buchanan

The funeral of the late Mrs. J. H. Buchanan took place yesterday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from the family residence, 413 Bethune street, to Little Lake cemetery. Revs. Canon Davidson and I. Couch officiated. The pallbearers were two sons of the deceased, Messrs. G. H. and J. B. Buchanan, Wm. Alexander, O. C. Callendar, Harold Hall and Geo. Adam.

50 LABOUR LEADERS HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

Arrests Took Place Almost Simultaneously Throughout the United States To-day

FRANK M. RYAN IS ONE

Special to The Examiner

NEW YORK, FEB. 14.—The relentless arm of the law, guided by the indictments of the Federal Grand Jury investigated dynamite cases, has arrested at least fifty prominent labour union men in various parts of the United States this morning. The arrests were almost simultaneous in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Indianapolis and other cities. It was evening and general coersion has been rearranged to spread the net all over the States at once and leave no opportunity for escapes. Among those first arrested was Frank Ryan, president of the International Association Bridge and Structural Iron Workers of the United States and Canada. He was placed under custody at Indianapolis, charged with dynamite conspiracy. Those arrested include a number of walking delegates, business agents and so on. Some officials of Machinists' and other unions also alleged to be implicated, are under arrest.

The officials of carpenters and iron moulders unions of Indianapolis are also under arrest.

Federal Authorities Refuse to Make Statement About the Arrests or the Cases

$300,000 BAIL ASKED FOR

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, FEB. 14.—The Federal authorities will make no statements regarding the arrests of labour men, except that their trials will show that for six years a campaign of dynamiting and general coetion has been carried on by union labour officials against open shops. It is believed that Ryan and most of his associates will be tried at Indianapolis. Bonds aggregating three hundred thousand dollars have been demanded for bail to appear on March twelfth. Few so far have been able to secure suitable sureties and are still in custody. John T. Butler of Buffalo, first vice-president of Structural Iron Workers' and Herb ertC. Hockin Altroit, second vice-president and secretary, were also arrested in Indianapolis this morning.

WAIT ON WHITNEY

Temperance Deputation Appear Before the Premier This Morning —He Would Say Nothing

HAD NO STATEMENT

Special to The Examiner.

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, TORONTO, FEB. 14.—The platform of the Dominion Alliance as reported in the morning papers to have been adopted at their conference yesterday, proved to be a boomerang this morning when the deputation waited upon the Premier this morning.

"Was this platform denouncing the government, as it apears in the morning papers, adopted by the Alliance yesterday," asked Sir James. President Gibson and Secretary Ben Spence of the Alliance deputation attempted to pour oil on the turbulent waters, by saying it had not been definitely adopted, but was being considered. Sir James said: "Then I have nothing—" But was interrupted by President Gibson who shortly stated the demands of the deputation for the abolition of the bar treating system and drinking clubs.

Mr. Gibson told what the Alliance had done in the way of securing local option and pressed home the evils caused by the liquor traffic.

"There's no need of your defending local option," said Sir James, rather testily, "we are not attacking it."

N. W. Rowell, leader of the opposition, said there was no doubt of the evils of the bar room. The question was what legislation to adopt to counteract it. He promised that the opposition would have a policy on prohibition before next session.

TORONTO, FEB. 14.—Sir James Whitney gave the temperance deputation no statement as to what the Government would do. "Then I have nothing to say," he said, when the leaders of the deputation admitted they were considering the condemnation of the Government, as published in the morning papers.

ENGLISH PARLIAMENT RE-OPENS

Examiner Special:

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 14.—King George and Queen Mary drove through the rain-sodden, fog-burdened streets of the city this morning, escorted by cavalry and sundry notables, to open Parliament. Within te Courts of Westminster there was a brilliant assemblage. Interest in the speech from the throne was intense, but it contained little more than was expected.

The bills for Home Rule for Ireland, for disestablishment of the Welsh Church, and for a franchise extension were mentioned, and dismissed each with a short paragraph.

YOUNG BRAKEMAN CRUSHED TO DEATH IN G.T.R. YARDS

Grandson of Mr. Mark Spencely Caught Between Engine and Box Car in a Collision at Belleville This Morning —Did Not Notice Car on the Track in Darkness at Four O'clock This Morning—Home in Lindsay.

Joseph Spencely, son of Mr. Geo. Spencely of Lindsay and grandson of Mr. Mark Spencely, of this city, was crushed to death at 4 o'clock this morning in the G.T.R. yards at Belleville.

He was employed as a brakeman, and had made a run two nights from Lindsay to Belleville, picking up a number of cars in the local yards at 9 o'clock last night. After reaching Belleville it was desired to turn the engine around. It was accordingly run on to what railway men call a "Y". Young Spencely threw the switch on as the engine passed onto one side of this "Y," and jumped onto the pilot of the engine to do the switching work at the ends of the "Y." It was at one of these places the fatality occurred. Day had not broken, and in the darkness, several cars on the track beyond one of the switches was not noticed. The young brakeman was crushed between the pilot and front of the engine on the one side and the end of the box car on the other. The latter either loomed up in the darkness so suddenly that Spencely had no chance to escape, or he was possibly crushed to death without even expecting any obstruction on the track.

In the collision the engineer and fireman escaped without serious injury. Further details of the fatality were lacking this morning.

BELLEVILLE, ONT., FEB. 14.—At four thirty this morning a double-header freight train from Lindsay collided with some cars on the side track of the Y, just north of the G. T.R. yards, and J. J. Spencely, brakeman from Lindsay, who was on the front engine when the impact occurred, was thrown under the boiler and boiled to death. The victim was a young man and unmarried. Dr. Farley, coroner of this city, has ordered an inquest. The other train hands escaped by jumping.

REV. FATHER PHELAN RETURNS FROM TRIP TO PACIFIC COAST

Rev. C. J. Phelan returned last night after an absence of four months spent on a trip for the benefit of his health. He has come back much improved and his friends in Peterborough will be pleased to learn that he is much restored in health.

Father Phelan spent one month at the Mount Clemens sanitarium, Michigan, and the balance of the time on the Pacific coast. He enjoyed that part of his trip that led through the Rockies, viewing with deep interest the fringe of snow-capped mountains. He met many old Peterborough friends in Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria who expressed their pleasure at meeting him, and by their kindnesses greatly enhanced the pleasure of his journey.

Peterborough's representatives whom Father Phelan met are all well and doing well. In Westminster Father Phelan visited Rev Dr. O'Boyle, an old Lindsay friend, now rector of St. Peter's church in that city. Rev. Father Phelan is at present the guest of his brother, Mr. Harry Phelan, Collector of Inland Revenue.

NEW RECTORY AT INNISFIL WAS FORMALLY OPENED

An exchange gives the following details of the opening of a new rectory at Innisfil, where Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, formerly Rector of St. Luke's Church, is situated:

The visit of the Bishop of Toronto was a great pleasure to the Rector and people of the Parish of Innisfil, and everyone was greatly pleased with and benefited by his presence and intercourse with him. The services at St. Paul's morning and evening, and at St. Peter's, in the afternoon were largely attended by appreciative congregations who listened most attentively to the earnest and eloquent words of the Bishop. At St. Paul's at the morning service his Lordship preached on the Gospel of the day, the miracle at Cana: "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it". At the evening service the sermon was based on the Epistle of the day, Romans XII:II., "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord". Preceding the sermon the Bishop exhorted the people to give loyal and prayerful support to the Rector, encouraging him by hearty co-operation and loving esteem. At St. Peter's, the sermon was a personal Epiphany appeal from St. Matthew V:16. "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your father which is in heaven".

The "At-Home" given at the Rectory by Dr. and Mrs. Langfeldt to the parishioners, was attended by a large number of people, including friends from Barrie, who came and went both afternoon and evening. Dr. and Mrs. Langfeldt, with the Bishop, received their friends in the spacious hall. The tea-table was presided over by Mrs. T. Blackmore and Mrs. W. J. Leonard. The dining-room and drawing room were decorated with narcissi and daffodils and Christmas bells and holly. It was a great pleasure to see among the guests the Rev. E. J. McKitrick, a former Rector, and Rev. W. J. Creighton, Rector of Bradford, a personal friend of Dr. and Mrs. Langfeldt. Rev. Canon Murphy, who was to have been present, sent his regrets on account of having to attend his Rural Deanery meeting in Penetanguishene. Miss Gordon very kindly gave piano selections both afternoon and evening.

At the evening gathering the Bishop formally opened the new rectory, and dedicated it by special prayers. Rev. E. J. McKitrick, Rev. W. J. Creighton, and the rector, made congratulatory speeches. The happy event was brought to a close by all joining hands and singing 'Auf Lang Syne" and "God Save the King".

FORMER LOCAL PRINTER IS IN TROUBLE IN TORONTO ARRESTED ON ARSON CHARGE

Norman Creeper, Formerly Employed on The Examiner, Suspected of Setting Fire to Mail and Globe Buildings.

AN INVESTIGATION

TORONTO, FEB. 14.—According to Crown Attorney Corley, there is reason to suspect that the person who set fire to the Globe and the Mail offices recently is in the hands of the police. On information being laid before the police by several firemen, Norman Creeper, who appeared in the Police Court yesterday, on the charge of vagrancy, is the suspected one, and was remanded for a week, with a far more serious charge pending.

Creeper was arrested by P. C. Lane two weeks ago behind Carrick's stables, which were on fire at the time. He was taken into custody on the statements of the firemen that he had been on hand at several fires lately, and had been the first to give the alarm.

Crown Attorney Corley, in asking for a remand, stated that the charge against the man was serious, involving many thousands of dollars, and perhaps loss of life. He also stated that the charge referred to the two fires started at the Globe and Mail and Empire offices recently. The man is to receive a medical examination in the meantime.

Some eighteen months ago Creeper was employed as compositor by the Examiner, working at night. One night a fire broke out in the editorial room of the Examiner, and Creeper, who was alone at the time, turned in the alarm, the blaze being extinguished without any damage being done. While in Peterborough, Creeper had a mania for attending fires, and tried to accompany the local brigade every time they turned out. In fact, for some time, he used to sleep at the fire-hall.

All denominations are invited.

HALL'S BRIDGE POST-MASTER LOSES POSITION

General Indignation Felt in the Neighbourhood Over the Dismissal of Mr. A. G. Shearer in Favour of Mr. J. Jones.

MAY CALL A MEETING

HALL'S BRIDGE, FEB. 14.—The weather has changed for warmer, which is very agreeable to all after the extreme cold of last week.

Owing to the state of the roads, Rev. Mr. Ireland of Bridgenorth, was unable to be present to continue the Sacrament on Wesley Circuit on Sunday last.

Another head goes into the basket. Our kind and genial Postmaster, Mr. A. G. Shearer has been relieved of his duties, as Postmaster, at Hall's Bridge, and the appointment has ben given to Mr. J. Jones, in an entirely out-of-the-way place for the travelling public. The latter appointment is meeting with the disapproval of the rank and file of the community, and amongst the leaders are the strongest Conservatives in the neighbourhood. I am sure that it is only voicing the expression of the ratepayers upon this question, when it is said that there is not a better location for the Hall's Bridge postoffice than the one previously occupied, and there is not the least doubt, should the powers that be insist on carrying out the present appointment, that there will be an indignation meeting held to protest against this unwarranted and unwholesome action on the part of the Postoffice authorities; in fact there is a movement on foot at the present time to either have the office brought back, or also all the south end of Smith will have mail boxes placed along the road on the mail route.

Princess Mary, only daughter of King George. She will be fifteen years old on April 23rd, and will shortly afterwards make her first public appearance at the unveiling of the Peter Pan statue.

ANNIVERSARY OF GEORGE ST. S.S.

The Sunday School of George St. Church held their anniversary last evening. Tea was served in the basement, and was followed by an illustrated lecture by Mr. Jas. Stubbs, on subjects that were varied and interesting. A large gathering of pupils and parents were present, and a most enjoyable time was spent.

A LONG SNEEZE

The Market Clerk's office is the original "johnsmithy" and although the old chestnut tree is lacking from the scenery most of the alleged jokes are of a chestnut flavour. The Clerk, himself, is not responsible, and is sometimes a sharer in the results of the johnsmiths. This morning, for instance, some one opened a package of sneeze powder and remained long enough to answer once or twice himself, as a bluff of innocence. By their fruits they shall be known, and when a trick of this kind is perpetrated, the "committee" does not have to look far for the guilty party. This laughing powder, as it is called, is offered in many stores in Montreal, and a certain dealer in cattle, visits the eastern city every week. There is a warm reception awaiting him on his next appearance at the office, for this morning the regulars and visitors gave the impression of being hay fever sufferers, so liberal had been the disposal of the powder.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN LAWLESS CASE

Before Justice Middleton at Osgoode Hall yesterday, Frank Lawless of Lakefield, sought to have the conviction made by Magistrate Edwards, for selling liquor without a license, quashed. Judgment was reserved.

PEANUT POLITICS.

Mr. A. G. Shearer, postmaster at Halls Bridge has been relieved of the position, and the postoffice has been removed across the bridge to the store of Mr. Jones—a position that is out of the way and not as convenient to the public as the place the postoffice has occupied for the past quarter century. Mr. Shearer has been removed, and his place given to a more active partisan, if it is fair to describe Mr. Shearer as a partisan. He has been, at any rate, a satisfactory and obliging postmaster, and is one of our most reliable and respected citizens. He enjoys the public confidence so largely that he has, for several terms, occupied representative municipal positions, and enjoys the public confidence and esteem in every way, as fully as he did in the position of Postmaster.

Instead of political friends being gained by the vindictive action of the representative for West Peterborough in making the change Mr. Burnham will find that the residents of North Smith, and the Buckhorn road, who are most particularly affected, will resent the interference in this way. Had the previous members for the West Riding, in the House of Commons acted in the same manner, heads of active partizans would have been politically removed after every election for the past fifteen years, and more particularly for the interference of four years ago. But Mr. Hill was allowed to remain. Everybody knows that in the country district every Postmaster expresses his views, and talks around the fire in the evenings with the blacksmith and the store-keeper, should there be one in the locality. The removal of bridge tenders, lock masters, and post masters and other petty officials is pretty small business, and those who are guilty of it should be ashamed of themselves. The public cannot surely approve of such actions. Mr. Hill enjoys the position at Buckhorn, that if such tactics were to be pursued, he would have been removed fifteen years ago. Instead, he is more comfortably situated than he was when the Liberals took office.

CIVIC ANTI-SEPTIC SURGERY.

Lord Lister, the father of anti-septic surgery which has been one of the greatest benefactions in the history of the healing art, simply applied to surgery and the treatment of wounds the principle of cleanliness, the elimination of dirt. The germs that set up trouble in slovenly surgical operations and treatment, have dirt in some form, as their menstruum. The principle of cleanliness, the essence of the antiseptic treatment, applied to personal cleanliness and cleanliness of households and house premises, is as important in promoting good sanitary conditions as antiseptic surgery. Even skilled surgeons for years turned glances of scorn and deaf ears to Lord Lister's discovery. So it cannot be wondered at that the people, many of them ignorant, most of them indifferent, accept slowly the importance of clean persons and premises. Five years ago the citizens of Peterborough voted down a by-law to establish a garbage removal system. They were deterred by the expense that would attend the work of making their homes and premises free from the contributory causes to disease—dirt. They apparently preferred to pay doctors' bills and undertakers' bills to paying garbage collectors' bills. But within the past five years there is reason to believe that public sentiment has changed. Educative forces in regard to the conditions that contribute to good public health have set the people thinking. The Local Health Association, has done a very good work in arousing public attention to health matters, and we are better prepared than we have been in the past, to consider measures to secure public health through cleanliness of premises. We are better prepared to consider the question of garbage removal on its merits.

Without pronouncing upon any scheme the City Council may have in mind for the removal of garbage, the main point is that we all agree that garbage should be dealt with in such a manner as to prevent its presence around our homes, creating disease, which it will certainly do, if it provides the conditions that invite and encourage disease. The presence of festering garbage in summer breeds house flies and house flies are the most effective and active agents in the distribution of disease germs. The people of the city will await with some interest the system of civic antiseptic surgery the city fathers are preparing and considering.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

Sir James Whitney is improving; he is learning; he is getting into the habit of admitting that somebody outside himself knows something. He met Hon .Adam Beck's Hydro-Electric scheme with at least passive resistance—damned it with faint praise—till Mr. Beck pushed it to a stage of success, that made the idea worth appropriating. He appropriated it by proposing to place it under his wing in a place of cabinet rank.

Now he has shown another promising sign. He has re-discovered New Ontario and claims great credit for launching a proposal for its development—something left severely alone for the past seven years. Sir James has learned something that leads him to adopt, appropriate as his own a policy of development of New Ontario, inaugurated by the Ross Government a dozen years ago.

When the Ross Government proposed to explore New Ontario, the vast and rich region, which the Mowat Government had won for the Province of Ontario, Sir James had nothing but scoffs and sneers for the Government and the territory. Speaking in Massey Hall, at a great Conservative gathering, Sir James then plain Mr. Whitney—leader of the Opposition, in connection with the exploration of New Ontario, sneered at Premier Ross as the "discoverer" of "the land of the aranted poplar."

Mr. Whitney, when he gained power, was consistent to the extent that for seven years he neglected New Ontario to the point of goading the settlers to demand secession from Ontario, and to be attached to the midget province, Manitoba.

Now, when New Ontario has vindicated itself—when private enterprise and the unavoidable retention and automatic application of the development policy of the Ross Government has forced the new country into the limelight; now, when measures for its development are literally thrust upon him, he finds it worth appropriating, is willing to reap, credit, where he has not sown cause. He launches a development scheme which he should have put into operation seven years ago, and have given Ontario the benefit of seven years fruitful development, instead of seven years of neglect. This evil sense of this neglect is intensified by the importance attached by all interests to the possible results of the last move. The Toronto News, the most slavish apologist of the Whitney Government's shortcomings, emphasises past neglect by present praise. By way of heading, it says:

"Five million dollar grant will stare immigration tide to great clay belt. Northern Ontario uplifted by Premier Whitney's announcement. —Towns will spring up with the building of roads—Property doubling in value—All talk of secession now dead."

No more scathing condemnation of the Whitney Government's criminal neglect of New Ontario ever came from the mouth, or pen, of Premier Whitney' political enemies than this praise from a political friend.

Late and slow as is the "friendly move" for the development of New Ontario, it is welcome. No wonder that, as the Toronto News says, there's "rejoicing in the north." There has been mourning long enough. Northern Ontario has been step-mothered seven long years. Seven years have been lost; Ontario has permitted the west to become the fashion, and the five millions won't do as much in the way of development now, as half a million a year spent with earnestness and good will beginning seven years ago. But, better late than never.

DARK HINTS FOR MR. BECK.

(Toronto Star)

There was in Dr. Jamieson's speech in the Legislature a sort of grave, diplomatic air, as of one to whom secrets of State have been imparted. His references to the Hydro-Electric Commission were hardly such as would have been made by a new member in his maiden speech without inspiration.

The inference from Dr. Jamieson's speech was that the Hydro-Electric Commission and the municipalities would have to go slow. It is pretty well understood that the object of the proposal to abolish the commission and take Mr. Beck into the Cabinet was to curb Mr. Beck's ambition by surrounding him with cautious colleagues. This plan has fallen through for the present, but it may be gathered from Dr. Jamieson's remarks that an effort will be made to regulate the pace of the Hydro-Electric to a decorous slowness. On this question the Government has what the World would call "the little eye".

The inference from the comments of the Star is that the Hydro-Electric scheme, under a commission, is suffering from its environment. The sleeping sickness may not be contagious, but, according to appearances, it seems in danger of catching it.

CAUSES MUCH DISEASE

Advice About Stomach Troubles and How to Relieve Them.

Do not neglect indigestion which may lead to all sorts of ills and complications. An eminent physician once said that ninety-five per cent. of all the ills of the human body have their origin in a disordered stomach.

Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets leads us to believe them to be among the most dependable remedies known for the relief of indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is very prompt. Their use with persistency and regularity for a short time tends to bring about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorders.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets help to insure healthy appetite, to aid digestion, and thus promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store—McDermid and Jury.

TEMPERANCE PEOPLE COMPLAIN

seem to be slipping back into the old rut of officials who are incompetent or worse, and Boards of License Commissioners who seem to be distinctly liquor-favouring.

"Conditions in the Province of Ontario now are not as good as they were three or four years ago. One hindrance to the effective work of the enforcement by officials is the ridiculously inadequate penalties attached to the violation of the law.

Resolutions Passed.

Several resolutions were submitted to the convention and carried, one that the Government should be urged to make the gift of liquor an indictable offence in local option districts as well as the sale of liquor, another that the Government license public stopping places, and another that club licences be cancelled wherever local option carries. A resolution was also carried looking to the inauguration of a Provincial campaign for local option and the placing in the field of candidates at the next election.

Burn Caused Open Sore

Zam-Buk Worked a Wonderul Cure.

Sometimes a bad burn, a deep cut or some similar mishap, sets up a more permanent injury, in the form of an open, discharging sore. In such cases Zam-Buk will be found of unequalled value.

Mr. J. Nixon, of 901 William Ave., Winnipeg, a blacksmith at the C.P.R. shops, had his foot badly burned by some molten metal falling upon it. He says: "The burn was a very bad one, and after the first few days it left an open sore, which showed marked signs of blood-poisoning. It discharged freely and caused me terrible agony. For three weeks I suffered acutely and could get no ease. At last I obtained a preparation from the doctor, which seemed to stop the discharging and made me quite hopeful, but finally the wound became as bad as ever.

"I was then advised to use Zam-Buk, and from the first application the balm gave me relief. The inflammation was thoroughly checked, and the poisonous matter cleared away in a very short time after beginning with Zam-Buk. Healing then began, and in less than two weeks the wound was thoroughly cured."

One of the main lessons of this case lies right here—use Zam-Buk first for any injury, sore, skin disease or wound. Don't spend money and waste time in experiments. Zam-Buk is equally good for piles, blood-poisoning, festering wounds, chaps, cold sores, children's eruptions, scalp sores, varicose ulcers, chilblains, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. You are warned against harmful substitutes and inferior preparations.

VALENTINE SOCIAL

A valentine social was held in St. Andrew's church Sunday school room last evening. The spacious hall, which was profusely decorated with appropriate valentine decorations, was comfortably filled with people, and a pleasant time ensued. Games and round the table conversations were the order of the day, following which refreshments were served at the small but well appointed tables.

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering, and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by all dealers.

AN ENJOYABLE VALENTINE PARTY

Nearly two hundred young people congregated in the St. Alphonsus Lyceum last evening, the occasion being a Valentine party given by the young men of the T.A.S. Society. The room was prettily decorated for the event. Progressive euchre and dancing was indulged in, after which the officers of the Ladies' Literary Society served refreshments. Rev. Father McColl and Mrs. James Bogue each won a prize in the progressive euchre contest, the former being an ebony clothes brush, and the latter a cut glass olive bowl. The party broke up at a late hour thoroughly pleased with the pleasant evening which they had spent.

WHAT GROCERS SAY

Several grocers have expressed the opinion that the butter market will not advance beyond its present figure now charged there would be a price now charged there would be a resulting decrease in consumption. He had already felt a slight easiness in demand. Besides the trade would not like to advance prices to any higher level, if it was possible to refrain from doing so. Another prominent retailer stated that he has seen people pay prices on the market that were much higher than the stores were charging for goods of equal, if not superior, quality. When butter and eggs are bought from a grocer the purchaser if dissatisfied can make a complaint, and if the goods are not up to the quality they are usually exchanged. But the farmer is gone with the money and the householder has no chance of receiving satisfaction. This is a point which the grocer thinks should not be overlooked by his customers when making their purchases.

THE FLAVOUR OF TEA

The flavour of tea is contained in an essential oil. With age the oil decays and the agreeable aroma and flavour of fine tea is destroyed.

Tea keeps better in sealed lead packets than it does in open chests or cannisters, but it deteriorates more or less under any circumstances. Fresh tea is all necessary to a successful tea trade as fresh butter is to a successful butter trade. No wholesaler or retailer should keep a pound of tea in his stock for more than four months, yet, with some, the fashion is to keep it for years, during every day of which it is deteriorating.

In Ceylon—that land of eternal summer—every bush in a tea garden is picked over every week in the year, and you always get it fresh and fragrant in the "Salada" packages. "Salada" does not show the dealer as large a profit as other teas, but it gives him, through his customers, more satisfaction.

Orillia Juniors Here Friday

The announcement that the speedy Orillia juniors will be here Friday night for a semi-final game with the Bear Cats has aroused the enthusiasm of the fans to fever heat and the indications are that the biggest crowd that ever saw a junior game in Peterborough will be on hand when the two teams are sent away. The great reputation of the Orillia team coupled with the fine showing the local youngsters have made this season will be sufficient to pack the rink. Capt. Hall and his men are determined to annex a victory and the team has been showing great form in its practises on Monday and Tuesday night. The line-up will be the same as in the last three games.

For a sprain you will find Chamberlain's Liniment excellent. It allays the pain, removes the soreness, and soon restores the parts to a healthy condition. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

KID McCOY

They were talking about Kid McCoy, the crafty ring general and wonderful puncher, the other night, when some one told the story of how the Kid, whose right name is Norman Selby, was kicked out of a tailor shop where he was employed by the proprietor for not attending to his business, and declaring that he would never work again as long as he lived. This brought a little history from Frank Kelly, the former manager of the Kid. "I do not know whether the Kid ever made that vow or not," said Kel, "but the first time I ever saw McCoy was with Pat Killen at St. Paul in 1890. He was working for a restaurant man named White as waiter. For three years afterwards he travelled all over the country. In 1894 he made his first appearance in this city at the old Highland House, where he fought Al Roberts, now of Lawrenceburg, Ind., a ten-round draw. He was matched with 'Shadow' Maber at the People's A. C., but boxing was stopped in Cincinnati and the bout called off. We transferred to the Pastime Athletic club in Memphis, and McCoy won in 10 rounds.

"This was the first of McCoy's fights to attract attention, and the papers all over the country were anxious to find out something about his past. Maber, who had come to this country with quite a reputation and had fought Danny Needham in Cincinnati, was considered among the best lightweights before the public. Maber had beaten Mysterious Billy Smith, and this alone caused him to become quite a figure in boxing. After the Memphis fight we went to Boston where the Kid was matched with Jack Wilkes, of Chicago.

"When Wilkes entered the ring he paused and looked at McCoy. With a look of disdain on his features he remarked: 'Is that the sickly looking kid they want me to fight? Why, it's nothing short of murder.' Well, to make a long story short, Wilkes was the most surprised man in the world, as the Kid knocked him out in two rounds.

"McCoy was then matched with Dick O'Brien, of Boston. No one thought that McCoy had a ghost of a chance, but he managed to get a draw. He then returned to Cincinnati and was matched with Dick Moore, of Louisville. The betting was 3 to 1 that Moore would win. McCoy knocked out Moore in six rounds and emerged without a scratch. The same year, in Cincinnati, he knocked out Al Robe in five rounds. We then went to Baltimore to try and get a match with Jake Kilrain, who had just made a draw with Steve O'Donnell, whom Jim Corbett had announced as the champion of the heavyweight class, having turned that honour over to him. Kilrain would not meet McCoy, saying he was too small. He then took on Ale Ulman and beat Ulman in 13 rounds. His match with Jim Corbett should be thrown out.

GOOD PUNCHER.

"That McCoy was as great a puncher as Bob Fitzsimmons or Jim Jeffries is proved by the unmerciful manner he pounded Tom Sharkey, being one of the few men to knock the sailor down. McCoy was making matters so warm for Sharkey that Tom O'Rourke, in a rage, took Tommy Ryan out of Sharkey's corner and looked after Sharkey himself. McCoy was too confident, and, through carelessly leaving himself open, fell a victim to a chance blow, and was knocked out in 10 rounds by Sharkey, January 10, 1899. The rest of McCoy's fighting history is pretty well known, but for the enlightenment of readers the following clipping from the Police Gazette will give a good line on the work of the Kid up to the time he went down to defeat before Sharkey":

"Although defeated by Tom Sharkey, no boxer before the public to-day occupies a more exalted place in the estimation of the better class patrons of pugilism than Norman Selby, known professionally as Kid McCoy. He is characteristically modest and reticent to a degree about his early life, and it is therefore left to Frank Kelly, of Cincinnati, who was McCoy's first manager and played an important part in getting him started upon his professional career to supply what was needed to complete his biography:

"McCoy is 25 years old and was born in Rush county, Indiana. His parents were very religious people, but each were believers in different doctrines. His father kept a little store and was so religious that he would not keep tobacco because he thought it was contrary to the laws of God.

"The Kid was of a roving disposition and at an early age he became tired of the strict religious atmosphere of his surroundings and ran away from home. His first position was in a tailor shop, where he assisted in the work of sewing buttons and running errands. I never knew of this fact until McCoy was training at the Basset road house just outside of Buffalo for his second contest with Tommy Ryan. One afternoon, after working hours, a man well along in years approached the veranda and spoke to the Kid, who immediately recognized him and introduced him to the crowd. Before leaving I saw McCoy give him some money, and after he left the Kid said: 'Instead of staking that fellow I ought to have given him a bat in the nose; he kicked me down a flight of stairs once.' McCoy then told me the story of the tailor shop experience, and how one day when he failed to perform an errand in a satisfactory manner, the tailor flew into a rage and kicked him down stairs and discharged him.

"His experience with that tailor soured McCoy on working for people and being kicked around, and he started out to roam over the country. He generally took a sleeper, but the conductor did not bother him much, for his favourite berth was on the trucks. Whenever he got hard up he used to act as a waiter in restaurants, and no doubt many persons, who would now be glad to shake hands with him, have said things which jarred on the Kid's ears when he happened to be a little slow in serving them.

STARTED IN FIGHT GAME.

"The Kid finally made up his mind that he would make a fighter out of himself, and immediately began to make a close study of the boxing game which has characterised his work ever since. His roving disposition did not let him stay in St. Paul very long, but he started over the country again—this time in the fighting business. He fought on barges, in barns, and, in fact, any old place where he could get some one to put on the gloves with him and take advantage of a chance to pull down a little money. Naturally he had many experiences during his rovings, which turned out to be very amusing in the retrospect. I recall one instance about two years ago when the Kid and myself were at the Ft. Erie track in Buffalo and happened to meet Ike Striker, better known as 'Scabby,' a fellow who used to follow the trotters and runners and did a little fighting on the side. He afterwards owned a few horses, and it was in the capacity of an owner that we met him. McCoy laughed and reminded Striker of a time in Dubuque, Iowa, when he (Striker) was matched to fight some man who failed to show up. In his anxiety to get some one to go on with him, Striker told the Kid that, if he would take the absent fighter's place he would agree not to hurt him. Striker was regarded as a pretty tough proposition—in the language of the ring—but McCoy agreed to go on if the purse was increased. The promoters refused to do this and the match did not take place. At the meeting in Buffalo we had a good laugh and the Kid said: 'Well, I did not think at the time that there was much danger of you hurting me, but I was not going to take any chances unless there was more money in it.'

STUDIED FIGHTING.

"He has made more of a study of fighting than any other man who ever lived. He is an apt scholar, and he never fought a man that he did not observe anything new which might have been used and practice it until he had thoroughly mastered the idea. After he fought Maber he used to practice blows that he saw Maber deliver, and he has often told me that his first boxing lessons were taken from Shadow Maber and he still uses some of the blows of the clever Australian. The Kid is one of the most industrious fellows you ever saw. His ability to use either hand effectively is often remarked about. That use of his left is the result of long and continuous practice. Often around the training quarters at night he used to sit down and practice writing with his left hand until he got sleepy. This same idea was apparent in his other work—when playing baseball he would throw with one hand and then with the other. McCoy really has two right hands and a proof of this is his peculiar crouching position in the ring when he pivots on his knees and uses one hand as well as the other. When he worked on the road he used to run backward as much as forward, and would side-step in the place of running forward. I'll bet he can beat any man living running backward."

SPORT IN SCOTTISH HIGHLANDS

In the January "Cornhill" the Hon. H. E. Gathorne Hardy, in an article on "Christmas Sport at Poltalloch" (in Argyllshire), says:

On Sunday afternoon all stroll about, some to Duntroon Castle and to the sea, and others of whom I am one, to the little plantation on the banks of the Scoinish, where there are tidings of an otter. We do not, of course, see him, but there are abundant indications of his presence. We find no less than three fair-sized salmon with the tit-bit eaten out of their shoulder and the rest left to the rats and gulls. Ugly red kippers they are, with beaks like reaping-hooks, and no one is disposed to play jackal to the otter's lion, as is often done when the fish are fresh from the sea. We can see the tracks of the marauder well enough, and the broad worn path where he slides down into the water. It would not be difficult to trap him; but the laird likes to have a few about, in spite of their mischievous habits, and I have a good deal of sympathy with his desire to have all the fauna of Argyllshire fairly represented, even if some of them take toll of the game and the fish. If the misguided energy of keepers was transferred from the destruction of peregrine falcons, and even such smaller falconids as the hobby and merlin, to the rat and the jackdaw, it would be better both for the game-preserver and the farmer; and the lover of nature would more often be able to watch the magnificent spectacle of the swoop of the peregrine on grouse, curlew, or wild duck, or to see the same performance repeated in miniature by the duodecimo edition, the merlin, in pursuit of pipit, lark, or snipe.

Lindy Sings ame Old Song

The day Past gloates thusly Dejected and gloom in the locker room today, for the hockey team reuniting that burg bumped up again better outfit in Midland last even and when the game was over 12-2 score was registered against

There many blue countenances on Electric City last night when the news was received for it is a known fact that the fans in that had the championship pocket-book that were actually talking of a bone and gold watches for the boys. Bobby Burns truthfully said:

"The best laid plans of men and mice
Gang aft agley,
And lea us naught but promised joy."

Expense of the "top piece" is a disease which has often proved costly. The Petes claimed their team was an insatiable aggregation, and the fans now quite cocky after their 6-5 victory on Monday last. They could see nothing else but the championship, and it is, therefore, little wonder that some of the players grew quite cheesy. This paper proclaimed that the team would strike a snag, but it was accused of having a pipe dream.

The cruellest thing in connection with their last stand was the fact that the Petes' management persuaded that old-time hockey player, Roland Maxwell Glover, to don his skates and battle for his native city. "Rolly" was a king-pin in his day, as the oldest inhabitant will bear testimony.

Ten—two! Whew! That is some score. Wonder what the excuse will be? They can't blame the referee. Rumour has it that Harvey Sproule does on Peterborough, and the Petes thank a whole lot of Harvey. He is said to have given excellent satisfaction last night.

The Peterborough Rooters' Club is in sackcloth and ashes, and are practising funeral dirges. They will probably sing "I Thought I had my money on a Dead Sure Thing," "The Blow that Nearly Killed Father," "Twas a Sad Trip Coming Back," and "'Tis Funny What a Difference Just a Few Hours Make."

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"Please write something," urges a neighbour of mine, "about the woman who asks you to do an errand for her when you are going shopping and forgets to give you the wherewithal."

"Oh, no, I don't mean that she forgets it permanently. She gives it to you when you get back maybe, or a day or two later, but she does not give it to you when she gives you the commission.

"Maybe what she asks you to get costs three or four dollars, and, of course, you wouldn't dream of asking for the money, but suppose your husband gave you just five dollars that morning to do a few little errands. You can see that several of those little errands will have to go undone if you subtract three or four from five."

Have you also met the lady?

I suspect you have, for she is a very common or garden variety of—well, 'sponge' seems to me about the best word for her.

She is notably present in the summer colony where she is perpetually asking the working girl, who goes back and forth to town everyday, to get her this or that little thing.

I know one working girl who spent the summer, about thirty miles from the city, and being one of the few to go back and forth every day, was often loaded down with bundles for these folks. Her financial experiences were much the same as my neighbour's, and being a girl entirely dependent on her own earnings, there were actually several occasions just before pay day, when commissions like these so depleted her pocketbook, that she had to go without her luncheon.

I should think that anyone who was accepting such a gift of time and strength from another, would take pretty good care not to add a financial inconvenience to an obligation already sufficiently heavy.

For that very frequent person who can always "remember your face perfectly, but simply can't recall your name," and whose sad case was discussed in these columns a while ago, a kind reader has sent in this suggestion:

"Write each new name which you wish to remember on a card, spelling it out letter by letter as you do so. Long afterwards, when trying to recall the name, out from your subconscious storehouse comes the card into your mental vision, each letter appearing plainly before you." Try it!

I wonder how many people are unconscious Sunshiners

You think that wonder needs transplanting? I suspect it does.

To be a "Sunshiner" means to belong to the Sunshine Society. The Sunshine Society is an International Organisation, whose one purpose is to bring sunshine into lives that lack it. And not only to the lives of poor folks, but to lonely people, old people, shut-ins, in fact, to all shadow lives, whatever their rank or station.

What I meant by being an unconscious member, was unconsciously paying the dues of this society.

For this society demands of its members a very unique toll—simply this—one kind act a day.

As an interesting experiment, suppose you look back over the past week and tell yourself whether it has qualified you to belong to the Sunshine Society.

DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED IN THE MANUFACTURE OF LENSES ARE MANY AND VARIED

Dr. Marsh Deals With "The Construction of Great Instruments and What They Will Do" at Collegiate Assembly Hall Last Night.

Dr. Marsh gave a very instructive lecture in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute last night. A fairly large audience was in attendance. The speaker took for his subject, "The construction of great instruments and what they will do."

Dr. Marsh dealt fully with the difficulties which are encountered in the manufacture of the glass used in the large astronomical instruments. Sweden, Italy and Germany lead the world in this particular branch of science. It required upwards of months of continuous heat to bring the glass to a state of incandescence, which is considered to be the critical stage. The cooling process which follows will require from three to twelve months. Free from imperfections and perfect annealing are the essential requirements in the finished product.

A glass 36 in. in diameter will weigh approximately three hundred pounds in the rough state and is worth about fifty dollars a pound. The Germans and Swiss are getting the manufacture of lenses down to a science, and it is hoped in the near future to get perfect lenses ranging from five feet to one hundred inches in diameter.

Dr. Marsh also outlined the method of preparing glass for manufacture. The first stage being a mathematical one, requiring weeks, each piece of glass calling for a special mathematical formula. It will take three men from four to six months to make a 30 in. lense, while the mechanics engaged in this work use a scale varying from one ten thousandth to one-millionth of an inch. During the preparation the glass is kept in an underground room which does not vary in temperature a fraction of a degree in a year. A heat consistent with that of the human body is maintained. The friction of the hand will raise the temperature of the glass in fifteen minutes, as to require about five hours to assume a normal temperature.

A few years ago a million stars could be photographed, while with later instruments about ten million stars could be discerned. With the new telescopes under conception, and when completed, it is estimated that the photographic plate will reveal at least one thousand million stars.

Local Ad. Club Formed At Last Night's Dinner

Officers Elected and Further Steps Taken at Meeting of Those Interested in Advertising — The Aims of the Movement Expounded.

ADDRESS BY W. A. LYDIATT

The Ad. Club movement in this city was given a new impetus last night at a meeting of advertising writers, solicitors and the purchasers of advertising space, when after a delightful luncheon in Hooper's Palm Parlours, officers were elected, a constitution adopted and preliminary arrangements were made for future development.

Following the dinner, Mr. A. A. Lydiatt of the Toronto Ad Club explained the advantages of membership in the proposed organization, and some of the local business men expressed themselves in favour of the formation of a club upon the lines adopted by the other clubs throughout the United States and Canada. The report of the nominating committee was then presented and approved, the following officers being appointed to undertake the work in Peterborough:

Hon Pres.—Mr. A. W. Cresseman.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. R. H. Ross.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. W. B. Warne.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Mr. A. A. Fowler.
Secretary—Mr. Jas. McNicholl.
Treasurer—Mr. C. B. Routley.
Executive— Messrs. J. M. Greene, W. Might, Jas. Hamilton, Angus McPherson, E. N. McWilliams, with the President and Secretary.
Programme and Reception committee—Messrs. C. F. Hardy, J. McNabb, W. Cochrane, C. C. Nixon, Ross Cameron and the President and Secretary.

The Business of the Meeting.

After the idea of the Ad Club movement had been explained, Mr. H. B. Cowan, who had been appointed chairman, stated that he understood that a part of the recommendation from the Nominating committee was that a club be formed and he felt that this point should be first decided.

A motion to this effect was moved by Mr. W. E. Conway, seconded by Mr. F. H. Dobbin and adopted.

Mr. Conway had been selected for the presidency, but stated that he would be unable to accept it. He suggested that the officers and executive be allowed to select a president at a future meeting.

Moved by Mr. Jas. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Walter Stocker, that Mr. H. B. Cowan be president. This motion carried, but Mr. Cowan considered that he might not have sufficient time to devote to the office, but it was left with him and the executive for a decision.

A set form of by-laws used by all the Ad Clubs now formed, was presented and was adopted on motion of Mr. A. A. Fowler and Mr. E. N. McWilliams. There only remains the selection of a name for the local Club.

The question of fees was introduced by Mr. Lydiatt who said that five dolars is the regular amount. Moved by Mr. Fowler, seconded by Mr. McWilliams, that four dollars be the membership fee subject to amendment.—Carried.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Lydiatt on motion of Mr. Stocker and Mr. Ross.

The Purpose of the Movement.

Mr. Cowan in his introductory remarks, stated that the first Ad. Club was formed in Cleveland eleven years ago by a number of advertising men who foregathered for the purpose of studying advertising. This first effort had been so successful that it has been undertaken in many other places with equally gratifying results. The aim of the movement is to place advertising on a better business basis and to elevate it to the plane it deserves. The elimination of fraudulent advertising is another goal that is to be strived for. Honesty in advertising was the leading word at a recent meeting in Boston.

Success in Cooperation.

Mr. Lydiatt stated that the present tendency is toward co-operation in contrast to the former divisions into factions in almost every endeavour. Advertising takes such a prominent part in the business of to-day that the merchant should study it more, for what he can get out of it. A woman to-day knows the styles and fashions in vogue. She has read the papers and the magazines in which she has found the last word in this connection. She visits the stores to find the things which she has read about, and if she fails to find them her opinion of the store will hardly be favourable.

Many words and phrases are used in advertising to-day that have lost their meaning. The word best in reference to bargains, prices, etc., has been overworked. People have read it so often in advertisements that they have lost faith in what it should mean. This is only one of a score of words that are misapplied every day and the real value of them is lost when they might be used in the best faith. Mr. Lydiatt said that this was one of the points upon which merchants can be educated. Some merchants think that there is nothing left in advertising for them to learn, and yet these are often the men who have the most to learn. "If a merchant is going to give me my money's worth," he said, "why should he give me the goods at half price? Not that there are no bargains. He should explain why he is in a position to give such a bargain. The live merchant often picks up snaps which he decides to give his customers the advantage of, and it would be much to his benefit if he would explain why he can do so.

Mr. Jas. Hamilton asked Mr. Lydiatt to explain more fully the benefits to be derived from an Ad Club. Later he stated that the question was suggested because he felt some might not clearly appreciate what would be done.

Mr. Lydiatt said monthly meetings would be held. Arrangements could be made to have illustrated lectures dealing with good and bad advertising, what the merchant should strive to secure in his ad and what he should avoid. The principles of advertising would be expounded and the experience of some one merchant would assist others. Successful merchants from other cities could be secured to tell how they attained success, the Ad Club could become a live organization in promoting the welfare of the city. In fact the work to be done that would benefit the individual was almost unlimited providing the members put forth every effort to make the Club successful. To illustrate his points he cited what had been done in other cities to show that the Ad Club movement was going forward every day.

Other speakers were Messrs. Walter Stocker, F. H. Dobbin, W. E. Conway, Jas. Hamilton, Jas. McNichell, Mr. Coleman and others. Mr. C. W. McDiarmid of Toronto was not present, contrary to expectations.

Those Present.

The following were present at the dinner: B. H. Rose, A. A. Fowler, J. M. Greene, Wm. E. Conway, H. B. Cowan, Harry Morgan, Geo. A. Gillespie, J. Anderson, Jas. Hamilton, W. Merrill, E. N. McWilliams, R. M. Glover, Ross Cameron, Walter Stocker, F. H. Dobbin, Chas. Primeau, J. Johns, Reg. Turner, C. B. Routley, Harry and Fred Cressman, R. McKee, W. Cochrane, C. C. Nixon, J. Angus MacPherson, J. MacNabb, H. Waram, J. T. C. Laing, A. E. Byers, H. Callander, W. A. Lydiatt, J. Browett, C. Taylor, R. Wotton, Jas. McNicholl, W. Coleman and Mr. Hardill.

REMANDED FOR A WEEK

A local man appeared in the Police Court this morning with a charge of being drunk and disorderly registered against him. It is alleged that he did summarily eject his wife and children from their home last night, while under the influence of liquor. His wife, who is on the verge of a nervous breakdown, was removed to the hospital to-day for treatment, she having spent a year in the hospital on a previous occasion for similar reasons.

When arraigned before his Worship Magistrate Dunfie, this morning, and questioned as to the physical condition of his wife, he maintained an air of indifference, which even a week's remand in goal failed to dispel.

SAINT VALENTINE'S DAY.

Valentine Day, February 14, is more properly, St. Valentine's Day. St. Valentine was a bishop of Rome during the 3rd century. He was of a most amiable nature and possessed remarkable gifts of eloquence, and was so very successful in converting the pagan Romans to Christianity that he incurred the displeasure of the emperor and was martyred by the emperor's order on February 14, A.D., 270. When the saint came to be placed in the calendar, his name was given to the day of his death.

OMEMEE NEWS

OMEMEE, FEB. 12.—Mrs. H. Shield was in Lindsay on Monday.

Miss Bertha Nichols was home over Sunday.

We had several Lindsay celebrities in Omemee this week. His Hon. Police Magistrate Moore, who gave four popular decisions; Mr. F. H. Hopkins who made a good case out of adverse witnesses, and Mr. I. E. Weldon who caused a mild sensation in connection with the cross examination of our chief of police.

Miss Amy Parsons is visiting relatives in Toronto.

Miss Elva Thompson of Lindsay, is the guest of her parents, having been called home on account of the illness of her mother.

Mrs. Chas. McQuade and children of Allandale are the guests of Mrs. E. McQuade, Sturgeon street.

Rev. R. Burns was in Oshawa on Sunday preaching educational sermons in that place.

Miss Edith Robinson was the guest of Salem friends last week.

Owing to the delay in the train service on Saturday evening, the Public Library concert had to be postponed.

The Young People's Club at Trotter's school house are making preparations for a basket social on Friday evening. Refreshments will be served to those who do not bring baskets.

Mrs. R. Burns returned from St. Catharines this week.

On Sunday, the services in the Methodist church were of a missionary nature. In the morning Mr. W. B. Sparling of Lindsay gave a most interesting and practical address, treating the subject from the viewpoint of the Laymen's Missionary movement. Mr. Sparling, who knows his subject thoroughly, brought home to each member the responsibility resting upon them, in giving of their substance to this work. A man will spend on one day's pleasure, three times the amount he contributes to Missions during the year, and yet would object if asked to increase or double his subscription. Mr. Sparling addressed the congregation at Lebanon in the afternoon in the same cause. In the evening Rev. S. Moore, of Oshawa, preached on the subject of 'A One-mile Christian influence in the way of giving as well as receiving. Mr. Moore preached at Salem and Ops in the morning and afternoon, having been brought up at the former place.

Mr. Reid of Peterborough was in town on Sunday.

Mr. W. B. Sparling was the guest of Mrs. Wm. Searle while in town.

Messrs. M. Sherin and I. Rehill, delegates to the Conference Epworth League convention held last week in Belleville, will give their reports next Monday evening at a united meeting of the Epworth League and Brotherhood. A cordial invitation is extended to all interested to attend.

Rev. S. Moore of Oshawa, was the guest of Mrs. J. M. McCrea over Sunday.

VINCENT EASTWOOD, MANAGER

THE PREVALENCE OF CHIMNEY FIRES

Practice of Allowing Chimneys to Burn Themselves Out Should be Discouraged Says Chief.

The question of clean chimneys vs. dirty ones, has become a burning one with many householders, inasmuch as many of them prefer to let their chimneys burn themselves clean rather than resort to the more conservative method of cleaning them, via the brush and shovel route. It invariably follows that when chimneys are cleaned by the former method, a trip for the fire department is ensured, and the city's finances are reduced to the extent of the cost of several gallons of chemicals, necessary to put the over-heated chimney dors de combat.

He cited one instance of where, upon being called to extinguish a chimney fire, an invitation was extended to the firemen to take the offending stovepipes down, clean them and replace them.

"An excellent opportunity," commented the landlady.

Needless to say the firemen did not respond, but picking up their traps, drove off, leaving the party in question in a very indignant mood.

Chief Howard says that the practise of allowing chimneys to burn themselves out, with a view to cleaning them, is a dangerous one that should be discouraged. Even with the best constructed chimneys, the danger involved is considerable.

In many of the large cities a by-law has been introduced, compelling the householders to clean their chimneys at least twice a year. If they wont do it themselves, an Inspector, who is employed by the city for this purpose, will see that it is done for them, the expenses to be borne by the party concerned.

This has had the effect of reducing the number of calls responded to by the Fire Department to a large extent.

The other day, a man who makes a specialty of cleaning chimneys, walked into the Chief's office, and left his name and address with that official, in the hope that he would be able to recommend him to parties desirous of having their refractory chimneys dealt with.

Out of the number of alarms responded to last year by the department, forty-four were credited to chimney fires. While on Saturday last, three families were rendered homeless through what is supposed to have been a defective chimney.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlains' Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL

Correspondent Explains Methods Employed in England

A lady at present residing in Peterborough, but formerly of Ashhurst, Kent county, England, furnishes the Examiner with the following simple statement of the manner in which garbage is treated in the large towns or small cities, as we should call them in this country.

In the large towns in England, garbage is disposed of in the following way: When a house or cottage is built a dust bin is built of bricks adjoining the back wall, with a wooden frame with lid. This is kept shut and does not harbour flies if a little lime is sprinkled on the top by the householder. These dust bins are cleaned every week by dust carts belonging to the Council. The landlords are taxed accordingly of course. The tenant pays the tax indirectly in the rent. All the refuse goes on a sewage farm belonging to the Council, which is worked as much as possible by the unemployed. The profits of the farm reduce the taxes and in the end it benefits all around.

A NARROW ESCAPE

A couple, while driving out near Jackson Park, last evening, narrowly escaped colliding with a Jackson Park car. They were driving on the right side of the boundary line, when the approaching car caused the horse to shy, upsetting the cutter, and throwing the occupants into the roadway. The horse tore down the road at a record clip, while the driver and the street car conductor engaged in a little verbal fireworks. The horse was captured by a pedestrian a few blocks away and returned to its owner in an undamaged condition.

WILL EXCEL

Mr. Geo. Brewster, of Banff, a member of the firm Brewster & Moore, in speaking of Jasper Park, that is being opened up by the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific through the Canadian Rockies, stated that it will excel any of the Canadian Parks as a pleasure playground.

Mr. Brewster has been through the District, and says it is exceptionally well stocked with wild game of all kinds; also that it is a splendid country for mountain sheep, as well as moose, deer, bear, and mountain goat.

The mountains in Jasper Park are higher than in any other Canadian territory, and as soon as the Grand Trunk erect the hotels that they propose, and the Government get proper trails throughout the territory it will become more popular than any of the mountain resorts on the Continent.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Turner, Lachine, P.Q., formerly of this city, announce the engagement of their daughter, Laura Mae, to Mr. William Sutton Nelson of Winnipeg. The wedding will take place quietly on February 21st.

Mr. and Mrs. McCaul, of Edmonton, are in the city for a few days renewing old acquaintances. Mrs. McCaul was formerly Miss Hattie Douglass, Brock street. At present they are guests of Mr. McCaul's sister, Mrs. R. J. Edmison, Bridgenorth Road.

MEN RISK TOO MUCH

Life insurance companies now are very careful about issuing policies to active men over 35 years old for the chances are that they have impaired their health greatly by overwork.

Of course, if steps are taken in time, this damage can be repaired. Mr. Everett Neely of San Antonio Tex., says in a recent letter :

"My health failed lately owing to overwork, and as I did not get better after a month, I began taking Vinol. It has given me a better appetite, helped me to sleep and build me up in general so that I now feel like my former self. It is a great pleasure to recommend Vinol to everyone who needs a strength renewer."

Every man, woman and child who is in poor health, weak, nervous and run-down, ought to know that Vinol is exactly the right thing to build them up and make them strong again. It is made from fresh cod livers and tonic iron, without any oil and is delicious to take. We guarantee Vinol to do just what we say and give back your money if it does not. MAYOR OF WINDSOR IS DEAD

Special Wire to the Examiner.

WINDSOR, ONT., FEB. 14.—Following his confinement in the hospital, since the last municipal election, suffering from a nervous breakdown, Mayor W. J. Hanna, K. C., passed away at the Hotel Dieu, this morning. Mayor Hanna has served in the capacity for three terms. "The Judge," as he was better known, was born in the County of Leeds. No more popular official ever filled the Mayor's chair in this city. Two brothers, Dr. Hanna of Perth, and Dr. Hanna of Brantford, a widow, and two sons, survive.

WEDDING BELLS

CHAPMAN—FREEBURN.

A quiet wedding took place at the George street parsonage Saturday, at 3.30 p.m., when Miss Bertha Freeburn and Mr. Charles H. Chapman, both of Toronto ,were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. I. Couch.

The contracting parties were unattended. Immediately after the ceremony they adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bolton, 507 Bethune street, where a dainty repast was served. The happy couple left on the 5.35 G. T. R. for their future home in Toronto.

BURKHART—FOSTER.

A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday at Norwood, when Mr. Seth Burkhart, son of Mr. Thomas Burkhart of Delhi, was united in marriage to Miss Madeline Foster, daughter of Mr. Thomas Foster of this city. Rev. Mr. Cree officiated. The couple, who were unattended, will reside in Peterborough.

"Pictures That Have Lived"

A most delightful lecture was given by Miss McRae before a large audience in the Y.W.C.A. green room last night. Her subject was "Pictures that have lived," and was illustrated by lantern slides, coloured and prepared by herself.

Mr. Mowat, inspector of public schools, who presided, made a few instructive and appreciative remarks, and introduced Miss McRae.

The first picture was the English painter, Turner's "The Fighting Temeraire," and the lecturer called the attention of the audience to the beautiful colouring of the picture and the dignity of the old warship.

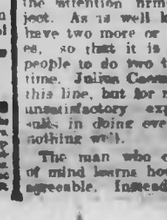
It is impossible to dwell long upon Miss McRae's clever description of Millett's "First Step" and "The Sower," Breton's "Lark," and perhaps most beautiful of all Raphael's "Sistine Madonna" and "Madonna of the Chair," and Da Vinci's "Mona Lisa."

The audience learned many things about the composition of these pictures and about the artists' lives.

The support of the people of Peterborough should be generously given to the educational committee of the Y.W.C.A., in their efforts to put before the public such an excellent series of Tuesday evening lectures.

Mrs. Rollins ,whose talks at the Y.W.C.A. have been so highly appreciated, will take as her subject next Tuesday, "Charles Dickens."

Much pleasure was given the audience by Miss Steinhoff's song and piano selections by Miss Lottie Chiles during the intermissions.—Com.



President Of Electric Power Company Here

Mr. J. G. G. Kerry, president of the Electric Power Company, was in the city on Monday, looking over the estimates prepared for the proposed extensions to the electric light and gas systems of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, also in regard to Radial Railway extensions. In connection with the East City extension Mr. Kerry expressed himself as desirous of seeing a substantial and artistic bridge across the river at Hunter Street. He also approved very highly of the Smith Street bridge. Mr. Kerry had a talk with Mayor Bradburn in connection with the matter.

GOOD MANNERS AND SELF-CONTROL

Control of one's thoughts is an important part of good manners. Indeed a great many acts of incivility and, even rudeness, are caused by absence of mind. The woman who gazes off into space while handing you a dish, or who lets go of it before you have taken firm hold of the edge, emptying the chicken salad into your lap, or all over the tablecloth—such a woman is not necessarily an awkward person. She may simply be thinking of something else, instead of attending closely to the matter in hand.

The man who says little heed to what you say to him, allowing his thoughts to wander far afield, is certainly a very trying individual. Perhaps you are explaining a difficult point to him, or giving him complicated directions. His mental faculties are so lazy that, like a child, he cannot long focus his mind on any one object. One of the most important social virtues is to listen attentively to and answer precisely what is said to you.

Many of the unfortunate remarks that occasion so much bad feeling are caused by absence of mind. Thus the woman who enters into a long dissertation on insanity, when talking with a man whose brother has just been sent to a lunatic asylum, may make this frightful blunder in entire innocence. A clever woman, who was famous for unlucky remarks of this sort, gave the following explanation of them:

"I sometimes feel as if the presence of certain people brought me a brain wave. Now, such a mental current tells me something that is true of Mr. X—, but it may be a truth that is not kind to mention. According to my experience, it is best to think twice before acting on the impulse caused by these brain waves. Thus, if Mr. X.'s presence puts forgery forcibly into my mind, it is because his uncle has lately been convicted of signing the wrong name to a large check. Clearly the subject is one to be avoided."

Evidently presence of mind is a most desirable virtue to cultivate. The best way to do so is to avoid trying to do two or three things at once and to endeavour to concentrate the attention firmly on a single object. As is well known, our brains have two more or less separate halves, so that it is possible for some people to do two things at the same time. Julius Caesar was an adept in this line, but for most of us it is an unsatisfactory experiment and results in doing everything badly and nothing well.

The man who cultivates presence of mind learns how to make himself agreeable. Instead of remembering the bright answers he would like to make and the amusing anecdotes all he is leaving an entertainment (what the French call "l'esprit de l'escalier"), he thinks of and utters them at the psychological moment. He goes into company, as he would enter upon a game, alert and active. He keeps his wits about him and tries to do his best. Even if he is tired afterward, as a result of his exertions he feels that it has paid; he has done something that was worth while and made the most of the moment. He is in strong contrast to the individual who goes through the evening half asleep, waiting for someone to wake him up and amuse him!

LOCAL CITIZEN OWES HIS LIFE TO THE BRAVERY OF THE LATE CAPT. WARD

Was Rescued by the Noted Life-Saver as He Was About to Go Down for the Last Time—Survivor Relates His Experience to an Examiner Reporter—His Companion Was Drowned.

The passing of the late Captain Ward, Toronto's noted life saver, who is credited with having saved one hundred and forty-two lives, brings to light the fact that Peterborough has a citizen who was once saved from a watery grave by the combined efforts of Captain Ward and Captain Andrews.

Prof. Schlochou has resided in this city for several months and is actively engaged in the teaching of German and French languages, and also music. He resides at 606 Bethune street and his wife was formerly Miss Strickland of Lakefield. In 1883 Prof. Schlochou came to Toronto, and two years later the incident deals with in this narrative occurred.

The following is an extract from an article which appeared in a recent issue of a Toronto paper, and giving a few of the life-saving experiences of the late Captain Ward, as related by himself:

"That silver clasp above the medal is something I prize highly. It was for a separate rescue of a German music teacher. His name was Mr. Schlochou. He and Miss Laura Mendon were overtaken in a furious squall on the bay, July 27, 1883, in a small boat. We put out after them, and just got there as he had gone down for the last time. He was five or six feet under the water when our boat dipped in the trough, and I caught a glint of him and grabbed him. Miss Mendon was drowned."

In relating the incident to an Examiner reporter, Prof. Schlochou said that he and Miss Mendon were returning from the island in a small rowboat. When nearing the refinery the boat was overturned by a huge wave, with the above result. Prof. Schlochou, who was a good swimmer, was unable to exercise his ability in this respect owing to the heavy seas which were running, but he managed to keep afloat by treading the water, a feat which he learned during his boyhood days in his native land. Miss Mendon sank from view immediately following the capsizing of the boat, and it looked for a time as though her escort was doomed to a similar fate. He was going down for the last time, when rescued in the nick of time by the veteran life saver. Upon being dragged into the boat he lapsed into a state of unconsciousness. His rescuers worked over him all night, and towards morning were rewarded by the appearance of a faint spark of life. During the time that Prof. Schlochou hovered between life and death, he was confined in Marshall's Temperance House.

"With Captain Ward, when he effected this rescue, was Captain Andrews, another well known life saver who eventually became blind.

Longshoremen worked indefatigably for nine days before they succeeded in recovering the remains of Miss Mendon.

NORWOOD MAN WAS FINED $10 FOR ASSAULT

Scuffled With Another Man's Wife, Then Beat Up Her Husband When He Objected to the Procedure

AFTERMATH OF LAST NIGHT

John Rogers, a wheel maker of Norwood, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning with a charge of assault preferred against him. He pleaded guilty. The complainant William Leach, a local man, stepped into the witness box with one eye partially closed, head badly bruised and the thumb of his right hand swathed in bandages.

His evidence was to the effect that he and the prisoner had taken in the hockey match and incidentally a few drinks. They then adjourned to the complainant's house, where further refreshments, consisting of tea and toast and a small bottle of liquor, were partaken of. It was here that the preliminaries to the assault which followed, started. The prisoner started to wrestle with Leach's wife and the latter threw him down and held him there. At this stage Leach intervened and ordered Rogers to desist, which he did. As the time for Rogers' departure was drawing near, the two left the house intending to go to the C.P.R. station, where the prisoner was to have taken the train for home. While passing along Murray street, the wrestling incident at the house occasioned an argument which resulted in Rogers assaulting Leach. The latter says that the prisoner struck him on the head and knocked him down and wound up by biting his thumb and doing a marathon sprint down the railway tracks. Leach notified the police and the arrest of the prisoner followed soon after.

Mrs. Jessie Leach, wife of the complaintant, in testifying, corroborated the evidence of the former witness. She said that Rogers grabbed her by the arms and threw her over the stove damper, remarking at the same time that he could lick anybody in the house or in Peterborough.

"The tea was too strong," offered his Worship.

Rogers on being allowed to give evidence, said that the trouble first commenced by Mrs. Leach grabbing hold of him and throwing him down. "We were old friends," he said "and were just having a friendly scuffle," when Leach interfered.

When he was leaving the house he took Mrs. Leach by the arms and said 'Good-bye Jem,' Leach then grabbed him by the throat and threw him down. The two then left the house.

On being recalled both Mr. and Mrs. Leach emphatically denied the prisoner's statement in which he said that Mrs. Leach had made the first overtures.

"It is the common result of foolishness on the part of both of you when you consider it necessary to drink in order to display your hospitality," commented his Worship, who then imposed a fine of ten dollars to be paid forthwith, in default of payment fifteen days in gaol.

As the prisoner did not have the necessary amount steps were taken to notify some of his friends in Norwood

TEMPERANCE PEOPLE COMPLAIN OF TREATMENT FROM THE PREMIER

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, FEB. 15.—Delegates at the convention of the Ontario and Dominion Alliance convention this morning were very outspoken about the way Sir James Whitney treated the delegation yesterday. "We are making ourselves the laughing stock of the country by exposing ourselves to such insults as were given our committee at the Parliament Buildings yesterday," said one delegate.

Pres. Gibson took comfort in the fact that there was a growing sentiment, he said, which would teach the gentlemen in Queen's Park who were the bosses of the province. The delegation was at least entitled to common courtesy and civility. It was decided to ask the Dominion government for direct anti-Canadian temperance legislation.

THREE HIGHWAYMEN GET AWAY WITH $25,000

Examiner Special.

NEW YORK, FEB. 15.—One of the boldest robberies in the history of this city was commised this morning, when twenty-five thousand dollars, in bank notes were stolen from East River Bank messengers by highwaymen. he messengers were on their way through the busiest part of the financial district, conveying the money from the Providence Exchange to the bank's branch in the bastery, near old Trinity Church, in sight of scores of people, when three men sprang from the crash, one mounted the box with the Chauffeur and holding a revolver under his coat, pointed against the driver.

He commanded him to drive swiftly and make no alarm. The other two highwaymen got into a cab, where they clubbed the messengers over the head and wrestled the tin box with the money from them. At Park Place the three men with the cash jumped from a "taxi" into a big black automobile which whirled them off, till they were lost in the maze of traffic. The chauffeur continued till he met a policeman who found W. J. Smith, messenger, aged 61, unconscious and bleeding profusely. Frank Wardell, a younger man, was conscious but bound with ropes. here is no clue.

TAX REFORM BILL WAS READ

THE SCHOOL QUESTION

TORONTO, FEB. 15.—During Wednesday's session of the Legislature, an attempt was made to steal a march on the Opposition in the introduction of tax reform legislation.

The Opposition leader, Mr. Rowell, had given notice of a bill to amend the assessment act by giving municipalities power to change the system of taxation, and to shift the burden from improvements to land. The motion was returnable to-day, as was also one by Mr. J. A. Ellis, West Ottawa, who has a bill of the same nature but which is slightly less drastic. The latter brought his motion up and introduced his bill yesterday.

A Technical Move.

Perceiving the manoeuvre, Mr. Rowell asked permission of the House to return to the order of business to give first readings to bills. This being granted, he quietly asked leave to introduce his bill, which was given a first reading. It is a matter of speculation which bill will have precedence in the second reading; and if the Ellis measure is brought before the House first the Liberal leader will probably be forced into the position of moving an amendment. In the event of Mr. Ellis yielding to the wish of the Government Whip and withdrawing his bill, Mr. Rowell will still have the opportunity to go on with his proposal and bring an expression of opinion from the Government members, many of whom are pledged to support such an amendment to the assessment act.

Mr. Rowell's bill is a duplicate of the Fripp measure of two years ago, which failed to secure a second reading. It gives municipalities power by vote of the electors to fix a lower assessment or tax rate on improvements, or exempt improvements entirely. The Ellis' bill provides for a full assessment on land, with a gradual reduction in the assessments on improvements. This reduction is placed at forty per cent. the first year and fifteen per cent. for each succeeding year, the reduction being based on each preceding year's assessment.

Several bills were given a second reading. One to prohibit minors frequenting billiard rooms and other places, brought an objection from Mr. S. Clark (West Northumberland), who thought the age should be fixed at sixteen and not eighteen years. A well grown boy of sixteen, he thought, should not be precluded, so as to cause a fine to be levied against the proprietor of the place.

Answers to Questions.

The Opposition secured a little more information upon various questions. Mr. McQueen was informed that the government had received requests from twenty-six counties and four cities to take action to stamp out tuberculosis in Ontario. The Provincial Secretary gave a statement showing that for the five years from 1906 to 1906 the Government had given $23,455 to assist local sanitaria, and in the five years from 1906 to 1911, $160,073 had been appropriated. In addition the Government had appropriated smaller sums for tuberculosis and health exhibits. The statement showed also that Ontario had a smaller death rate from tuberculosis than nearly every European country, and that it was constantly growing less.

Sir James informed Mr. Udney Richardson that no arrangement had yet been made between the Federal and Provincial Governments with reference to promoting immigration to Nw Ontario, nor had any such arrangement been made with regard to the construction of permanent highways.

Bilingual School Question.

Mr. Rowell voiced an objection to the manner in which Hon. Dr. Pyne answered Mr. Racine's question as the number of bilingual schools in the Province. He considered that the Minister had not given an answer by stating that Dr. Merchant's report had not been received. If there were no bilingual schools the fact could be stated, and if there were such schools the Government should know of them and not have to depend upon Dr. Merchant.

URIC ACID SUFFERING
Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are used. Hundreds have testified to health restored by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Unionist Leader's Poor Showing

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 15.—It is quite evident that the Canadian Unionist leader, Bonar Law, was not altogether satisfactory to the Unionist papers as a critic of Asquith's pronouncements in the House of Commons last night. While they endeavour to excuse the Unionist Leader's mis-statements and rambling arguments on the ground of nervousness, there is undoubtedly a feeling that he made a poor exhibition in his first great test as leader in the House debates. For instance, he stated that the Unionists would repeal the Insurrance bill if they came into power, which would be a most unpopular move and quite apart from any previous declaration of Unionist platform. The press generally are praising Asquith's announcement of the Germany-Anglo situation.

150,000 TONS OF SUGAR EXTRA FOR MARKET

BRUSSELS, GERMANY, FEB. 15. The International Sugar Conference has reached a decision on all points, with the exception of one of secondary importance. All the powers agree to renew the convention for five years on the same conditions as governed the previous convention, and to authorize Russia to export an additional 150,000 tons during the current year and 150,000 additional in subsequent years.

The only outstanding point is how the second 150,000 tons is to be apportioned. This is left to Russia, Germany, and the powers directly interested to settle among themselves. The result will be made known at a plenary meeting of the conference, which is fixed for February 23.

A PROVINCIAL LOSS.

The translation of Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, to Ottawa, is a pursuance of a policy of appreciative robbery of Ontario, practised by the Dominion government for years. No sooner does this province develop men of so conspicuous ability as to make them marked men, than Ottawa, by the bribb of a bigger salary, gobbles them. But there is in one sense no harm done. These men are translated to a wider sphere of usefulness, and they are still serving Canada and Canadian interests. The question that troubles Ontario now is to get a man to replace Mr. James, not only in an office chair, but in regard to conspicuous ability to give good service in the agricultural interests of the province. With Mr. James as Deputy-Minister, an ineffective Minister of Agriculture, was to some degree powerless to do as much harm as he would do without such a mentor at his elbow. If the successor of Mr. James is made to match our present Minister of Agriculture, we say good bye to Mr. James with a larger tear in our eye.

At a sale of Shorthorn cattle held in Toronto last week, the average price obtained for animals sold for export to the United States, was $287.50. The average price realised on animals bought by Canadian purchasers was $223.50.

The difference in prices fairly well represents the difference between the values ruling for cattle of all kinds in the United States and those which obtain in this Province. Pure-bred cattle, purchased for breeding purposes, are higher there than here: the same is true of cattle purchased for feeding or slaughter. Canadian breeders of pure-bred stock are enabled to take advantage of the higher prices ruling in the United States for breeding cattle, because registered breeding stock is allowed to enter the United States duty free. The Canadian farmer, who has nothing but grade cattle to sell cannot take advantage of the American market because a United States duty of 27½ per cent. on the sort of cattle he has to sell stands in the way. The reciprocity agreement provided for the abolition of this duty and the free entry of Canadian cattle of all kinds into the United States. The prices paid by American buyers at last week's sale for pure-bred stock, which is allowed free entry to the American market, affords one more indication of how much producers of grade cattle are losing every week by the rejection of reciprocity.

The ice harvest proper is not the important consideration. The aftermath—the second crop—is the most serious consideration, especially if we are harvesting ice frozen from water surcharged with filth, and especially pollution filth.

COURAGE WANTED.

As was expected, at the annual meeting of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance, a call was made upon the friends of temperance to ignore party considerations and stand shoulder to shoulder in the attitude of bringing public men to meet their views in regard to temperance legislation. Mr. Joseph Gibson of the Alliance, for many years a stalwart, made a statement to the effect that the Dominion Alliance was "not going to be a donkey engine to any political party." Here the true friends of temperance reform, by way of legislation and otherwise, will take issue with him. The Alliance is not a legislative body; it has no legislative authority. It is only advisory, and can only give effect to legislation through its influence upon legislators. Under our system of government, legislation is nominally and virtually in control of the party in power, which has the strength and the ability, if it chooses to exercise them, to influence, to mould, to shape and to determine the extent to which legislation will go. If the Alliance should become "a donkey engine" of one party; should add its moral strength to the latter's potential strength; should be able to commit that party to a sound and effective temperance policy it could do something. Now, with the temperance sentiment of a legislature, very much diluted by being spread promiscuously among members of both parties, it is legislatively powerless, and nothing but fine sentiment and no business done, is the result. The only way to gain the desired adhesion of parliaments or legislatures, to the advance of temperance principles is to make the influence of the friends of temperance dominant in the legislature through the ballot. If the electors could, and they could if they would, elect a parliament or legislature pledged to enact the temperance legislation they profess to desire, something might be expected. But the same old story is repeated from year to year, from election to election. Electors by the thousands who, in the interval, shout for, pray for, and preach for temperance, go to the polls and leave their temperance principles outside the polling booth, and straightway vote party, no matter what party stands for in relation to the cause they so valiantly uphold when their advocacy is only sentimental, and so easily forget when they can give their principles effect.

It is not the liquor traffic, it is not "vested interests," it is not the depraved devotees of drink that are the real enemies of temperance reform by way of legislation, it is the temperance people themselves. They have the power, through their votes, to force any party to adopt their views, but they cannot agree to act together, when united action would be effective in bringing about the desired result.

We have the dominance of the party principle, over temperance principles, illustrated every day in our very sight. We have the law, whose enforcement is regarded as in the interests of temperance, through regulation of the drink traffic, broken flagrantly and repeatedly and neglect of the officials to enforce it. We have this neglect, ondoned, excused and defended by temperance people, in their capacity of political partizans to the extent that that portion of the public whose position is on the border line of friendliness and opposition to temperance, turned adversely; we have the real friends of temperance pained and disgusted and the enemies of temperance, encouraged and strengthened.

The temperance sentiment of this province is overwhelmingly predominant as a sentiment, as witness the generality of support of the local option movement. Does or does not the explanation of this support lie in the fact that local option is a mere abstraction? It is not party or a party candidate. If it were, the result would be determined on party lines. In the matter of local option, Grit and Tory temperance people can, and do vote with a solid front. But the moment the matter of party comes in they divide, and each goes the party way. What is needed is that the electors have the courage of their convictions.

What Permanent Tariff Commission Should Do And What It Should Avoid

The Free Press has strongly maintained that all the information gathered by the proposed permanent tariff commission should be available not only for the government as laid down in the bill, but for parliament and the people, in order that the latter may intelligently judge of the justice of the customs duties imposed. From statements made by Hon. G. E. Foster and Hon. Mr. White last night, the government seems to have given way before this criticism.

Mr. Foster is reported as saying:

The duties of this commission will be to get at the whole facts concerning the different industries and place them before the government, before parliament, and before the people.

Mr. White said:

"The information obtained by the commission will come to parliament, but the government will have to take the initiative in tariff legislation."

Provided that the bill is amended to read that the commission shall not only report "to the minister" but to Parliament, our objections have been met.

But there is another weakness that might be remedied. All through the bill the commission is too much subordinated to the minister. Apparently it is deprived of all power of initiative. It is to enquire into matters "upon which the minister desires information." Possibly it was not Mr. White's intention to so restrict the commission but that is certainly the interpretation that a narrow-minded minister might place on the legislation.

It should be made clear in the bill that the commission may enquire into any complaints, whether those complaints are made by manufacturers, the beneficiaries of the customs duties, or by the consumers who have to pay those duties.

The Free Press is not at all in sympathy with the general criticism by the Liberal members in the House of the principle of the permanent tariff commission. We have believed for a long time that such a commission could do splendid work.

It is not necessary in this connection to belittle what was done by the ministerial tariff commissions appointed on two occasions by the Laurier government. They did their best, but Hon. Mr. Foster yesterday confirmed what we have already asserted, that it is a physical impossibility for any temporary commission touring through the country at great speed and hearing volumes of varying evidence, to properly assimilate that evidence, to properly assimilate that his own experiences in this way in the making of the tariff has a remarkable likeness to Free Press descriptions of the difficulties that surrounded the task of the Fielding commissions.

The Free Press is not alone among the Liberal papers in approving of the principle of a permanent tariff commission. The Toronto Star for instance, certainly does not object to it, and contents itself with urging modifications of Mr. White's bill along lines suggested in these columns. As a sample:

Unless provision is made for all parties to be heard, there is grave danger of a bias being given to the inquiry. The experts may intend to be fair, and it is probable that a sense of responsibility will incline them to fairness. But if they are to move only when directed by the minister, and if all the information is to be furnished by manufacturers, there will be a natural and inevitable bias toward the producer rather than the consumer.

The Fielding plan contained three excellent features. It was public. It allowed both parties to be heard. It allowed any person to take the initiative, whether he wanted an increase or decrease. Mr. White should take a leaf out of Mr. Fielding's book. He should provide that any person may demand an inquiry. He should provide for publicity. It is not necessary that details of a manufacturer's business should be published, to his own injury and the benefits of his rivals. That matter could be left to the discretion of the commissioners. But the public have a right to know the grounds upon which a change is made. The public have also the right to demand redress of grievances and to know why a demand is granted or refused.

The government does not like to have its measures branded as a piece of class legislation. It can remove that reproach if it desires.

Some Liberal members who have been quoting the long list of recent Canadian trusts and mergers seem to have lost sight of the fact that these trusts and mergers came into existence during the Laurier regime. They are an argument that some change is needed and seem to point to the wisdom of appointing a permanent tariff commission rather than of a continuation of the existing state of affairs.

THE PANAMA AND CANADIAN CANALS.

Whether or not it is the intention of the United States Government to discriminate against foreign nations in regard to the use of the Panama Canal, it will not be done without protest, for prominent United States newspapers, whose sense of fair play is superior to the claims of unfair advantage. The New York World advocates a free Panama Canal, and instances Canada's treatment of foreign traffic upon its canal systems as a reason why there should be no discrimination. The World says, editorially:

"Canada has expended more than $100,000,000 to provide ship canals from the Atlantic Ocean to the Great Lakes. It is a larger expenditure relative to population or resources than the United States will make at Panama. The cost of maintenance and improvements are relatively larger.

Nevertheless, American vessels are allowed to go toll-free through these costly Canadian waterways. The American tonnage through the Welland Canal is larger than the Canadian. The tonnage of both countries through the American and Canadian canals at the Soo is larger than that of the Suez and larger than that will be of the Panama. But Canada rejects the policy of cost-tolls or profit-tolls, where they could be so easily collected. It adopts the policy of making its artificial waterways as free as the high seas. The United States does the same with its canal at the Soo.

Can the United States afford to adopt a Panama Canal policy less generous to Canada or the nations than this Canadian canal policy is to the United States?"

Cost Of Living Highest Known

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, FEB. 14. — The Department of Labour's price record for January shows the general price level of articles entering the cost of living to be the highest known, probably, within the present generation, certainly since the early eighties. Since the middle of June last, a pronounced and continuous upward movement has been in progress, and though there was a short breathing spell in December, January now shows the highest level of all.

The department's index number, which is based on the observation of fluctuations in 261 commodities selected for their representative character, rose to 131.0 in January, that is, general prices were 31 per cent. higher in that month than was the average for the decade 1890-1899, which is taken by the department as the standard of comparison in constructing its number.

Compared with prices in 1907, the lowest year in the past quarter of a century, prices are now at least 45 per cent. higher.

The recent rise is particularly serious from the cost of living standpoint, in as much as it is due to industrial expansion having enhanced the price of materials, while the reported shortage in the world's crop has produced a like effect on the price of foodstuffs.

Husband's Hair

How About It Madam, is It Falling Out or Growing Thin?

Don't Lose It

Most husbands are careless regarding their hair—many are skeptical regarding hair tonics, restorers and the like.

It is only when their hair comes out in combs full that they really sit up and take notice.

If your husband's hair is falling; if he has dandruff or scalp itch, don't let it make a baldhead of him, get a 50-cent bottle of PARISIAN SAGE today, rub it on his hair every night until dandruff goes, hair stops falling and the new growth appears. Then use it every other night until the hair is thick and abundant. PARISIAN SAGE is a delightful, refreshing hair dressing for men, women and children. It will do as advertised, or your money back. AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Midgic Station, N. B.—One can hardly believe this as it is not natural, but it was my case. For ten months I suffered from suppression. I had different doctors, tried different medicines, but none helped me. My friends told me I would go into a decline. One day a lady friend told me what your medicine had done for her, so I wrote you for advice and received your reply with pleasure.

I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at the second bottle showed improvement. Now I am regular and never was so well in my life, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine.

Please publish my letter for the benefit of others.—Mrs. Jomah W. Hicks, Midgic Station, N. B.

Indian Head, Sask.—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is indeed a boon to women who suffer from female ills. My health is better now than it has been in my five years of married life and I thank you for the good your advice and medicine have done me. I had spent hundreds of dollars on doctors without receiving any benefit.—Mrs. Frank Cooper, Box 448, Indian Head, Saskatchewan.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

By JOHN MARCH

It was a kind voice and he knew it notwithstanding the two years since he had heard it. Though it came from the dim past the voice had dwelt with him; he remembered it as something kind, pleasant, and very good. Denham felt the grasp relax and took advantage of the loosened fingers.

"It's almost right, sir," the man exclaimed; "gie him another call an' yer have done the business."

"Guy, little man, I want you."

The boy slid from the set limbs and ran to him. Felix seized him and hurried from the room, followed close at his heels by Denham, who evinced no morbid desire to linger behind.

"Lock the door, Denham, and take charge of the child for a day or two. I will put the proper machinery in motion for this matter as soon as it is daylight and I will stay down stairs until the doctor comes. You need not hurry to frighten the servants, Joshua."

"I'll let 'em find it out, sir; that Leonie is a jabbering ,prating fool. She'll shake the house down; she'll there's blood on your collar, sir, an' on your shirt front."

"Blood!" he exclaimed; "I've not been near blood, and there is none on the boy. How the deuce did it get there!"

"I dunno; but it's there, an'—"

"Heavens—" Farley put his arm round his neck. Was it from him? Had she shot him? Was he hurt after all?

"Catch hold of this boy, Denham," he said, impatiently; "I won't stay. Tell Dr. Hunter to hurry up and come straight on to the Manor—I expect Mr. Farley is hurt. By the way, how did that boy get into the room?"

"I dunno. Leastways he were on the stairs in his shirt when I carried Mr. Farley in. 'Spect he follered and hid, sir."

CHAPTER XXIX.

MRS. GRUNDY FROWNS.

The crass inconsistency of women! Felix had pushed open the parlour door, and from his coign of vantage beheld Paul lying back supported by cushions, with Agnes perched familiarly on the arm of his chair.

He was sipping coffee, she holding the saucer and he the cup. A plate of the daintiest of ham sandwiches stood untouched on a stool, unnoticed, forgotten, in the interesting absorption, so engrossed were they one with the other. Agnes's head all but touched his, while she apparently laid down the law in a subdued voice and impressive manner, which appeared to possess the power of eliciting his entire attention. The exposition had also the gratifying advantage of promoting profound silence on the part of her auditor, causing him to listen to her with a melancholy apology for a smile and a pained contraction of the eyebrows.

Felix marvelled at the quantity and wondered at the quality of that softened unbroken flow. Awhile back she was distinctly averse to his entering the house, and now she had rushed to the opposite extreme. She was objectionably close to him, patting his hand, salving her conscience without doubt, at any rate treating him much in the same way, with the same freedom, she might adopt towards himself.

It was curious; women were phenomenally incomprehensible, and it was simply a waste of time and energy to try to penetrate or fathom their motives. They had none; they were swayed by impulse, influenced by circumstances, and generally allowed their hearts to take precedence of their heads. It was high time to disturb the colloquy, if only to assure himself to what extent Paul were hurt, to take him under his own wing and insist upon absolute quiet after a night of such excitement and horror. Accordingly, he cleared his throat, shut the door, marched across the parlour, and swept Agnes unceremoniously off her perch.

"There are plenty of chairs in the room, Agnes, my dear," he remarked in a tone that had a disagreeable amount of starch in it, and then, laying a hand on Paul's shoulder, he added, anxiously, "Where's the mischief, dear boy?"

Paul brought a hand swathed in linen rag from beneath his coat, and looked at it dubiously.

"Miss Agnes has been good enough to bandage it for me."

"Is it a bad wound?"

"It's just a bad scratch. It—"

"Is that statement absolutely veracious?" Felix asked, looking over his shoulder at Agnes. "This young man's criticism is apt to be extremely inadequate where he himself is concerned."

It was true, as both she and Paul knew. The wound was a severe and exceedingly painful one. The shot had ploughed the thickest part of the thumb, lacerated and torn an inch of flesh from the bone. The dressing had horrified and sickened Agnes, but by hook or by crook its serious character must be hidden from Felix, otherwise Paul would never be permitted to leave by the first train. They had been apportioned ample time in which to chalk out their ground, and they meant to adhere to it, to walk in its narrow course, hedging and bristling as it was with a host of harrassing difficulties.

"That is hardly correct," she said, her eyes fastened on Paul's; it's rather more than a scratch; perhaps just verging on a slight wound."

"Well, it is best left till Hunter comes, and then he can have a look at it and do it up properly. In the meantime—"

"He will have to come quickly then," Paul interrupted, looking at his watch; "I mean to catch the first train up," and he devoutly prayed for that happy consummation to his plans.

"Do you, indeed?" Felix asked, with an indulgent smile. "Well, then, disabuse your mind of the idea at once, because you won't do anything so absurd. What have you had to eat?"

"Oh, lots—something—it was a—why, a sandwich—I am sure I had one of those sandwiches."

"I should imagine you feel as if you had come away from a Lord Mayor's banquet;" Felix remarked dryly, "on a meal off a sandwich the size of my thumbnail! Agnes, tell Rose to hustle Mrs. Pilgrim, and say we shall want a hot breakfast fit to sit down to in a couple of hours' time. What have you in the house?"

"There's that steak, Felix, and the pheasant you shot."

"We will have them both, and some tomato sauce, and tell the old lady the quicker we get it the better pleased we shall be. And Paul," he said, twisting around, "in the meantime, you come upstairs with me and lie down."

Agnes had started on her errand to the kitchen, but came to a dead stop at the parlour door.

"Felix," she said, and she tried to speak in a casual common-place way; "the spare bed blankets are almost aired, but I think Mr. Farley will like a nap in a chair here by the fire just as well."

"He can sleep there to-night; he will stay a day or two now he is here—won't you, Farley?"

Agnes looked at him; he had risen from his seat, and his face was bloodless.

"Thank you," he said, nervously; "you are both very kind, but I cannot accept your hospitality. I have made up my mind. I mean to go back by the 6.35 train."

"Nonsense, man! With Mrs. Wycherly's decease the necessity for your return is removed."

"I have practically left the Hall; at least I am to stay in town until Sir Thomas decides to recall me."

"Well, in the interval let me entertain you. Sir Thomas can send his communications here as well and better than to the 'Pendennis.' Come, there's no reason in the world why you shouldn't stay a couple of days. At any rate, I won't hear of your going away by the early train. You won't go off in that shaky condition without a meal, not if I know it, young man."

"You must really please accept my refusal. I—"

"Not I; we are well matched in obstinacy,' Felix said, laughing. "But I generally get my way, and I mean to have it if I never do again."

"What is it you wish?" Paul asked as Felix hooked his arm within his.

"Why, I want you to come upstairs with me for a wash and a quiet snooze. A nap will steady your nerves; you're as limp as a piece of chewed string."

"Can't I have it here?" he asked, looking anxiously round the room.

"Let Mr. Farley do as he likes, Felix," Agnes interposed. "If he does not want the trouble of going upstairs, why he can lie on the couch here."

"Don't interfere, Agnes; it does not concern you," he said testily. "Besides, Rose is coming to turn this room out."

"She need not," Agnes persisted.

"But there are the noises in the house, the smell of the cooking, and—"

"Suppose Dr. Hunter sees me first, and then if he prescribes such profound undisturbed repose, why—"

"Have you any objection to come upstairs to my room with me?"

Teacher Cured of Barber's Itch

Tells of Cures Among His Pupils That Were Remarkable

Raw, Inflamed, Itching Skin is Soothed and Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Barber's Itch is a form of Ringworm, which, when once started, is most annoying and unsightly, and most difficult to cure. Barbers often refuse to shave anyone having this disease, for fear of passing it on to other customers.

But you can cure Barber's Itch and keep the skin wonderfully soft and healthy by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment. Just read what this teacher has to say about the healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Chas. C. Poirier, Upper Caraquet, N. B., writes: "Two years ago while teaching at Shippegan I caught Barber's Itch. A friend told me Dr. Chase's Ointment would cure me, as it had him. When I went for a box I thought it dear, but when I found how good it was I thought it cheap.

"Not only was I cured by that single box, but it also cured two of my pupils, and this too quickly to be believed. One of them, a girl, had a running sore on the chin, which the doctor had tried in vain to cure. The other had a sore on the ear; water running out of it all the time. I can certify to the cure of these cases."

Wherever there is itching skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with positive assurance that the results will be entirely satisfactory. The soothing, healing power of this great ointment is truly wonderful. 60c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Many Local People Present At Funeral

(Lindsay Warder)

The popularity of the late George Arthur Simpson was attested to this afternoon when a very large concourse of friends and relatives gathered to attend the funeral, and pay their last respects to the departed one. The funeral services were in charge of Canon Marsh, rector of St. Paul's church, who spoke very highly of the deceased gentleman. At the funeral procession passed down Kent street, the Citizens' Band played the dead march. The pall-bearers were as follows: Messrs. G. White, and Charles Stapleton, of Peterborough; A. L. Campbell, H. A. Middleton, J. Lauder and Herb. Williamson, of town.

The following Peterborough friends sent floral tributes: Mrs. Gus. White a cross; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rowntree, sheaf; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lipsett, cross; Dr. and Mrs. Amys, wreath, and Mr. and Mrs. Manico, wreath.

A Band Of Real Indians

Siberian Wolves and Kentucky Trailing Dogs With "Daniel Boone on the Trail."

No more thrilling drama of pioneer days than "Daniel Boone on the Trail," which will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Saturday next, matinee and night, has been written in recent years or one whose subject is more familiar to the average person. A tribe of Sioux Indians, headed by Chief Young Buffalo, a grandson of Sitting Bull, travels with the Company, and the Council of War shows the methods of the savages in their dealings with the white men. The burning of Boone's cabin by the Indians, his fight for life with a pack of real Siberian wolves, the throwing of his daughter into a den of bears, and the saving of Boone's life by his Kentucky trailing dogs, are a few of the thrilling scenes presented. The seats are now on sale.

THE DOG NUISANCE.

Peterborough, Feb. 14, 1912.

Sir,—For the dog's sake I would suggest that dogs be not allowed in the Police Court. W. A. B.

P.S.—I have a letter from a leading V. S., complaining that a communication to the Toronto Star, arguing against the bogus rabies scare was cut down and only his initials given.

This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry

Save $2 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough—stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, croup, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to the Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

LAWLESS CONVICTION QUASHED WITH COSTS

Th following judgment was delivered by Judge Middleton at Osgoode Hall yesterday:

Rex v. Lawless.—Motion by defendant for an order quashing conviction of defendant for selling liquor without a license. Judgment: I do not think there was any evidence to warrant a conviction. I quash the conviction with costs against the informant, and with a protection order so far as the Magistrate is concerned.

Mr. G. N. Gordon of this city, and Mr. Haverson of Toronto, appeared for the plaintiff.

Blood Poisoning Results From Digging Out Corns

To really make a corn go away, to remove it for all time, there is just one way. Paint on Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor, a soothing helpful remedy that separates the corn from the good flesh, lifts it out root and branch—does it quickly and without pain. The name tells the story, Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor, price 25c. Look out for dangerous substitutes for "Putnam's," which is sold by druggists.

Our Processes Here—Help You Here

In the old days of "oatmeal" the miller was thinking of his goods not of the housekeeper. He made his product in his own way leaving her to find a way to cook it. The only way she could find was the troublesome all-night way. A tedious performance.

Instead of asking the housekeeper to find a way to cook Tillson's Rolled Oats we have found a way of preparing them to suit her cooking convenience.

15 minutes is all we ask of her time, because 15 minutes cooking turns Tillson's Oats into the most delicious, digestible porridge ever put before a hungry man or child.

Five Families Changed Abodes

Yesterday was moving day for four families in the country and one in the city ,who practically exchanged houses, moved their goods and were settled down in their new abodes by nightfall. The movement as recorded, was as follows: Mr. Sid Middleton removed from his house in the city to Mr. B. Seabrook's farm on the 5th line of Smith; Mr. Seabrook moved to Mr. Percy Donaldson's farm on the 4th line of Smith; Mr. Donaldson moved to Mr. W. S. Shearer's farm on the 6th line of Otonabee, and Mr. Shearer moved into the house vacated by Mr. S. Middleton. It was a concerted movement with what might be called good team work, using a hockey phrase. Here were five families in different homes last night after the day's little movement.

WEDDING BELLS

FINNIE—JOHNSTON.

Knox Church was the scene of a quiet wedding last evening at seven o'clock, when Miss Ethel Johnston, of North Monaghan, was united in marriage to Mr. Fred Finnie, of Peterborough. The couple were assisted by Miss Edna Johnston, and Miss Wordie Finnie. Rev. Mr. Keith officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Finnie will reside in Peterborough.

McDONNELL—NOLAN.

Mr. Daniel J. McDonnell, formerly road-master on the C. P. R., and well-known ex-resident of Peterborough, was married yesterday at Dixie, Ontario, to Emily Newton Nolan, of Toronto, the youngest daughter of the late Captain Nolan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Tracey of St. Patrick's church. Miss Zita Burns, a niece, assisted the bride, while the best man was Mr. Wm. J. Allen of Vancouver, a nephew of the groom. The bride wore a pretty costume of gray silk, trimmed with Brussels net and cream satin with a picture hat to match, while her travelling dress was a navy blue tailored suit. Mr. and Mrs. McDonnell left on a wedding trip to Chicago, and on their return will reside in Toronto. Mr. McDonnell's many friends in this city will wish him every happiness.

McELDERRY—ELSTON.

The many friends of Mr. V. J. McElderry will be interested and pleased to learn that he has been admitted to the ranks of the benedicts, his marriage to Miss Laura Elston, eldest daughter of Mrs. A. A. Elston of Preston Road, Somerville, Mass., having taken place yesterday at Somerville.

The Examiner extends congratulations to the young couple and wishes them years of prosperity and happiness. They will reside at No. 417 Stewart street.

AN ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The Children's Aid Society desires to acknowledge a donation of ladies' coats, children's sweaters, and toques from R. Graham and Son, Lakefield; also a quilt from Mrs. Jacob Lobister, London street.

SIGNALLING CLASSES TO BE OPENED AT ARMOURIES

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well-known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription.

We have sold other remedies for skin troubles, but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D.D.D. stops the itch at once.

Of course other druggists have D. D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we can tell you all about D.D.D. Prescription and how it cures eczema, because we have had the agency for so long.

Or you can get a free trial bottle by writing the D.D.D. Laboratories, 40 Colborne St., Toronto. McDermid & Jury, and E. L. Payne, druggists.

POSTMEN SAY THE MAIL NEARLY DOUBLE

Several postmen stated that their mail has been doubled, due to St. Valentine's Day. The real artistic remembrances were not exactly numerous but post cards were a legion. The old idea of the day is apparently broadening and friends are sending them to friends as expressions of esteem and regard. The larger envelopes generally bore messages of a slightly different character.

A meeting of the Bear Cats is called for at 8 o'clock to-night at the Brock street rink. Every player is expected to be on hand as business of importance is to come up for discussion.

SOLD BUTTER AND EGGS AT 31 CENTS

Farmers sold butter and eggs at Keene yesterday at about 30c a pound. One man who was in the village stated that 30c and 31c a pound had been paid for butter and the same price for eggs. It is understood that the buying was wholesale.

Tickets On Sale At The Examiner

Tickets for the Orillia junior game at the Brock street rink, to-morrow night, will be placed on sale at the Examiner office for the benefit of those who wish to procure their tickets and avoid crushing at the door. The indications are for another record crowd.

HOUSE DRESSES

are Important Items in Every Woman's Wardrobe

That is why we expended so much time and trouble in seeking out the manufacturers who made the best House Dresses to be had anywhere. We found him across the border, and we chose from his line an assortment of House Dresses the equal of which has never before been seen in Peterborough.

These comfortable, cosy dresses are exceptionally neat and attractive in appearance, and they are suitable for wear at home for nearly every informal occasion. Especially they are valuable when the unexpected visitor puts in an appearance, for even should you not be dressed it requires but a moment to slip on a House Dress and you're ready to "receive"!

They are even more comfortable than a wrapper, yet they are stylish, trim and neat in appearance. Their value cannot be measured by words; you must actually experience the comfort & pleasure they afford to really appreciate them.

Our prices are extremely moderate, and every dress in this immense assortment is marked at a very reasonable price.

RICHARD HALL & SON

Inquest Opened At Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 15. — Dr. Farley, coroner, opened the inquest into the causes of the death of Mr. J. J. Spencely, who was killed here yesterday. A jury was empanelled and after viewing the body, the evidence of Percy Nugent of Lindsay, conductor of the double header, was taken. He said they had no intimation that the cars were on the east leg of the "Y" which was the usual course of freight trains coming from Peterborough to Belleville. There were no lights on the cars which were struck. The inquest was adjourned until Monday afternoon next.

SHE GAINED 26 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 26 pounds in weight."

OVER THE HOG LINE

Bonspiel Was Concluded in Bobcaygeon Last Night

Skip Flavelle of Lindsay is still retaining his place in the Dingwall competition at the Winnipeg Bonspiel. Last night he defeated Lake of Esterhazy 13 to 9, in the Tetley Tea.

Of the unbeaten rinks, Cobb of Melita, Man., went down in the Dingwall 9 o'clock draw yesterday morning. Sparling, Minnedosa; Flavelle, Lindsay; Braden, Thistles, and Finlay, Strathcona, won their games, and remain unbeaten.

Capon-Waddell Trophy.

The second of the series of home-and-home games for the Capon-Waddell Trophy between Peterborough and Toronto curling clubs was played on Toronto ice, and resulted in a win for the Toronto Curling Club by 8 shots in the first competition for the trophy, which was presented by Dr. F. J. Capon, Toronto Curling Club, and Mr. R. M. Waddell, Peterborough Curling Club, for annual competition. The club winning it five times becomes the absolute owner. The score was as follows:

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

The Bachelors of the Examiner challenge the Benedicts to a game of hockey to be played at Brock street rink as soon as possible. For further particulars apply to Jas. Angelsey, trainer.

Some good hockey was witnessed at the Brock Street Rink on Tuesday night, when the Canadian Express Hustlers met the Dominion Six Wheelers in a return match. Both teams played splendidly and to remark on the performance of any individual player would be an injustice to the others for they all were seen at their best.

At half-time the score stood at 2-0 in favour of the Six Wheelers, but in the latter half the Hustlers rose to the occasion and scored a similar number of goals and the game resulted in a draw.

"Slumberland" Sharp, who was to have acted as timekeeper, arrived on the scene when the game was half over and finished his nap on the field.

The line-up was as follows:

PETERBORO'S GOOD RECORD

The Peterborough intermediates are out of the O.H.A. running, but they succeeded in reaching the third round and made the best showing a Peterborough team has done in that series since 1906. During the season they won seven games out of ten played in the O. H.A. series and cleaned up their district without a defeat, inflicting double beatings to Trenton, Lindsay and Belleville. Altogether they have scored 103 goals to their opponents' 37, an average score per game of 16 goals to 3. Following is their record:

Peterborough 13, Lindsay 1.
Peterborough 4, Belleville 1.
Peterborough 30, Belleville 1.
Peterborough 17, Trenton 2.
Peterborough 6, Trenton 3.
Peterborough 6, Lindsay 4.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THE SERVANT IN THE HOUSE

In spite of the counter attractions last night there was a good crowd at the Grand to welcome Tyrone Power in "The Servant in the House," and saw the most meritorious dramatic production of the season. No more beautiful play, no more finished acting has been seen here, and Mr. Power and those associated with him carried away the admiration of the audience. Mr. Power's portrayal of the part of the Drainman was magnificent. He is endowed with all the attributes physically for the part and his work throughout was unmistakably brilliant.

The supporting company were worthy of Mr. Power, and the whole production is an artistic triumph.

Insist That Yuan Declare His Policy

Special Wire to the Examiner.

NANKING, CHINA, FEB. 15.—There was an affecting scene in the National Assembly, when the resignation of Dr. Sun Yet Sen, provisional President of the Chinese Republic, in favour of Premier Yuan Shi Kai was read and accepted. The Assembly passed a resolution strongly commending Sun for his example to politicians of all nations of supreme sacrifice and self-effacement on behalf of the cause for which he suffered a long xile and many narrow escapes from death. The National Senator of the Upper House may cause trouble over the matter, however. They insist that Yuan shall come to Nanking and state his policy before they can accept his provisional rule.

Danderine

Makes your hair grow long, heavy and luxuriant and we can prove it

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

Hair Becomes Soft, Fluffy, Lustrous and Abundant After a Danderine Hair Cleanse

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

Immediately after applying a little Danderine all dandruff will disappear, all itching of the scalp will cease and there will be no more loose or falling hair.

If you wish to double the beauty of your hair in ten minutes surely try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—In a few moments your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

"If you care for beautiful, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter—A real surprise awaits you.

RED-MILL THEATRE OPENS TO-MORROW

A Splendid Programme to be Presented and Standard Will be Maintained

The Red Mill Theatre will open to-morrow afternoon with a programme of pictures to be shown for the first time in Peterborough. It has undergone a thorough renovation and everything has been done for the comfort of the patrons. This theatre is under a management that intends to give the public as enjoyable a programme as possible. The opening presentation includes "The Gold Dust," a western picture, "Woman's Wit," comedy, and a dramatic film, "The Face at the Window." The slides for the songs will show a feature in that figures will be life size. A popular Irish song is offered to-morrow entitled, "Where the River Shannon Flows." Mr. Geo. Ayres, of Toronto, has been engaged for the opening and one of the best singers for illustrated songs in the province has been engaged for next week. It is the intention to change the singers from time to time. The Red Mill will be open every day from 1 p.m. until 11 p.m. A special matinee for ladies and children will be given every afternoon.

Wanted To Stop Cigarettes

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, FEB. 15—When a deputation of eighty representatives of the Women's Christian Temperance Union waited on Premier Borden this morning, asking for legislation prohibiting the manufacture and sale of cigarettes in Canada, he said that while realizing the importance of the question he didn't think it advisable to consider or pass legislation which could not be enforced. The trouble was, he said, Canadian parents did not seem to have control of their children as they did twenty five years ago.

Four Day Fall Exhibition Plan May Be Abandoned

Directors at Monthly Meeting Mention Reasons Why it May Have to be Given Up—Would Cost Exhibitors More—Baby Show May be a Feature This Year—A Good Meeting.

COMMITTEES WERE FORMED

The monthly meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was held last night in Hooper's Palm Parlours, taking the form of a dinner at 6.45, followed by the actual business of considering the work connected with preparing for the year's exhibition. The following members of the directorate were present: Messrs. J. H. Garbutt, E. W. T. Hooper, R. Denne, J. Brown, R. Deyell, F. Hall, Geo. A. Gillespie, W. E. Conway and J. J. Turner.

Mr. Garbutt, as President, occupied the chair and made a report of the annual meeting of the Provincial Association of Fairs and Exhibitions. Special mention, he said, was made by Superintendent Lockie Wilson of the valuable services rendered to the Association by the late Mr. R. H. Leary who had been first Vice-President. A resolution of condolence had been passed with instructions that a copy of it be sent to his family. The Superintendent's reports go back about 100 years and they show that 1911 was the worst in the history of the province for wet weather during the period, in which the fairs were held. The Government's insurance of $10,000 had been entirely used and the grant had been reduced by that amount. The elections had caused the postponement of quite a number of fairs and had thrown them into the wet weather.

The Province has been divided into twelve districts each comprising from four to six counties. This district includes Ontario, Durham, Victoria and Peterborough. Mr. Garbutt was appointed the representative of this district to the Associat on.

New Features.

Mr. Smith of Cornwall had spoken of the results of a baby show held in connection with the exhibition in that town. Manufacturers had supplied the funds to purchase the prize and forty "entries" had been received, and this feature had attracted a great deal of attention. The chairman stated that one advantage of this was that the winners one year would scarcely be expected to be entered again, as is often complained of in the case of prize seed, quilts and art work. The babies are divided into two classes on an age basis.

A resolution was passed by the Association reducing the maximum grant from $600 to $500. Last year fourteen fairs received over $500 and three received the maximum. This year there was a greater number of small fairs represented than in the past, and it was through the efforts of their representatives that this motion went through. At the same time there was a request that the Government grant be increased apparently showing that the smaller fairs were inclined to discriminate against the larger.

On motion of Mr. Denne, and Mr. Brown it was decided that the President and Secretary Hall write Mr. Peck, placing the facts before him and asking his assistance, and that the Lindsay directorate and those of fairs of the same size be asked to co-operate, and that a copy be sent to Mr. Lockie Wilson.

Field Crop Competitions.

Another feature was the standing field crop competitions which have been popular in many sections. Mr. Garbutt said he felt that stronger action should be taken by the local exhibition. Entries must be received by the 1st of May. The prize money to be distributed in this district amounts to $75, and the President considered it advisable to offer prizes to competitors who are members of this exhibition association. Letters received from millers show that the quality of grain in the province during the past ten years has been increased 50 p.c. and this had been largely due to the field crop competitions. Those who wish to secure pedigreed grain can get it from the Canadian Seed Growers' Association at Ottawa. Mr. Gillespie thought it unwise to arrange that it be obtained through the society as there may be a shortage some years and farmers might be disappointed and lay the blame on the society.

The question of making a settlement in regard to the suit for damages in the case of John Bolton, Jr., who was bitten by a bear at last year's show was left with the former committee, on motion of Mr. Wise, seconded by Mr. Deyell.

Four Day Show.

Mr. Garbutt introduced the question of a four days' show. He thought the prize list too small to attract the exhibitors who were wanted. Those who come from outside points would find the prize money too small for the expenses connected with showing four days.

Prominent live stock men had expressed this opinion, and it was possible that those near at hand would be of the same opinion. This is a point that will receive further consideration at later meetings. The additional day would also conflict with Belleville's dates, and this was to be voided. Mr. Garbutt as director, has the duty of looking after dates.

Secure Water Connection.

Mr. Wise thought that the waterworks should be brought into the rounds. It would be greatly appreciated by exhibitors. Moved by Mr. Conway, seconded by Mr. Deyell, that Messrs. Wise, Neill and Turner be a committee in regard to this matter.

Moved by Mr. Gillespie, seconded by Mr. Wise, that Mr. Turner be instructed to procure prices of turnstiles and report later. Three will be needed, one at the western gate and two at the east entrance. A pass gate was also suggested to be used by exhibitors and those bringing goods into the grounds. The complimentary list will receive care this year in order to see that only those entitled to passes receive them.

Committees For the Year.

The report of the Nominating committee was adopted as follows:

Executive—Messrs. Conway, Denne, Turner, Glover, Neill, Cruikshanks, Wise, Lang, Garbutt, Gillespie.

ACTION OF CITY FATHERS ENDORSED BY LABOUR COUNCIL

A meeting of the Trades and Labour Council was held last night. A large number of delegates were present, and considerable business was transacted. The pros and cons of the old age pension question was taken up, and a committee appointed to look into the matter. The meeting also endorsed the action of the City Council in advocating a garbage by-law.

All affiliated labour bodies have an opportunity of discussing the old age pension scheme, as outlined by the Minister of Labour, and expressions of opinion from parties concerned will receive due consideration when brought forward at the regular meetings.

Good Looks and Good Temper

A Chat With Our Lady Readers

Have you ever noticed how miserable and unhappy the little pains and aches make one? A stinging cut, badly chapped hands, a nasty burn, a sore foot, a poisoned finger—none of them wounds or ailments ever likely to cause serious trouble, but bad enough to put an edge on one's temper and give one a "grouch".

Take this advice. When in pain from any of these everyday evils, just use Zam-Buk. As soon as you put it on to a sore, a cut, a burn, or any skin injury, it stops the pain and the smarting and starts up healing. Don't think that because Zam-Buk is so widely used by medical men, by nurses, and for serious skin diseases and accidents it is only for serious cases. Keep it handy in the kitchen, the workroom, and use it immediately you get some injury or have some sore.

Mrs. Chas. H. Barrett, Harmony Road, Truro, N.S., says: "I had an ingrowing toe nail, which caused me acute agony. Sometimes the pain was so severe I could not sleep. It became so bad that I feared blood-poisoning had set in. I was advised to try Zam-Buk and bound up the sore toe with it. In a few days it was much easier, and I continued the treatment. The result is that today the toe is sound and I have no more trouble with it. I strongly recommend Zam-Buk to every housewife."

Zam-Buk is just the thing, too, for the children. Pure in its composition, and herbal in nature, it is suitable for the most delicate skin. It cures piles, eczema, varicose ulcers, cold sores, abscesses, blood poisoning, ring-worm, and all similar skin diseases. Sold everywhere at 50c a box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

DARKE APPEAL NOT CONCLUDED

Darke v. Canadian General Electric Co.—An appeal by plaintiff from the judgment of Mulock, C.J., of December 8, 1911. An action by Catherine Darke, widow of Hugh Darke, who was accidentally killed by being whirled around a shaft in defendant's factory while working for them, to recover $10,000 damages, on the ground that the accident was caused by the negligence of defendants. At the trial the action was dismissed without costs. Appeal partly argued but not concluded.—Globe.

Crows Flocked In A Corn Field

If crows be signs of approaching spring, it should not be long until the May bells ring again, and Jack-in-the-Pulpit holds forth to his fairy and flowery congregations. A field of corn in stooks, east of the city, was visited by a large flock of crows yesterday, and the raucous chorus reminded one of April, or August, when they seem to flock more than usual. But crows have been seen at various times this winter, and their appearance is not a hopeful indication of the immediate breaking of winter's bonds.

NEW FURNITURE CO. GOING AHEAD LIVELY

Brisk Sales Reported Right Along When Trade Elsewhere is Said to be Dull

The new Empire Furniture Co., 299 George street, Taylor's Block, is steadily forging ahead. The range of new goods, which are ticketed at moderate prices, has had the effect of bringing people down to the new store, and buying briskly. Manager Taylor says his principal difficulty has been the getting in of new stock as required. Orders have been so delayed in filling that customers have been kept waiting for weeks for the goods wanted, owing to pressure on the furniture factories. Last week, however, Mr. Taylor furnished two houses, complete, including even the kitchen utensils, besides other sales of a general character, and this week business still keeps good.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. HAGGART

Well Known Resident of Peterborough Passes Away From Heart Failure

The death occurred with tragic suddenness last evening of Mr. John Haggart of 167 Brock street, the well known auctioneer of this city.

The deceased gentleman, it is understood, had not been in the best of health of late, having repeatedly complained of a pain in the region of the heart. Yesterday afternoon, accompanied by Mr. James Middleton, he attended a sale at the farm of Mr. W. G Johnston of Smith township. At 9 o'clock, whilst standing in the kitchen of his residence, he again complained of the pain and simultaneously he fell, and passed away within the space of a few seconds.

The late Mr. Haggart, who was sixty-six years of age, was born in this city on the site where the store of Messrs. Robt. Fair and Co. is now located. At the age of twenty-eight he was married to Miss Sarah Sproule, who survives him, as well as an adopted daughter, Miss Kathleen Haggart. His demise is also lamented by a nephew, Mr. James Haggart of this city.

Mr. Haggart had many friends in the city, and he will be greatly missed. In creed he was a Presbyterian and a member of St. Paul's church. For the long space of thirty years he had followed the calling of an auctioneer and those who did not know him either directly or indirectly, were very few. In passing he leaves behind him a memory of sterling manhood and citizenship and the sympathy of the community is extended to the relatives in their sad bereavement.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon. There will be a service at the late residence of the deceased, 167 Brock street at 3 o'clock, after which at 3.30 the funeral cortege will proceed to Little Lake cemetery for interment. The Rev. Robt. Pogue will officiate.

Ordered To Spend Seventy-five Cents

Advertising Committee of Council Held Meeting Yesterday

The Advertising committee held a momentous meeting Wednesday afternoon when the princely sum of 75 cents was spent on advertising. There were present Ald. Gillespie in the chair; Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Gordon and Mr. Vincent Eastwood.

This seventy-five cents was expended in purchasing a copy of "Canada," a publication in England for advertising purposes. A free "write-up" will appear in the paper with possibly a photograph or two and on this condition a copy of the booklet is purchased. The committee turned down a request from Heaton's agency to take space in their publication and the same treatment was handed out to Business Chances, published in Ottawa. The City Clerk remarked that if some relinble firm would get out something in this line and look after the distribution it would be a good proposition.

The booklets prepared as an advertisement for the city are being sent out to parties who are thought to be interested and for the time being this form of advertising will have to suffice.

ALTERATION SALE FOR TEN DAYS

We will put on sale our Entire Stock of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Ready-to-Wear Garments and Furnishings—to be sold at

HALF PRICE AND LESS

We have to make Big Alterations in our Store, making New Quarters for the MILLINERY Department, also for HOUSEFURNISHINGS and FURNITURE. Our present premises are far too small for our rapidly growing business, and we are enlarging them by taking on Two More Floors, besides removing a wall on the Main Floor, in order to widen the rear. To do all this, we are compelled to move our large Stock out of the way, without considering Price or Cost of Goods.

Positively the most Genuine Bargains of the Season. You can't afford to miss them.

Sale Starts Saturday, February 3rd, Ends Wednesday, February 14th

OFFICIALS IN CUSTODY

Sensational Sequel to the McNamara Trial

MORE ARE PROMISED

Indianapolis, Feb. 15.—The U. S. Government yesterday arrested almost all of the 54 men indicted in the dynamite conspiracy cases.

It took into custody within a few hours practically the entire official staff of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, including the chief officers, members of the executive board and about twenty business agents and former business agents. Those included Frank M. Ryan, the president; J. T. Butler of Buffalo, N.Y., the first vice-president, and Herbert S. Hockin, the second vice-president and successor of John J. McNamara as secretary-treasurer, and each of these men are required to give $10,000 bond for his appearance for arraignment here, with all the other defendants, on March 12.

More than forty of the men, chiefly labor union officials, who are charged with conspiring to destroy by dynamite or nitro-glycerine, the property of employers of non-union labor, were under arrest by last night, and it was declared the apprehension of all the others would follow within 48 hours.

The most prominent of those taken into custody is Frank Ryan, president of the International Ironworkers, this city; Vice-Presidents Butler and Hockin—the latter also acting as secretary-treasurer since the arrest of John McNamara; Spurgeon Meadows, business agent of the district council of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners; and C. E. Dowd, representing the International Machinists Union. These three unions are alleged to have been involved in the conspiracy.

McManigal has charged that Hockin was "the man that put him in the dynamiting business."

Mr. Ryan said: "I desire to say in the public and for the satisfaction of my friends, both in the union and outside of labor union circles, that I am innocent of knowingly having violated any law of the United States, or of any law of any state in the Union. Therefore I have no fear of a trial and I am absolutely confident and knew that I will be able to prove myself innocent of any crime charged whatsoever before any fair-minded court and jury in the country."

By its action the Government revealed the identities of the men whom it charges with being the accomplices of the McNamaras and Ortie E. McManigal in the dynamite plots, embracing almost one hundred explosions which were begun in Massachusetts in 1905, which were scattered over the country for six years, and which resulted in the wrecking of The Los Angeles Times' building, and an attempt to blow up President Taft's special train at Santa Barbara, Cal., last October.

Fourteen of those indicted are each required to furnish $10,000 bond, and forty are each required to furnish $5,000 bond, making an aggregate bond required of $340,000. Some of those whom the Government was unable to find yesterday, were reported to have disappeared through fear of inability to get bonds. It was intimated that the Iron Workers' Association would be unable to furnish security for its indicted members.

The indictment on which all the men were arrested was made public yesterday. It charges all the fifty-four men with conspiracy to violate the statutes forbidding the carrying of explosives on passenger trains and details forty-seven transportations charged as overt acts and names Ortie E. McManigal, the McNamaras, or Herbert S. Hockin in each act, but does not specify the part taken by the other defendants.

Altogether the indictments contain 128 counts against each of the defendants and the penalty for any one of the offences varies from 18 months to two years.

The following have been indicted, and all but one or two arrested: William K. Benson, Detroit; John J. McCray, former member executive; F. K. Painter, Omaha, Neb., business agent; J. W. Irwin, Peoria, Ill.; Patrick Ryan, Chicago; Milton H. Davis, Philadelphia, former member of executive; William Bernhardt, Cincinnati; Frank N. Ryan, president of International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers Union, Indianapolis; Sturgeon P. Meadows, Indiananolis; J. T. Butler, of Buffalo; Herbert S. Hockin, Detroit; Paul Sherman, Indianapolis; Charles H. [illegible], Minneapolis; Frank J. Higgins, Hartford, Conn.; Hiram Cline, Muncie, Ind.; Richard H. Houlihan, Chicago; William Schompe, Chicago; James Cooney, Chicago; James Coughlin, Chicago; Charles W. Wachmeistein, Detroit; Frank J. Murphy, Detroit; John Barry, St. Louis; Paul Morrin, St. Louis; Michael J. Cunnane, Philadelphia; Frank O. Webb, former member of Ironworkers' executive, New York; Patrick F. Farrell, New York; Daniel Brophy, Brooklyn; Clarence Dowd, Mansfield, Ohio; E. E. Phillips, Syracuse; John Carroll, Syracuse; M. J. Hannon, Scranton; Peter J. Smith, Cleveland; George (Nipper) Anderson, Cleveland; Ernest G. W. Bassy, Indianapolis; Edward Clark, Cincinnati; A. J. Cavanaugh, Springfield, Ill.; M. L. Fennell, Springfield, Ill; Ed. Smythe, Peoria, Ill.; James E. Ray, Peoria, Ill.; W. J. McCain, Kansas City; W. Bert Brown, Kansas City; Henry W. Legleitner, Pittsburg; W. E. Redden, Milwaukee; Herman G. Sieffort, Milwaukee; Daniel Buckley, Davenport, Iowa; Frank Mooney, Duluth, Minn.; M. J. Young, Boston, member Ironworkers' executive and president Boston local; Phillip A. Cooley, New Orleans, member executive board; Olav A. Tvietmoe, San Francisco, secretary-treasurer state and local building trades council (already indicted in California); Eugene A. Clancey, San Francisco, former member of executive board (already indicted in California).

Gompers Is Mum.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 15.—The contempt of court proceedings against Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, was resumed before Justice Wright yesterday.

Mr. Gompers was in court when news of the wholesale arrests was brought to him. There was no intimation that the president would make a statement. He already has declared that he knows absolutely nothing of any dynamiting.

No evidence, it was declared here last night, has been secured against officials of the American Federation.

A SEVERE COLD

DEVELOPED INTO PNEUMONIA.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP Cured Him.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that when a person catches cold it must be attended to immediately, or serious results are liable to follow.

There is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is, to cure the cold just as soon as it appears.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this quickly and effectively.

Mr. Hugh McLeod, Esterhazy, Sask., writes:—"My little boy took a very severe cold, and it developed into pneumonia. The doctor said he would not live. I got some of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and he began to improve. Now, he is a strong healthy child, and shows no sign of it coming back."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees is trade mark; price 25 cents.

THEY INJURE CHILDREN

Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physics May Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given. Ordinary pills, cathartics, and purgatives are too apt to do more harm than good. They sometimes cause griping, nausea, and distressing after-effects, and may actually injure the health, thus establishing a life-lasting annoyance.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as a safe and dependable remedy for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies not only relieve constipation, but help to remove the cause of this ailment. They also frequently overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition.

There is really, in our opinion, no similar medicine so good as Rexall Orderlies for the purpose to which it is directed, especially for children, aged and delicate persons. They are prepared in tablet form and in two sizes of packages: 12 tablets, 10c., 36 tablets, 25c., and 80 tablets, 50c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

Camorrists Released.

Viterbo, Italy, Feb. 15.—The court which for a year has been engaged in the trial of the thirty-five members of the Camorra yesterday ordered the release of Francesco Desiderio and Antonio Percuoco, two of the men accused of having been present in the Alda Tavern, in Bagnoli, on May 26, 1906, when Gennaro Cuocolo was condemned to death for treachery by a court of the Camorra.

Intense excitement was created among the public when the order for their liberation became known. The judge gave as his reason for the step that both prisoners had already served in jail what would be the maximum penalty if they were found guilty of being accomplices.

Seven more Camorrists are to be released to-day and a further thirteen to-morrow for a similar reason.

"Lion" Too Powerful.

London, Feb. 15.—It transpires that the trouble with the new dreadnought Lion, necessitating extensive alterations in the engine and boiler rooms is the development of abnormal heat by her powerful engines. In other words she develops too much power.

Many naval constructors, according to The Morning Post, believe that these developments confirm Sir William White's opinion that the size limit of vessels has been nearly reached.

Hebert Decision Not Yet.

Montreal, Feb. 15.—Yesterday, according to expectation, was to have seen the delivery of the judgment in the Hebert case, but though a crowd of reporters were on the job in Judge Charbonneau's court, nothing transpired.

Unanimous For Church Union.

Brockville, Feb. 15.—The quarterly official board of Wall Street Church, Brockville, representing one of the largest Methodist congregations in the Montreal Conference, voted unanimously in favor of Church union.

FEELING IS IMPROVED

Premier Asquith Says Anglo-German Strain is Relieved

TOO MANY SUSPICIOUS

London, Feb. 15.—(Through Reuter's Agency.)—The Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Mr. Asquith, made a most important statement in regard to the visit to Germany of Lord Haldane, in the course of the opening debate in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

Undoubtedly, he said, it was a most lamentable fact that the traditional feelings of Anglo-German friendship and good-will had been seriously overclouded during the last few months. When an atmosphere of suspicion has once been created, fiction readily replaced fact and legends, which at other times would be dismissed as incredible, were easily accepted and widely believed.

"We have been told, for instance, that there were masses of the people of Germany who firmly believed that some time during the last summer and autumn Great Britain meditated, indeed, had even prepared an aggressive attack upon Germany; also that Great Britain's armaments were carefully calculated with that object in view. I was almost ashamed to have to contradict such a wild and extravagant fiction. It was a pure invention without a shadow of foundation, nor was there anything, anywhere, at any time of an aggressive or provocative character in the movements of our fleet.

"The very fact, however, that such rumors could find credence, not indeed with the German Government, but in the minds of many intelligent and fair-minded people in Germany, was surely in itself a significant and most regrettable symptom. Both the British and German Governments had been, and were, animated with a sincere desire to bring about a better state of understanding. And, in the course of the last month, the Government had received indications that the visit of a British Cabinet Minister to Berlin would not be unwelcome; that it might facilitate the attainment of a common object.

"Lord Haldane was in any case going sooner or later to Germany on business in connection with the London University Commission. In these circumstances the Government thought it would be well should Lord Haldane hasten his visit and take advantage of the suggestion for friendly and confidential communications with those statesmen who are controlling and guiding the German policy. That involved on both sides a departure from conventional methods. But on both sides it was thought that frankness of statement and communication would be easier if, in the first instance, there should be informal and non-committal conversations rather than full-dress diplomatic negotiations.

"Those expectations have been completely realized. There was perfect freedom of speech and frankness of explanation over a wide area of discussion. The very fact of such an interchange of views under such conditions ought in itself dispel the suspicion, wherever it still prevailed that ever this Government contemplated aggressive designs. But, I am happy to say that in itself it has been a great gain."

In conclusion, the Prime Minister said he earnestly hoped, however, that [illegible] would be followed shortly that he believed the conversation might have more than this negative result.

The anxiously-awaited speech from the throne was a short one, and proved disappointing. In referring to the measures to be brought before Parliament the King said:

"A measure for the better government of Ireland will be submitted to you.

"A bill will be laid before you to terminate the establishment of the church in Wales and make provision for its temporalities.

"Proposals will be brought forward for the amendment of the law with respect to the franchise and the registration of electors."

This was all the King had to say about the three measures, which, if they become law, will radically alter the constitution and history of the United Kingdom.

There is no better remedy for indigestion, biliousness, constipation, or stomach disorders of any kind than

BANISH THOSE GRAY HAIRS!
Kill the Dandruff Germs—Stop Hair Falling

Thousands of mothers are looking younger. Their gray hairs are gone. The natural color has come back, and with it a new growth of soft, glossy, luxuriant hair. Why should you look old before your time, when you can look years younger by using

WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

Dandruff Cured
Three applications removed all the dandruff and left my scalp clean, white and smooth.
Wm. Crook,
Rochester, N. Y.

Restores Gray Hair to Natural Color

If other "so-called" Restorers have failed, don't give up hope, but give WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY a trial. You run no risk. If it is not exactly as represented, your money will be refunded.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored
My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.
MISS E. A. ROSE,
Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head
For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

PETERBORO' INTERMEDIATES ELIMINATED FROM THE O. H. A. RACE BY MIDLAND

Eddie Gould's Bunch Proved Too Much for Blue and White Team and Won a Clean-cut Victory Here Last Night by 4 Goals to 1---A Record Crowd Saw Close, Desperately Fought Battle---Northerners Were Class Clean Through

The Peterborough Intermediates were eliminated from the O. H. A. race last night, when Eddie Gould's crack Midland aggregation worsted the homesters 4 goals to 1, at Brock Street Rink, winning the round by 14 goals to 3. Twenty-five hundred people, the biggest crowd in years, saw the Petes go down to defeat, battling desperately and gamely against a better team. Midland were the superior seven; no one who saw last night's game can gainsay the fact. From goal out to centre they had speed to burn, their checking surpassed anything seen here for a long time; they combined nicely and they had brains on top of all their other qualities. Such a combination was too much for the blue and white team, who, fight as they might, were out-lived and out-generalled. And the Petes did fight—make no mistake about that—they fought the Northerners every inch of the battle, and for fifty-six minutes of the game the score was 1 to 0. In the last four minutes, Midland scored three times and Peterborough once. Not until Midland's second goal was scored with less than four minutes to play was the result absolutely settled; in fact, the Petes looked good to tie up the game on several occasions immediately before that period. Peterborough threw into the battle all the strength, all the skill and all the hockey science they had, and they were beaten by a better team—that is the story of the game boiled down to its crispest form.

It was a monster crowd that saw the downfall of the Petes. Every corner in the big rink was packed tight with humanity, and hundreds were turned away, when the capacity of the building had been taxed to its utmost. Midland sent down 160, on a special train, and Lindsay, Cobourg Port Hope and other district towns were all represented in the throng. Fortunately for the Midland crowd their train arrived early and they were right on the job when the rink opened and got their pick of the seats. There were several hundred fans on hand at 7 o'clock, and a quarter of an hour after the crowd outside had filled the roadway. The jam at the door was terrific, and the Peterborough players had a hard job getting through to reach their dressing room. At 8 o'clock there did not seem to be a vacant seat anywhere along the sides, hundreds coming down the ice and being pulled over the boards. The game was delayed for a while until the ice was cleared and at last the doors had to be shut and many were refused admission. The gate receipts were over $700, a record, considering the low prices.

Midland showed the fans something new in the line of hockey tactics, and the feeling here is that if Preston trims the Northerners, the Dutchmen must have a wonderful team. The Midland seven consists of six forwards and a goal-keeper when on the attack, and six defence men and a goal keeper when they are being pressed—that is, Gould and Nicholls, cover, and point, respectively, play up with their forwards when an attack is being made and all six men swarm back to protect their goal if the enemy is heading in on Scott. Such tactics are only made possible of course, by their great speed and the visitors have the fast stuff all along the line. All six men are fast skaters and stick handlers; they shoot well and combine nicely, know the game thoroughly and are in superb condition.

"I would have liked to have won to-night, if only for the sake of that crowd," said Capt. Park, after the game, and that pretty nearly sums up the feeling of the team, generally. They went into the game with that spirit; gave the best they had and their best was not good enough to beat Midland—that was all there was to it. Certainly no one could say that the Petes ever looked like quitting. They were from the drop of the hat, and they never let up until the final bell. There are no excuses to offer. Peterborough was beaten by a superior team.

It was a hard desperate battle, made more so by the fact that the ice soon grew soft and sticky from the presence of so many people. The checking was persistently close and hard from start to finish, and the visitors had to work every moment of the sixty minutes. "Don't imagine we had any time to fall asleep out there to-night," Eddie Gould said after the game, and the Midland veteran was right—any break on the part of Midland might have turned the result into a Peterborough victory. No closer game has been seen in Peterborough for a long time, and although the homesters were beaten and tumbled out of the race for the silverware the crowd enjoyed the battle immensely. Referee Sproule had a hard game to look after and his work was satisfactory.

Every man on the Midland team played good hockey and it would be a hard job to pick the stars. Chase the elusive centre, perhaps, caught the eye of the crowd more often than anyone else. His stick-handling at close quarters was a revelation to the fans and he had speed to throw away. Beatty, on right wing, sustained his reputation of being one of the fastest men in that position in the O. H. A., and Eddie Gould shows no signs of falling into the sere and yellow. The veteran had as much ginger as any one on the ice, and got away with some pretty rushing. Scott played a great game in the nets, kicking out some dangerous shots. He made a beautiful save in the first half when he came out and met a shot from Park, half-way, when a goal seemed certain.

Derocher hung up another fine performance to his credit, his work being bilt-edged, as it has been all season. He has been consistently effective throughout the campaign, and his playing last night was good as ever. He took care of many likely heaves and cleared coolly, while several times he saved goals by wading into the man with the rubber. Glover and Bearss made a strong defence, using their bodies to advantage and they held Midland out in good style. All four forwards worked gamely ad strenuously to pull out a victory. Their back-checking left little to be desired, and they were always working. It would be unfair to specially single out any of the quartette for individual mention. All went to the limit; they worked their guns to the last, and never let up for a minute. Little more need to be said. The teams lined up as follows:

Play was hard and desperate from the start with both sides checking like fiends. Hardly had the contest opened than Coughlin was sent to the side for cross-checking Drummond, and then Bearss was sent away for slashing, leaving Peterborough two men short. The advantage favoured Midland, but they could not score. Drummond was the next to be benched. The battle went on, principally around centre ice, with the checking so close that neither side had much chance to shoot, free from interruptions. Derocher saved several goals by quick work between the flags, and Scott nailed one from Park, after a combination rush with Glover that looked good for a score. It was not until sixteen minutes had elapsed that Chase fooled Derocher with a quick shot, which the Peterborough goaler partially stopped. From then on to the end of the half there was nothing further doing in the scoring line. Bearss served a penalty for bodying Beatty into the boards and Kelly also had a penalty in this period. Chase, of the Midland team drew a rest for tripping.

For twenty-six minutes in the second half the teams battled without a score. It was close, bitterly-fought hockey and both sides missed several good opportunities to score. It looked for a while as if the final score would be 1-0. Then Giroux slashed Drummond and was sent off for the rest of the game, a period of about nine minutes. Coughlin also had two sentences for slashing, and finally, with four minutes to go, Chase slipped through with a nice rush and scored. Right from the face-off he went down again and tipped another past Derocher and Midland were leading 3 to 0. Then Glover and Kelly went up together, and Coughlin shoved Peterborough's only goal past Scott. There was only a minute left, but it was long enough for Midland to score again. Gould netting the rubber on a combination rush with Levigne and Beatty.

The summary—

1—Midland, Chase, 16 mins.
Half-time.
2—Midland, Chase, 28 mins.
3—Midland, Chase, 30 secs.
4—Peterborough—Coughlin, 30 sec.
5—Midland, Gould, 1 min.

Bear Cats Peterborough's Hope For O. H. A. Title

Local Juniors Clash With Orillia To-morrow Night in What Should Prove One of the Fastest Junior Games Ever Seen in Peterboro'--Monster Crowd Will be on Hand for the Battle.

Peterborough's chances for an O. H. A. championship have now narrowed down to the Bear Cats and the local youngsters get a chance to show their mettle to-morrow night, when they tackle the Orillia team, champions of the North and conquerors of the Toronto Varsity team, at Brock Street Rink, in what should prove one of the most exciting and brilliant junior battles ever fought in this city. There are two obstacles in the way of the Bear Cats in their race for the championship—the Orillia team and the winner of the Berlin-Toronto Canoe Club series. The championship battle is now down to four teams, Orillia, representing the North, Berlin, the West, Toronto the centre, and Peterborough the East. The Peterborough "kids" realize what is before them and they are determined to annex a victory over Orillia to-morrow night and win the round, as well. Aother record crowd will see the battle, Orillia sending down a big excursion and there will be excitement galore. The game is called for 8.15 o'clock, and the Peterborough team will line up as follows:

Goal—Dwyer.
Point—Milloy.
Cover—Denison.
Rover—Weir.
Centre—Hall.
Right wing, Kenneally.

The Rooters' Club are asked to meet in the usual place north of the gap, on the east side of the rink, and to be on the job early.

Suffered Greatly With Her Heart.

Became So Weak At Times Could Hardly Walk.

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room, or public building makes them feel faint and dizzy.

On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, you should not wait until you case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. D. McGilvery, Bathurst, N.B., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I suffered greatly with my heart and became so weak at times I could hardly walk. A friend of mine advised me to try your Pills, which I did, and soon found great relief. They are the best medicine I have ever taken for heart trouble."

COMPLAINTS ABOUT THE CROWDING AT THE GAME

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Can you kindly answer the undermentioned questions:

Who was responsible for the overcrowding of the skating rink, as it was on Wednesday evening, 14th February? It was simply disgraceful the way people were packed inside the rink. Many could not see the game, because there was not room to do so. The staircase was blocked, and in case of fire, or any unusual occurrence, it was simply a death trap. Several ladies fainted and I believe, were trampled upon.

Is the Chief of Police responsible? Is the Town Council responsible? Or, is it left to the proprietor of the skating rink to do as he likes, If the latter is the case, can he hire whom he likes to control people and to obey their orders. Such appeared to be the case on Wednesday evening. Some of them, as regards size, strength and ignorance, could not be beaten.

In case of fire or any catastrophe happening under the above conditions, who would be held responsible for loss of life. I and many others would like to know.

Yours, etc.,
'SPECTATOR.'

The crowding at the rink last evening is not an unusual occurrence at hockey games in this or any other town when an important game is played, and it appears as if the general public is to blame as much as any organization or individual. On enquiry at the rink to-day, it is found that admission was refused to hundreds.

The rink is not a public building, and therefore the police or town council are not responsible for overcrowding. If anything happened, there is a space in the centre of the rink 85 x 200 feet that would easily accommodate the crowd until the danger was averted.

There are three exits, and the rink is better appointed than 9 out of 10 rinks to be found in Ontario.

TORONTO, FEB. 15.—Rev. Canon Ingles startled the delegates at the Dominion Temperance Congress today, by stating that the Anglican Church, as a whole, was not in favour of prohibition. He thought public ownership of the liquor traffic was the only sane remedy.

THE NEW "FIFE" FLIER

The forthcoming races at Kiel for the Royal London Yacht Club Commodore's Cup, which was won by Herr Ludwig Sanders's Paul II. at Cowes last August, promise to be exceptionally interesting. All the British 15-meter yachts which will go to the Baltic for the second European Festival of International Yacht Racing in June are eligible to represent the Royal London Yacht Club.

The chief interest will be centred in the debut of the new "15," now being built at Fairlie for Mr. George Coats, already referred to in the Examiner, and which, it is expected, will after launching go straight from the Clyde to Kiel, so as to undergo her tuning-up over the actual course to be sailed at the cup races. Every effort will be made to ensure success with the new craft, and much ingenuity is being displayed in the task of providing her with fittings of the lightest possible description consistent with compliance with the rules governing the construction of vessels for the class.

A WATCH FOR THE NIGHT.

General Baden-Powell, originator of the Boy Scout movement, has had a watch made which he can read in the dark.

Instead of the thin hands usual in watches they are very thick, while the quarter hours are also denoted by heavy marks. Thus the watch can be seen almost in the inky darkness. — From the New York Evening Sun.

ASTHMA

Mrs. Farndel of Clementsport, N. S., Suffered All Her Life From Asthma, But Was Permanently Cured by Catarrhozone After All Other Means Failed.

Mrs. Farndel gives the following statement of her case for the benefit of others who are suffering from asthma, and hopes that many will follow her example and use Catarrhozone:—

"I am now in my eightieth year, and cannot recall the time when I was free from asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone one day, and I bought a large outfit. It gave relief in five minutes, and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used I was completely cured. I am as free now from asthma as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize my Catarrhozone inhaler next to life itself."

RAILWAY CHARGES

Discrimination Against the West Comes Up in the House

RESOLUTION DEFEATED

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—"Why should there be this discrimination against the west?" asked J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) last evening in moving a resolution for the equalization of western and eastern freight rates in amendment to the motion to go into supply. "Is there any reason for it? Is there any common sense in it?"

Figures quoted by Mr. Turriff showed 20 to 190 per cent. higher rates in the west than those in Ontario. They were 43 to 140 per cent. higher than in the adjoining western States. The C.P.R. was even charging $12 to $102 a carload more than four or five years ago.

Hon. Robert Rogers declared that, as the Government had brought these grievances to the attention of the railway commission, the passage of this resolution would be virtually a vote of want of confidence in that body.

Mr. Turriff's amendment was defeated.

Mr. Turriff defended himself of the charge that he had never raised his voice on the question while the Liberals were in power.

Would anyone say, said Mr. Turriff, that it was just that the people of the west should pay 50 to 100, and in some cases, 150 per cent. higher freight rates than in the east, though the C.P.R. on its own sworn statement had showed that it cost less to operate roads in the west than in the east? Not only did they pay more in the west than in the east, but they paid higher rates than in the contiguous western states. The time had come when this discrimination should be put a stop to.

The railway commission should be enlarged in number or given more help. Mr. Turriff advocated the division of the commission into two sections, not one east and one west, but that one section should deal exclusively with all freight matters.

In conclusion, Mr. Turriff moved, in amendment, seconded by W. M. Martin (Regina), the following resolution: "That in the opinion of this House the time has arrived when the government should lay down the principle that the rates to be charged for the carriages of freight in the western provinces should not exceed those charged in Ontario and Quebec for a similar service to a greater extent than is actually necessary to cover any differences in the cost of hauling and operating that may be shown."

Hon. Robert Rogers, in reply, held that the cost of construction, as well as the cost of operation, had to be taken into consideration in determining freight rates.

The late Minister of Railways, he stated, had declared that the railway commission had full and complete control.

"We accept and recognise the board of railway commissioners as the only legitimate child of the late Government. Accepting this, we are not going to sit here and vote for a resolution which is in reality a vote of want of confidence in the railway commission."

The deplorable conditions in Western Canada were due to the negligence of the late Government. The present Government had take the only legitimate course of securing full and complete justice for these grievances in asking the railway commission to take up the matter and employing three of the ablest lawyers in Canada to present the case to the people. It would serve no good purpose and not be treating the railway commission fairly to pass this resolution.

Hon. Frank Oliver declared it did not matter what were the theoretical rights of the railway board, the actual rights vested with Parliament, and if the railway board had not taken up and settled these grievances, the responsibility for their rectification was on Parliament and the Government.

H. H. Stevens (Vancouver), pointed out that British Columbia had been fighting for relief from a similar grievance. On Monday last the railway commission had taken the formal initial steps for the settlement of the question. Was it just to condemn the commission before they tried the case?

Big Convention Expected.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—The meetings of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, to be held in Toronto, Feb. 22 and 23, promise to be extremely interesting. The delegates are to be welcomed by the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir James Whitney, Mayor Geary, and Ald. Maguire. Matters of the utmost interest to the province will be discussed.

Invitations have been issued by President Gage for a banquet at the National Club on Thursday night, the 22nd instant. The following speakers will be present: Hon. G. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce; Hon. W. H. Hearst, Minister of Lands, Mines and Forests; N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the provincial Opposition; also others to be announced later. Luncheons will be tendered by the City of Toronto, and the Toronto Board of Trade.

Dr. McQueen Discusses Ontario School Laws

MORE AID FOR HEALTH

Toronto, Feb. 16.—An attack on the educational system of the province under the administration of Hon. Dr. Pyne, and an attack on the Government for the small amount devoted to the public health department of the province; these and the replies thereto by the Government supporters as well as an amusing address by R. J. McCormick of East Lambton, were the principal matters before the Legislature at yesterday afternoon's session. A few new bills were introduced, and then the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne was resumed.

Dr. J. McQueen of North Wentworth was the chief objector to the present policy of the Government on several matters. Chief among these were the rigorous regulations enforced by the Department of Education with regard to pupils who only fail by a few marks to get the requisite number for a pass.

"I want to make two charges against the school system," said he. "There is too much concentration in Toronto of the public school system of the province. One pupil passed in every subject except geography, where she was two marks behind, and when application was made at Toronto to have this pupil granted a pass, the answer was 'No.' The laws of the Education Department in Toronto are like the laws of the Medes and Persians—unalterable.

"The laws regarding the public school system in this province are in many cases ambiguous.

"The public school system is too cumbersome. The boys and girls between 6 and 14 years in the public schools of the province are being taught entirely too much."

Dr. McQueen deplored the small amount that was spent by the province for the public health. Vast sums devoted to the Hydro-electric and only the miserable sum of $40,000 in the interests of the public health.

While admitting that the Provincial Board of Health had done excellent work, he said it should be empowered to do much more.

"I suggest that the Provincial Secretary cease his prison reform work for a short time and do some Government reform. If he did he would have a reform Government in a few years."

Dr. McQueen briefly discussed a proposal that the Government has under consideration at the present time, viz., the abolition of the municipal medical health officers throughout the province, who are now paid a paltry remuneration for their services, and the appointment of county medical health officers at a salary sufficient to make them independent of private practice. A thoroughly equipped laboratory, he said, should be established by the province in connection with the appointment of the county M.H.O.'s, so that examinations of diphtheria swabs and tubercular sputum could be made locally without having to go to Toronto and other large centres of population.

The whole House was put in good humor by the inimicable address of R. J. McCormick of East Lambton. His logic is excellent, and he belaubored the Government of Sir James Whitney without the slightest tinge of illfeeling or bitterness in his remarks. He was applauded by both sides of the House.

J. Thompson said the Opposition had accused the Government of being the seven sleepers, but the Liberals in reality were the sleepers themselves, for they are just beginning where the Ross Government left off, apparently unaware of all the progressive legislation that had been accomplished during the past seven years."

J. W. Johnston, West Hastings, said that the leader of the Opposition and the other new members of the House could well afford to be reprimanded by Sir James Whitney as to the proper course of procedure in the House.

"Sir James," he stated, "is one of the best exponents of the constitutional form of Government within the British Empire."

"The hon. leader of the Opposition talks about temperance and moral reform. But where does he stand on temperance and moral reform? Why didn't he do something when the Ross Government was in power? Why, he was then on the side of the Egyptians. At that time he could have been of some use on these matters of legislation, but now he is not."

J. G. Anderson of South Bruce gives notice that he will, on Monday next, enquire of the Ministry as to how many demonstration orchards the Government has instituted up to the present time.

J. C. Elliott of West Middlesex will enquire as to when License Inspector Brownley of North Renfrew and Harvey Moss of the same riding ceased to be in the employ of the Government.

School Boys' Murdered Master.

New York, Feb. 16.—A cable from Dublin says: Eight school boys were arrested yesterday charged with the murder of John Kelly, assistant master of an industrial school in County Meath.

The boys, it is alleged, waylaid Kelly while he was making his rounds Monday night and beat him to death with sticks.

Coal Strike Inevitable.

Glasgow, Feb. 16.—Believing a British national coal strike inevitable, the blast furnace owners throughout Scotland have given notice to their workmen terminating contracts Feb. 29.

40,000 LETTERS.

State Holds These as Evidence Against Ironworkers.

Indianapolis Ind., Feb. 16.—Sensational and specific charges that the dynamite conspiracy was conducted with the full knowledge of the members of the executive committee of the ironworkers, including President F. M. Ryan, that the whole conspiracy extending over years, was recorded on paper, and that Ortie E. McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, was shifted shuttle-like over the country on missions of destruction were made public last night by District Attorney Charles W. Miller.

Mr. Miller announced the contents of an indictment known as that covering "unconsummated acts" of the conspiracy, and it is to be the basis on which the Government intends to conduct its prosecution.

The indictment charges Ryan, Herbert S. Hockin of Detroit, Mich., M. J. Young of Boston, John T. Butler of Buffalo, Frank C. Webb of New York with conducting the conspiracy through the mail, and names all of the fifty-four defendants as abettors.

It declares that a regular system of pointing out non-union steel and iron construction jobs was carried on and that the executive members not only contributed money to buy explosives, but assisted in the work which McManigal was to do.

The basis of all the charges lies chiefly in 40,000 letters and telegrams taken from the Ironworkers' international headquarters. These letters purport to be between Ryan, Hockin, Webb and various other officials and business agents.

This is part of an alleged letter from McNamara to Ryan: "I am writing Butler and Hockin about the work of the McClintic-Marshall Co. I have already written Cooley about the work of the other concern at Chalmette."

It is alleged that F. K. Painter wrote to McNamara from Omaha on May 1, 1910, in regard to a job of the Wisconsin Bridge Co., which was damaged by an explosion as follows:

"They have no police protection within ten blocks of the job. There is a power house for the street car company. Hope if there is any way you could give us help to straighten up the job you will do it, as this is only the second big non-union job in this city."

Hundreds of other letters refer, in more or less guarded terms to various dynamiting exploits. In a letter to Murray L. Pennell, at Springfield, Ohio, in March, 1911, McNamara wrote:

"I am surprised at your letters. That is all I care to say through the mails, for the Lord only knows who reads all the letters that come into this office, as well as those that leave it."

Accepts Asquith's Challenge.

London, Feb. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Unionists, led by Bonar Law, have decided to accept the challenge thrown out by Premier Asquith to prove that the Government was guilty of corruption in the matter of the appointment of officials. Bonar Law will move a vote of censure and a debate will take place after the proceedings following the King's speech have been concluded.

Meanwhile, Premier Asquith has been asked to issue a return, showing the appointments during the Liberal term of office.

FEELING RAN HIGH

North Renfrew Nominations Pass Off Without Trouble

TWO MEETINGS ARE HELD

Renfrew, Feb. 16.—The last week before the election to decide who shall represent South Renfrew in the Dominion House of Commons has begun, and Dr. M. J. Maloney of Eganville and Hon. G. P. Graham of Brockville are the candidates.

Nominated here yesterday, they both addressed large audiences yesterday afternoon with the difference that, while the Conservative candidate spoke in the open air, the late Minister of Railways in the Liberal Government, said what he had to say in the O'Brien Opera House. Dr. Maloney was helped out by W. H. Bennett, M.P. for East Simcoe; John Webster, M.P. for Brockville, and C. J. Thornton, M.P. for West Durham, while T. A. Low, ex-M.P., and Dr. Neilly, M.P. of Humbolt, Sask., spoke for Mr. Graham.

The nominations proper were without feature, but a hitch between the two parties developed when it came to speaking afterwards, and for a period it looked as though trouble might result. It originated in the fact that the Liberals some weeks ago secured the O'Brien theatre for nomination day, of the date of which they were at the time ignorant. A few days before its announcement, Dr. Maloney's supporters rented the theatre for Feb. 15.

About two o'clock a crowd of perhaps 1,000 persons, mostly Maloneyites, marched down the street behind the Renfrew brass band and took up their position in the main thoroughfare in front of the theatre. There they remained for upwards of an hour. Finally, however, Dr. Maloney drove up, and through Peter White, K.C., of Pembroke, invited the crowd down to the market place, where they followed him. The opera house was then opened to the Graham men. At the conclusion, T. A. Low hurried down to the market place with Dr. Neilly.

The agreement by which the Conservatives of South Renfrew were alleged to have bound themselves, was the main topic of conversation at the Maloney meeting.

Dr. Maloney was greeted with loud cheers. South Renfrew had elected Mr. Low, but apparently he wasn't good enough for the Liberal leaders at Ottawa. Mr. Low could not very well be denied the privilege of retiring, but it was not for him to say who should be his successor. The twenty-seven Conservatives who had agreed to elect Hon. Mr. Graham had done simply as individuals and when Hon. G. P. Graham had gone about the constituency saying that Dr. Maloney himself had supported the agreement, he had said that which he knew was untrue. He insulted every elector when he stated the Conservative party had broken faith with him.

A large crowd had assembled in the opera house for the Liberal meeting. Dr. B. G. Connolly of Renfrew was chairman and the speakers were Hon. Mr. Graham himself, T. A. Low, ex-M.P., and Mr. Neely, M.P.

Mr. Low stated he had made up his mind that, while outsiders were trying to run the Conservative party, they would not run the Liberal party.

Referring to the Conservative convention which had nominated Dr. Maloney, Mr. Low stated that at 1.30 Dr. Maloney had supported carrying out the agreement made and at two o'clock he was nominated. The campaign throughout had been one of mud-slinging on the part of the Conservatives. Mr. Graham, he considered, should be allowed to go back to the House to answer the charges which had been made against him.

Hon. Mr. Graham told the audience that he had endeavored before to arrange a joint meeting with his opponents, but the latter had always backed out. Where was Dr. Reid, the man responsible for the holding of this election? Mr. Graham had hoped he would have come up to the present meeting "to say to my face what he said behind my back."

He had obtained an actual written pledge that he would be elected, said the speaker, a pledge that in business would hold good in a court of law.

Mr. Graham took up the Georgian Bay Canal matter, affirming that he approved of the deepening both of the Welland Canal and the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal.

Little Hope For W.C.T.U.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—A delegation of 80 ladies, representing the W.C.T.U., waited on Premier Borden yesterday with the request that the Government prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarettes in Canada.

The Premier didn't give them much hope. "The worst possible lesson which you can give to a country is the passing of legislation which cannot be enforced. Such legislation as you ask is to my mind surrounded by difficulties. I realize," he said, "the importance of the question, and I am impressed with your remarks on the extent of the evil, but if I may be permitted to say so, it does seem to me that the control of parents over their children in this country is not as strict as it was, say twenty-five years ago."

The Premier also pointed out that as long as tobacco could be sold, cigarette users could roll their own "smokes."

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—An order-in-council has been passed dividing the position of veterinary director-general and live stock commissioner, hitherto held by Dr. J. G. Rutherford, into two separate branches. The man most prominently mentioned for veterinary director-general is Dr. A. H. Hall, of Grimsby, Ont., formerly of Quebec.

Inspector Hughes Quits.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Chief Inspector of Schools James L. Hughes has resigned. His resignation will take effect this summer.

The retiring inspector has been in the service of the board since 1874. His retiring allowance will be $2,000 for life. He will devote himself to literary work.

By JOHN MARCH

"I?" he asked, with elaborate astonishment; "dear me, no. What is there to object to?"

"Well, come along then, and don't let's have any more tomfoolery."

Paul stood irresolute, staring at the comical look of helplessness on Agnes's face. He could have smiled had the situation been less serious and acute. Felix's genuine concern, his affectionate interest, his simple faith in him, his unsuspiciousness, his utter unconsciousness that he was over the boundary fence treading on forbidden ground, was so ludicrous, so hysterically funny, that he was just about to laugh or to cry, he was not sure which, when, of all the acceptable diversions he would have welcomed, the door bell ran.

Dr. Hunter entered with his busy, brisk professional air, but the cheerfulness, the heartiness had departed, and was replaced by an unusual gravity. He discussed the awful tragedy, made himself acquainted with all its gruesome details, and then turning to Paul said, "Now, let's see what's the matter with you."

Slowly, with infinite reluctance, Paul untwined the bandages and disclosed his wound. Felix, peering over Jack Hunter's shoulder, seemed more shocked at the sight than at Mrs. Wycherly's tragic end.

"Oh, I say! A scratch! I could shake you two for a couple of fools!"

"There's no bullet here," Hunter said, ignoring Felix; "it ploughed along here, look, and went out there. It will be found, no doubt, embedded in the wall or somewhere in the drawing-room at the Larches. You must be careful over that wound, Farley, this frosty weather. It's painful enough now; but inflammation, erysipelas, in the wretched thing will make you sit up—or, rather, I should say, lie down. It's bled a good deal."

"Yes," Felix remarked; "look at my collar!"

They all looked and were duly amazed.

"How did it get there?" Paul asked.

"You daubed it there when you put your arms round my neck."

"You are so blunt, Felix, that you make me squirm," he said, flushing and laughing nervously. "How many more yards are you going to wind on there, doctor? I am in rather a hurry to go."

"Go where?" he asked surprised.

"Back to town: I'm going by this 6.35 train."

"That is impossible," he said, gravely. "I must veto that; you are not in a fit state."

"Hello, Paul Farley, Esquire! What did I tell you?"

"I don't care what anybody tells me, I am going back by that train."

"I say you are not, Farley; and as a medical man I expect to be obeyed."

Paul laid his head back on the cushions, and Agnes thought by the quiver of his lips he was going to cry. She was frightened, nervous, and fearfully excited. She gripped the doctor's shoulder and when he turned she made all sorts of wonderful signs and unedifying grimaces, which he translated and gathered she did not wish the young man to stay. He thought she was inconsiderate and inconsistent, and his expressive eyes told her so and also that she would not gain her point.

"I have been trying to persuade Farley to lie down for an hour; and when he is rested and has had a substantial breakfast it will be time enough then to decide which train he will go by."

"Quite. Here, Felix, you are the right person to see after him; just take him in hand and don't let him do anything foolish. Is there a fire upstairs anywhere?—why, Farley, your pulse is—"

"I don't care a hang about my pulse; all I want is to get back. I have never fussed about myself, and I don't intend. I'll put my hand in a sling; it will do very well. I shall be all right."

"My dear lad, you won't be all right; you'll be in bed, and that is where you ought to be now."

"I can't go to bed, I have too much to do. Look here, doctor, it's of the utmost importance, that I get back to London by this first train. I have a reason, an all-sufficient reason, for returning, and I must insist. I am determined to go."

"Tell it to me," Hunter said calmly; "let me judge whether it is of more importance than your health, perhaps your life."

"I can't tell. It's—it's—"

"Is there a woman in the case?"

"Yes," he said, catching at anything, "there's a woman in it, and I must go back."

"I'll send her a wire for you. No woman is worth risking your life for. What's the address?"

"Good heavens! I don't know; I mean I can't remember—I can't tell you. I say, doctor, I must go!"

"You are working yourself into a tremendous fever about a silly, trifling appointment. Good gracious me, if you can't be there you can't, and there is an end of it; and send a wire to say so—nothing more simple."

"I don't wish to keep Mr. Farley here, as he is so dead set against staying," Felix interposed stiffly; and the formal "Mr." struck a chill to Paul's heart.

"He is not against stopping here; it's this foolery in town. Now, my dear lad, at your age and with your experience, and in this excited state, I daresay this affair appears to you the acme of importance, essential to your existence, worth risking life or limb to accomplish. But it's nothing of the kind, I assure you. I have been young myself, and I know exactly how you feel; you would sacrifice everything to this ardent desire. But the world is phlegmatic, it does not live at this high pressure, nobody requires impossibilities or expects miracles in these sluggish calculating days of materialism; no one will thank you or appreciate this enormous expenditure of carbon. It's a dead loss, and will take weeks to replace. Give me that address and go to bed. I won't give you up with a pulse like that. Here, Felix, he will stay now if you ask him prettily. Put him to bed; take care of him. You'll do it better than any woman I know."

They both stood looking down at the long figure extended in the easy chair while they argued with the refractory invalid in their honeyest and most seductive style, but an angel from heaven, a clarion-toned seraph would have made little impression upon Paul.

Agnes, unnoticed, forgotten in the buzz of contention, was standing at the further end of the room writing on a piece of paper in a clear round hand. She blotted it and tore the portion containing the three bold lines from the sheet of notepaper, and joined the trio, pressing close to the doctor's side. She gave his arm an alarming pinch, and surreptitiously pushed the paper into his hand.

"Now," she whispered; "look now."

He clasped his fingers on it, looked at her flushed face, her greatly dilated eyes, and paused in his eloquent disquisition on the loss of vital power from nerve centres and other interesting evils flesh is said to be heir to, and looked round for a convenient spot to peruse the private missive. Felix was bending over Paul, his handsome face greatly distressed; he might keep in that posture a few seconds of time, and with that thought uppermost, the doctor stepped to the table and held the paper close to the lamp. Agnes, watching his face in the light, her heart throbbing, a strange coldness pervading her limbs, saw some of its floridness fade, and a doubtful, an incredulous expression creep into his eyes. He crumpled the paper, gazed earnestly and questioningly across at her, and in the frightened suppressed excitement of her whole demeanour he read a truthful confirmation of the written statement.

Jack Hunter stared hard at his boots as if conjuring inspiration from their polish to discover a way out of the wretched dilemma. He cleared his throat and said: "Hum, ah, I say, Felix," and turned to find the men standing together on the hearth rug as if ready to comply with his latest emphatic instructions.

This was the most extraordinary incident he had encountered in the course of his professional career, and he looked with renewed and ever-increasing interest at the slight agitated young man at Felix's side. He was tall, but his head only reached to the squire's shoulder; but then Felix was gigantic, several inches over six feet, large framed, well furnished, magnificently set up, height and breadth in inimitable proportion.

"I say, Felix," he began, again, with a hesitation that was foreign to him. "I think after all we have been a morsel too pressing."

"Well, you see, Farley has absorbed such a quantity of that commodity and I suppose, as in most things, the supply equals the demand. Isn't he an obstinate beggar, Jack?"

"The most perverse youth on record, I should say; and I think, Felix, he has earned his spurs, don't you?"

"That depends upon what you consider constitutes the spurs. Leave to return by this 6.35 train?"

"Perhaps not so early as that: what is the next one?"

"The next one is 7.40. But, Jack, a few minutes ago you said he was only fit to lie in bed."

"And I think so now, but—" he looked at Paul.

"It is now dawning on you, doctor, what I have known all along," Paul remarked, coming to his rescue with unsuspicious gusto. "I had a normal pulse. I was not feverish when I entered this house—was I, Miss Agnes? It's a temporary rise and will drop with the settlement of my return. I own I am seedy, upset, and my nerves a bit frayed; but being aggravated, chivied, thwarted past endurance won't improve my condition. I am very keen on getting out of this place—I mean Weyberne—for a time. I want to get away from all this horror, from the association of all I have gone through the last few months. Once back in town I shall be comparatively well, as easy as an old shoe—come and see me to-morrow, doctor, if you like, and judge for yourself."

"There is a good deal of feasibility in what you say, and to a certain extent you may be right. There is another thing we have all of us overlooked, and that is the inquest. Don't you think," he said persuasively, looking anxiously at Felix, "that if Mr. Farley slips off quietly, before most folks are moving, he won't be subpoenaed to attend the inquest? It would be a merciful dispensation of Providence if he could escape that. He has had horrors enough to last a lifetime. What do you think?"

"I don't know what to think. I am unable to follow the sudden turning and doubling of your reasoning. Do what you consider right, and if it's agreeable to Mr. Farley, it will please me. Good-bye," he continued, holding out his hand to Paul: "you will excuse me. I am a bit done up. I am going to lie down."

Paul clasped the hand, clung to it a little without looking at him.

"It is the best thing you can do," he said in his low sympathetic tones; "you are anything but well—I think I am the better man of the two! Thank you for all your kindness. I—I am not ungrateful. Please don't think I—"

An awful sensation gripped his throat, he wrenched his hand away and walked to the window to stare out through a blinding blur of tears. Felix followed him, laid a hand on his shoulder, opened his lips to address him, but, changing his mind, turned and said, "See to breakfast, Agnes," and left the room.

"What about breakfast?" the doctor asked.

"I couldn't eat any—it would choke me; I'll breakfast in town."

"Very well; the gig's outside. Dick can drive you to the station. Wrap up, take care of yourself, because I ought not—and but for this inquest and your mania to leave Weyberne, which amounts to an illness—I certainly would not allow you to go."

"Thank you; thank you for everything," he said, smilingly, sadly. "Good-bye, Miss Fleming," and slipping an arm through the doctor's, he got him along, outside, over the green grass to the gig on the hard turnpike.

"There's an address of a pal of mine, Sturgeon, in Harley Street; let him see your hand, and prescribe for you generally; you need it," and Hunter handed him a slip of paper.

"Thank you; think of me kindly," he said, leaning from the dogcart, "and do what you can to induce Mr. Fleming to think so, too. Please take care of him, doctor. He is more ill than he admits. You would let me know if he were—were—"

"Worse? He won't be worse. Look here, Farley, a word of advice in your ear: Get rid of the sentiment that clings about your penchant for Felix: don't ventilate anything beyond an honest liking; then you won't resent his marrying when the time comes."

"He has no idea of marrying; I believe he is perfectly heart whole."

"Perhaps now, but when Agnes and I are married that circumstance will make a vast difference. I shall encourage any sign I see of that sort, as I know of a lady at the Vicarage who possesses the attributes he would deem necessary in a wife and woman. They only want to be pointed out by a third party, and the thing is done, practically an fait accompli."

"Good-bye," Paul said, turning up his coat collar; "thanks for the loan of the trap. I dare say you won't object to wait at the Manor till Dick returns."

The doctor laughed, waved his hand, and ran across the grass stamping his feet. Paul, his eyes closed, his shivering limb huddled together, told himself repeatedly that all was well, he was content, everything was right, had happened for the best, until his brain grew giddy with the refrain, which seemed to keep time with the metallic ring of the horse's hoofs. Felix is alive, therefore I am content; yes, content—content—the sacrifice is mine; thank God! not his. The suffering is mine, and I accept it—accept it willingly, most willingly. I will accept the agonies, the tortures, the hell-begotten pains of all the ages, and the coming eternity, if accompanied with the proviso that Felix is well, happy, free of the slightest care, free to enjoy his beautiful, quiet outdoor life in serenity, in calm, hopeful, perfect peace, without even the shadow of a crumpled rose leaf. Oh, God, give it to me; I will bear it; I will bear anything now that Felix is alive; give all the pain to me. Let it crush the life from my heart; let it's weight bear me down — down to the earth—to the grass, to twist, to burrow—just as a blind worm.

CHAPTER XXX.

MINE OWN FAMILIAR FRIEND.

Agnes, awaiting the doctor's return, he alternating heat and cold of her excitement evaporated, stood by the parlour fire debating with herself, endeavouring to justify her attitude with regard to her recent disclosure. Had she been too precipitous? Would he difficulty have adjusted itself, been surmounted had she waited longer? The predicament obviated, entirely removed. Paul gone, his immolation inaugurated, there did not appear to be so much necessary, the situation was not so urgent that she need have broken the promise she gave him at Vilvorde.

What would Paul say when he knew? Would it spoil his career? Jack must be made to understand the importance of keeping the secret she had been forced, frightened into revealing, and prevent so much as a single breath of it spreading further. She had always meant to tell him when once they were married, because she would not ca — have the secret between them, and moreover the doctor's knowledge of his identity would be beneficial to Paul if he were still at Weyberne. Jack would prove a valuable ally, he could interpose in any exigency, he could swoop down and rescue Paul from trying contingencies, such as the one that had just now presented itself. Jack must be won over, too.

"He's gone!" Dr. Hunter exclaimed, pushing open the French window and locking it after him. "Agnes, I have met with so many queer things in my time that, as a rule, I am prepared not to be surprised or take exception at the unexpected, but this beats the record of anything I ever heard or saw. If you have been made a catspaw of, my dear, you have at the same time proved yourself a remarkably staunch friend."

"I have not been made a catspaw; I simply consented to hold my tongue the six months he remained in Weyberne."

"But the shrubbery affair, Agnes. Had I been a young man instead of an old stager, and consequently lenient towards the frailties incidental to youth, that kissing business might have separated us."

"It brought us together, Jack. You were a dear good soul, unwilling to believe evil of two innocent young people, and you shall have your reward in this world, you shan't wait till you get to the next."

Would Fall In a Faint

When She Attempted to Work, so Exhausted Was the Nervous System

The Feeble, Wasted Nerves Were Restored and Revitalized by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Nervous prostration is a terrible disease to all who understand its symptoms. At times the sufferer feels comparatively well, but with slight exertion the dreadful helplessness returns and all strength and vitality seems to leave the system.

This letter from Mrs. Martin very well describes the terrible conditions in which many a sufferer finds herself. She also tells how she regained health and strength by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food after all other treatments had failed.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition from nervous exhaustion and prostration. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. The weakness was so great that I could not so much as sweep the floor without fainting, but the nerve food helped me after the doctors failed. It has done wonders in building up my nervous system. I can do my own housework now and washing, and feel that this great medicine has been a God-send to me. I think it is the best of medicines."

REVEALING PALESTINE

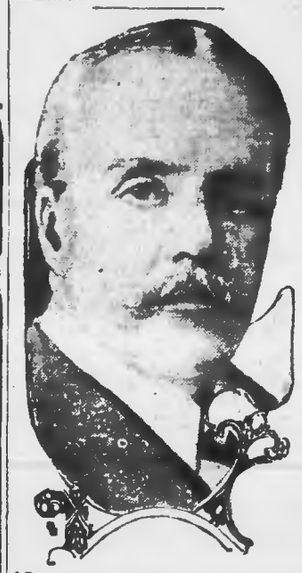
Old-time Palestine is gradually being revealed, and it seems probable that archaeologists will one day be able to show their contemporaries every historic place of note in that region referred to in the Bible. New discoveries are described by Professor C. Watzinger, who has recently been working in Palestine for the German Oriental Society. Perhaps the most interesting is the village and synagogue of Telhu in the Galilean hills, for Telhu was the Capernaum of the Bible and its synagogue one of the places where Jesus preached as a young man. It is concluded that the synagogue was built during the Roman occupation, and the three chambers of the basilica, or church, are laid bare. In another Galilean village, Petra, "the city of the dead," a celebrated monument, known to archaeologists as the "treasure house of Pharaoh," has been brought to light, without, however, any treasure being unearthed.

In the same lecture Professor Watzinger threw further light on the discoveries in ancient Jericho made by his predecessor, Professor Sellin, its character as at one time the strongest fortress of Canada being further confirmed. The Kaiser was present at the lecture; indeed, he hardly ever misses an occasion when archaeology, particularly Biblical archaeology is discussed.



ARTHUR J. BALFOUR, retired Unionist leader, is becoming a great devotee of golf. The former Leader of the Opposition in Parliament is not daunted by inclement weather. Recently in the links at Cannes, he played all day during a steady downpour, and declared afterward that he had enjoyed it all.

A THRILLING TRIP

Dubennet and Dupont Travelled 1230 Miles by Ballon.

M. Emil Dubonnet returned from his balloon flight of 1230 miles. He set out in the midst of a tempest in the balloon Condor III. from Lamotte-Breul, shortly after midnight, and landed at Sokolowska, in the Ukraine, after a flight of thirty hours. He was accompanied by M. Pierre Dupont as his passenger. He states that the voyage towards the end was terribly trying. They landed in the midst of a snowstorm, and for hours they had been carried through clouds of blinding snow. The thermometer was steadily about 5 degrees below zero and they had thrown out fifty sacks of ballast. They landed in the midst of a vast steppe, with no human habitation in sight. To warm themselves they tramped about in the snow, and finally started to walk without knowing where they were going. After three quarters of an hour they came to a hut occupied by an old man, with two little children and two ponies. The man was startled to see them, and could not speak any language that they understood. They showed him a map in vain, for he could not tell them where they were. The only word that he repeated was "kaput" meaning thereby evidently that if they left his hut they would, in German slang, be "kaput," that is, Dead men. They slept overnight on a table, the only piece of furniture in the hut, and the old man made a fire for them.

The next morning he hitched up the two ponies to a sledge and it took them eight hours to drive to the nearest town, which happened to be Monastyristche, here they got a train for Warsaw. M. Dubonnet and his companion were given a rousing welcome in Paris. A deputation from the Aero Club awaited them at the Gre du Nord. The greatest altitude reached by the Condor during the flight was about 10,000 feet when sailing over the Carpathian Mountains in beautiful moonlight.

The Weak, Lame, Aching Back

Comes From The Kidneys.

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted endure.

On the first sign of backache Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken immediately to avoid years of suffering from kidney trouble.

They go right to the seat of the trouble, heal the delicate membranes of the kidneys and make their action regular and natural.

Mrs. Joseph Theoup, Upper Point de Bute, N.B., writes: "I cannot speak too well of Doan's Kidney Pills. For two years I was so tired life was a burden, and I got up more tired than when I went to bed, and my back was so lame I could hardly straighten up. I took different kinds of medicine, but none of them did me any good until a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I did so, and to day I don't know what it is to be tired, and my lame back is all gone. I can recommend them to any person suffering with lame back and that terrible tired feeling."

CASCARETS INSURE INSIDE CLEANLINESS

The Millions of Cascaret Users Never Have Headache, Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Stomach

It is more necessary that you keep your Bowels, Liver and Stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the sewers and drainage of a large city free from obstruction.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

No odds how badly and upset you feel, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

WHY GROW OLD?

A Parisian Woman Talks of the Prolongation of Youth

"Why grow old? Live right and you will never be old." Such is the gist of the theories which Mrs. A. Cheiny, president of the Right Thinking and Right Living cult, in explaining to the fashionable people of Paris, Mrs. Cheiny has just delivered her first lecture here at an afternoon reception given in her honor by a well known resident of Paris. According to Mrs. Cheiny, each individual can do with himself the power to be successful in anything he chooses to do. The only difficulty consists in training oneself to obey the impulses of one's subconscious self, and in training the mind by thinking nothing but good, and so doing nothing, but good. Once any individual is able to do that he will have control of happiness and will not only be successful and happy but his body will remain young for ever and for him old age will have become a thing of the past. In support of her theories, Mrs. Cheiny quoted some of Professor Metchnikoff's views regarding the prolongation of youth, and concluded by saying that since all the cells of one's body are renewed regularly every year there is no reason whatever why men and women should grow old. Women philosophers, followers of Bahaism, and Christian Scientists all listened with much interest to the explanations of the fundamental principles of the new cult. A committee was formed at once to help Mrs. Cheiny in her propaganda, which, judging by the success of her first lecture seems likely to prove the most popular novelty in Paris society this winter.

ERIN'S SOOTHING WEED

Tobacco was first smoked regularly in the British Isles by Sir Walter Raleigh at Myrtle Grove, Youghal, and it seems only right that Ireland should now give promise of being a tobacco-producing country.

ISLE OF WIGHT MODEL PRISON

Prisoners will be Given Many of the Comforts Pertaining to full Freedom.

More than one hundred acres of forest land have been acquired in the Isle of Wight for the new "prison" for habitual criminals, which is entirely hidden from public view by trees. In outward appearances the new prison is quite unlike the forbidden convict prisons. One is not repelled by large square-built barrack-like buildings with rows of little barred windows. On the contrary, there is a group of comparatively small homelike buildings with ordinary cottage windows looking out from the cells. In several important respects, the rigors of ordinary prison life will be relaxed. Prisoners, whose conduct merits it, after a period of probation will be permitted to associate with others at meals and during recreation time. An association hall, well lighted and furnished, has been provided at one end of every prison block, and on each floor. Here the prisoners who have gained the privilege will mix freely during the "association" intervals, although a warder will, of course, keep a look-out.

The officers, however, will be kept apart from the prisoners in a small observation ward at the end of each hall. The cells, which are ranged on each side of a central corridor, are, with the exception of these in the punishment block, attractively colored; spring mattresses are provided for sleeping, and the prisoners will be at will to open and close their "cottage" windows, which have stout steel grids outside to prevent the possibility of escape. In the offices and stores block is the prisoners' canteen, where they will be privileged to purchase table extras in the way of food and other small luxuries to supplement the prison dietary. No money will change hands when the prisoners "buy" from the canteen, but the cost of the purchases will be charged against the gratuities which they have been enabled to earn by good conduct and industry. Any gratuities not spent in this way may be sent by the prisoners to their relatives, or be retained for their own use on discharge. Forest land is being cleared outside for the provision of allotment gardens for prisoners of good conduct, who will be credited with the proceeds of the sale to the prison authorities of their produce of such allotments.

The prisoners will be taught agricultural and horticultural work and useful trades.

The ordinary prison rules in regard to visits by relatives and friends to the prisoners are to be relaxed. Prisoners and visitors will meet in one room with no iron barrier between them.

All the buildings are constructed in cement blocks, with bright red glazed tile roofs, the cells and corridors have red tiled floors, and the association halls have wood block flooring.

Convict labor has been largely employed in the erection of the new prison, but most of the skilled labor has been obtained by the Home office from the outside.

LONDON WHO'S WHO

Every New Directory Shows New Industries Springing up

The popular edition of "Who's Who"—the Post Office Directory for 1912—has now reached its 113th annual issue, and year by year grows more corpulent. Now it is a fifteen-pound slab of facts, and its 3,650 cubic inches are closely packed with the names of the great army of Londoners, who unlike some people in the more exclusive "Who's Who," do not conceal their trades behind a list of clubs and recreations, but proclaim to all the world that they are butchers, bakers, and candlestick-makers.

To be accurate, however, it must be confessed that there are no candlestick-makers classified as such. Candlestick-making seems to be a lost art. Candied peel makers are to be found, and firms who have made it their life work to manufacture carbide of calcium, but the candlestick-makers appear to have gone the way of the cordwainers.

But if the crafts of our fathers are being lost, every issue of the Post Office directory indicates that new industries are springing up. Last year brought the aeroplane propeller makers, the venturesome radium importers, and the farmers' sundriesman.

The author of the saying, "One half of the world does not know how the other half lives," must have been inspired by the Post Office Directory. A glance through the pages of classified trades is a revelaton of ignorance. What, for instance, is a lath-tender, and who is Mr. Miller Montague James that he alone should bear the high-sounding title of "Tiner o the trade?"

As for names in general, there are 1,700 Smiths, and only one Mr. Portwine, who is a butcher. There is a Bernard Shaw who is an undertaker at Camberwell, and four William Shakespeares, who among them make vans and clocks, and deal in old metal.

HISTORY OF THE HANDKERCHIEF

It is only 127 years that the handkerchief in its present square shape has been in use. Previously handkerchiefs were all shapes, long narrow, oblong, even round; but one day Queen Marie Antoinette, at Trianon, remarked to Louis XVI or perhaps to some courtier in power, that it would be much neater to use square handkerchiefs. That was at the end of the year 1784. A few years later, on Jan. 2, 1785 Louis XVI issued an edict decreeing that the length of handkerchiefs shall equal their breadth henceforth throughout the kingdom, and the edict of the King who the Revolution guillotined has influenced custom to this day. Political cataclysms passed over France, but handkerchiefs remained square, not only in France, but all over the world.

QUEEN'S GUESTS ARE ALL EQUAL

Elizabeth of Belgium Shows her Appreciation of Aid in a Charity

Queen Elizabeth of Belgium gave a party to eighteen hundred women at the Palace in Brussels. Duchesses and dairymaids were among the guests, but all were equal in their love and admiration for the Queen. She it was who was giving thanks—showing her appreciation of the women's loyal aid in raising money for charity very close to her heart — the Dispensary for Tuberculosis patients. At a hint from the Queen, each of the women who drank tea with her wore an artificial edelweiss in the corsage of her afternoon gown; for the edelweiss is her favorite flower. To do her guests greater honor, Queen Elizabeth received them with much ceremony in the magnificent ballroom. Surrounded by all her household, she seated herself in a gilt chair on a slightly raised platform. She wore one of her handsomest robes, a gown of white satin beautifully embroidered; and over it she wore a blue and gold gauze mantle trimmed with fur. Her splendid pearls adorned her throat, and a diamond aigrette was in her hair.

The Queen also had her children with her, much to the delight of the guests. The young Royalties watched with intense interest each group of women as they advanced, led by the resident of their province, to be presented to the Queen. Each party brought an immense bouquet, which was laid on the Royal platform, so that when the presentations were over the Queen made a pretty little speech of thanks, and then the guests took tea in the fine suppersrooms of the palace. Here the Queen laid aside her more ceremonious air, mingled with her guests, and talked to them like a friend, singling out the more modest and the most humbly dressed.

SHOT TWO MOOSE

Two fine moose were shot by two American sportmen shooting in one party under the guidance of Amos Glaunce on Sisson Branch of the Tobique near Perth, N.B. One moose had a spread of 56 inches with 52 points and the other carried a spread of 54 inches.

Ladies of Culture and Refinement Use Salvia Hair Tonic. It makes the Hair Beautiful

At last a remedy has been discovered that will positively destroy this pest.

That Dandruff is caused by germs is accepted by every sensible person.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils.

SALVIA will kill the dandruff germs and remove Dandruff in ten days, or money back.

McDermid and Jury guarantees it. It will grow hair, stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair thick and abundant. It prevents hair from turning gray, and adds life and lustre.

SALVIA is a hair dressing that has become the favourite with women of taste and culture, who know the social value of beautiful hair. A large, generous bottle costs only 50c. at leading druggists everywhere, and in Peterborough by McDermid and Jury. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle.

Also sold at Payne's Drug Store.

Threatening Sign.

When Thomas Matthews, a chimney sweep, was leaving the dock at Cardiff Police Court after being sentenced to three months' imprisonment for neglecting to maintain his wife and child he made a threatening sign to his wife. The action was observed by Mr C. E. Dovey, one of the magistrates who ordered the man to be brought back. At first Matthews denied that his action was intended as a threat to his wife, but after a severe lecture he expressed his regret, and the magistrates refrained from binding him over.

Ping-pong has returned, and one London firm alone is said to be selling 1,000 bats and 1,200 balls a day.

Belfast Death Rate.

The death-rate of Belfast for the past year was 17.2, which is the lowest on record.

Irish Independence.

The "Irish National Boy Scouts" are pledged to work for Irish independence, and "never join Britain's armed forces."

Was 102 Years.

Strangled with Garters.

Alexander Fenwick, retired farmer, died under tragic circumstances at Pitblado House, near Cupar. He had not been in good health for some time and he alarmed the household by brandishing a knife, shouting that their day had come. He was locked into a bedroom, and there strangled himself with leather garters at the end of the bed.

Lady Drowned in Floods.

The body of Miss May Curtis Legge, a well-known Athlone lady of literary culture, who mysteriously disappeared from her home on Dec. 11, was discovered by two farmers, named Cullen and Hughes, who were sailing over the flooded area of Bonnaribba, on their way into Athlone. The body was noticed by these men in about five feet of water on the flooded land.

More Mammoth Liners.

Two new vessels for the White Star Line are about to be put under construction at Belfast by Messrs. Harland and Wolff. One, which will have a gross tonnage of 18,000 is intended for the Australian service, and the other, for the Atlantic service, will be somewhat larger than either the Atlantic or Titanic. Her tonnage will not exceed 50,000, and her machinery will be practically the same as that of her predecessors.

Hats on for National Anthem.

The order issued by Colonel Ferguson prohibiting the band of 2nd Life Guards from playing in the barracks square, Windsor, after church parade on Sundays has been revoked. The order was owing to the unmannerliness of some of the crowd who remained covered while "God Save the King" was being played.

Highland Burial Custom.

In a paper read to the Edinburgh Bibliographical Society, Mr. John S. Gibb described a curious Highland burial custom of which he was an eye witness when a boy of eleven. The death of a woman, aged, poor, and friendless, took place one morning, and in the evening a number of the neighbors, old and young, met at the one-roomed cottage, and, to the slow music of a violin, passed in rhythmical order round the floor in front of the bed on which the veiled body was lying.

MICROBES MAKE SPRING

Professor Muntz Says Their Activity is Not Due to Warmer Weather

We have all been mistaken about spring during the past 5,000 or 6,000 years. It was not the sun that made the spring; it was the microbes that made it, and they continue to make it. Such is the conclusions of a paradoxical paper read at the Academy of Science, Berlin, by Professor Muntz of the Institute. He reminded us of what we all know, that spring is the moment of a general awakening. The world shakes off the lethargy of winter. We explain this by a return of the sun, but is this explanation sufficient? M. Muntz questions it. He says that at the beginning of spring there is an extraordinary activity of the microbes. In short, according to him it is the microbes that make the spring, but if we object that the rise in the temperature must have something to do with, M. Muntz replies that this is not certain. The activity of the microbes is independent of the temperature. The microbes simply obey a certain atavism which makes them increase their nitrifying properties at the period of the year. The sun, therefore, does not produce the spring; the microbes do it. It is not said that this revolutionary discovery was endorsed by the Academy.

Little Prescott Boy Undergoes an Operation at Brockville

A three-year-old son of George Moxon, Prescott, swallowed a Canadian cent. The child could not swallow until taken to Brockville when the coin was located in the esophagus, close to the stomach, by the X-ray. It was successfully removed.

TELEPHONE INNOVATION

By a New System a Signal is Flashed Before Nine Operators.

A record in telephone construction has been achieved with the new "Nine-to-one" Avenue Exchange in the city of London. The full equipment capable of dealing with 10,000 subscribers was completely installed in six months. The Exchange has been christened the "Nine-to-one" because by a novel system, a call from a subscriber lights lamps in front of nine operators, so that the chances are nine-to-one that an operator will be disengaged and able to answer the call instantly. At present the new Avenue is the only exchange in this country where this calling method is installed, although a much smaller exchange at Ilford is being constructed on the same principal.

LIPTON'S FIRST JOB

Long before the successive Shamrocks, a poor boy of sixteen left his native shores and took passage for North America, the land of opportunity. Sir Thomas Lipton tells in his reminiscences in The Strand Magazine how he first secured employment in New York. We read: —

I had not dared tell my father and mother, so they only knew of the great step I had taken when I had gone. Had it not been for the kindness of my fellow-passengers my journey would have been very miserable, and once or twice, I confess, I lost heart. I had no money nor any one to go to when I arrived in New York, and before we landed I cudgelled my brains as to what I was to do. As the steamer drew alongside the pier I took up my few belongings and rushed away to the nearest hotel before any one else had left the vessel. As it seemed a clean, well-kept place I asked to see the proprietor, and told him that I could get him forty patrons, provided he would board and lodge me for a month. To this he consented, I made my way back instantly to the boat, and was just in time to catch my fellow-passengers and persuade them they would get excellent accommodation. And they did.

TOURED THE WORLD

Sir John Kirk Always Kept in Sight of the British Flag

Sir John Kirk, the "Children's friend" has returned to England after a six months' trip, always in sight o' the British flag. He is Director of the Ragged School Union of London England, and of the Shaftesbury Society, and has been engaged for nearly forty years in the work of caring for and uplifting the children of the slums.

"During my trip," said Sir John, "I have been very much impressed with the magnitude of the British Empire with the growth of the imperial spirit, and also with the local spirit of patriotism which I found in Canada and Australia. Each unit of the Empire sees that it must work out its own destiny, but is still not in the least less loyal to the Empire."

Sir John remarked on the increase he had noted everywhere in the attention that is devoted to child life. "The child has come to its own as never before," he said. "All parts of the British Empire recognize that the future of the Empire lies with the child, and are working to save and educate him for the Empire."

Wherever he went Sir John said he had found an extraordinary solicitude for the neglected children. Many homes and schools had been provided for them. Especial attention had been devoted to recalcitrant children who had been previously regarded as incorrigible, and children's courts had been established all over, whereby they were removed from the atmosphere of crime.

LUCKY WORKHOUSE MAN

John Thomas Fall Receives a Legacy of $3,100

By a lucky accident John Thomas Fall, of the Scarborough Workhouse, has just learned that he is entitled to a legacy of $3,100. Allowed to leave the Workhouse for a walk, the legatee, whose name is John Thomas Fall, met in the street a gentleman who told him of his good fortune. Efforts had been made without success to find Fall and it was believed that he was dead until the chance meeting in the street. The money had been left to him by an uncle who had died at Stockholm.

Fall, who is 64 years of age, was formerly a picture-framer and gilder. He had to give up his trade owing to failing eyesight, and had supported himself by selling newspapers until October last, when illness compelled him to enter the workhouse. His father was for many years a leading tradesman in Scarborough as a picture-framer and art dealer.

Cat Killed Kingfisher.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to save a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

SIR HIRAM MAXIM

famous English inventor of firearms and the wonderful "Maxim silencer," who is planning for the creation of an "Institute of Inventors" in London to assist men devoting their lives to that work, for whom he says there is no society at present in any city of the world. It is the intention of Sir Hiram to have the Institute of Inventors operated along the same general lines as the French Academy of Arts.

FAMOUS ANIMAL DEAD

A Gigantic Rhinoceros in a London Zoo that was Never Conquered.

One of the most famous animals in the world passed away in the person of "Jim," the gigantic Indian rhinoceros of the Zoological Gardens, Regent's Park. "Jim" was never conquered and at certain seasons of the year, he would fight madly with his cage. He never seriously hurt himself, but he ended by covering his head with extraordinary callosities which made him an object of terror to children.

He was a ruler's gift having been presented by the predecessor of the present Maharajah of Cooch Behar, and a naturalist has undertaken to convert his hide into walking-sticks. For a week before he died, "Jim" was unable to get upon his feet. Never before had a keeper ventured into his cage. He felt no malice in the matter—he simply felt it was his duty to attack keepers. On his deathbed he tolerated them, and even took food from their hands.

He died from sheer old age, after twenty-five years in Regent's Park. Examination showed that "Jim's" teeth had failed him. Unlike the horse, these do not continue to grow, and when they are worn away, the rhinoceros must die. Man is as old as his arteries and the rhinoceros as his teeth.

DISORDER IN A CHURCH

Bosnia People Resented the Order of the Archbishop

Great excitement has been caused among the Catholic working classes of Bosnia by the Archbishop of Serajovo reducing the annual number of holidays by ten in harmony with the Pope's motu proprio.

When the archbishop's order was read from the pulpit in the cathedral at Serajovo, such stormy scenes occurred as are seldom witnessed in churches. Men and women rose in a body, raised their fists, and shouted, "We will not allow a reduction of the holidays."

"We will not recognize the archbishop's order."

"We shall stick to our ancient habits; down with the archbishop."

The attempt of the priests to appease the embittered crowd was vain, and the police were called in to restore order. Many persons, however, left the cathedral in a demonstrative way, some declaring that they would embrace orthodoxy if the order is not withdrawn.

Similar demonstrations occurred in churches in other places of the province.

The Socialist leaders declare that the reduction of the holidays is a measure hostile to the working classes as they will have to work ten days more per annum without receiving extra wages.

"SALT RHEUM"

Had It On Hands For Two Years.

ITCHED SO DID NOT KNOW WHAT TO DO.

Tried Three Doctors and Went to Hospital.

All skin diseases are more or less occasioned by a bad state of the blood, and no one can expect to be free from some form or other of skin trouble unless the blood is kept in good shape. All skin diseases can be very easily cured by the wonderful blood cleansing properties of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This is due to the unrivalled purifying action of Burdock Blood Bitters on the blood, coupled with the thorough manner in which it cleanses and expels the impurities from the body.

Mrs. Richard Coutine, White Head, Que., writes:—"I have been bothered with salt rheum, on my hands, for two years, and itched so I did not know what to do. I tried three doctors, and even went to Montreal to the hospital without getting any relief. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got three bottles, and before I had the second used I found a big change, and now to-day I am cured."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about 35 years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PREPARING TO FIGHT.

Temperance Men Lay Plans For the Next Campaign.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Big issues were up at the Temperance Convention in Toronto yesterday, and a large percentage of the delegates had their say. The question of a prohibition party was one of the big issues, and "public ownership of the liquor traffic by the province" was another. After spending half the afternoon discussing it and making declarations that the temperance people should get to work and cease talking, the following resolution, consisting of four clauses, was adopted, the last of which was proposed by Controller J. O. McCarthy, with a view "to putting teeth into the foregoing clauses":

"That this convention renew its demand for legislation abolishing the barroom and the treating system and drinking in clubs, and the imposition upon the liquor traffic of such other restriction as will most effectively curtail its operations and remedy its evils.

"That no candidate or party that does not support the foregoing policy can be accepted as entitled to the support of electors who realize that the abolition of the barroom is the greatest political issue in this province to-day.

"That the Alliance executive immediately take steps to effect a thorough organization of voters to secure the nomination and election of representatives who can be relied upon to support the policy herein set out.

"That the executive committee be directed to appoint a sub-committee to carry into political action the policy of the Alliance herein and above outlined."

"Kicking is bad policy. Behold the mule. Kicking never gets him anywhere." "That is exactly why the mule kicks." "Eh?" "He doesn't want to get anywhere."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Three Killed In Wreck.

Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 16.—Three persons were killed and 67 were injured when the Pennsylvania Limited, eastbound, jumped the track at Warriors' Ridge, a short distance west of this place, and nine of the 11 cars rolled down an embankment to the edge of the Juniata River.

The dead in the morgue at Huntingdon are: Harry A. Mass, New York; Mrs. John Taverner, Washington, Ill., and Mrs. Hall, colored, maid employed on the train. Among the injured is E. E. Shellenback of Winnipeg, Man.

The train consisted of ten passenger cars and a postal coach, and left Altoona more than an hour late. At the time of the disaster, it is said, the limited was going at the rate of 50 miles an hour. As the train neared Warriors' Ridge the equalizing bar on the second locomotive, it being a double-header, dropped on the rails. The first car passed over the obstruction, but nine succeeding cars jumped the tracks and dropped down the embankment. The observation car remained on the rails.

Listless, Backward Children

Made Bright and Active by Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

He Needs More Sore —Not Scolding.

Many a growing boy or girl is set down as constitutionally slow, stupid or lazy when it is really a question of inactive bowels, lazy liver or sluggish kidneys.

The growing child, with a hearty appetite, certainly cannot long remain healthy and bright if the sewers of the body, the bowels and the kidneys, are choked up with impurities that should be thrown off promptly.

The muddy complexion, dragging limbs and dislike for mental or physical effort show plainly that the child needs Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills to stir up the liver and kidneys and regulate the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills do this most effectively, cleansing the whole system, purifying the blood, aiding the digestion and giving plenty of life and activity. As upon the education obtained may depend the success in life of your boy or girl—see to it that the general health of the child is such that study is pleasure and not a hardship.

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC.

Germany Looks on English Entente With Coolness.

Berlin, Feb. 16.—The bitterness against Great Britain evoked by last summer's eve... has not yet passed away. The references in the Reichstag yesterday to the British Secretary of War's mission were unmistakably cool, except on the part of the Socialists, who warmly favor better relations between Germany and Great Britain.

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, in a statement respecting the conversations which took place between the German Ministers and Viscount Haldane, said that they would be continued. The spokesmen for the Conservative Centre and the National Liberals, while declaring that they would welcome a rapprochement, recommended very reserved action.

The Chancellor said: "Viscount Haldane, although without binding the British Government, still at the instance of the British Cabinet, discussed with us the point at which the interests of both countries come into contact.

"The object of the British Secretary of War and of the German Government was to find a basis on which the mutual relations of the two countries were heartily welcomed by us, have been exhaustive and frank, and will be continued."

The Imperial Chancellor hoped that the House would not ask for further announcements at the present moment. His speech was heartily and generally applauded.

The National Liberal speakers said: "We all will support the peace efforts as heretofore, but the chief assistance must come from the English."

Singing Wires.

Sometimes when a tempest is raging telegraph wires are silent, while in time of calm they are sonorous. Evidently the vibration of the wires is not due to atmospherical agitation alone. A scientist of Berlin who studied the cause of the singing of wires in time of calm concludes that the vibration of the wires always presages the approach of bad weather. When the sounds are deep the change of weather may be looked for within two days. When they are shrill or sharp the storm will come within a very few hours. It is difficult to determine the cause of the singing. An Italian scientist calls it "seismic agitation produced by barometric depression and transmitted to the wires by the telegraph poles."—Harper's Weekly.

Lots of Hunting.

The talk had turned upon hunting and by and by one of the adult visitors, noting Jamie's rapt and eager look, remarked cheerily:

"Well, sonny, I don't suppose you've had a chance to do much hunting yet?"

"Not many kinds, but lots of it," explained Jamie. "I've never hunted bears or lions, but I've hunted granny's spectacles most all over the world!"—Chicago Record Herald.

KILL SHARKS FOR FUN.

Kanakas Can Whip the Man Eaters in a Fair Fight.

In the Pacific ocean lives a race of men who outswim fish and who can kill man eating sharks in a fair fight. They are Kanakas, the seamen who are natives of the Hawaiian Islands.

"A native can whip a shark because he can outswim him," states an American who has been living in the islands many years. "I never heard of a native being injured by a shark, and there is a superstition among them that a shark is afraid of a Kanaka and will refuse to fight. This is not true, however, and grew out of the fact that a native always whips a shark. A Kanaka will spy a shark and, taking a knife between his teeth, dive in after him. It is a fair fight, because the shark has teeth that are as deadly as the knife. The shark will make for the swimmer, and when it is in range will flop suddenly on its side, which position is necessary before it can use its powerful jaws to crush an enemy. As the shark turns the native will sink rapidly and come up and rip the creature open with a quick slash of the knife. Sometimes they will avoid the shark time after time, cutting it on the nose and pricking it to arouse its anger.

"For excitement it outthrills a bull fight."—Detroit Free Press.

TUBES FOR LUNGS.

Complex System by Which Insects Are Enabled to Breathe.

While mammals have lungs and fishes gills, insects have neither one nor the other. Instead they present a complex system of tubes running throughout the length of their bodies, whereby the air is conveyed to every part of the system.

To guard insects against collapse from pressure of air, nature has furnished the little creatures with a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, just as a garden hose is protected with wire.

Many flies live first in the water as larvae. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates are placed to absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three featherlike projections, and by means of these the larvae cause currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

Gnats also exist in the water as larvae. But they have no gills. Their breathing is accomplished by means of a tube situated at the tip of the tail. The larvae floats along head downward in the water, with this tube just above the surface, so that the creatures may breathe.—Harper's Weekly.

Prayer Halls in Russia.

In the villages of Russia the "prayer hall" is the common type of cottage of a Stundist mought, or a shed attached to a very primitive farmstead surrounded by prodigious quantities of mud, dust or snow, according to the season of the year. A separate building erected expressly for worship among the rural evangelicals of Russia is a luxury yet to be provided in the great majority of cases. The meeting place, whether hall or cottage, has walls of earth. It is without ceiling. The floor is the bare earth, trodden hard by many feet through the lapse of long years and worn into lumps and hollows. The walls are limewashed and destitute of decoration or adornment. There are rough wooden benches around and across the room. The place is usually packed to suffocation with men, women and children crowded on the seats, thronging the doorways and huddling together on the top of the huge stove.—Sunday at Home.

PREPARING TO FIGHT.

Temperance Men Lay Plans For the Next Campaign.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Big issues were up at the Temperance Convention in Toronto yesterday, and a large percentage of the delegates had their say. The question of a prohibition party was one of the big issues, and "public ownership of the liquor traffic by the province" was another. After spending half the afternoon discussing it and making declarations that the temperance people should get to work and cease talking, the following resolution, consisting of four clauses, was adopted, the last of which was proposed by Controller J. O. McCarthy, with a view "to putting teeth into the foregoing clauses":

"That this convention renew its demand for legislation abolishing the barroom and the treating system and drinking in clubs, and the imposition upon the liquor traffic of such other restriction as will most effectively curtail its operations and remedy its evils.

"That no candidate or party that does not support the foregoing policy can be accepted as entitled to the support of electors who realize that the abolition of the barroom is the great est political issue in this province to-day.

"That the Alliance executive immediately take steps to effect a thorough organization of voters to secure the nomination and election of representatives who can be relied upon to support the policy herein set out.

"That the executive committee be directed to appoint a sub-committee to carry into political action the policy of the Alliance herein and above outlined."

"Kicking is bad policy. Behold the mule. Kicking never gets him anywhere." "That is exactly why the mule kicks." "Eh?" "He doesn't want to get anywhere."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Three Killed In Wreck.

Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 16.—Three persons were killed and 67 were injured when the Pennsylvania Limited, eastbound, jumped the track at Warriors' Ridge, a short distance west of this place, and nine of the 11 cars rolled down an embankment to the edge of the Juniata River.

The dead in the morgue at Huntingdon are: Harry A. Mass, New York; Mrs. John Taverner, Washington, Ill., and Mrs. Hall, colored, maid employed on the train. Among the injured is E. E. Shellenback of Winnipeg, Man.

The train consisted of ten passenger cars and a postal coach, and left Altoona more than an hour late. At the time of the disaster, it is said, the limited was going at the rate of 50 miles an hour. As the train neared Warriors' Ridge the equalizing bar on the second locomotive, it being a double-header, dropped on the rails. The first car passed over the obstruction, but nine succeeding cars jumped the tracks and dropped down the embankment. The observation car remained on the rails.

Listless, Backward Children
Made Bright and Active
by Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Many a growing boy or girl is set down as constitutionally slow, stupid or lazy when it is really a question of inactive bowels, lazy liver or sluggish kidneys.

The growing child, with a hearty appetite, certainly cannot long remain healthy and bright if the sewers of the body, the bowels and the kidneys, are choked up with impurities that should be thrown off promptly.

The muddy complexion, dragging limbs and dislike for mental or physical effort show plainly that the child needs Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills to stir up the liver and kidneys and regulate the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills do this most effectively, cleansing the whole system, purifying the blood, aiding the digestion and giving plenty of life and activity. As upon the education obtained may depend the success in life of your boy or girl—see to it that the general health of the child is such that study is pleasure and not a hardship.

Germany Looks on English Entente With Coolness.

Berlin, Feb. 16.—The bitterness against Great Britain evoked by last summer's eve has not yet passed away. The references in the Reichstag yesterday to the British Secretary of War's mission were unmistakably cool, except on the part of the Socialists, who warmly favor better relations between Germany and Great Britain.

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, in a statement respecting the conversations which took place between the German Ministers and Viscount Haldane, said that they would be continued. The spokesmen for the Conservative Centre and the National Liberals, while declaring that they would welcome a rapprochement, recommended very reserved action.

The Chancellor said: "Viscount Haldane, although without binding the British Government, still at the instance of the British Cabinet, discussed with us the point at which the interests of both countries come into contact.

"The object of the British Secretary of War and of the German Government was to find a basis on which the mutual relations of the two countries were heartily welcomed by us, have been exhaustive and frank, and will be continued."

The Imperial Chancellor hoped that the House would not ask for further announcements at the present moment. His speech was heartily and generally applauded.

The National Liberal speakers said: "We all will support the peace efforts as heretofore, but the chief assistance must come from the English."

Singing Wires.

Sometimes when a tempest is raging telegraph wires are silent, while in time of calm they are sonorous. Evidently the vibration of the wires is not due to atmospherical agitation alone. A scientist of Berlin who studied the cause of the singing of wires in time of calm concludes that the vibration of the wires always presages the approach of bad weather. When the sounds are deep the change of weather may be looked for within two days. When they are shrill or sharp the storm will come within a very few hours. It is difficult to determine the cause of the singing. An Italian scientist calls it "seismic agitation produced by barometric depression and transmitted to the wires by the telegraph poles."—Harper's Weekly.

Lots of Hunting.

The talk had turned upon hunting and by and by one of the adult visitors, noting Jamie's rapt and eager look, remarked cheerily:

"Well, sonny, I don't suppose you've had a chance to do much hunting yet?"

"Not many kinds, but lots of it," explained Jamie. "I've never hunted bears or lions, but I've hunted granny's spectacles most all over the world!"—Chicago Record Herald.

KILL SHARKS FOR FUN.

Kanakas Can Whip the Man Eaters in a Fair Fight.

In the Pacific ocean lives a race of men who outswim fish and who can kill man eating sharks in a fair fight. They are Kanakas, the seamen who are natives of the Hawaiian Islands.

"A native can whip a shark because he can outswim him," states an American who has been living in the islands many years. "I never heard of a native being injured by a shark, and there is a superstitition among them that a shark is afraid of a Kanaka and will refuse to fight. This is not true, however, and grew out of the fact that a native always whips a shark. A Kanaka will spy a shark and, taking a knife between his teeth, dive in after him. It is a fair fight, because the shark has teeth that are as deadly as the knife. The shark will make for the swimmer, and when it is in range will flop suddenly on its side, which position is necessary before it can use its powerful jaws to crush an enemy. As the shark turns the native will sink rapidly and come up and rip the creature open with a quick slash of the knife. Sometimes they will avoid the shark time after time, cutting it on the nose and pricking it to arouse its anger.

"For excitement it outthrills a bull fight."—Detroit Free Press.

TUBES FOR LUNGS.

While mammals have lungs and fishes gills, insects have neither one nor the other. Instead they present a complex system of tubes running throughout the length of their bodies, whereby the air is conveyed to every part of the system.

To guard insects against collapse from pressure of air, nature has furnished the little creatures with a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, just as a garden hose is protected with wire.

Many flies live first in the water as larvae. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates are placed to absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three featherlike projections, and by means of these the larvae cause currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

Gnats also exist in the water as larvae. But they have no gills. Their breathing is accomplished by means of a tube situated at the tip of the tail. The larvae floats along head downward in the water, with this tube just above the surface, so that the creatures may breathe.—Harper's Weekly.

Prayer Halls in Russia.

In the villages of Russia the "prayer hall" is the common type or cottage of a Stundist moujik, or a shed attached to a very primitive farmstead surrounded by prodigious quantities of mud, dust or snow, according to the season of the year. A separate building erected expressly for worship among the rural evangelicals of Russia is a luxury yet to be provided in the great majority of cases. The meeting place, whether into or outhouse, has walls of earth. It is without ceiling. The floor is the bare earth, trodden hard by many feet through the lapse of long years and worn into hummocks and hollows. The walls are bare washed and destitute of decoration or adornment. There are rough wooden benches around and across the room. The place is usually packed to suffocation with men, women and children crowded on the seats, thronging the doorways and huddling together on the top of the huge stove.—Sunday at Home.

Belmont Minstrels To-Night !

Hockey Returns Will Be Announced

THE BELMONT MINSTRELS SCORED A BIG SUCCESS AT THE GRAND LAST NIGHT

FINE CHORUS SINGING

Artistically and financially, the second annual minstel show of the Belmont Club, under the direction of Holly Shepard at the Grand last night, was a distinct triumph. The biggest crowd of the season greeted the minstrels and judging by the frequent encores and the hearty applause, the big audience found the entertainment thoroughly to their liking. Certainly the production was one of the finest amateur presentations ever given in Peterborough; it was last year's success repeated with emphasis. From the first chorus to the final drop of the curtain there was not a dull moment. Pretty music well rendered by soloists and chorus alike, funny end songs, neat dancing, rapid-fire dialogue and monologue, made up a programme that never wavered in interest, and the cast individually and collectively, won many laurels. Mr. Shepard, the "man who makes minstrels" has demonstrated in the great work of the Belmonts, that he is a past-master in his vocation. Such smoothness and freedom from gaucherie has only been made possible by faithful consistent work on his part, and by the intelligence and willingness of the local young people who are associated with him in the performance.

When the curtain went up on the first part, it was seen that the promised "something new in minstrelsy" was in evidence in the striking scene that presented itself. The stage was arranged as a banquet hall, with the chorus in evening attire seated around the tables, the effect being wholly pleasing. With Mr. McIlroy as a capable toast-master, the feast of song and merriment was commenced with a chorus by the company.

Vernon Morphet won great favour by his singing of the tuneful march song, "Good-bye Honey Boy, Good-Bye" Mr. Louis Mendel's end song, "Way Down in Georgia" was capitally given and made an instantaneous hit. Mr. Stan Pollard's pleasing tenor was effectively displayed in the pretty waltz ballad, "If the Rose Told You All That it Knew." Mr. Reg. Turner's rendition of the coon song, "Any Old Way to Cook Chicken" caused much merriment, and had to be repeated several times. The catchy topical song, "Save Your Kisses Till Sunday Night" was well handled by Mr. Stanley Plaine. Mr. Walter Davidson scored his usual success in his number, "Dat's Harmony" working in references to the hockey situation, the high level bridge and other local issues with amusing effect. Mr. Fred Skitch's deep sonorous bass was admirably adapted to his song, "Roll On, Deep Blue Sea" and his most capable rendition of the number was rapturously received.

"Let Me Down Easy," an end song by Mr. Chris. Graham, was given by him with full appreciation of its humour and the number was one of the best on the programme. The Elite quartette earned a storm of applause by their beautiful rendition of the ballad, "I Wonder How the Old Folks Are at Home" and had to repeat the number. "That Daffy Rag," a swingy number gave Mr. Geo. Clarke a chance to demonstrate his ability and he took full advantage of his opportunity. Mr. Asa Huycke's rendition of "Suwanee Babe" earned him an enthusiastic encore, and Mr. Shepard brought the first part to a successful and fitting close by singing "Savannah Anna" in irresistible fashion.

Throughout the first part a series of rapid-fire "gags" ad witticisms by Comedians Reg. Turner, Chris. Graham, Geo. Clark, Walter Davidson, Louis Mendel and Holly Shepard, all in black-face and assisted by Toast-Master McIlroy caused much merriment.

The second part was opened by Mr Walter Davidson with a monologue entitled, "Just a Few Remarks." He kept the audience convulsed in laughter during his five minutes' shower of bright things and the recitation with which he concluded his number was warmly applauded.

The programme called the next number "a neat terpsichorean melange" and the singing and dancing number certainly was neat and effective. Miss E. Winslow and Mr. Stanley Plaine sang the music pleasingly and their dance, assisted by Misses E. Rae, J. Gillespie, K. Merrill, L. Stocker, O. Kyle and R. Mulholland and Messrs. J. McNab, W. Bolleghem, L. Fitzgerald, E. Deane, R. Hunter and F. Jamieson, made a big hit.

Messrs. Geo. Clarke and Holly Shepard caused a storm of laughter in their breezy singing, dancing and talking specialty getting their bright stuff over in fine fashion.

One of the funniest things of the evening was the "Bunch of Rubes" number, featuring Messrs. Reg. Turner, Paul Trebilcock, Will Cochrane.

FIRST GAME IN SEMI-FINALS HERE TO-NIGHT

Record Crowd Will See Orillia and Peterborough Teams Battle for Junior Honours

All indications point to a record crowd at Brock street rink to-night when the crack Orillia team will meet the Bear Cats in the first of home and home games in the junior O.H.A. semi-finals. The local youngsters have earned a great following by their fine record this season and now that the intermediates are out of the race and the hope of Peterborough's obtaining a championship depends upon the Bear Cats, the fans will naturally jump in behind the youngsters and pull for a victory.

Everyone is talking about the game and the accommodation of the rink will be taxed to its utmost. Orillia are sending down a couple of hundred enthusiastic rooters on a special train and there will be many visitors from Cobourg, Lindsay and other nearby towns for the battle. The Bear Cats are in fine shape and determined to annex a win. Referee Wally Hern of Stratford, who refereed the junior game here with Trenton, will send the following teams away at 8.15 o'clock:

COPY OF NEW RESOLUTION ASKING FOR THE INSPECTION OF MEAT

OTTAWA, FEB. 16.—Following is the text of the resolution prepared by the sub-committee of the deputation which waited on Hon. Mr. Hanna, asking amendments in the Public Health Act with regard to meat inspection. The sub-committee consisted of Dr. Shirreff (Ottawa), Dr. Roberts (Hamilton), Dr. Hastings, (Toronto), Dr. Vardon (Galt), Dr. Miller (Berlin), Dr. Cole (Niagara Falls), and Dr. Hewitt, (Guelph).

The resolution, with explanatory note, follows:

"Resolved, first, that the municipalities be given the power should they see fit to inspect all meat before and after killing offered or intended for sale in that municipality. Second that an infringement of this act be punishable by fine."

This will not in any way affect that meat sent in from a distance already bearing the stamp of government inspection. Neither will it in any way affect the meat consumed by farmers and others as in beef rings, etc., or any meat which is not to be consumed inside of the municipality where the local option in meat inspection has been adopted.

In other words, it simply gives permission to those who consume the meat power to make sure that the meat which they consume is obtained from healthy animals.

Neither will it in any way affect the large packers, nor the farmer who has only a few cattle to sell, because then he will be able at a small expense to have his meat killed in one of these recognized abattoirs at a minimum amount of cost, or, should he care to, he could make his own personal arrangement to bring the inspector to his own slaughter house and have it stamped should he intend to sell it in any municipality where advantage has been taken of this local option in meat inspection.

MR. JOHN HELM BEQUEATHED SUM OF $100 000 FOR COUNTY HOSPITAL

PORT HOPE, FEB. 16.—The will of the late John Helm has been filed for probate in Cobourg, and it is learned that he has been very generous in his bequest to the Counties of Northumberland and Durham. One hundred thousand dollars in cash is set aside for the United Counties for hospital purposes, upon condition that the hospital is built in two years. At the expiration of ten years from the present date, this $100,000 will be available. Further, if the conditions of the bequest are acceptable to the Counties Council, they are offered the Helm homestead on the Cobourg road and the adjacent property, including thirty acres. This includes the park surrounding the homestead from Dorset street to the Cobourg road, also the land between the Cobourg Road and the lake, through which the Grand Trunk Railway main line runs, all to be used for hospital purposes.

In the event of the Counties Council not accepting this offer, it is understood that the $100,000 is to be divided among various charities, as follows:

General Hospital Toronto,	$50,000
Port Hope Hospital	20,000
Cobourg Hospital	20,000
Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto	5,000
National Sanitarium Association	5,000

A special meeting of the Counties Council will be held on the 22nd inst., to consider this important matter.

SEPARATION IS OPPOSED

Proposed Nationalization of Queen's University Receives Opposition in Private Bills' Committee To-day

RABBI OBJECTS

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, FEB. 16.—There was distinct opposition this morning before the Private Bills Committee of the Commons to the bill providing for the separation of Queen's University, Kingston, from the Presbyterian Church, and its nationalization as of general advantage to Canada. Rabbi Jacobs and other prominent Jews opposed it on the ground that Queen's University was distinctively and exclusively Christian, and therefore not of general advantage to Canada. The Counsel for the Provinces of Canada also objected to the clause "for the general advantage of Canada," as it was really an educational matter under the control of Ontario. Finally the bill was sent to the Department of Justice to determine jurisdiction.

GREAT DAMAGE BY THE FLOOD

Special to The Examiner.

LISBON, FEB. 16.—Subsidence of the floods throughout Portugal shows that the whole village and parts of some towns have been entirely wrecked. The provinces of Estremadura, Algarve, Alemtejo and Minho suffered most. Scenes of havoc and desolation are observed for miles along the country roads. Houses and other buildings have collapsed, and among the ruins dead cattle lie in thousands.

There have also been many human victims. A large number of people have been left homeless and starving. The financial loss is estimated conservatively at $10,000,000. Cemeteries have been undermined, and corpses float on the streets.

May Strike Out "Obey"

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 16.—As a result of the recent suffragette wedding when the bride declined to "obey" her husband the House of Convocation of the Church of England this morning is considering a proposition to strike out "to obey" from the form of marriage service. The marriage service prayer will also likely be amended so as to ask for the gift of children as a heritage of the couple being married. These regulations will be extended to Canada also.

VETERINARY SURGEON APPROVES OF MEASURE TO PROVIDE INSPECTION FOR MEAT AND MILK

If Export Meat is Infected Why Not That Consumed at Home, He Asked—Reliable Milk Dealers Should Also Welcome Inspection

LIKES ALD. ANDERSON'S PLAN

"If it is necessary to inspect export meat, why shouldn't the meat that is kept for home consumption be as carefully examined," asked a local veterinary surgeon this morning when asked his opinion regarding the proposal to inspect cattle on the hoof and after slaughter.

"We should be given the same protection as foreigners who eat the meat raised in this country. Surely we are entitled to this as Canadians, the same assurance that is given foreign consumers. Personally, I think this should apply to all meat offered for sale. If it was deemed advisable to inspect export meat, is it not just as necessary to inspect that which is consumed at home? I think Ald. Anderson's proposition is along the right line, and I do not understand why there is not more encouragement given to it. Possibly the other aldermen do not realize the full meaning of the proposal. There was a meeting of the ladies a short time ago, and while they show sympathy in the campaign against tuberculosis and are willing to do what they can, I think there should be more attention paid to the inspection of meat and milk, for from my studies and experience I think this disease comes largely from cattle, and there is one of the places in which the fight should be commenced in earnest.

The farmer as a class should not be trusted, not because they are not worthy of trust, but because they do not know tuberculosis, to mention one disease, when they see it. And I know that some are not to be trusted in any case."

Tuberculosis Among Cattle.

"Undoubtedly there is tuberculosis among the cattle right around here," said the veterinary in answer to another question. "There is more than is expected. I don't like to say anything startling in this matter, but if any of the aldermen want the facts, that is if they intend to go into the matter in earnest, they can get them. There are inspectors for milk delivered to cheese factories and why should not the milk delivered into the homes be given a rigid inspection. The milkmen themselves should want their customers to feel that they are getting the best milk it is possible to produce for the money, especially when one remembers that the whole city consumes it. And the same applies to meat. Experience has shown that tuberculosis cows may look well and may give a copious supply of milk, but they may be in an advanced tubercular state. Appearance of the animal is a very unreliable means of judging. We have easy tests recommended by the Government and they are the ones that should be used.

Would Satisfy All.

Now, I want to say in regard to the milk men, that I have been in the stables of some of them and some of those I have visited are excellent, but even these men may not have their herds tested for tuberculosis. I think that the conscientious milkman would welcome inspection as much as the consumer, and I believe the same may b said of the dealers in meat."

FISH INSPECTOR MAKES AN IMPORTANT SEIZURE TO-DAY

Over 200 Pounds of Bass and Maskinonge Confiscated on the Chemong Road---Men in Charge of Fish Escape

An important seizure of fish was made this morning by Fishery Inspector Watt and Captain Carson. For some months past the inspectors have been on the lookout for signs of illegal fishing in the northern lakes. So numerous have these indications become of late, that the authorities decided to watch the Chemong Road. While out in that vicinity early this morning they observed three men and a loaded handsleigh approaching the city but upon approaching the men, the latter fled, leaving the sleigh behind. An investigation disclosed the fact that the sleigh contained between two and three hundred pounds of fish, consisting of bass and maskinonge. It was brought into the city and left at the Police Station, where it will be held, pending further instructions from the Fishery Department in Toronto.

In all probability the fish will be forwarded to Toronto and later will find its way into some of the charitable institutions there. In the meantime steps will be taken to apprehend the parties responsible for the violation of the Fishery laws.

EMPLOYEES MUST NOT CROWD THE REAR VESTIBULE OF STREET CARS

Crowding in the rear vestibules of the street cars by employees of the P. R. and R. and of the Peterborough Light, Heat and Power Co. must be discontinued, according to recently issued orders to that effect. The reason for the issuance of this fiat is that it has been customary for some of the linemen and the gas men to crowd into the rear vestibules at six o'clock and at other hours when they are going and coming to work, instead of taking seats in the car. Passengers in such cases wishing to leave the car, or those who wish to enter it, find the vestibule crowded and the doors half open with some one jammed in behind them. Furthermore, it has been stated that some smoked ancient pipes and tobacco that suggested sliag, although it may have been of the finest Virginia. However, this must cease for the word was quickly passed around to those who may or may not have been offending. The men referred to must move up to the iron of he car. The pipes shall remain unlighted and expectorating is strictly tabooed.

S. P. S. STUDENTS VISIT CANADIAN GENERAL TO-DAY

Fifty students of the School of Practical Science visited Peterborough today as the guests of the Canadian General Electric Company. The visitors arrived on the 11.28 C.P.R. train and were met at the station by Mr. E. G. Patterson and other officials of the company. Special street cars were in waiting and conveyed the visitors up town. They were dined at the Oriental Hotel and spent the afternoon in inspecting the local plant of the Canadian General. The squad woke up George street this morning when they gave their class yell. Hockey fans thought it was the Orillia team and hurried over to the Oriental to get a line on them, to find, as one man expressed it, "only a bunch of college students."

MEETING OF THE CENTRAL SMITH FARMERS' CLUB

The monthly meeting of the Central Smith Farmers' Club was held in the Temperance Hall, 4th line of Smith, on Thursday evening with the president, Mr. W. Scott in the chair.

Mr. A. L. Andress, recorder of the Peterborough Dairy Record Centre, gave a demonstration of milk testing and explained the different stages of the test. Mr. Andress also gave an address on the cow testing work, explaining how the work is carried on, and the advantages to be gained by knowing what each cow in the herd is doing. It was stated that there are herds in the township of Smith which produced over the cost of feed an average profit of over $3x per cow, while there were other herds on which there was a loss of $11 per cow.

Addresses were also delivered by Messrs. C. E. Moore, T. H. Graham and W. Scott, who strongly supported the cow testing work and told of some of the things they had learned since starting to test their cows and attention was drawn to the fact that the richness of the milk cannot be judged by its colour, as "blue" milk often tests very high.

ANARCHY, NOT LABOUR, ON TRIAL.

Some fifty high officers of the Structural Iron Workers' Union in the United States are about to be tried upon a series of terrible charges. Fortunately the courts in which they will undergo trial have been somewhat vindicated, even in the eyes of the most ardent enemies of the existing social system, by the issue in the case of the McNamara brothers. The affair can be left to them and to the sense of justice of the American people as expressed through its juries. There is no more reason for assuming either the guilt or the innocence of the accused parties in advance of their trial than there was for the terribly mistaken assumption of the McNamara brothers' innocence by the leaders of organized labour.

The best thing that organized labour can do for itself, and the best thing that its millions of friends outside the unions can do for organized labour, is to bear steadily in mind that whatever may be charged or proved against a single union, the great body of organized labour is by conviction law-abiding, peaceable, honest, reliant upon its political, economic and social powers and against violence, terrorism and murder. If certain men, or even a whole organization, have usurped the garb of labour to mask the plans of Anarchy and Revolution, it is for the courts and the people to assist labour in purging itself of these degrading associations.—Montreal Herald.

THE ONLY WAY.

The Manitoba Government owned and operated telephone system is a failure. Several years ago the Government acquired the Bell system, and promised an improved and cheaper service. For a time the service showed a profit, but the lowered rates did not last long and they are now higher than the "monopolistic" Bell Company ever charged, and last year the system produced a deficit of $160,000. This outcome is not the fault of public ownership per se. It is the result of bad management under the corrupting and grafting results of government management. The merits of public ownership depend entirely upon the management given. Any publicly owned service must be well managed to secure good results; and it is the fact, with the force of an axiom, that municipal, or government management cannot give the best results. For half a century the Intercolonial Railway has been managed, or mismanaged, by governments, and the results have been almost always, unsatisfactory. Does any one for a moment fancy that if our Waterworks had been managed by Municipal committees that it would have been as successful as it has been under business management? It is the same with any other public service. The more we can withdraw the management of a public service from the blight of municipal, or government, management, the better the chances of success. In any undertaking the city enters it should provide for adequate business management, apart from control of the city council. One council, or one government, is no worse than another in this regard, but it seems to be an accepted fact that the success of a municipally or government-owned enterprise depends upon withdrawing its management from municipal or government control, and placing it in the hands of a responsible and capable business body. This is the only way to secure satisfactory results.

DON'T OVERLAP.

The Weekly Sun takes the pains to point out that agriculture is a subject especially assured to the provinces, and that the continued intrusion of the Dominion government in the provincial domain, is something undesirable. There has been a dominion department of agriculture at Ottawa since Confederation, and the subjects it can properly handle in the public interests are self evident. While the province can profitably employ itself in helping the farmer to grow crops to the greatest advantage to help him give the soil most profitable production, the function of the Dominion is to provide cold storage and transportation facilities to permit of the speediest and most advantageous marketing of farm products. It is well for the two governments to cooperate, but there is need for care to provide that functions do not overlap, and that there be no waste of energy. There is need, too, that the spheres of activity be clearly defined and the respective responsibility definitely placed. Otherwise there is likely to arise conditions in which one authority waits for another to take action; so that we may have illustrated the results of the proverb, "What's everybody's business is nobody's business." The care of highways in municipalities is a responsibility of the province and there is possibility of more harm than good coming from the proposal of the Dominion government to interfere in the matter of provincial highways. This may tend to give the provinces a sense of relief from the full responsibility of good roads. The question of provincial good roads is too important a one to be trifled with. The provincial government has done well to set apart another million dollars to be expended on provincial country highways pro rata to the expenditure by municipalities, but the province can do even better than spent a part of the money to build county highways. It could well undertake to wholly build county systems of trunk highways, and permit the municipality to do its share of good work in improving the roads that lead to the trunk lines. As in agriculture, so in road building the introduction of the Dominion authorities should be done in a way to be auxiliary and not substitutionary. Division of responsibilities tends to weaken the sense of responsibility.

SANDBAGGED BY HIS FRIENDS.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

By vote of Parliament on Monday, January 22, the political agitation based on the ne temere decree was killed—or at any rate stunned—by motion of Premier Borden to adjourn the debate on Lancaster's bill regarding marriage, and refer the question of federal or provincial jurisdiction to the courts—without any pledge or suggestion that if jurisdiction were decided to be with the Dominion, any legislative action would be initiated by or on behalf of the Government. The sandbagging was followed by burial under 87 Conservative and Nationalist votes—a majority of 26.

Five Conservatives and all the Liberals present, a total of 61, voted against the motion of Premier Borden

Without doubt the interment was accompanied by the pious hope of the Government and its friends that there would be no resurrection.

Lancaster, Edwards, Maclean (South York), Wallace, Clark (North Bruce), Northrup, Burnham and Porter, Conservatives, declared for the principle of Mr. Lancaster's bill. But when the vote was taken, Wallace, Clark, Northrup, Burnham and Porter voted with the Premier.

Lancaster, Edwards, Maclean, Kidd and Blair, Conservatives, voted against the Premier's motion.

Having served its purpose in securing the return of the Conservative party to power, and having been sandbagged and burned by those for whose benefit it was brought into being, it may safely be assumed that the last has been heard of the ne temere decree agitation—at any rate until a Liberal government is again in power.

MANITOBA TELEPHONE FAILURE

(Manitoba Free Press.)

Manitoba owns the telephone system of the province. It bought out the Bell several years ago. The provincial party majority promised better service and lower rates than the Bell company gave. So the deal was made.

At first the service showed a profit, but rates were lowered for a short time only and now are higher than the Bell ever charged. Further, the business showed a deficit last year of $150,000 and the loss is increasing as this year runs its course.

The secret of it is loafing and graft. Being a government business the politicians play with it and abuses are too rife to be credited. One man had a line set up thirteen miles from the centre and was the only one on the line. The head of a construction gang with supplies furnished, came home from a season in camp with his family and had enough left over to carry his household through the winter.

Thus it goes all along the line. Public ownership fast falls into indolence, neglect to do the work needed to be done by the employes of all grades and kinds of srvice, waste in supplies and so on to the dismal end of the chapter. It is one of the great delusions of the day that it can be done efficiently and economically as a rule, for long periods of time.

WE'LL TEACH THAT MAN UP IN QUEEN'S PARK

Temperance Workers Resent the Insulting Attitude of Sir James Whitney Towards Temperance

The temperance workers in the Dominion Alliance are getting tired of being snubbed and insulted by Sir James Whitney.

"We are making ourselves the laughing stock of the country by exposing ourselves to such insults as were given our committee at the Parliament Buildings yesterday. It is useless for us to pass resolutions when the majority of the delegates present will, at election time, cast their votes on party lines. There is no use denying it."

Such statements were made by Rev. Thos. Campbell, of Mount Dennis Methodist Church, Weston road, at this morning's session of the Dominion Temperance Congress in Massey Hall and created a considerable stir.

"It's no use for us to pass any more resolutions when we are not ready to support them at the polls," he continued, the assertion being greeted with cries of "No, no," and "That's right."

Several delegates then arose to their feet at once, but President Gibson held the floor himself and poured oil on the troubled waters after a somewhat vigorous fashion.

"My friend is a little too pessimistic," said Mr. Gibson. "There are doubtless some temperance workers so hide bound that they vote party before anything else, but I am satisfied that the great majority do not.

"Moreover, there is growing, hour by hour, a public sentiment that is going to teach that gentleman in Queen's Park who treated us as he did yesterday, who are the real bosses of this country. We were at least entitled to courtesy and common civility from him."

Should Go to Ottawa.

"We ought to go to the Federal Government immediately, and say 'What are you going to do for us? The time has come for us to attack this problem on Dominion lines and to carry it into Federal politics,' was the declaration of John H. Roberts of Montreal, in the course of an address on 'Nation-Wide Educational Work.'

"Our educational work has been far too spasmodic," he said. "We get excited at election time and afterwards go to sleep. There is the greatest need for uninterrupted, serious educational work if temperance reform is to be forwarded and remain permanent.

"We ought to reach the members of the churches, who, after all should be educating others instead of needing education themselves.

"We need to launch out on a Dominion-wide educational campaign for the creation of a Dominion sentiment a Dominion conscience of the liquor traffic. It seems to me that the Dominion Alliance should send out a powerful commission of from twelve to twenty men and have from six to eight of them visit all the municipal cities of Canada. Such a commission could do much towards arousing a national sentiment on temperance questions."

MR. BORDEN HAS HIS TROUBLES

French Members Stirring Up School and Naval Questions —French and English Wings of Conservative Party Clashing

OTTAWA, FEB. 16.—According to a report which is being more and more generally accepted, the situation which faces the Borden Government in the Province of Quebec is becoming very serious as the days go by.

Last night there was a caucus, attended by all the Quebec Conservative members, lasting all evening. Twice, in the course of the evening, Mr. Borden was summoned, and it was not till late that the caucus broke up. When it did the usual cheers were lacking.

The Big Dispute.

Ever since Mr. Borden took office he has been having trouble with his followers from Quebec. The situation which developed over the Montreal Harbour Commission was only one of many instances which show that the entente between the French and English wings of the party in power is by no means as strong as it might be. The Montreal trouble was smoothed over after some hard work by various conciliators, and ended up in a big love feast in the restaurant. It looks to-day as though another dinner would have to be given at once.

The big question under discussion last night is said to have been that of the schools in the district to be annexed to Manitoba. As has been said before, there seems a big probability that the government desires to bring down the bill establishing the Manitoba boundaries without the clause dealing with the school question, thus throwing on to the shoulders of the Roblin Government added responsibility and trouble. This course of action, rumour of which has of course come to the ears of the Quebec Conservative-Nationalists has stirred up among them the bitterest kind of opposition.

They insist that Mr. Borden shall embody in his bill the desired clause establishing separate schools in the new part of Manitoba.

It is reported that the Premier has not yet displayed much inclination to meet their demands, hence the caucus of last night was far from pleasant.

Want a Leader.

All the Quebec Conservatives were present, under the presidency of Dr. Paquet of L'Islet, the chief Quebec whip. So far they have not secured a permanent leader. Their desire is said to be to make Sir Rodolphe Forget their head, but the Montreal financier was not able to be present last night. Were he seriously to undertake the leadership of the Quebec malcontents, the situation would be serious for the government, for he undoubtedly exercises great influence over the members from his own Province.

Sir Rodolphe's relations with the Premier have never been of the most cordial, as is well known. The man who aspires to be the head of the malcontents is, however, said to be M. Marechal, a very prominent Montreal lawyer, who was defeated by Mederic Martin in the St. Mary's division of Montreal. Mr. Marechal was said to have been Sir Rodolphe Forget's nominee for a cabinet position last October, and his failure to get it was another point of difference between Mr. Borden and a very influential faction in Montreal.

Lavergne Started It.

Ever since the visit to Ottawa of Armand Lavergne, some days ago, the difference between the English and French wings in Quebec has been more marked. Not only are the political leaders of that province worked up over the western school question, but the Capital has been the Mecca of many private individuals, who have come up to strengthen the resolution of their members.

"I saw a number of people from my own parish here yesterday," said one Quebec Liberal this morning. "They were all, of course, politically opposed to me, so we did not exchange confidences; but I would be willing to wager, from what I know of them, that they were here with only one object in view, that of insisting on the school clause in the Manitoba bill".

The Ontario members meanwhile have not been blind to what is going on. Party allegiance will hold them quiet so long as nothing overt is done, but a serious split may well result if the government gives way to the demands of the Quebec men. Last night there was a well-attended gathering of Ontario men at Hon. Sam. Hughes' house where, it is said, more than social conversation was indulged in.

"We will insist on the presence of an educational clause in the bill," one Nationalist is reported to have said. "We do not propose to play the role of sheep in this matter any longer."

Zam-Buk for the Children

Mothers Tell What It Did For Their Little Ones.

Thousands of mothers in Canada owe a debt of gratitude to Zam-Buk. Mrs. J. Quiding, of Ninette, Man., says: "My little boy was suffering very badly from a form of skin disease over his eye. I applied Zam-Buk to the affected part, and in a very short time the sores were healed."

Mrs. F. Miners, of 311 Suffolk St., Guelph, Ont., says: "My little daughter Lorinda (6), contracted a skin disease. This first broke out like tiny water blisters, afterwards taking the form of dry scabs. These would disappear for a short time, and then reappear worse than ever. We tried Zam-Buk, and perseverance with its use resulted in a cure."

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

THE AUTOMOBILE OF THE FUTURE

What Henry Ford Sees Ten Years From Now

The automobile of to-day doesn't need much tinkering with, according to Henry Ford, whose phenomenal success in the automobile manufacturing business certainly entitles his opinion to the greatest respect, the latest evidence of this success being the quadrupling of the capacity of the branch factory at Walkerville, Ontario, which now has an annual capacity of 10,000 cars.

"The automobile has been pretty well perfected," said Mr. Ford the other day, while inspecting his new plant, when asked what the future held in store for the automobile.

"All the pioneer work is over now. We have the materials just as we want them, and the tools for making parts are quite generally conceded to be all that is desired. So, from now on there will be very little change in the motor car, except little refinements which have nothing to do with the big principles involved.

"In my opinion, the light cars will be found in far greater numbers than they are now.

"There's no use in trying to get efficiency out of a heavy automobile. Heavy cars are made for luxury and not for efficiency.

"The real reason for the success of the Ford car lies in the fact that people know that the car will be cheap to maintain after they get it, primarily because of its light weight. It isn't the first cost that influences the buyer, it is the knowledge of how much the car is going to cost him after he gets it, and because of the Ford's light weight they know that the up-keep cost is going to be absolutely minimum.

"The history of the Ford car convinces me that the future of the automobile can be read in the Ford experience. The trend is toward the light weight car and the use of the very finest materials like Vanadium steel."

BIG BOB COOK SHEEP THIEF

The other day at Orangeville the judge gave Big Bob Cook what, in the vernacular, is known as "Seven-spot Ben."

Big Bob, this time, was convicted of stealing sheep, otherwise "lifting bleaters." Those who remember Dafferin's "Heart's Delight" in the earlier stages of his career will wonder how he ever came to descend to the level of the sheep-thief; for, like his great prototype, Big Sandy MaDuff, of Barrie, familiarly called "Simcoe's Sweet William," he wasn't naturally a criminal, but only a rough, roystering giant who, in liquor, loved to display himself, put the countryside on the rough, and rank facile princeps as a disregarder of social and other conventionalities.

A keerless chap in his talk was Jim,
An' an ugly man in a row;
But he never lied, an' he never flunk-ted—
I guess he never knowed how.

Something like that might have been written of Bob Cook, before whisky and bad company had utterly spoiled him—before "drink and the devil had done the rest," as it were. Always conscious of his herculean strength, restless, wild-spirited, he "scorned the bands of puny hands like the tempest scorns a chain," and yet, in this big, swaggering, reckless fellow was a decided streak of the good—if only it had been developed instead of smothered out. And so there was also in Big Sandy McDuff, whose case is irresistibly recalled by that of his modern imitator, now doomed to put in seven long years at Kingston.

When it came to the time finally to round up obstreperous Robert, six Toronto detectives were detailed for the job. This was a couple of weeks ago.

When it came to the time finally to bring obnoxious Alexander up sharp, one little constable undertook the job voluntarily.

Another point in which the analogy is, perhaps, more striking: Big Bob came along like a lamb, so did Big Sandy. But the latter's arrest is not a matter of a fortnight since. In fact, it is a matter of over twenty-five years ago.

A trifle belated, from the "live news" viewpoint, somebody may object, but is all really "live" news that glitters in the papers nowadays? Didn't we read only yesterday it seems, an elaborate epitome of a municipal proclamation dug up out of ancient ruins in Egypt, and which is declared to have become public property six thousand years ago?

NOT PLAYED UP IN PAPERS.

Looking back to the memorable occasion when Constable Joseph Rogers of Barrie, and head of the County Constabulary of Simcoe, single-handed took the Terror of Oro under his wing (you'll appreciate the metaphor when told that the officer was a giant of five feet seven, while the terror was a runt of six feet four, in his socks—it occurs to me that but scant notice was taken of it in the Barrie papers. I believe it was election time, with that mighty campaigner, Herman H. Cook, in the running; and the papers were too full for utterance of anything but red-hot politics. Or maybe it was court time and everything had to give way to His Honour Judge Gowan's charge to the Grand Jury—a large part of which, by the way, was devoted to suggesting, with strong argument to back it, the advisability of recommending the abolition of that venerable tribunal.

But, no matter. Even if the press failed in its duty of featuring the feat the whole town and countryside rang with acclaim, and "Little Joe," as he was affectionately called, was once again, as he had often been before, the Hero of the Hour.

Sandy McDuff and Big Bob Cook had various points in common. They needn't be compared in detail. Let it suffice to say that any species of daredevilry, or that term minus the dare, that especially amazed, shocked or affrighted the good, peaceable, law-abiding Township of Oro; came to be instinctively associated with Sandy McDuff—and subsequent disclosures usually justified the association. A very Goliath in stature and strength, McDuff's acts of wantonness and violence knew no limit. In his cups, and ugly, he would clean out a whole country bar-room, and then wreck the bar. If in a playful mood he sought such diversion as forcing a couple of friendly neighbours to strip off and fight ten rounds in a stable yard; or, making an old man dance till he drops on the tap-room floor; or, compelling a whole bunch of his boon companions to climb a telegraph post and wait till he was pleased to let them descend.

Now and again he would lift a couple of full-grown men, one in each hand, and toss them out of the tavern to the manure-heap. His commands to his victims were enforced at the point of the gun. And this gun at other times was employed pegging at the dogs, cats, fowl or other live stock in sight of the spot where Sandy was holding revel. The brawny ruffian, however, was no bandit. He committed no thefts nor outrages inuring to his own profit. On the contrary he was a lavish spender of the big money he earned as a Jack-of-all-trades, a capital worker.

WARRANT FINALLY ISSUED.

After a year or two of ultra obnoxious activities, for none of which was the burly tough ever brought to account, so fearful was everybody of lodging complaint against him, and so cool and distant was the attitude of officers of the law towards him, in the face of knowledge of his immense humorisms—it finally transpired that an inoffensive farmer, who had suffered loss as well as personal violence at McDuff's hands, swore out information, a warrant was issued, somewhat reluctantly and dubiously, and Rogers was handed the document at his own request.

"I'll get Sandy or eat my badge!" vowed the high constable. And those who knew the pluck of the little man didn't doubt his sincerity to trig a rifle at the Oro terror, although they weren't betting on the outcome.

At a dance following a barn-raising, at which McDuff had as usual, almost paralysed his fellows by his exhibitions of prodigious strength and bull-dog courage and tenacity, the opportunity came to find his man and go to him in spectacular style. And "Little Joe" promptly seized it. Donning his nattiest uniform, pinning on his prized medals and slipping a pair of handcuffs into a side pocket and a six-shooter into his hip pocket, the man who had resolved to cop Sandy McDuff and in default, indulge in an odd meal, drove out to the scene of the barn-raising festivities, twenty miles distant, put his rig in a handy shed, and entered the ball-room, just at the wheezing fiddles had sounded the concluding drone of a Strauss—maybe it was. He walked right in, but he didn't turn around, and walk right out again—like the hero of that modern ballad we all love so well. He walked right in and up to big Sandy, as the gentleman was escorting a fair partner to a seat.

"Alexander McDuff," he said, reaching up and tapping the owner of the name on the white shirt sleeve, "I arrest you, in the Queen's name!"

SCRAP DIDN'T HAPPEN.

A tumult, a wild uproar, the bark of guns, the sound of a horrible scuffle and the dull thud of falling bodies! Bah! Not even the meekest, tamest kind of racket followed. It was the quietest, easiest, most subdued and ordinary bit of police performance ever pulled off in a neighbourhood not actually famed for its law-abiding character.

Sandy turned slowly around and faced the small man in uniform. He was perspiring and panting from terpsichorean exercise. And—he was sober. The circumstance meant a good deal at this psychological moment. In fact, it meant everything that had to do with the abnormal quiescence of the instant.

"Want me, Joe?" he queried, huskily, a half-smile broadening the big, round heavy-jawed face.

"That's what, Sandy!" briskly replied the officer.

"What for?"

"That F—"

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"MY son, if you would be wise, open first your eyes, next your ears, and last of all your mouth, that your words may be words of wisdom and give no advantage to your own adversary."—Old Indian Proverb.

The value of knowing when to keep one's mouth closed is a very old story, but a letter friend has presented it to me in a new aspect, which is more than worth passing on.

It seems that the above Indian proverb was brought into English three quarters of a century ago by a man named George Catlin. This man, being on the verge of consumption, went and lived outdoors among the Indians. From this wild life, he brought back his health and this interesting observation—that the Indians make a very special point always to keep their mouths shut, except when eating or speaking, and as anyone who knows anything about Indians will testify, that latter process wouldn't keep their mouths open very long.

Not only did he notice that the adult Indians observe this rule, but also that all the squaws were most careful to see that the babies' mouths were closed when they were sleeping. He found that the Indians were almost entirely immune from decayed teeth—think of it, with no dentists, nor tooth brushes, nor dental floss, nor tooth powder, to save them—and, from throat troubles, and he was so much impressed that he adopted the practice of keeping his mouth closed as much as possible. To that and to the fresh air, he ascribed his recovery.

Mr. Catlin must have been the original grandfather of health faddists for he was so thoroughly converted, that he wrote a pamphlet to show that all human ills could be avoided if one would always breathe through the nostrils. This pamphlet was entitled "Shut Your Mouth," and closed thus, "If I were to endeavour to bequeath to posterity the most important motto which human language can convey, it should be in three words 'Shut your mouth.'

It is interesting to observe how closely the old Indian wisdom tallies with modern medicinal teachings. Just the other day, in a progressive dental magazine, I read a long article, telling how many of the defective and delinquent children were found to be mouth breathers and how much improvement in them had been made by attending to the defective tonsils or protruding teeth, which caused this continual mouth breathing. And to think that the Indians knew this a century ago.

The letter-friend who sends me all this information, says that he has not only formed the habit of keeping his mouth carefully closed in the daytime, but sleeps with a band tied under his chin and over his head, to make sure that his mouth will not drop open when he is asleep.

We all know that mouth breathing is harmful, but I think it will not hurt any of us to be reminded anew of the many advantages of keeping our mouths shut. And I especially recommend to mothers the wisdom of the Indian women who, a century before the day of health fads, were forming this health habit for their little papooses.

IN SICKNESS AND HEALTH

Vinol Has Kept Her Strong and Active for Years.

Let us not forget the old people all around us whose strength is failing and whose steps are growing feeble.

It is a positive fact that their years of comfort added to their lives strength can be greatly renewed and by the use of our delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil, Vinol.

Mrs. Francis Naumann of Milwaukee, Wis., says: "I have been using Vinol for the last seven years and I believe it to be the greatest strength giver ever known. I am 68 years old and Vinol has helped me in sickness and health. I always have it in the house and can recommend it to everybody most heartily.

Vinol invigorates and builds up old people and all run down, weak persons, because it contains just the needed elements to make the blood rich and pure, to create strength and aid the appetite. We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you perfectly. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

Hints On Repairing The Wardrobe

How often we find to our dismay spots on the new broadcloth suit after being caught in a shower, refuting the assertion of the salesman that the cloth had been thoroughly sponged before being made up.

When this accident happens take a clean cloth slightly dampened with warm water and lay on the rain marks, pressing with a moderately warm iron. Really hot water should not be used, but warm water will prevent the iron from quickly cooling, so it is better than cold.

TO REMOVE GREASE.

A grease spot upon cloth may be quickly removed by covering it first with a piece of ice. This hardens the grease and so prevents the material from getting wet.

The grease may now be scraped off, and if any stain remains a rubbing of chloroform will effect a complete remedy. I say rubbing; it should be dabbing, according to one of the best authorities upon cleaning. He says: "Amateur cleaners think they must rub the stained goods, but this is a mistake. Gentle dabbing is all that is necessary."

To rub only weakens and roughens the threads, and if the agent used is of any strength the stain is apt to become a hole in less than no time.

Should one be so unfortunate as to have soup spilled upon a gown, French chalk should be freely applied upon both sides of the stain—no rubbing—just a thick sprinkling of the chalk, and the dress folded and laid away, so long as one can do without it. When needed brush off the chalk lightly and the stain will have entirely disappeared.

DYE THE STOCKINGS.

The girl whose dress allowance is small may dye her own stockings and other accessories at home to match her frock without one bit of bother or fuss.

She brings out a bottle of benzine and squeezes a tube of paint into it until she gets the desired shade, then immerses the article to be dyed—say a pair of white stockings or a feather—squeezes the same through her hands, gives it a shake, and behold! it is dry and ready to wear. I have seen slippers and even blouses subjected to this process with much success.

It is only fair, however, to warn the amateur dyer that the colouring does not last long. Of course, this is an advantage in some cases. For instance, if pink stockings are wanted to-night and blue ones to-morrow, why the pink ones may be washed in soap and water and then re-dyed blue, but I have known cases of silk being dyed by this method and worked up into embroidery, the colour fading sometimes even before the work was complete. Soiled chiffon ribbons, slippers and lace will respond splendidly, however, to the process, so no girl need give up the pleasure of attending any festivity just because her accessories are soiled and cannot be replaced by new. (Neither will the dye stand strong sunlight.)

TO CLEAN BLOUSE.

A net blouse or dainty yoke may be cleaned at home by making a thick paste of dry starch and alcohol. It should be spread evenly over the soil and left to dry. When the spirit has evaporated the starch may be brushed off, bringing the soil with it. This is a much better method than the gasoline, because there is no line or mark left as in the case of the liquid cleaners being used.

White silk gloves are apt to become yellow by frequent washings, but their whiteness may be preserved by making a suds of warm water and pure white soap, adding a little borax if the water is hard (never use ammonia) and washing the gloves in it. Soap should not be rubbed on the gloves. Rinse in two waters, adding one drop of bluing to the last.

Lay in a bath towel and squeeze out all the water.

Dry as quickly as possible and the gloves will never turn yellow.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE CHIEF DIFFERENCE.

Mayor Dahlman, of Omaha, was talking about the high rate for electric lighting charged by a neighbouring city.

"A boy from that city," he said, "was asked by his teacher:

"'What, if any, is the difference between lightning and electricity?'

"'Please, ma'am,' said the boy, 'lightning is free.'"—New York Tribune.

THE HEIGHTS OF SONG

Miss Mary Garden, at a supper in New York that preceded her departure for Europe, praised a new tenor.

"He is one of those tenors," said Miss Garden, "who have to shut their eyes when they sing."

"Why so?" asked a young millionaire.

"Because," she replied, smiling, "he goes so high it makes him dizzy."—New York Herald.

THE UNFAIR DIVORCEE.

Dr. H. W. Wiley, the food expert, was talking at a luncheon in Washington about a food adulterator.

"His first offer," said Dr. Wiley, "sounded, on the face of it, fair to the public, but it was in reality as unfair as the offer of the divorcee.

"A wife, after the divorce, said to her husband:

"'I am willing to let you have the baby half of the time.'

"'Good!' said he, rubbing his hands. 'Splendid!'

"'Yes,' she resumed, 'you may have him nights.'"—Washington Star.

DIDN'T KEEP HIS WORD.

Frank Smith, who pitched last season for Cincinnati in the National League, was reared at Tarboro, N.C., and began playing ball there. He became the baseball idol of his fellow Tarboridians, and when George Leidy, now manager of the San Antonio team in the Texas League, came to the town to lure the young phenomenon into faster company the whole community showed their resentment very decidedly.

"I was at the hotel," said Leidy, talking about it, "when a dozen husky, determined looking citizens walked in on me and began making threats. They told me that Frank Smith was going to stay right where he was, and that if I wanted to go on living I'd better catch a train leaving at 7.30 o'clock that night."

"What did you say to that?" asked a listener.

"I told them," said Leidy, "to go to thunder. I told them that I was a freeborn American citizen, and that I would stay there a year if I wanted to. I told them in so many words that they couldn't bluff me, and that I would die in my tracks before I would show the white feather—but I was at the depot at a quarter to, sweet."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Clifford Lane Bruce, who Comes to "The Grand" next Wednesday, Feb. 21, in Henri Bernstein's Great Dramtic Masterpiece "The Thief." The Seat Sale opens Monday Morning

CLIFFORD LANE BRUCE RETURNS IN "THE THIEF"

Clifford Lane Bruce has demonstrated beyond a doubt that the old adage, "A Prophet is without honour in his own country" is an exploded theory. This Canadian gentleman, who is still in his twenties, has accomplished more in his artistic career than many men twice his age. A native of Toronto, educated in the University, and afterwards in the College of Music, he began his career with the important desire for experience, which was the one great requisite that he needed. He gained it in Western Canada, and after having the same polished with four years in New York as a star for leading man for the biggest productions he comes back to us in a brief tour of "The Thief" his biggest success in the United States. And it may be said that no play of recent times has made such an achievement as this stirring drama of love and jealousy, of a wife's caprice, and a husband's condemnation, which comes to the Grand Theatre for an engagement of one night, Wednesday, Feb. 21. Feb. 21.

"The Thief" created a furore in Paris, and was greeted by the press and public of this country upon its production at the Lyceum Theatre as the greatest sensation the theatre ever offered. It should establish a new record for no one will wish to miss witnessing a performance of it at a price within the reach of all theatregoers.

A married woman, on a small income, endeavours to dress on a par with the leaders of society, for the one purpose of holding the love of her husband, who often expresses his admiration of the appearance of her more wealthy friends. She does so by stealing a large sum of money, and is found out. Her confession to her husband and his criticism of her sin comprises a scene the like of which has never before been presented in the theatre. No one should let "he Thief" go by without enjoying its wonderful story by a personal visit to the Theatre next Wednesday evening. The seat sale opens Monday morning.

PURSUED BY A BEAR.
(From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

A REQUEST

The management of the Grand Opera House, J. J. Turner and Sons, respectfully ask the patrons to be in their seats in good time at all performances, as the curtain will be raised at 8.15 sharp, when the performance will begin, and it is very annoying to those present to be disturbed after the performance has started, and we would also kindly request the audience to keep their seats till the curtain is lowered at the end of the performance, so that every one would enjoy the finish as well as the beginning.

CANADIAN FOLKLORE

In Canada I have frequently heard superstitions about infants—such as, if their fingernails are cut with scissors before they are a year old they will become thieves, and if infants are weighed they will die before they are a year old. There is another, I believe, about what will happen to children who learn to talk before a certain age, but I don't know what the exact doom is.

Picking up an English paper the other day, the first item to meet my eye was "Fear of Weighing Babies," the article stating that health visitors to the Stepney district found that the women would not allow their babies to be weighed, as they firmly believed that if a baby is weighed it will die before it is a year old. Most Canadian superstitions have their origin in the older countries.

Scotch people are credited with an especial amount of superstition and an especial faith in "the little people," and it was to a doctor of Scotch birth, though of practical temperament, that the following incident happened: He was driving in the course of his practice late one night on an Ontario road, when his horse suddenly stopped and nothing could induce it to go farther. The doctor urged and coaxed and wondered, and then there occurred to him an old saying, that fairies could be seen by looking between a horse's ears. He looked, and behold, he saw an immense procession of little green folk crossing the road in front of him, and not until the whole procession had passed could the horse be induced to go on.

This gift of abnormal sight on the part of horses, dogs, black sheep and other animals, as well as the origin of the belief that the supernatural may be seen between a horse's ears, was touched on by Mr. W. J. Wintemberg at the last meeting of the Canadian Folklore Society, and from his paper, entitled "Seeing the Invisible," I take the excerpts quoted below.

"A dog or a horse, and more especially a mare, often sees a spirit when it is invisible to the human eye. The mysterious manner in which dogs and horses betray fear when there is apparently nothing to dread, the howling of the former by night and the wild rushes of the latter, doubtless led to this opinion."

The belief that one can see the vision seen by a horse or a howling dog by looking between its ears, probably had its origin in the belief common among most nations, that the invisible may be seen through holes. "Knot-holes in wood, called elfhore in Scotland, are popularly ascribed to fairies, through which, also, it is believed they themselves creep. It was customarily believed that by looking through certain consecrated rings or stones with holes in them, or a wreath of verbena, that the sight would be improved."

The superstition of being able to see the supernatural through holes has taken different forms at different times, and in different countries. "In Norway the peasant extends himself on the ground on his elbows and knees and looks backward between his legs towards a hill, by this means being able to see the Huldrefolk. In Pomerania, Hungary, Scotland, Germany exist similar traditions.

"Looking through the rounded arm enables one to see spirits. One day as some people were going past the Odenberg in Germany they heard the roll of drums, but saw nothing. A wise man bade them look one after another through the ring formed by his arm held akimbo; immediately they saw a multitude of soldiers engaged in military exercises, going in and out of the mountain."

There are all sorts of things — a bridle, a sieve, a lock of hair — through which one may see ghosts, but traditions always make it through a hole.

It is one of the most interesting of studies to trace the history of [illegible] traditions.—The Globe.

HANDLING POISON IVY

HOW TO PROTECT YOURSELF FROM AN ATTACK.

Recently a young man engaged in tearing down a fence was poisoned on the hands of ivy, and as soon as he was cured he set about devising means to protect himself against future attacks. There were hundreds of rods of old fence to be torn down at once and fence rows cleaned, so delay would do no good and it was impossible to get help. The long tendrils were woven about the posts, old pieces of boards, bits of rail, and the shrubbery that had grown up along the fence, so that practically every bit of the ground was infected with the poison.

In the first place he put on long gloves of heavy material, and then drew stout old stocking legs over his sleeves above the gloves to protect the wrists and arms. In this way he escaped the scratches that so quickly are infected, and he could work with more freedom because he was not on the lookout constantly to avoid touching the vines. With an old pitchfork he quickly forked them out of the way to dry, and later they were placed on the bonfire with the same tool.

In cutting down the vines he used a long iron or spud sharpened at the end, so that the roots could be easily cut underground. Of course, where they were tangled around the boards and posts and wires, large hedge trimmers had to be used in clipping them, but the spud cut off the roots very easily. Great care was taken not to handle the tools with the bare hands after they had been used in the poison.

The farmer always stood so the wind would not blow in his face and thus bring the infection, and he avoided wiping his warm face with a handkerchief touched by the poison. Occasionally he had a touch of the old trouble, but almost the entire fence was cleared away and the brush disposed of in comfort.

BIGGEST GUN IN THE WORLD.

What is understood to be the biggest gun in the world is a 16-inch breech-loading gun, designed for the sea-coast defence of the United States and its insular possessions, the first one completed being intended for the Panama Canal. The total length of the gun is 49 ft. 2.9 in. It has a diameter of 60 in. at the breech, tapering to 28 in. at the muzzle. If smokeless powder is used, it is estimated that a full charge of 576 lbs. will throw a projectile weighing 2,400 lbs. a distance of 22 miles. The projectile prepared for the monster is 5 ft. 4 in. long, and it has been calculated that it would go through a steel plate 42.3 in. thick, if the plate was placed at the muzzle. The total weight of this monster is 130 tons. Other rifled guns of large calibre, heretofore constructed are the Italian gun, calibre 17.75 in., the French gun of 16.5 in. calibre, and the Armstrong gun of 16.25 in. calibre. The greatest gun ever built by the Krupps had a range of 12 1-2 miles. None of these compare in point of energy and range with this newest gun.

"A Wife" Has Something To Say

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—"Husband" overlooks I give him time to have the pleasure of writing to the Examiner; I hardly can find time to read. He would not do the shopping, or mind the children, and he should think of the mighty work we women are doing in the fight against tuberculosis and the care of public and private dwellings. We women do most of the work of the city that is not too hard.

Yours truly,
The Wife.

THE BEST PROTECTION

It always pays to get the best. This is all important in fire insurance. You can get cheap insurance but it is not the best. It is usually not even good. What is the use of paying out good money and taking a chance that you will have to stand your own loss? Companies that sell cheap policies do pay losses when they are able, but how frequently they fail just when you want their protection? Demand a policy in the Manitoba Assurance Company and get the best. Agent, Davis Thompson Limited.

Norwood Will Have Another Hotel

Mr. John Baskin has stated that he intends erecting a new hotel in Norwood this spring. Mr. Baskin was was in Peterborough seeing about the purchase of brick and other material for the building and in a few days he expects to begin getting things together so as to be able to start building operations as soon as spring opens. The building is to be of white brick and will be erected on the south side of Peterborough street east of the premises occupied by the Dominion of Canada Express Co. The main building will be 32 by 40 feet, three storeys high.

Boys' Rally To-night

A boys' rally will be held at Knox church to-night at 7.30 o'clock. members of the Junior Brotherhood and friends are invited to be present. The orchestra will be in attendance and Mr. Roy Smith will give an address on his experiences at the Orillia Boys' Convention.

Five Men Are Hanged For Murder

Special to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, ILL., FEB. 16.— Five men were hanged this morning for various murders. Judge Landis dismissed all eleventh hour pleas for clemency.

Further Remand Until Monday

The case of Elsie Parks and William Shaw, who have a charge of vagrancy registered against them, was further remanded until Monday.

Magistrate Edmison has been absent from the city since Monday, and was unable to give the case the necessary consideration, with a view to concluding it to-day.

When the two youthful prisoners appeared in the court room this morning they presented a much neater appearance than on the two former occasions. The girl, who is aged in looks, but youthful in years, set in the court room and exchanged smiles with the male prisoner at the other end of the room, but the latter did not reciprocate. He seemed to be fully conscious of the predicament which he is placed in, and sat in the chair with his head buried in his hands, presenting a very dejected looking aspect. With a sigh that almost savoured of despair he followed the constable out of the courtroom.

In addition to the charge of vagrancy there are more serious charges to be considered in connection with the case.

THE BELMONT MINSTRELS

Chris. Graham and Louis Meadel. The quintette sang the rube song, "Wal I Swan" and then contributed some rural dancing that was very funny.

The performance was brought to a close with a smartly executed song drill with a solo by Mr. McIlroy and some clever marching by the male chorus. The entire company was introduced into the finale, which was a fitting close to a grand entertainment. The marching chorus consisted of Messrs. W. McIlroy, F. Heaslip, K. Lech, J. Murray, W. Cowan, E. Allen, H. Hall, S. Rush, A. Rae, H. Jobbitt, C. Fee, and V. Morphet.

Mrs. Anna Shepard presided at the piano and had much to do with the success of the occasion. The orchestra was of great assistance.

Following is the roster of the chorus: F. Heaslip, W. Cochrane, K. Lech, F. Skitch, S. Pollard, A. Huycke, S. Plaine, E. Allen, H. Gillespie, S. Rush, H. Jobbitt, W. Bingel, R Hunter, A. Rae, J. Lee, D. Fleming, J. Gray, W. Belleghem, W. Cowan, J. Murray, E. Deane, J. McNab, R. Nash, C. Fee, E. Jamieson, H. Hall, E. Browning, W. Nelson, E. Boswell, S. Ecclestone, L. Fitzgerald, V. Morpet..

The production will be repeated tonight and deserves and will doubtless have, another crowded house.

Messrs. A. Belleghem, R. McKee, L. Bowes, C. Lech, H. Cooke, R. Brown and M. Rosenburgh of the Belmont Club did good service as ushers.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested, and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

OBITUARY

MRS. P. J. O'BRIEN.

At the Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio, on Thursday, Feb. 8th, the death occurred of Mrs. O'Brien, wife of Mr. P. J. O'Brien, of Swansea, Ontario, now with the Dean Electric Company of Elyria, Ohio. Mrs. O'Brien had been ill for about a month, and though suffering intensely at times, never lost her cheery disposition, nor hope of recovery. Everything that love or means could suggest to bring about a restoration to health, was done, but it was willed otherwise. Mrs. O'Brien, formerly Miss Sylvia Morgan, of Peterborough, was the youngest of a family of one son and eight daughters. She had spent several years in Toronto, prior to her marriage four years ago when she went with her husband to her new home in Elyria. She was an ideal wife, loving and thoughtful, and the bereaved husband and relatives in their grief have the sympathy of a large and extensive circle of acquaintances. A Mass of Requiem was said in the Chapel of the Cathedral, Cleveland, and was attended by representatives of all the Departments of the Dean Electric Company, and by Mrs. William O'Brien, Mrs. John Duignan, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Fred Hare of St. Catharines, sisters; Miss Mary O'Brien, sister of Mr. P. J. O'Brien, was also present. The remains were brought to Toronto, and the funeral took place on Monday morning, attended by friends ad relatives from a distance. Among the mourners were Mr. Wm. Morgan, of Winnipeg, brother, and Mrs. McCarthy, of Rat Portage, a sister; Mr. James O'Brien, of Swansea, and Mr. Wm. O'Brien, a nephew.

Interment took place in the O'Brien plot at St. Michael's cemetery.

May she rest in peace!—Com.

WHAT DO YOUR BOOTS COST YOU?

"If I were to say that a pair of boots cost me $15.00, I would get the laugh," remarked a young business man this morning, during a casual conversation. "These, for instance cost me $5.00, when I bought them; I've figured it out that I spend twenty cents a week on "shines," making $10.40 a year, to keep them in presentable condition, and I had new rubber heels and half-soles put on them, at a cost of another $1.00, making a total of $16.40, or, roughly speaking, $15.00. as the year's expenditure on one pair Of course I do not wear them right through they year, or anything like that, but when you begin to think about it, you find that your shoe bill runs into money." Most young men buy two or three pairs of boots and shoes a year, often more, and the total cost during the year, if figured out, would likely present a larger total than is expected.

CANADA'S OLDEST SUGAR REFINERY LAUNCHES NEWEST IDEA IN SUGAR

That the oldest firms are not always the least progressive is illustrated by the fact that the new plan of marketing granulated sugar in Sealed Cartons is being introduced by the Canada Sugar Refining Co., whose Redpath Sugar has been known in Canada for over half a century.

When in 1854 John Redpath & Son established in Montreal the first sugar refinery in British North America, Confederation was still thirteen years distant, and the population of Montreal was less than one-tenth of what it is to-day.

With John Redpath were associated his son, Peter, known as the founder of McGill's Redpath Museum and Library, and George Drummond, afterwards Sir George, who was Manager. The second and third generations of Redpath's are now represented in the Company by Messrs. Frank and William Redpath, while Sir George Drummond's son, Mr. Huntley Drummond, is now president.

Though one would never guess it from his vigour nd activity, Mr. Jas. McMenamin, Superintendent of the Refinery, was brought out from Greenock, Scotland, in 1854, to take charge of part of the work, and he has held his position of Superintendent for 44 years. Another member of the staff, Mr. Alex. Bower, has also been connected with the work from its establishment.

As first equipped, the Canada Sugar Refinery employed about 100 men and turned out 75 barrels of sugar a day. Now it employs fully seven times as large a working force, and can turn out over thirty times as much sugar. The plant occupies over 11 acres.

The sugars put out at first, included "re Olde Sugar Loafe" of 11 lbs. weight, Confectioners' A, Dry Crushed and Yellows. Granulated sugar was unknown until about 1870.

Now, this pioneer firm are leading the way with the very newest thing in sugar, the Redpath 5-Pound Package.

Mrs. Walsh's Donation. — In a recent report of donations to the relief fund for those visited by fire last Saturday the statement of blankets presented by R. Hall and Son, should have read from Mrs. Walsh.

A GREAT DISCOVERY

Certain Ingredients That Really Promote Hair Growth When Properly Combined.

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Napthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its natural nourishment, and also creates a clean, healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin although not a colouring matter or dye, is a well known ingredient for restoring the hair to its natural colour, when the loss of hair has been caused by a disease of the scalp.

These ingredients in proper combination, with alcohol added as a stimulant and for its well-defined nourishing properties, perfect perhaps the most effective remedy that is known for scalp and hair troubles.

We have a remedy which is chiefly composed of these ingredients, in combination with other extremely invaluable medicinal agents. We guarantee it to positively cure dandruff and to grow hair, even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair. If there is any vitality left in the roots, it will positively cure baldness, or we will refund your money. If the scalp has a glazed, shiny appearance, it's an indication that baldness is permanent, but in other instances we believe baldness is curable.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. If it does not cure dandruff and grow hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. We print this guarantee on every bottle. It has effected a positive cure in 93 p.c. of cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike, and we think, in every particular better than anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is prescribed. We urge you to try this preparation at our entire risk. Certainly we know of no better guarantee to give you. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Peterborough only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

LONGBOAT'S CHALLENGE

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, FEB. 16. — Tommy Longboat has telegraphed from Halifax, where he arrived from England and Scotland, this morning, that he has challenged all comers for a race from one to fifteen miles for the National or International championship He says he is very fit shape, and hopes to smash more records.

INDUCTION SERVICE

The induction of Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., as rector of All Saints' church will take place to-night at 8 o'clock. The Rt. Reverend Bishop Reeve of Toronto will officiate and the sermon will be preached by the Rev. W. S. Major of Montreal, a former rector of All Saints church. At the close of the service refreshments will be served in the Parish Hall.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Mr. John Haggart took place this afternoon. The Rev. Robert Pogue officiated at a very impressive service at the late residence of the deceased, 167 Brock street at 3 o'clock, after which at 3.30 the funeral cortege proceeded to Little Lake cemetery for interment.

A large number of friends assembled at the funeral and the magnificent display of floral tributes were symbolic of the high esteem in which the deceased gentleman was held throughout the community.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. James Middleton ,William Middleton, Fred Mitchell, W. Stocker, Alfred Johnson and John Nugent.

SIGNALLING CLASSES

Signalling Sergt. Major Webb is in the city to take charge of the signalling classes for members of the local cavalry, artillery, infantry and cadets. The classes will be conducted for a month at the end of which examinations will be held. Those who succeed in obtaining certificates will receive a bonus of $15. There will be three classes in the evenings during the week, commencing to-night. The Cadet classes will be in the afternoon.

NEW AUCTIONEERS ACTING

The name of W. J. Hancock has been attached to the bills announcing sales by auction of household goods in the city and country. Wm. Howden is also acting as auctioneer according to several bills, but those on which Mr. Haggart's name appeared have had Mr. Hancock's name recently affixed, with others in his own name since Wednesday.

WEDDING BELLS

MacANDREW—MacGILL.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacGill of Lindsay, Ont., when their second eldest daughter, Miss Laura, was united in marriage to Mr. Geo. MacAndrew of Peterborough, by the Rev. Dr. Shorey. The bride was gowned in a light tan suit, with pearl satin waist, and was given away by her brother Mr. Ernest MacGill. The bridesmaid, Miss Minnie Lyle of Hall's Bridge, was becomingly gowned in a pearl grey suit with cream satin waist. After partaking of a dainty repast, the young couple left for Peterborough, where they will reside. The gifts were costly and numerous, showing the high respect in which the young couple are held.

Curling Notes

Winnipeg, Feb. 15. — The last of undefeated rinks in the bonspiel was narrowed down to two to-day, when Flavelle was beaten by Ross of Regina in the Dingwall, and Thaubura of Brampton lost his first contest in open events, being beaten by Pepper of Deloraine by 15 to 10 in the Tetley Tea in the morning draw.

Thauburn won in the Purity Flour by 9 to 7 against Markle of Shoal Lake, and again in the Dingwall held his place by one point over Johnston of Kenora

The undefeated rinks in open events to-night are Finlay of Winnipeg Strathconas and Braden of Winnipeg Thistles Richardson of Neepawa, undefeated until to-day, dropped games in both Purity and Dingwall

Flavelel is still curling a steady game, and won a sensational contest from McConaghy of Neepawa in the Purity Flour late this afternoon. He is playing again to-night in the McLaren against Kelly of Granites but the game cannot be finished before early morning.

Stock, Toronto Parkdales, was knocked out of the McLaren to-day by Braden, hTistles, 12 to 5. Rice, the only Toronto skip in the consolation, was knocked out in the first round by Champion of Civics. McAulay of Southampton, is still in the Purity Flour, winning to-day from Murdoch of Crandall, 12 to 6. Ament was knocked out of the same competition by Chisholm of Granites, 9 to 7.

The mild weather continued to-day, and made curling difficult.

Daily Stock Quotations

Baring, New York— Every day the signs are multiplying that, as soon as distribution of stocks is completed a decline will take place which will carry many stocks considerably lower. This does not mean that the bottom is going to drop out of the market to-day or to-morrow or next week, but it does mean that the trend is downward.

I advise you to stick to the short side, but to sell on the bulges only.

Can. Pac. should have been sold around 233 a few weeks ago and then I expected it to go from 20 to 30 points lower merely meant as encouragement for those who were already short higher up.

New York Fin. Bulletin— Reports now coming in show good buying of Erie stocks. London is buying the pfd. issues and the Morgan following is favourable to these securities.

In some quarters it is said that the accumulation of Norpac has been a feature in Hill circles. Reports received, earnings are now showing up very encouragingly.

Rumours are coming from Washington that that centre is bearish on Reading. Advices have been given to sell it. There is considerable comment upon the fact that amalgamated works above steel frequently. Acp. expects to get a higher dividend, putting it on the same levels as steel, while the rumours afloat in the street refer to a cut to 4 per cent. in it. It is a queer situation.

A canvass shows that commission houses are feeling more cheerful. They are impressed by the evidence of more conservatism at Washington and by the steel operating news, in most cases.

Finley B and Co—We would buy wheat on drives.

Harris Wes Co—The thing to watch is the primary movement.

Chapin and Co.—We favour sales of wheat on strong spots.

Drucilla And The Wager

(Short Story.)

BY MOLLY McMASTER.

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Drucilla cast a furtive glance at the toe of her shabby little boot, in order to make sure that it was not protruding beyond the hem of her skirt.

An envelope was lying on the floor of the subway car at her feet. Drucilla stooped and picked it up. The envelope was sealed and not empty. There were few persons in the car and Drucilla felt herself unobserved.

She turned the envelope over and over in her hands, then she slipped her finger under the flap and peered in.

Drucilla's wide, brooding eyes lit up, startled out of their habitual vague dreams. There was money in the envelope. She cast a surreptitious glance at the numbers in the corners of the bills. There were two tens and one five. Drucilla closed the envelope and thrust it with within her own pocketbook and gave herself up to multitudinous thoughts.

Elation, quickly followed by probes from her conscience and a quick succession of the urgent needs she had for the money, chased through the girl's mind.

Down deep in her consciousness there was the certain knowledge that she would seek to find the owner of the money, but for the present that truth was swamped in the joy of having twenty-five dollars in her hands.

She dreamed first of the much-needed lessons in sight reading that she could now have. Her glorious voice, the training for which she went without many lunches, was little good to her from a monetary standpoint until she could read music. And a position was essential within the next year or so. Util then, with over-zealous saving, she could eke out her tuition.

She had just passed a window in which was displayed a beautiful set of red fox furs. Drucilla realised, without conceit, that with her face framed in the shade so nearly resembling her hair, and her eyes only the shadows in the colour scheme, it would be hard for either choirmaster or manager to turn her away.

She smiled whimsically. Appearance was a valuable asset.

On her way from the subway to the small room that Drucilla called home she was haunted by the fear that she was being followed and that the precious money would be taken from her, and by the more terrible feeling that she was fleeing from capture with stolen money in her hands.

In the privacy of her room she took out the bills and made an examination of the envelope. There seemed to be no writing—nothing upon which to hang an identification clue.

Yes! Drucilla was guilty of sudden irritation. There was writing on the flap of the envelope.

"Property of C. Drayton, 009 Clairmont avenue." Drucilla read. She sighed, but smiled whimsically again. "My dreams were short lived, and because they were so vivid I had better go immediately to Clairmont avenue, before they become realistic."

She donned her coat without stopping to make a much needed cup of tea.

Drucilla's heart was lighter as she made her way to the heights by the Hudson. Her dreams had been pleasant while they lasted.

Upon arriving at No. 009, Drucilla inquired of the elevator boy and learned that C. Drayton was on the ninth floor. She sent up word over the 'phone that she was in possession of a package, and was shown up.

A maid ushered her into the drawing-room, and the girl was obliged to sit and gaze at the luxurious surroundings until Mrs. Drayton made her appearance.

Drucilla arose when a sweet, motherly looking woman entered.

"Have you found that foolish envelope?" she asked kindly, and Drucilla liked her the moment she spoke. Her startled eyes, however, made the older woman continue in a depressing voice: "The dropping of that money in the subway was the result of a wager made between my husband and my son. My son, Carroll, made the statement that he would like to see the person who would return money that had been found, and my husband took him up on a $25 wager that nine persons out of ten would return it." Mrs. Drayton turned toward the door. "Here is my foolish boy now," she said fondly, and rose to greet a tall, laughing man whose look betokened frank admiration for his mother's guest.

"Oh, I see," he laughed, "some one has found—"

"And returned," supplemented Mrs. Drayton. "Miss—Verney—I think I caught the name—my son."

Oddly enough, both Drayton and Drucilla were conscious of being happy when their hands clasped. Neither was embarrassed.

"Then you made me lose my wager?" Drayton chided her.

"I came very near—not—doing so," Drucilla laughed. "You have no idea what dreadful temptation I threw off."

Drayton and his mother exchanged glances, and for the first time each noticed the shabby little brown suit and the brave but rather wan smile that struggled behind her fine eyes.

And because they seemed to want it, the girl told them her story of study and ambitions and of the struggles. Her smile was wistful when she finished.

"Could you sing us one little song?" Mrs. Drayton asked, and in her question voiced her son's desire.

Drucilla cast a startled glance at the grand piano and its distance from her chair. She felt strangely weak about the knees. If only she had taken time to have her tea she could have sung for these two friendly people. As it was, she only gazed hesitatingly at the piano.

That blessed sixth sense—intuition—gave Carroll his words.

"Mother, perhaps if we had tea first Miss Verney could give us more voice."

Drucilla's heavy eyelids lifted and she gave Drayton one fleeting, grateful glance.

"I have to 'fess up," she laughed a trifle unsteadily, "that I foolishly went without my lunch for the joy of a new opera score."

Ominous shadows darkened in Carroll Drayton's eyes, and Mrs. Drayton swept a hand across her own as she rang the bell for tea.

"Miss Verney," she said as she returned to the girl's side. "If you will let me I will take pleasure in introducing you to the musical coterie that we have gathered about us. It may perhaps help you in your work."

A sunny smile that eclipsed all other light, to at least one pair of eyes, swept Drucilla's face.

"You are very, very kind—to an absolute stranger. I—I—" She broke off because she felt suddenly like running over to Mrs. Drayton and having a good cry in those motherly arms. She felt little and crumped up and very tired, but happier than she could remember having been. In one blinding moment she knew that her struggles were over; she would no longer have to battle lone-handed in a world where no one cared or watched for her coming. Here were two persons who would herald her approach into a world where she knew she could play a vital part — the world of music.

"But it is strange," Mrs. Drayton was saying, while she busied herself with tea, "how our friends are given to us—sometimes through a trivial little happening." She glanced up at her big son who stood waiting for a cup for Drucilla. "I seem to feel that Miss Verney has walked into our lives to stay."

Carroll took a cup of tea and some sandwiches to Drucilla.

"The whole thing is very sudden," he said half to himself, then answered his mother's questioning eyes, "I know she is going to stay."

Drucilla smiled.

SEEN AND HEARD

PIQUE BAGS FOR CHILDREN.

One big manufacturer who handles all classes of bags for women's and children's use says he has sold within the last few weeks 5,000 gross of wash bags for children's summer use, made from an ordinary white pique, with a lap-over button fastening. The cotton cloth bag retails at ten cents and proves a good seller. The pique is bought from the jobber by the piece at thirteen and one-half cents a yard, which some of the bag men think is high for an ordinary white staple pique.

These wash bags are used by the children principally for summer wear at beaches, where a more expensive leather bag would not be worn. The bags are suspended by a cord from the shoulder.

COMMON EXPRESSIONS ODDLY APPLIED.

"Beaten out of $5," said the gold leaf dejectedly.

"I hope I make myself perfectly clear," said the water as it passed through the filter.

"Experiences like this tend to harden one," the egg said as it was dropped into boiling water.

"A little of this goes a long way," remarked the aviator aloft as he flicked the ash off his cigar.

"I'll stay and see this thing out," said the man who was at the dentist's to have a tooth pulled.

"I'm against those long hat pins for women," the man in the car said as he wiped his bleeding jaw.

ALL RIGHT FOR THE 'ICEBERG

An old lady who was a passenger on the Red Star liner Finland recently seemed very much more afraid of the icebergs than of the storms or fogs, and asked Captain Barman what would happen in case of a collision.

"Madam," the captain replied, bowing low, "the iceberg would move right along in its course as if nothing had happened."

And the old lady seemed to be very much relieved.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

LINDSAY FANS TICKLED OVER PETERBORO'S DOWNFALL

Up in Lindsay they are trying to use the defeat of Peterborough by Midland as Zam-Buk to heal up the sores that were left when Lindsay humbled the Midgets on their own ice and incidentally gave the financial interests of Lindsay the worst jolt they have had since one D. B. Thomas made the Scugog people look like a lemon trust. You know that 6 to 4 game in Lindsay, when the Petes walloped Bill Stoddard and Company Jack Spratt included, is a memory that the Lindsay people would fain forget. Ever since that night a goodmany of the Lindsay hockey enthusiasts have been going to bed early to save fuel, wearing celluloid collars and eating liver instead of chicken in an effort to make up for the squeeze their wallets got on that occasion. They are sore yet and don't care who knows it. Listen to this from the Lindsay Post:

A number of Lindsay fans who went down on the Midland special last evening, witnessed the struggle and also came back considerably the richer as a result of their wagers on the northern team. They say that the game was a hair raiser from start to finish and that the Midland septett had it on the Petes at all stages. They are a wonderful team and play with a clocklike precision, back checking and rushing like demons, and working together like one machine. They were right at home on Peterborough ice and held down their opponents to the king's taste.

Harvey Sproule gave good satisfaction to everyone but the Peterborough fans who hooted and hissed some of his decisions. Harvey was idolized by the Electric City people all season, but that apparently had no effect on him last light in discharging his duty.

Gloom and despair reigns supreme in Peterborough to-day. The fans realized that they had about as much chance of overcoming the 10-2 lead as a snowflake has in Hades, but they felt confident that they could defeat Midland and backed up their confidence with their wagers. As a result there is considerable Peterborough money in Midland to-day. They are now looking to their junior team to bring them comfort, and some of their lost cash, but Orillia is picked to do the trick with the Bear Cubs.

Peterborough's record in the Intermediate series is not a remarkable or unusual one. They were in prime condition at the opening of the hockey season, due to a course of training at the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. under able trainers. In their games with Lindsay they were pitted against a team without condition, lacking combined team play, due to a lack of practice, and not having a competent coach to look after them. The material was there and had the team been in condition Peterborough would never have won on local ice.

Then take the Belleville team which Peterborough buried out of sight. It was an inferior aggregation that did not put up as good hockey as some junior sevens. Lindsay disposed of Trenton quite handily on local ice and even had a much easier proposition on Trenton ice, whereas Peterborough won out in Trenton and nothing more Cobourg defeated Peterborough in the lakeshore town but failed to make a good showing in the Electric city. The Petes' showing, therefore, was nothing phenomenal. But the team that could beat them on their own ice was certainly some hockey team.

Midland's win was popular in Lindsay and considerable interest was aroused over last night's struggle. They will have a pudding in the Mount Forest team Friday night but their tough problem will be the Dutchmen from Preston. The northerners ought to win out, however.

HARVEY SPROULE ON MIDLAND GAME

Before a packed house Peterborough Intermediates went down and out of the O. H. A. race, when they were again defeated by the fast Midland septet here last night by 4 goals to 1. The visitors also led at the interval, 1 to 0, and incidentally captured the round by 14 goals to 3.

The Georgian Bay boys were accompanied by two hundred lusty-lunged rooters, coming by special train. Hockey enthusiasts flocked in from neighbouring towns and swelled the attendance to 2,800, the largest crowd that ever witnessed a game here. Two or three hundred were turned away, unable to gain admission.

The game was very fast and strenuous throughout, in fact, rough, in spots. The sticky condition of the ice was responsible to a great extent, and the players frequently overstated the puck. As in the game at Midland, the play was very even in the first period, only one counter being registered. However, Derocher, who again put up one of his many brilliant exhibitions in the nets, was called upon repeatedly and turned aside some dangerous bits for scores. The visitors checked back persistently, and the locals found the Gould-Nicholls defence a hard proposition to penetrate successfully.

It was a ding-dong struggle for the first twenty minutes of the second half, too, when with the score still 1 to 0, in Midland's favour, Coughlin was banished for slashing Drummond. Almost immediately after Giroux followed him for the balance of the game for slashing the same player on the arm. The fireworks then started, and the visitors notched two in quick succession, putting the contest on ice. In the dying minutes of the play Park beat Scott with a neat shot from a scrimmage close in for the Petes' only tally. To clinch matters, Bill Duncan's warriors swooped down with a nice combination rush and annexed their fourth and last counter a few seconds before the final gong rang.

For the winners Chase and Beatty on the line were always conspicuous, and Drummond, a substitute, fitted in well at left wing. Lavigne was in the thick of the fray at all times and checked like a fiend. Gould and Nicholls blocked well; the former's rushing was also a feature. Scott, in goal, was not called upon to show his real worth, although he made many excellent stops.

Barring Derocher, Kelly was the pick of the locals. Park and Coughlin were more effective on the aggressive than the defensive, but Giroux worked his head off and checked back hard. Beares and Glover used their avoirdupois to good effect, but the questionable tactics of the former earned him several penalties.

"The fastest team that Peterborough has met in many moons," was the expression of the majority who witnessed the struggle, "and if Preston beat them for the championship they will know they have been to the races.

FLAVELLE IS STILL IN THE RING

WINNIPEG, MAN., FEB. 15.— Of the five rinks yet unbeaten in the grand aggregate at the Manitoba bonspiel two are from Ontario—Flavelle of Lindsay and Thauburn of Brampton. Both are playing strong, and a win for Flavelle would prove very popular here. The Dalton rink of Toronto left last night for Chicago, where some matches will be played before returning home.

In their last game the members of the Rennie rink of Toronto played with the stones of a Winnipeg rink, and as a result they state that in the next bonspiel here they will use stones the same as the Westerners. The Ontario stones have too large a running surface for use here.

CHAUCER'S REPARTEE

The Way He Handled a Bibulous Critic at a Hockey Game

TORONTO, FEB. 15.—Chaucer Elliott is right there with the ready retort every time some one heckles him. The other night at Excelsior rink, while he was refereeing the T. A. A. C.-Eaton game a bibulous individual with a fiery red nose shouted down at Elliott during a cessation of play:

"Say, Chaucer, aren't you a bit off colour to-night?"

"No, old chap," replied Chaucer, right off the bat, "it's your nose".

HOCKEY GOT HIS GOAT

He was a big fat fellow and his sunburned face glowed and glowed as he watched a game in New Westminster. But all the time he shivered. After a while when he got acquainted he told about himself. He was from Los Angeles where they don't have ice, except right on the tips of the mountains and people mostly perspire.

So the game was new to him.

But when Lindsay, the Victoria goal defender, who afterwards went to pieces, rushed out of his goal and blocked a swift gliding puck not a second too soon, he roared his applause. He did not notice a caustic bleacherite or rather kaleonyite who remarked pointedly about his ultra-enthusiasm for a common play.

Later when Poulin slammed the puck right up to Lehman in goal for the Royals only to miss by a skate length, he cheered with the rest, and then went into hysterics over the persistent aggressiveness of the New Westminster.

Down on the mesquite in the land of banana people move sorter slow especially in the heat of the day. And the big fat fellow with the sun-burned face told how difficult the folks at "Los" were. They have to eat ice at parlour tennis to keep from overheating, at least that is what he said.

But up there he let loose with many a big hearty baseball root and didn't sweat a drop.

Ernie Johnson, who played a stellar game right from the first chirrup of the whistle, dashed down from cover point where Poulin and Rowe watched him, circled Smith, glided by Patrick and shot the rubber deep into the net.

"Oh you caramel child," gurgled the man from sunny Los, "prickly pear-bush, you can have all we've got."

And all the time he kept telling the little bunch of satellites that he never saw a game before. Later on he learned of off-side play and the reason for the frequent whistlings of Referee Lalonde.

Small flew down the ice with the puck at the end of his stick. McDonald met him and the two of them hurtled against the fence. Small went down and lay prone. When he got up he limped painfully. In a minute he was back in the game and Reddie roared his wholehearted sympathy with such pluck.

Ice hockey is a great game surely. And even when you don't know all the players by their first name or how much it cost to build the rink, you like it the first time you see it. Anyway the man of the orange groves looked and gloated.

A VARIED ATHLETE

Wilbur Babcock has the makings of a regular demon athlete. For one thing, he will stick, and, for another, he will go against any other man's game, no matter how tough or intricate.

Attention was first called to Wilbur at a carnival staged by the Illinois Gymnastic Union. Ed Smith and Paddy Harmon were spectators and saw an earnest performer being spun around on his head in a wrestling match. They were of the opinion that if he stuck to wrestling he would lose much hair through friction.

A little later an amateur boxing tournament was held at the Coliseum, and in one of the first bouts in the lightweight division our hero was introduced.

"Wilbur Babcock, of Chicago, in this corner, and Kid Slevinski, of Lombard, in this corner," shouted the announcer.

They met, shook hands, and sam! Wilbur was out. They didn't even bother to count.

Bab came right back an hour later when he concluded he had made the mistake of tackling a lightweight instead of a welter. He went against a husky lad who had come to town on a coal car, and again he was stowed away. By way of making it unanimous, he next lost to a middleweight.

It is a long way from the ring to the rink, but when Paddy Harmon announced a roller skating marathon Bab's entry was the first received. He could barely keep his feet, but stacked himself up against skaters who could make fifteen miles in forty-five minutes. They passed him in droves, lapping him four times to the mile, and wound up by hauling him along by the hands.

Wilbur was now committed to marathons and sent his entry by special delivery when Harmon offered medals for a running race of the orthodox distance—twenty-six miles and some odd yards. He had 135 competitors, including Hatch, who won. When Hatch was on his twenty-fourth mile Wilbur was nine miles behind. The judges thought they ought to save him needless exertion, but when one of them went out on the track to talk to him he turned and ran the other way. He was overhauled and posted on the situation, and was sustained in his determination to finish by Alderman Clancey, who said:

"Leave him run. Hasn't he paid for it?"

When they were turning out the light Wilbur finished.

Whose entry should be first but Wilbur's when an encore marathon was held? Besides numerous medals the race was run for the Francis T. Conery cup. The result was the same as in the first race except that this time Bab was beaten by 132 men instead of 135.

The versatility of this man was amazing. He had never ridden a bicycle, but was not to be deterred from entering a bike marathon. In practice, however, he ran into a piece of 2 by 4 and didn't start.

After he had finished picking the slivers out of himself, Wilbur heard that Paddy was going to stage a dancing marathon of fifteen miles. According to the rules of the game, the dancing had to be continuous, but a competitor could change partners as often as he wanted to.

Of course Babcock had never danced but, like Clarence McFadden, he sought a professor and stated his case. With two lesson he hopped a Riverview car and joined the throng. After he had bumped all the other entrants he couldn't find a girl who would waltz with him, and went home—a bitter dancing athlete.

Babcock continued to keep his hand (and his head) in wrestling, and presently was barred from the amateur union for professionalism. But he couldn't resist the marathon game.

Paddy Harmon went out to Forest Park to see a long grind, and there, a safe bet, was Wilbur trailing a formidable field. He had on automobile goggles and painted a mustache on his coop with a crayon.

"Go it, Babcock!" shouted Paddy.

"Shut up," returned the runner. "They think my name is Hjalmar Anderson."

The I.A.C. started a marathon from Fort Sheridan, which was to finish in front of the club house. Wilbur was not eligible, but he had the habit. He went out to Fort Sheridan, and not finding a dressing-room handy stripped to his running clothes behind a tree. Then, with his valise in his hand, he ran all the way to Lincoln Park, where he fainted.

The prospect of being kept out of marathons was cruel to Wilbur, and on Harmon's advice he advertised one of his own. He got out printing announcing Wilbur Babcock's Marathon to be run at Dexter park pavilion, and paid an instalment of earnest money.

The sale was not inspiring, and on the afternoon preceding the race he could not pay the pavilion management the balance. Harmon suggested to Babcock that the runners should compete in Halsted street, but the pavement was wet and Wilbur was the only starter.

What game remains for Wilbur to buck? He is willing and consistent even if he is an incurable loser.—Chicago Post.

PUGILISM

Another Hoosier has flashed across the pugilistic sky and has made good. Jack Dillon, of Frankfort, Ind., but who now writes Indianapolis after his name, has become the administrator of what is left of the estate of Stanley Ketchell—a belt and a title—relics, which it is safe to assume, he will pack into his own trunk in lieu of a better heir, says J. P. Garvey in the Cleveland Plaindealer.

For a long time before Ketchel came there were no middleweights that stirred our enthusiasm. Since Stanley died, a year and a half ago, there have been few of special merit. The class has many good young huskies, but they are far from being Ketchels. Dillon looks the best of the motley array because his record has been the best. He is a combination fighter and boxer, can make 158, and his victories have been such as to portend the coming of a new middleweight champion.

Ernest Price was Jack Dillon's name until he became a professional boxer. It was the name he was given at birth, and it was the one that adorned the pay rolls of a messenger service, and a boiler shop up to four years ago, when the career of Dillon began.

Price took his fistic nom de plume after an afternoon at the Maywood Farm, Indianapolis, where he watched Lou Dillon, famous trotter, go through her paces. Price was a lover of horses and became impressed with the wonderful cleverness of the trotter.

Jack Dillon had an elder brother who was killed while boxing. On this account it was hard for Jack to induce his mother, a widow, to allow him to take up boxing as a profession. Jack has always maintained that his brother was not in condition when killed, and moreover, used a cement floor for a ring.

They say that Dillon's hypnotic eyes make him the fighter he is, and conqueror of Frank Klaus, George Chip and Leo Houck. Tiger eyes they are; cold, piercing and calculating, deep set underneath heavy brows and a crown of jet black hair. Out of the ring they smile at you sweetly, but in the ring, their steady gaze, suggesting great strength, stamina, and something of the animal have frightened opponents.

Dillon is the best specimen of physical manhood in his division, according to numerous tests by physicians. He has a sixteen-inch neck, wide shoulders, a heavy jaw, and is compactly built. Only a short time ago his body blows put Leo Houck out of commission. He is a natural fighter and he gained his early experience in the boiler shops of Indianapolis. He has never been staggered by a blow it is claimed.

NEW YORK, JAN. 23—Abe Attell champion featherweight of the United States, whose alleged faking in his recent go with Knockout Brown resulted in his appearing before the state boxing commission, testified today that he had been doped by Tom O'Rourke, manager of the National Sporting Club, and a man O'Rourke represented as the club physician. On the insistence of O'Rourke, who had $500 up on Brown against $900 on Attell, he said he permitted the doctor to inject cocaine into his wrists with a hypodermic syringe.

To these charges Tom O'Rourke replied in strong terms to-day.

"The trouble with Attell," said the well-known trainer and manager, "is that he has gone back and he is trying to stall the public into believing otherwise. He's yelping like a whipped dog now just to save his match in San Francisco with Johnny Kilbane, the Cleveland fighter.

"The sorriest part of Attell's testimony before the commission is his attempt to ruin the reputation of a reputable physician, whose sole aim in injecting cocaine into his hand was to help him. The physician did the same thing to Al. Palzer before he fought both Kennedy and Kaufmann. It's funny this little treatment should put Palzer into the championship class and affect Attell in just the opposite way.

"The board of directors of the National Club has already barred Attell from even appearing in its arena. The board took this action solely because of Attell's accusation of its official physician, a man who stands high in his profession.

"I have been quoted as saying that Attell faked it with Brown. I never made such a statement. I know Attell did not fake it. He simply is not the man he used to be. That was evident in the fight with Matt Wells at Madison Square."

Attell started off before the commission by claiming his mind was an absolute blank during the fight on account of three injections of cocaine that the club physician applied to his wounded hand; then he began to remember incidents of the bout, such as claiming a foul in the fourth and cutting Brown's eye in the early rounds.

One of the interesting things that came to light was the fact that Tom O'Rourke, who swore before the commission that he had severed his connection with the National when he became the manager of Al. Palzer, is still in charge of the club.

Commissioner John J. Dixon started the ball rolling by asking Attell if he always tried to fight his best.

"Always, sir," replied Attell. Everyone smiled except the commissioners.

"Did you make arrangements to let Brown win the fight?" continued Commissioner Dixon.

"No, sir."

"Did you bet anything on the fight?"

"No, sir."

"Did you fight up to your usual standard?"

"No, sir."

"Why not?"

"I have been suffering from a bad fight hand. Just before the fight I told the club physician about it and he suggested cocaine. To this I agreed and he gave me three different injections, which I believe doped me."

"How did it affect you at first?"

"A few minutes later my throat became dry and husky and I kept calling for water. All through the fight I called for water. And in all my other fights I never took a drink; only washed my mouth out."

WELLS BEAT HIM HONESTLY.

Attell explained his defeat at the hands of Matt Wells by declaring in a manner that dared anyone to contradict him that the Englishman was a better man.

PARALYSIS YIELDS TO DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

MANY FORMS OF THIS DREAD DISEASE ARE CURED BY THIS REMEDY

Mrs. Ritchie, of Galt, Ont., Says She Believed It Saved Her Life—Doctors Said She Had Not Long to Live When She Began This Treatment—Read Her Grateful Statement.

Scarcely a day passes but fresh proof is offered of the wonderful power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over disease. In many of these cases relief and new health comes to the sufferer after the best efforts of medical men had been in vain. One such case is that of Mrs. D. M. Ritchie, of Galt, Ont., who writes: "I feel it my duty to let other people know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was taken sick first in May, 1910, with rheumatism. Treatment at home having failed me I went to Grace Hospital, Detroit, where I remained for some weeks, but instead of improving I became absolutely helpless, as if from paralysis, and could not move hand or foot. I was under the heavy expense of a trained nurse, and the best of medical treatment, but seemed to be growing worse. Finally about the middle of July my husband decided to bring me home to Galt, where I remained under medical treatment, and with a nurse constantly attending me until October, when I took a further turn for the worse. Then the doctor told my husband that it was only the matter of a few weeks, as I could not possibly get better. Up to this time over six hundred dollars had been spent for medical and hospital treatment. In this condition, with hope abondoned, my husband saw a testimonial in a local paper of a cure of paralysis through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided at once to try them. In a few weeks there was a little improvement, and from that time on each day showed some change for the better. I can now (March, 1911) walk all about the use, do up my room, wash the dishes and sew and mend, but am still a little shakey, but am looking for the fullest cure, as I feel myself growing stronger daily. I give the full credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I feel they are an instrument under Providence given for the benefit of suffering humanity."

Writing again under the date of August 16th, 1911, Mrs. Ritchie says: "As to my general health I can say that I have not felt so well in years. My stomach is in the best of condition and I can eat things I have not eaten for years. I can walk quite well, but use my cane when I go out, as I have not quite confidence in myself yet. But if you had seen me when I started to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, you would realize what a miracle they have worked in my case. All that I have stated is absolutely true, and I may add that the pills have cured my husband of kidney trouble that other medicines seemed to have no effect upon, for which we are both thankful."

Again under the date of Jan. 16, 1912, Mrs. Ritchie says: "I am fully recovered, and able to do all my housework. I shall always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and trust some sufferer will receive as much benefit by reading this as I did through a faithful use of the pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as Mrs. Ritchie's because they make new, rich, red blood, which feeds the starved, overworked nerves, and gives tone and strength to every organ in the body. No sufferer from paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance or any nervous disorder can afford to neglect Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great blood builder and nerve tonic, which have more remarkable cures to their credit than any other medicine in the world. But be sure you get the genuine pills with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KIT'S COLUMN

The true situation in regard to the granddaughters of Charles Dickens has at last been made plain. It is briefly this: The five unmarried daughters of Charles Dickens, Jr., are living in poor circumstances. Their father, an artist in his line, which was the printing business, failed and died, leaving them penniless. He had been drawing a little annuity of $200, but this on his death was appropriated by a brother, H. J. Dickens, who doubtless had every right to it. Meantime the five girls, untrained in any business, profession, or even trade, found themselves on the edge of starvation. Dorothy Dickens, now on the sick list, suffering from a strained heart, worked in a typewriting office for five years until her health was affected. She then tried domestic service, and as nurse she wheeled a perambulator for five years more. After that she took on parish or settlement work. She joined forces with another worker and the two lived on the magnificent income of $450 a year. Now these two ladies are existing on the proceeds of a lodging house for delicate children, which they are running at the seaside—at Broadstairs, in fact where Dickens wrote some of his best work. And there to-day Dorothy lies, broken in health and very poor.

Cecile Dickens, Dorothy's sister, works at a tiny salary as one of the assistant secretaries to the National Health Society in London. The society, poor and struggling itself, cannot offer her more than ten dollars a week. She, too, is weak and ill—has but just come out of an hospital after a four months' sojourn there, and only a week ago crawled back to her post. She has literally nothing between her and the poorhouse—(you remember how Betty Higden preferred to die by the road side rather than go on "the House?")—but this ten dollars weekly. The other sisters are almost equally poor. Four of them receive each $120 yearly pension from the government. They live, eat and clothe themselves on this. They have nothing more. They have never appealed in the name of their grandfather—the man who "sent a laugh or a tear round the world," for any help of any kind. They spend the glorious Feast their kinsman made immortal poorer than the Cratchits spent it, poorer than the "less tailor's wife" spent it. And not any of all the great world which honours and remembers the name of Charles Dickens every Christmas time the world over, remembers these forlorn ladies, the five granddaughters of England's master of fiction. Why, Scrooge would do more!

A year or so ago the Dickens Testimonial (again I think of the Father of the Marshalsea-) Stamp movement was organised in England. The idea, as you doubtless know, was to induce lovers of Dickens throughout the world to place a stamp—or as many stamps as they liked—in each volume of the novelist in their possession, the proceeds to go to these poor, delicate, and ageing gentlewomen. The matter was taken up warmly, was advertised by the Strand and other publications and seemed to be taking root when it was suddenly knocked on the head by the announcement on the part of the barrister, Mr. H. J. Dickens, that no members of the Dickens family were in necessitous circumstances, and that annoyance had been caused to the family by this appeal on their behalf to public charity. At that very moment four of his five nieces—the ladies I am writing about—were barely existing. They were literally all but penniless. Scraping along—and if you, reader, knew as the writer knows, the lives of the women in London lodgings who eke out an existence on a few pounds a year, you would with all your heart compassionate them—scraping along somehow, these sisters, ranging in age from 35 to 50, are barely keeping life together. What Mr. H. J. Dickens meant when he issued that proud declaration only Mr. H. J. Dickens knows.

The Dickens stamps came over here, languished for a time, and departed into the Limbo of Failures. The idea, barely lit, and pushed by a few ineffectual scribblers like myself—went out like a rush dip. Public funds were available for everything, anything, save for five silent and starving women. Letters poured in to my mail-bag demanding why "people should be asked to support Dickens' relations," "why people over here should be supposed to be interested in anything of that sort?" And what could you answer save a futile "Why, indeed?"

Of what use to say that the whole world is debtor to Charles Dickens for laughter and good humour and gallant endeavour to help every under dog in the big crowd we term Humanity? Of what use to remind any one that Charles Dickens lightened many a burden for another; of what use to point to Tiny Tim and Oliver Twist, and miserable Smike, and say, "You shed a tear over each of these poor hapless ones, you felt your heart glow with generous feelings at the story of their misfortunes. Have you not one tender spot in your soul for these—the real ones—the living, suffering lonely ones of this man's flesh and blood who are in want or poverty over there in the heart of the mighty city that Dickens made his playground?" Of no use at all, my masters. Always we weep over the miseries of the poor in the books as we laugh with the Wellers and the Pickwicks, but we button up our money closely when we hear of the real wretchedness of real people, and pass on with a shrug and a "Let 'em st.ve. None of my business!"

Editor's note: Since the above was written the Strand has come out with a declaration that the Centenary Fund will be sufficient to provide for the Dickens ladies. This is gratifying news. The above account is given, however, on good authority. Conflicting statements have, from the beginning, unfortunately obscured the case.

From time to time various publications, journals, magazines and newspapers engage in contests for which they offer substantial prizes, but in events of the sort the "biscuit" is taken by Mrs. John Bull," who offers a husband and a home to the lucky winners of a competition. Just think of winning a PRIZE HUSBAND. The gentleman in question is a "well known actor," who is to tour England just to give the girls a treat, so that all may have a good look at him—size him up, in fact, before running in the game. 'Ere's a lark! A matinee idol going for a song! Going, going, gone! The gentleman has obligingly engaged himself to marry whoever Mrs. Bull may select—on one condition—that the dear fellow agrees with her choice of a bride. Should she pick a lemon in the garden of love for him, she will have to pay the lemon £100—or £300. Every maid is eligible up to 80, but the merry widow is banned, the argument being that the girls would not stand the ghost of a chance if she were in the running. We are told that the actor is a "clean, healthy Englishman." This is consoling. He naturally runs a much better chance of being won and proudly worn than if he were the reverse. The play is, first catch—with a suitable number of coupons — your clean, healthy Englishman, and then sprint for the home to put him in. Nor is this all. Mrs. Bull, kindly soul, will also give the lucky (?) winner a houseful of furniture for a wedding present. 'Ere you are! Wake up, ladies. 'Ome and 'andsome 'usband for the asking. What a time a "Ballyhoo" would have—say, at Exhibition time, if he could spiel a husband and home attraction! How the "Janes" and the boobs and the rest of them would run to throw their dimes and take a chance. All our contests pale into insignificance before this daring project. The mad race has begun. "Chicken," in velvet boots and bobble, minces at top speed beside the ancient fowl, whose sinews are tough and warranted to stand any strain, while confirmed bachelor girls and widows stand by and cheer them on. There is little doubt that no matter how she runs Eighteen will outrun poor Eighty and cash in the prize turkey (that slipped out. Pardon). Anyway, wot larks! And who says the old country is slow?

Talking, however inadvertently, of turkeys, brings to mind the Turkey Trot, that elegant Terpsichorean effort which it was the privilege of the writer to see in full swing not long ago. Of all the inane, foolish and vulgar proceedings, it is the 'inanest, foolishest and vulgarest." The main thing is to keep your feet on the floor. The rest is struggle, rock, glide and scuffle. It is merely silly in itself, a "dance" without grace or rythm, but it has got New York's Mrs. Grundy highly shocked, and when that unsensitive lady's feelings are brazenly outraged she does things. For one, she has got a Federal Judge to ban the trot, and Mayor Gaynor to condemn it. Turkish massage is as near to anything about Turkey as Gotham will permit. Hereafter, if you would see the Trot, the Bunny Hug, the Gobbler Glide or that dangerously mysterious rite known as the Tango, you will have to frequent the Rata Morta of the Big Town—the Little Hungary's and Caves D'Envers and other recesses of the kind, where people look very hard on the wine when it foams, while sirens from Cairo-in-the Bowery perform the Egyptian can-can.

But just at present the Turkey is in full swing, and professors of dancing —save the mark!—are charging $25 a lesson for it. The wiggle—for you cannot call it a dance—originated in that dark section of San Francisco called The Barbary Coast. Thence it "glid" to Chicago, which hugged it to its Levee bosom, and thence it leaked into New York, where it made the hit of the season. But it was the Sanciaco quake that really shook the Turkey Trot into being. In the wild reaction which followed the horrors of the earthquake, the Turkey trotted into the dance halls. It became a feature of the mad city that sat like a Bacchante on the edge of the ruins, and it was built into the new blocks which began to grow along the streets. A little company of ragtime dances grew in its wake; the Grisly Bear, the Scissors, the Piccadilly Crawl and the others aforementioned. Tourists flocked to see it in the all-night cafes, and wakeful Poodle Dogs. Then Society took it up, rocked its shoulders and dragged its feet, telegraphed to its friends to come and see it, and the dance halls promptly dropped it. And now Society is pounced upon by its protector and mentor, Mrs. Grundy, and since it refuses to deliver up the Turkey to sacrifice, the old lady has recourse to her stick, to the law courts, the clergy and the newspapers. The Turkey, being excommunicated like the Jackdaw of Rheims, with bell, book and candle, promptly flew over to London, skipped to Paris, where that Giddy burg received it with shouts of acclaim; jumped the Alps to Italy, and ski-ed across the Pyrenees to the court of Alfonso (preceded by an exquisite picture of Mignonne Gaby in the throes of the trot.) It then skirmished over to Berlin, and thence by aeroplane to St. Petersburg. The only country which has presumably escaped the invasion is "this Canada of ours," and we would not certify that the fashionable wiggle waggle has not found a haven in Montreal, or Parkdale, or Dundas, or even Guelph. As for the Merry Widow—she is a back number with the Kiss Waltz, the Apache Dance, the Salome, and other manoeuvres of the sort. These are far too tame. And Mrs. G. is raising mittened hands with "What next?"

Few could read with a dry eye the vivid account given by the Associated Press correspondent of the sad yet heroic tragedy of the ice bridge two Sundays since. It was gripping in its realism. It was a picture—like those on the film—moving horribly before the eye. Apart from its despair and utter sadness, the true heroism which informed that dreadful story gave it a dignity and nobility like that of a Greek tragedy. The young, sweet faced, half insensible woman; the man in the highest attitude that human can assume—standing manfully before his fate, protecting to the last inch of his being the gentle creature who meant love and life for him. What words of love and devotion he must have whispered to the trembling woman as he held her close, hiding from her eyes the cold grim death to which they were slowly gliding. Surely in His heaven the God who made them must have learned from His golden throne with arms outstretched to meet these lonely ones who went to Him with prayer on their dying lips. Surely these two—that splendid man and his mate—are living somewhere in peaceful and happy places to-day. It is our consolation to know that this is so.

And the boy. When you think of the magnificent way in which this young creature met his lonely death it is a thing to make you glad for the whole Brotherhood of Man. With all life before him, with youth—the divinest gift of the gods and the most short-lived—stirring his pulses, with the first primal law, that of self-preservation, tugging at his heart, he refused to obey it. Alone he turned to help the man and the fainting woman. Alone — like Arthur the King — he passed slowly to his death. Here were great deeds done in no age of chivalry or valour, done out of the commonplace, the everyday life we are so prone to term either too decadent or too practical to permit of heroism. Why, it makes the tragedy almost a triumph; it renews one's faith in the Godhead of Man, and to wavering and doubting ones, who teeter between hope in a life—a place of meeting hereafter, and spiritual as well as material annihilation — it comes like a great note from God Himself, proclaiming the immortality of man, the imperishability of the splendid spirit, the real meaning and value of what we so often term "poor frail humanity." Perhaps we needed such a lesson.

The Sunday slide question has been shelved for a moment. A wise move. To restrict the people from taking innocent recreation on the Sabbath is a matter which should not be too quickly decided. To many who are shop and desk bound, recreation such as this is their only opportunity to rest. With due deference and respect towards the Sunday Alliance Society, and all other like associations, it is difficult to see where the "breaking" of the day of rest comes in. God never meant His world to be a sad place. You can worship Him out in the woods and on the rivers. You can often come closer to Him in the forest than in the church. Were Christ among us to-day He would be the first to champion innocent recreation among the people. But were He here He would not be recognised. He would be abused and reproached and reviled. In His name many things of which the friend of the children did not approve would be done. We are as far from Him. I often think, as were the Pharisees who despised Him and the Jews who crucified Him. Good people, even holy people, are protesting to-day against a perfectly legitimate, a perfectly moral and a highly necessary (if we are to preserve our morality) open-air recreation on a Sunday — the only day available for more than half the population of Toronto — while they permit and even righteously support the money changers in the Temple, and ring their coins down on the collection plate.

FELL IN A FAINT

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was in a terrible condition Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

The Red Hood.

"If you have taken a degree of divinity at Oxford, you are entitled to wear a red hood."

The speaker was the Rev. Ethelbert Reed, the Duluth psychologist. He continued:

"Wearing a red hood myself, I take a natural interest in hood stories. There is one about a man who complained to his Bishop that so-and-so, though not of Oxford, was wearing a master's hood.

"'And I call it, Bishop,' said the complainant bitterly, 'wearing a lie on his back.'

"'Oh, don't use so strong a word as that,' said the Bishop. 'Just call it a falsehood.'

"Down south," continued Dr. Reed, "my own hood gave rise to an anecdote. I preached one Sunday in a Georgia church, and after the music a southern lady said to her old coachman:

"'Well, Jefferson, how did you like Dr. Reed's sermon?'

"'Oh, it wuz grand,' said the old fellow. 'All de same, I feels kinder sorry fo' de dock. I guess he hain't got no women folks to look after him.'

"'What makes you think that?' asked Jefferson's mistress.

"'I noticed, ma'am,' said Jefferson, 'whenever he turned round in de pulpit dat his coat wuz split up de back and de red undershirt wuz a-showin' through!'"—Cincinatti Enquirer.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free

By JOHN MARCH

"It's a remarkable personation; how does he do it?"

"I don't know; it seems to come natural to him."

"What sort of woman does he make?"

"Pretty fair, rather charming; but that delicate, interesting cleverness loses its fatal fascinaton in the woman. I like him in either guise; you can't take away the learning or the rare sympathetic influence of his character."

"Yes," he acknowledged; "but, Agnes, I can scarcely believe it now. He—she, I mean—is so extremely natural and unaffected. After I read your note I criticised every detail of his appearance, every movement, every gesture; there was nothing gauche in his behaviour, nothing to betray him; I could not find a flaw to colour your assertion. It's really very wonderful. What is her name?"

"Jervois. Pauline Jervois, she—"

"Ah! Then it was his—her father I knew as a lad; I thought it well-nigh impossible to mistake those eyes."

With his arm round her waist he narrated the little episode of Notting Hill, of the clever young musician with the wondrous eyes, of the talent that for a short time dazzled the musical world, and Agnes was interested, deeply interested, as she remembered Paul knew nothing of his parents, and she determined to write to him, and that soon, to relate this little story of an unknown, bygone time.

"Of course," Agnes said, smiling, when he had finished, "that paper was private and confidential; I wrote it to save what I considered to be at the moment more than an awkward situation, and you will treat it as such, won't you? You will keep Paul's secret?"

"My dear Agnes, you surely don't expect me to hush up this thing?"

"Yes, I do; why not? I—I wish I had not told you."

"I wish you had not, but knowing it I should be incurring the gravest responsibility in remaining silent."

"You won't tell Felix?"

"I must. Dash it all, Agnes, I can't let Felix go fooling up to the 'Pendennis' after him now. If Farley were ill—if manifold things happened, leaked out, Felix would never forgive me; and quite right, too; I should richly deserve his contumely. It is my duty, now that it is in my power, to save Judith Hargrave's life and mind, to establish Anthony Pelham's happiness, if possible, and to break off this intimacy with Felix. Looking at the situation in all its bearings, don't you see yourself how very much to blame I should be if I did not condemn—I won't say what is evil, for your sake, but what is untrue and mischievous, what must surely lead to infinite harm, degeneracy, and disaster?"

"It will ruin his career, Jack," she said regretfully.

"And a good thing, too," he returned, laughing; "not that I intend to interfere directly with Farley, that is hardly within my province; but I shall tell Felix and Judith. I've not the face to stand by and see Felix make such an ass—"

"Felix will be very angry."

"He will be annoyed; he has no more right to be angry than the rest of us; we have all been deceived, barring you, miss—"

"I mean with me. I told you in preference to him because I knew I should bring about a storm of invective at his being so completely misled. I begged Paul to go; I said I was sure something dreadful would happen, but he persisted in saying he must stay until Christmas, he must fight it out, and—then, somehow, afterwards it has been dawning on me gradually, I discovered he was in—he had become wrapped up in Felix, he—"

"He, I mean she, is more wrapped up in Felix. A nature like Farley's neither loves easily nor lightly. I pity him—her, I mean; but if I judge her rightly he will set himself the heroic task of living it down. By Jove, she looked in his—her eyes that afternoon when he—she promised Felix he would go."

"How do you think Felix will take it, Jack?" she asked, looking at the clock.

"Coolly, I fancy; it will surprise him, of course. He will show his annoyance naturally, because it will be rather a pill; but he will swallow it, make a grimace, and keep his sensations to himself."

"I think the steak and pheasant must be nearly ready. When do you propose telling Felix?"

"After breakfast. Best have the news on the top of a meal; it won't take so much effect as on an empty stomach. If you think Rose is coming after the table I will just run upstairs and warn him his services will be required to dissect that gallinaceous bird. I say, Agnes, I don't relish this job. I have a curious feeling—it must be nervousness, never experienced it before."

"I shan't stay in the room, Jack," she said, her eyes growing big.

"Oh, but you will, Agnes; you must. If Felix asks for proofs I have none. You are the only person who can substantiate what I affirm."

Agnes's eyes grew larger and darker and deeper.

"Suppose I don't," she said; "suppose I have no further recollection of that hysterical message, the gist of which was the outcome of undue excitement following a terrible tragedy."

"Do as you please, Agnes. If I make the assertion and you deny it, Felix can apply for satisfaction to Farley himself."

There was a directness and a solid meaning in his tone and look that settled any budding desire on Agnes's part to rebel. Rose set the table, touched the gong, and five minutes later brought in the breakfast. Felix took his place before the smoking bird, and carved it in profound silence. With a beating heart, and furtive glances at the moody face opposite to her, Agnes poured out the coffee, which the squire immediately rejected. He preferred a brandy and soda, causing a little welcome diversion by going to the sideboard to fetch and mix it himself. At any other time the doctor would have had something to say concerning early potations, but former experience of Felix having made him sage, and, being a discreet and learned man, with the unsavory pill occupying the foreground of his mind, he tabooed the delicate subject, choosing rather to touch upon topics less likely to set up inflammation or acute irritation. For the nonce his main object was to produce harmony, perhaps be fortunate enough to elicit pleasurable interest, and perchance some kind of response from Felix in due season.

With occasional help from Agnes, Hunter managed to keep the ball rolling. Felix, approving his marked ability, and seeing how immured he appeared to be in his own discursions, propped the newspaper against the dish cover and divided his attention between his breakfast and the forecast of the new Liberal policy.

It was a curious meal. Agnes masticated her food mechanically without knowing in the least when or how she swallowed it. She wondered vaguely whether Felix was seriously displeased with Paul, and, if so, whether an exasperated condition of mind would materially help to strengthen matters. How would he take the disclosure which was creeping so near? Would they ever sit down amicably to another meal together, or—good gracious, whatever induced Jack to be so flippant just now? Why had he developed this facetiousness with Felix sitting like a death's head at the end of the table, wrapped in a fit of gloomy depression?

Happily, thank heaven, it was the last upflare of the doctor's wit. Finding no further pretext for deferring the mauvaise quart d'heure, he pushed his chair from the table and looked at his host. Felix rose, found his tobacco, threw himself into the armchair by the fire, and commenced filling his pipe.

"What's the programme for to-day, Felix?" Hunter asked, standing on the hearth rug surveying the squire's imperturbable air.

"I am going to the Larches in half an hour's time; I want to see Denham."

"Can I see him for you? I seem to have a clear day before me, and you are not altogether well."

"Thank you, no," he returned slowly. "I shall want to go to London in the afternoon to see Hare, so I don't purpose staying indoors."

As Jack Hunter reckoned, Hare and Farley were one and the same individual. Felix would see Hare, no doubt, but he would not mind betting his practice on the surmise that Felix's sole intention was to go and thrash this matter out with Farley, and he, Jack, was not going to stand by and see dear old Felix play the fool any longer.

"Hare will keep; don't muddle about him, there's plenty of unpleasantness here without going to fresh fields to glean more. I—I have something to tell you, Felix, something which I ought, but am exceedingly loth, to explain. I hardly know the best way to part with it."

"Then keep it to yourself," Felix returned equably, holding a light to his pipe and watching the tobacco ignite; "if it's so infernally unpalatable, better postpone it, Jack. In point of fact, I am in possession of quite as much stress and anxiety as I can digest at present."

"I can't very well do that; it's about Farley."

Felix looked up sharply, lowered his eyes, blew out the light, and looked up again with a straight compelling glance.

"You have something to tell me about Farley, something disagreeable, according to your preface. Is that why he cleared out in such a hurry?"

"Scarcely, he had no idea I should tell you; to be correct, he is not aware I am in receipt of this piece of information."

"How did you come by it? Who has been at the pains to malign him?"

Agnes was still seated at the breakfast table behind the armchair: At the squire's question she twisted round and shook a warning finger at the doctor, accompanied by a look at once so pleading, so full of undefined dread, that Hunter felt bound to leave her in the background. He must perforce divulge the truth on his own account in the least offensive vocabulary, in the happiest, in the most sympathetic manner at his command.

"No one has maligned him. The person from whom I heard the story wishes him well, and would rather you were not told."

"Then I think you are decidedly officious, Jack. Why are you so zealous that I should hear this slander?"

"It's not slander!"

"What is it then?"

"I don't know. It's—the fact is, Farley is a bit of a fraud, he—he—"

"One moment, Jack!" and Felix held up his hand; "you say Farley is not aware you know this thing?"

"I am certain he has no idea that I know it."

"In that case it is hitting from behind, stabbing him in the dark, and I refuse to hear him traduced. I refuse to hear anything you have to say against him unless he is here to defend himself."

"Nonsense, Felix; you must hear this; you must."

"I won't. I won't be made uncomfortable. Besides, whatever there is to hear, I would rather he told me himself."

"But you can't ask him this, Felix. It's a curious affair; quite out of the ordinary run of events. You can't go to Farley about it. He would ten times rather I told you."

"Who else knows of this precious affair besides yourself—anyone?"

Hunter hesitated, and his eyes inadvertently wandered to Agnes.

"Oh, Agnes does," Felix exclaimed decisively; "Agnes knows. Well, come, it can't be very bad if Agnes knows."

"I did not say it was bad, I said curious, unusual, a circumstances better not mentioned to Farley. A third party's intervention is the right method to employ in this case."

"Why need I hear it at all? Look here, Jack," he said, rising and laying his pipe on the mantelpiece, a worried look coming into his pale face, "why need I be troubled with this curious, unusual circumstance, which you own is not bad and therefore not criminal? Why should I be made acquainted with anything foolish the boy has done? Farley is my friend, my familiar friend, I — in years the lad is younger than I, but that makes no difference, because in brain craft he is older, far ahead of me. He suits me in every way, he is ready with his tongue, ready with his gun, he's willing to be at my beck and call, he amuses me, he bears with me, he puts up with my beastly obstinacy and takes things as they come. We've had a hundred arguments. I've been in the wrong a hundred times, but I never remember Farley contradicting me rudely, or asserting his opinion when he knew and I knew he was in the right—the dear fellow was always in the right, though he tried not to let me know it. He's such a gentle, docile chap, only once he refused to comply with my wishes; you remember, Jack, the afternoon I wanted him to go back to town—I'm glad he refused, because I was not sure till then he—are you surprised, Jack, that I—like him, that I can't bear to hear anything said against him, or anyone try to come between us? You know the life I've lived, the solitary life spent mostly out of doors with the wind, the trees, the fields, for company; you can't be surprised I should cling to Farley, he is so wonderfully organised. Fancy that brain, Jack, brought into unison with that glorious, soul-satisfying nature of his, that strong, vigorous mind in submission, on its knees, as it were, to that tender heart—a great, moist, human heart."

He paused to finger the pipe on the chimneypiece, looked at Hunter, and resumed reverently:

"I don't believe chance brought him here; it was pity—I mean God's pity—that sent him into my life; and feeling so strongly as I do on that score, I will never — you understand me, Jack, whatever he has done — I will never let him go. Come, is it worth while to strive to implant distrust, to tax my mind with unimportant, though foolish details, perhaps, concerning Farley's past when I would far rather be blissfully ignorant of them? Is it necessary, Jack?"

"It is necessary, and it's cruel kindness to beat about the bush. You shall have it without further palaver—as I said before, Farley is something of a fraud; he entered Sir Thomas's service under false pretences, his—"

The expression in the squire's eyes stopped him.

"Go on," Felix said, advancing and taking hold of his coat tails under each elbow, "go on."

"His name is not Farley at all; it's Jervois, Pauline Jervois."

"What do you mean by that?" he asked sharply.

"My dear Felix! Don't you see; hasn't it dawned on you yet? The name is not Paul Farley, it is Pauline Jervois—it's not a man—it's a woman!"

Felix stepped back on to the fender, and threw up his hand as if to ward off an unexpected blow.

"No, no, no," he exclaimed, white and dazed; "Jack, not that; anything but that. For heaven's sake, don't attempt to palm off on me a horrible canard like that! It's—it's a black lie!" he shouted excitedly. "You can't prove it, and I'll thank you to get out of my house, off my premises—do you hear?"

"I can't prove it," Hunter said, taken aback, "but Agnes can; she went to school with him—I mean her—at Vilvorde. She told me a couple of hours ago, but she has known all along. That is why Farley refused to stay here. I am sorry, Felix, tremendously sorry, to have been compelled to tell you this. I am speaking the truth," he said earnestly, laying a sympathetic pressure on the squire's arm, "and you will believe me, because if you think a moment, if you cast your mind back over the last four months, every incomprehensible thing in connection with Farley goes to prove that it is true. You know me well enough, Felix, to be assured I would not say one word to hurt or wound you. I would avoid it in some way if it were possible, but this, it was essential, you must feel that it was necessary."

Felix looked from Hunter to Agnes, and back again to the doctor, his face colourless, his grey eyes black with the horror, the agony, with the sleuth-hound remorse creeping towards him.

"Yes, it was necessary," he said, grasping the chimney-piece with both hands to steady himself, all the confidence, the authority, the sturdy independence gone from his manner; "but, Jack, I wish I could have been spared this," he put his hand to his head. "You see, I thrashed him! Oh, heavens! how I thrashed him! He told me I should be sorry one day—one day. I was sorry from the moment I flung him away. I hit pretty hard when I am in play, but I was furious then — mad; I — you don't know what I did; you saw it—but you don't know how the thing has tormented me. It's haunted me incessantly; I dream of it continually. I've dreamed I killed him, whipped the life out of him; I've seen him lying in the shrubbery dead night after night. I've wakened in a sweat—I'm thrashing—always thrashing, with dull, heavy, sickening blows, and Farley is groaning, for ever groaning—it's heartbreaking, that patient, suppressed groaning—after a night like that I—it's troubled me more since my accident, since I can't sleep—and now you tell me that groaning, writhing creature was a woman—a delicate, slim slip of a—Agnes!"

He gazed across at her with an expression in his eyes she never forgot—it was a fearful thing to witness that deep, vast, boundless despair.

Can Now Work With Comfort

The Old Pains and Aches Are Now Only a Memory

Tells of the Wonderful Benefits Obtained From

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Like many another Newfoundlander living far from doctors, Mr. Stone feels unbounded gratitude for the benefits obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

For years he had suffered from a congested condition of the liver and kidneys, with headaches, backaches, pains in limbs and body. Words fail to describe his sufferings as well as the gratitude he wants to express for the cure.

Mr. Alex. J. Stone, West Point, Nfld., writes: "I suppose you thought I had forgotten all about you when I got Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but I haven't. You must excuse mistakes, for like many Newfoundland men, I have not much education, but I want to thank you many times for your medicine.

"I cannot tell you what I suffered from liver and kidney derangements, indigestion and constipation, nor can I find words to express how much good this medicine has done me. I feel better than I have for ve years and have given some of these pills to friends, who tell me they have done them a wonderful lot of good. I want to express my heartfelt gratitude for the benefit derived from the great medicine."

TRIED EVERYTHING WITHOUT RELIEF

Until I took "Fruit-a-tives"

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 5th, 1910.

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of the Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors but derived no benefit whatever.

Finally, I read an advertisement of 'Fruit-a-tives'. I decided to give 'Fruit-a-tives' a trial and found they did exactly what was claimed for them.

I have now taken 'Fruit-a-tives' for some months and find that they are the only remedy that does me good.

I have recommended 'Fruit-a-tives' to a great many of my friends and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly"

PAUL J. JONES

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only natural cure for Constipation and Stomach Trouble, because it is the only medicine in the world that is made of fruit juices and valuable tonics. Hundreds of people have been cured, as if by a miracle, by taking "Fruit-a-tives", the famous fruit medicine.

50c, a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Cause and Cure of Headache

The cause of headache as you know, is the stoppage of the circulation resulting in pressure on the delicate nerves of the head. In time nature will start the blood going again, but meanwhile we suffer and are unfit for duty.

Assisted by two ZUTOO Tablets, which by the way are as harmless as the soda they contain, nature will remove the pressure and stop the headache in twenty minutes. Why continue to suffer? Why be unfit?

It is really remarkable how many people now use ZUTOO to cure their headaches. Do you? If not, why not?

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet

For Schools, Hotels, Banks and Private Residences

Heretofore it has been impossible to install a Sanitary System of inside closet without water works and sewage, and you will agree with us when we say that the present outdoor system of closets are not only very insanitary, but are at the same time one of the most fruitful sources of both moral and physical ills.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet is constructed principally for families and public bodies who live in a district where it is impossible to have waterworks and sewage. It can be placed in any part of a Residence, Store, School, Hotel, Bank, etc.

We have secured the Agency for this valuable Sanitary Closet, and invite investigation of its merits.

THE MEETING

BY J. R. SEELEY.
(Short Story.)

The small boy passed him habitually during his morning walks. He sat outside his cottage railings at the long roadside on a bench. Behind him rose a flamboyant border of hollyhocks, which bobbed against the rickety railings when the wind was high. Some bustling power from within had decreed the spot as "catching the sun nicely," and the old man was meekly obedient.

He leant with both hands on a stick which was not in girth considerably less than the gaitered legs which emerged apologetically from his old-fashioned smock. Upon his face, framed in flake-white whiskers, time had etched so close a network that it might have been some antique parchment map decorated with features. His eyes, dark, bright, humorous eyes, were the legacy which youth had left him and they were alive and full of expectancy. His head turned constantly from right to left, as if he listened for footsteps.

In obedience to the law which decrees that extremes shall fraternize, the small boy felt himself immensely drawn to this ancient of days; so much so that he was wont to pass by the cottage laggingly, and invariably when it passed he dragged at his nurse's hand and strained his head over his left shoulder, till the old man looked but a thumb-high smudge in the extreme perspective. His nurse's formula, "Adone do, Master Charlie!" did not encourage him to linger. For in the event of open revolt she sometimes fell back on slaps—thin fingered, stingy ones, with a good deal of bone in them.

But a day dawned when it was decreed that nurse should come into conjunction with the bustling power who ruled behind the hollyhocks. The bustling power was addicted to laundry work; an overstarched petticoat was responsible for the meeting. The Small Boy, unshackled and left with many cautions outside the cottage, instantly approached the old man and ventured to touch his knee.

"Who are you waiting for?" he asked, and added as a tardy oblation to the shrine of discipline, "pleathe?" The old man turned his head, released one hand from the stick, applied it to an ear and said in a thin voice. "Eh?" The Small Boy renewed his question in louder key. "Waiting for" the old man repeated, and tapped his chest interrogatively, "Me?"

The Small Boy nodded like a mandarin. In to the old man's young eyes came something which, if it was not a twinkle, was first cousin thereunto, and he said, "I am waiting for a friend, young master."

"Is he coming very soon?"

"May be soon, maybe late, sir."

"But you're sure he will come?" The Small Boy spoke anxiously.

"Yes, yes, I'm sure he will come." "I' very glad you're sure. Things you aren't sure of are often disappointing, aren't they? I've watched you sitting here for weeks, and you look lonely, you know." Both the Small Boy's hands were on the thin knees with a pleasant little pressure now—the pressure of sympathetic camaraderie.

"Sometimes I be, sometimes I bain't, more often I be," the old man confessed.

"I'm lonely, too. I live wiv my guardian, an' I shall have great responsee-bilities. I asked nurse what they were one day, and she said, 'You'll know soon enough, and if you ask me another question, you'll drive me into an asylum, you will.' I wish I had a friend to look forward to." Nurse reappeared rather suddenly at this juncture, and, relentlessly collecting the Small Boy, she administered a small shake, on the off chance that he might deserve it, and bore him home.

* * * * * * * *

On the Small Boy's birthday his pastors and masters relented to the extent of permitting him to choose a treat. 'A talk with the old waiting man outside the hollyhock cottage, pleathe," was not quite the decision they were prepared for; but it was easy of accomplishment, and they gave way. Nurse—this was in the contract—remained at some distance, and beguiled the time with a book, and from a fallen tree trunk, where she kept rigid vigil, she cast an occasional and contemptuous eye upon the interview. "Is your friend good-looking?" inquired the Small Boy, presenting himself abruptly at the old man's elbow, and waking him from a doze with a start.

"Eh?" inquired the old man, and began to cough.

"Is your friend—what you're watching for, you know—good-looking?"

"Aye, to be sure." The old man switched himself on to their previous conversation as if it had taken place that morning. "Aye, to be sure. I'm a-thinking he is so—aitcha—aitcha—itch—handsome's the word."

"I like handsome people. My father and mother were handsome—they were both drowned, you know. My guardian is not handsome; a homely gentleman nurse calls him. And nurse isn't handsome. I told her so once and she said: 'Andsome is as andsome does, Master Charlie.' Is your friend dark?"

"Aye!" The old man added fresh wrinkles to his already encumbered brow. "Dark he would be, of course—remarkable dark, with a white, highish brow, and eyes shining bright and yet kind of dreamy and full of love—and a smile like the smile wot mother used to give me when the baby come and they let me in to peep." The Small Boy sat himself down on the bench and clasped the old man's arm. His face was exceedingly wistful.

"I'd like so awfully to see him," he murmured: "I—I wish he'd come now this very instant, don't you? What will you do when he comes?"

"He'll tell me what to do, sir, and I shall obey him. Maybe we'll go travelling together."

"You're very old to travel."

"He'll take care of me, she's wonderful gentle. Happen he'll take me round first to see some of the old cronies."

"Won't the women in the cottage take you?"

"My darter-in-law? Her's too busy."

"You haven't got a photograph of him—your friend—I suppose?"

"No."

"How does he dress?"

"In a longish overcoat, I'm thinking, with a cape, sir, and a softish slouch hat. He looks summat like a play actor and summat like a minister."

"Oh! I love that kind of looks. I met a man like it once painting pictures on the common. He said he was an artist but nurse took me away just when we were getting on. He said I was a 'riginal, and he gave me some money, but nurse made me give it back to him. Does your friend like little boys, do you know?"

"He's friendly to all, but mostest friendly to old chaps like me."

"Is he——?" the Small Boy was beginning, but a roundabout person in a hitched-up cotton skirt and a cross-over was before them, issuing a fiat. It was the hustling power and she had appeared to announce the old man's dinner.

* * * * * * * *

One evening, when an argosy of fluffy clouds floated across the burnished sea that was really sky, the Small Boy and his nurse made their way home. There were red streaks here and there between the fir trees, and red lights in the hedges which glorified the dying leaves and made them appear like molten bronze.

The Small Boy and his nurse drew near to the cottage. The hustling power had striven with a week's wash. It was getting late, but she hadn't brought the old man in. He sat very still, grasping his stick, and the radiance of sunset made strange play over his face, brushing away the wrinkles and giving it the lines of early manhood.

Nurse took no notice of the Small Boy's pleading face, but clamped her fingers more uncompromisingly than usual round his wrist. "Now, you come along, Master Charlie. You can't stop and speak to him to-day, we're late as 'tis." A distant whirring noise warred with the wind and defeated it. Along the winding ribbon of road which ran between them and he cottage something approached—something which houked and rattled and puffed and grew larger each moment. In a short while it disclosed itself. It was a motor replete with tweed clad men and gold clubs. The Smal Boy with his eyes on the bench gave a sudden and furious jerk to the hand which held him. His face was crimson with excitement, his eyes were ecstatic. "Let me go—let me go, pleathe—let me go—I say let me go—you beast—it's his friend coming—his friend I say—I can see him." He gave a wriggle, and jerked himself free, and in another instant he had darted across the road and under the wheels of the car.

* * * * * * * *

Three minutes afterwards they laid him undisfigured on the bench beside the old man, and the three golfers looked and felt as awkward men always do feel when they are stirred to their profoundest depths in the presence of one another. No one heeded the old man, who had risen totteringly up when the horror whizzed into his slow consciousness.

No one heeded him till he fell forward with a little clicking of the throat, and lay face downwards with one poor thin leg bent under him, and his gnarled fingers still bent round his stick. For he, too, had seen the friend, and had, as becomes a well-bred countryman, risen to greet him.

The Toppy, Tasty Toast

Food science has taught us that there is much body-building nutriment in the whole wheat grain which we do not get in white flour. The only question is how to make the whole wheat grain digestible. That problem has been solved in the making of the shredded whole wheat wafer.

It is the whole wheat, steam-cooked shredded, compressed into a wafer, and baked—the maximum of nutriment in smallest bulk. Many people prefer it to ordinary bread toast. Heated in the oven to restore its crispness it is delicious for luncheon, or for any meal, with butter, potted cheese or marmalades.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOUR

By Common Garden Sage, a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy, and gradually restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days, on account of souring quickly. This objection has been overcome, and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the colour of the hair, but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Use it and see for yourself how quickly dandruff goes and gray hairs vanish.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.—Warne Drug Co., special agents.

Date Pudding.

Two eggs, one cup of fresh breadcrumbs, two cups of milk, one cup of chopped dates, one cup of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt.

Beat the eggs, add the milk, sugar, breadcrumbs, salt, and chopped dates. Brush baking pan or individual dishes with butter and pour in the mixture; bake in moderate oven 30 minutes.

The people are patiently bearing their privations, though their sufferings are terrible.

Emile Mas, critic of the theatrical newspaper Comoedia, and M. Gaston de Cuillavet, co-author with Robert de Fleers of the comedy Primerose, will fight a duel to-day. M. Mas criticised the management of the Comedie Francais for playing the comedy too often, and when de Caillavet met him in the lobby of the theater he slapped Mas' face.

TWO SEVERE RAILROAD TESTS.

Two unique tests were made recently by officials of an eastern railroad at the company's testing laboratory at Altoona, Pa. In the first place, the officials wanted to know whether or not their new steel passenger cars were as fireproof as boasted. In one end of a car there were placed 150 lbs. of kindling wood, carefully dried, and several tanks of oil. These were ignited, but, though the flames and smoke issued from every window, when the fire had burned itself out it was found that it had not spread from where it had started and that a new composition ceiling lining had not been even charred.

The other test was to see how heavy a train could be moved, and in this a new record was established. One of the company's big moguls was hitched to 120 steel gondola cars, loaded with 6,450 tons of coal, and it moved off with them for a distance of 127 miles as though it were all in the day's work. A speed of 13 miles an hour was maintained during the run, the train measured 4,898 feet in length, a little more than 9-10 of a mile, and the entire load, including equipment, weighed 16,888,000 lbs.

To Protect the Beauty That is Yours

and to enchance it, if that be possible, is a duty none the less binding because it has been made so agreeable. That duty centres in Beauty's chief expression, the skin.

With intelligent care and the regular use of such perfect preparations as Na-Dru-Co Ruby Rose Cold Cream and Witch Hazel Cream, you can preserve its bloom in spite of exposure to raw, cold winds, over-heated, steamy kitchens, or ill-ventilated rooms.

NA-DRU-CO
Ruby Rose Cold Cream

does much more than keep the outer skin soft and supple—it feeds the underlying tissues, fills out the tiny hollows, prevents wrinkles, and gives a fresh and wholesome charm. With its subtle odor of fresh roses, and the soothing sensation which it imparts, Ruby Rose Cold Cream is a toilet gem.

The Quest of Gentle Hazard

Being the Adventures in Love and Chivalry of Lord Richard Jocelyn.

By H. M. Egbert

Sauce for the Gander

(Copyright, 1911, by W. G. Chapman.)

"The trouble with you, Richard," said his new stepmother, "is that you don't look for the right sort of a girl. Wealth is not always associated with ostentation. There are plenty of sweet and charming heiresses who have never seen the interior of any of those gaudy Fifth avenue palaces in which you fared so badly. But you have never had the luck to meet them."

Richard shrugged his shoulders moodily. Since the advent of his father and stepmother the subject of the necessity of his making a wealthy alliance had been pressed on him more urgently than ever.

"Now," she continued, "I have picked out a wife for you. All you will have to do will be to go in and win her. She isn't 'in society,' and she hasn't a string of admirers dangling after her, because she's too sensible for that sort of thing, and, I may say, because she isn't one of those flashy girls who attract men in the multitude. And if I didn't believe that you would fall genuinely in love with her, I wouldn't help you to meet her. But, money apart, you were made for each other, Richard, and I want you to marry her."

"What's her name?" asked Jocelyn moodily.

"Mary Davenant."

"Never heard of her," he groaned. "Is she a good-looker?"

"She's a nice, pretty, sensible American girl," said his stepmother. "And she's worth a couple of millions—pounds, not dollars. Of course, you haven't heard of her, for she lives a very secluded life, and has no use for fashions and follies. And I must tell you, Richard, that she is a little disillusioned by the experiences she has had. You'll have to show her you want her for herself and not for her property."

"Well, where is this paragon to be found?" Jocelyn demanded.

"She's staying at Atlantic City with her companion, Miss Constance Grice—at the Charlevoix. I had a letter from her yesterday, for she and I were schoolmates and are still good friends, and I have promised that I shall come down and bring you with me. But of course I have no intention of accompanying you, Richard; I want you to go alone. Now, pack your suit case, go down, and fall head over heels in love with her. And don't fall in love with the companion instead."

The first part of this injunction Jocelyn obeyed readily enough. As to the probability of the second or third, he was sceptical. His experiences in the search for a bride who should restore the waning fortunes of the Jocelyns had been bitter ones; still, when duty called he would not shrink from following her. And so, on the following day, he found himself installed at the Charlevoix and gazing out of his window moodily at the melancholy October sea.

The season was over, the hotel almost empty, and, even had Jocelyn gone to Atlantic City with no ulterior purposes, it would have been difficult, without churlishness, to have avoided making the acquaintance of the two ladies. They sat at the table adjacent to his own; they met on the deserted board walk; before the week was ended the three were fast friends. Jocelyn wrote to his stepmother:

"I believe that I could love either of them. They are evidently well educated women and either would adorn Doublewith Manor. But I shall follow up the heiress."

And as the days passed he found the attractions of the blue-eyed, brown-haired Mary Davenant increasingly alluring. They spent many a pleasant hour together, Miss Grice watching the growing interest of the one in the other with evident sympathy. Miss Grice was not pretty, but still an amiable and attractive girl.

And then occurred an incident which completely upset Lord Jocelyn's mental equilibrium.

It was a trivial affair, and yet it awakened in him dormant suspicions and recalled other and sadder circumstances in which he had found himself the victim of feminine duplicity. Entering the hotel late one evening, he perceived the two ladies strolling toward their apartment a little ahead of him. They had not observed him. Of a sudden Miss Grice stopped.

"My shoe is coming unfastened," Jocelyn heard her say.

Promptly Mary Davenant bent down upon her knees and tied it for her.

Jocelyn went to bed and meditated for a long time before sleep came to him. On the following day he wrote to his stepmother:

"I told you that I had come to like Mary Davenant, as I thought her to be, immensely. I have long suspected that she was not wholly ignorant of the object I had in view in coming to Atlantic City. And I have discovered that a trick has been played upon me. Miss Davenant and Constance Grice have changed places. The companion is masquerading as the mistress, the mistress as the companion, I am sure. Tell me, in heaven's name, which is which and what their purpose is."

"Dearest Richard," the answer came, two days later. "Mary Davenant is the girl with the dark hair and gray eyes. I do not know Miss Grice, but I imagine that she is fair-haired and has blue eyes, if she is the young woman I once met at Miss Davenant's house. And now I will let you into a little secret, Richard. I told you that Miss Davenant was disillusioned. She has had the same unhappy experiences that you have had. And she has known the purpose of your visit to Atlantic City, as you truly surmised. Like you, she has a duty to her family, and that is to marry a title—but she would never marry a man who had not proved his devotion. That is obviously the cause of her masquerade. You must marry her, Richard; she is not indifferent to you and you would learn to love each other."

But to have the most charming girl in the world rammed down one's throat is an attraction that is apt to cloy, and Richard, ever perverse, soon discovered that the blue-eyed companion, already more attractive to him that the dark-haired Mary Davenant, had made a profound impression on his heart. The knowledge that she was forbidden to him, added to the sense of his obligation to marry the heiress, rapidly began to render him a hopeless victim to Miss Grice's charms. He saw that, unless he could bring himself to propose to Mary Davenant immediately, he would never do so, and, in despair, selected his opportunity one clear and warm October night, when the moon was not yet arisen and profound darkness reigned outside the well-lit hotel.

Hitherto he had not betrayed his knowledge of their masquerade, but now, seized with a sudden resolution, he stopped in his walk as the three paced the piazza side by side.

"Miss Davenant," he said hoarsely, turning toward the dark-haired heiress and desperately nerving himself for the attempt, "will you come down to the stone seat at the end of the grounds with me? Let us listen to the sea together."

Without any further explanation or apology to the other for his seeming discourtesy, he led the way to the end of the grounds, until they stopped at the stone bench beneath the wall which maintains the green of the grass against the encroachments of the sand. He felt Miss Davenant follow him, almost by some sixth sense, rather than anything else, for he could see nothing in that intense darkness, and her slippered feet made no sound upon the turf.

At the seat he turned, and heard the light rustle of her scarf as the wind blew it around her.

"I want to ask you to be my wife, Miss Davenant," he said nervously.

She made no answer, but seemed to await his further words, motionless, silent, as though she were herself a part of the darkness. Jocelyn felt for her hand and caught it in his own.

"I love you, Mary," he stammered. "Will you give me my answer?"

He drew her toward him and felt her arms circle his neck. Then her head lay on his breast, and, bending down, he kissed the lips of—Constance Grice!

A feeling of intense despair overmastered him. He had played his cards, and fate had proved too powerful. But this was followed by a sudden delirious joy. Well, if Constance Grice had by this miracle been given to him, why should he place duty to his family before the dictates of his heart? Rent by two conflicting emotions, he stood gazing out into the tumbling sea, heedless of the girl who still lay silently in his arms.

Presently Constance Grice disengaged herself and looked up at him.

"Why are you so sad?" she asked. "It is because you have learned that I love you?"

"That has made me happier than anything in the world, Constance," he answered.

"'Constance!'" she repeated. "Are you thinking of my companion? Why do you call me that?"

"Because I have penetrated your wise little secret, dearest," Jocelyn answered. "I have known for days that Miss Davenant had persuaded you to change names with her, so as to test me. For she knew I loved her and she feared that it was for her wealth and not for herself." He broke off abruptly. He was like a swimmer in treacherous waters. He could not think clearly. Dared he pursue this infatuation to its irrevocable termination? Could he indeed settle himself to marry this companion, dearly as he loved her, without some further proof of her devotion? Suppose she, too, had tried to trick him into his proposal?

By revealing his knowledge of her secret he had shown in the clearest possible manner that he loved her for herself alone. But, if he defied his father and married her—considering his past experiences in love, might he not be justified in proving her also? And, since she had deceived him in the testing, would he not be justified in deceiving her in putting her to the proof?

These thoughts ran through his brain like lightning; hardly an appreciable interval had elapsed before he continued:

"You asked me why I am sad," he said. "Constance, darling, will you give me your word of honor that you love me for myself alone? That you are not enticed by the glamor of my name?"

"Why, no, Richard," she answered wonderingly.

He led her to the stone bench and sat down. "But suppose that I were dishonorable," he said. "Would you still love me?"

"You dishonorable?" she whispered, laying her cheek against his own. "You could not be dishonorable, Richard."

"But I am," he said with a groan. "I am a masquerader. I am not Lord Jocelyn. Listen, Constance. I am one of those Englishmen who, having somehow acquired a knowledge of the ways of gentlefolks, frequent this country under false titles for the purpose of gaining wealthy brides. I came to Atlantic City to pursue Miss Davenant. But love claimed me and I am happier in my failure that if I had succeeded. But I am no lord."

"Then what are you, Richard?" his companion demanded.

He hesitated, casting round in his mind for the occupation which might most easily arouse disgust in her. How could he put her to the hardest test, something commensurate with the sufferings that he must endure for her? "Tinker—tailor—soldier—sailor—" the jingle ran through his mind. Then, with an inspiration, he answered:

"I am an undertaker, Constance. Could you love an undertaker?"

"I could love any honest man, Richard," seh answered. "And I honor you only the more for having confessed the truth to me."

"But what will Miss Davenant say?" asked Jocelyn with a sudden qualm of regret.

"Poor Mary!" said Constance, smiling. "Richard, will you let me break the news to her?"

She parted from him at the entrance to the hotel, saying good night there, and left him sitting meditatively without, pondering over this new problem that had arisen so swiftly and yet had been so happily solved. It was past midnight when he went to bed.

Miss Davenant received the news with equanimity. At the breakfast table on the following morning she congratulated him and his financee kindly. Both ladies were in traveling dress.

"And so you're not Lord Jocelyn after all?" she said. "Well, you must come and visit us just the same. It is too bad that your engagement should have cut short our happy time together here."

"But why should it be cut short, Miss Davenant?" Lord Jocelyn asked. "When do you leave?"

"This afternoon," she answered.

"It would hardly be the thing to leave you two young people together here unchaperoned."

In this decision she proved inexorable, and she bore her companion away on the early afternoon train, promising Richard, however, that he might visit the ladies at Miss Davenant's town house on Fifty-fifth street, New York, on the third day, when they had finished the autumnal housecleaning. When they had gone he sat down and wrote a letter to his stepmother.

"I have made a glorious fool of myself," he wrote. "I have become engaged to the companion. And yet I am glad of it, for I know that this time I have met a girl who is exactly suited to me and that we are destined to be very happy together, for I have told her that I was only masquerading as a lord and that I am really an undertaker, and she still loves me. Will you keep up the illusion, in which Miss Davenant believes, intercede with with my father for me—and forgive me?—Richard."

No answer came until the third morning, just as he was feverishly packing his suit case for the run up to town. Then, by the last post to arrive before the train started, Jocelyn received a note from his stepmother.

"Richard," it began, "I could not bring myself to write to you before. This disgrace is too terrible for me to bear and I dare not break the news of it to your father until our own honeymoon is over; he is so proud of you and believes so fully in you. Richard, break it off like a gentleman. Poor fellow, you do not know what you have let yourself in for, for, if you thought that you deceived that designing Grice woman, she deceived you tenfold. She is only a companion in training. Miss Davenant has curious whims and is now attempting to make a lady out of a scrubwoman. Yes, Richard, it is a scrubwoman whom you have engaged yourself to, and if you will take the trouble to call at the Davenant house unexpectedly you will find your inamorata in all her native element, down on her knees, and very red in the face, polishing floors."

Lord Jocelyn Was Put to the Test of His Life

He flung the letter from him with a derisive gesture.

"So even my stepmother turns against me!" he said bitterly. "I don't care what she is. She's an angel, anyway, and fit to scrub the floor of heaven. I must be in love badly, for I am becoming quite poetical about her," he added, as he made a dart after the hotel omnibus.

Nevertheless, once he was back in his apartment on Madison avenue, surveying the face of Talbot, his melancholy servant, an insistent misgiving forced itself upon him.

What if, the romantic environments of the seashore replaced by the prosaic surroundings of conventional life, he should find that he had been blind to Constance's defects? He recalled each speech of hers, each gesture, and could remember nothing unworthy. But he longed to put his love to the test by observation, and the hours seemed torture to him.

He had written to the ladies to expect him at three o'clock that afternoon, and about that hour, attired in a black frock coat, black trousers and a sable tie, as befitted his new occupation, he rang the bell of the Davenant mansion of Fifty-fifth street. After an unusually long delay a livered servant opened the door to him.

"Er—I've come to see Miss Grice," stammered Lord Jocelyn, conscious suddenly that he had no cards suitable for his new alias.

"Well, young feller, this ain't the place to come," said the footman haughtily. "Down that airyway and ring the kitchen bell." And he slammed the door in Jocelyn's face.

For a moment, speechless with fury, Jocelyn meditated an assault upon the mahogany panels; then, controlling himself, he descended the stairs and rang the bell of the area, as he had been directed. A stout cook in a blue dress came to the kitchen door.

"Walk right in, young man," she shrilled, extending the door invitingly. "And wipe your feet. Miss Mary's particular. You'll find Connie in that room back there."

Lord Jocelyn passed through a dark passage, thinking he heard whispered giggling from every side. Once, too, he fancied he heard the odious words, "Connie's new beau!" But he disregarded these external signs of his fiancee's position in the Davenant household and passed on into a small room at the end of the hall—to find Constance, clad in a bulging print dress, busily sweeping the carpet. As he came in she scrambled to her feet, red and confused, and stood facing him, still clinging to the broom.

And then and there Richard, Lord Jocelyn, was put to the test of his life.

Down by the waves at Atlantic City, when the two women had associated on terms of practical equality, Jocelyn had been wholly ignorant of and indifferent to social ratings and ranks. It was enough for him that he loved, and that nature attuned herself to his wooing. But here, in these abodes of men, recalled with suddenness to those customs and ideas which a thousand years of civilization had hardened into a traditional code—how could he stoop to raise this servant in the ill-fitting dress to his own social level? How could he take her to wife, bring her back to Doublewith Manor, introduce her to the countryside?

And yet he had been trained in the conventional code of honor of a gentleman. Whatever he did he must do quickly, for Constance Grice had read the struggle in his face and, no longer ashamed, was watching him curiously.

And then, instead of disgust and self-pity, Jocelyn felt only love newrisen, and stronger than before. He clasped her in his arms and kissed her, and his fears dissolved like shadows before the sun.

"Connie, darling, I must tell you now," he said. "I really am Lord Jocelyn, and not an undertaker. I wanted to test your love and now I know it as surely as I know mine for you."

"Well said, Richard," cried a voice outside the door, and out of the dark passage emerged his stepmother. Richard looked at her in little surprise. So many astonishing things had been happening that one more hardly counted.

"She was testing you, too, Richard," his stepmother said. "This is Mary Davenant, my half-sister, and the best amateur actress in New York. Now, don't you dare to scold her, my dear boy. If you blame anybody you can blame me, but it was your own suspicious nature set the trap, and you yourself walked into it. I gave the order to the footman to turn you away from the front door. And Mary was acting strictly under my own orders, too, for she, like yourself, wanted to test your love for her."

"But I knew you loved me, dearest," said Mary Davenant, smiling through the tears that stood in her eyes. "Because you did want me for myself after all."

"Then all I can say to you young people," said his stepmother, "is go and trust each other henceforward altogether for the rest of your lives."

"But you—you deceived me all along," blurted out Lord Jocelyn angrily.

"I did, Richard," said his stepmother. "They say they have to drive a donkey backward to get him anywhere, and since you wouldn't be driven the way you ought to go, why—O, how true it is that it takes a woman to manage a man!"

"GRAND OLD MAN" OF JAPAN

Ito Was the Most Remarkable Statesman the Kingdom Produced in Many Years.

"The late Marquis Ito, the 'grand old man' of Japan, was the most remarkable Japanese I ever saw," said Horace G. Dunbar of Alabama, for many years proprietor of the Gibson House in Cincinnati, and later of a hotel in Seattle, at the Willard.

"When I was in Seattle I too was a guest at my hotel. It was in 1902, if I am not wrong in my memory. He had come from Japan as the special envoy of the Japanese government, and the Japanese residents of the Pacific Coast outdid themselves in an effort to pay homage to their nation's representative. When Ito arrived at the hotel, the Japanese had strewn flowers from the entrance up to his room, and he literally walked on a bed of roses. But Ito did not pay much attention to the homage paid him by his countrymen. He stopped to order from me a case of wine and a box of the best cigars, and hardly had he arrived in his room when he requested that the order be duplicated. He did not want them for himself, for Ito did not drink. He was preparing for his visitors.

"This act of Ito's proved to me what I had often heard before, that the Japanese abroad are the most hospitable people in the world. Ito was a wonderful man. He reminded me in face and figure of the virtuoso Du Pachman, who was celebrated some years ago. He was alight of figure, but his face was grave and strong. I spent a number of years in Japan and know something of the great men of that country, but in my opinion Ito was the most remarkable statesman the Flowery Kingdom has produced in many years. It was a severe loss to Japan when Ito was assassinated in Corea.

"The Japanese are a wonderfully shrewd people, but I prefer the Chinese. A Chinaman would go broke before he would tell a lie or avoid an obligation."

Golden Matrimonial Age.

An interesting and unusual estimate of the proper age for matrimony is that advanced by Mrs. Vivian, head and founder of the National Society of the Daughters of California. The happiest and most successful marriages, she says, are those between the man of 50 and the woman of 25.

At that age of discretion, she claims, the male has become more mellow and tolerent as well as more solvent. On the other hand she intimates that a girl of 20 is much harder to get along with than to get along without, and that there ought to be laws prohibiting people marrying before they are 30 years old.

When Mrs. Vivian's theory gets into working order the bachelor entering the bald, corpulent age of 50 may as well leave hope behind. If Dr. Osler doesn't get him the Daughters of California will.—Success.

Few Chances in China.

Several years ago the American consuls in China cautioned young men and women in the United States against going there with the hope of securing clerical or stenographic employment. Inquiries are again being received as to such openings and it is well to repeat the caution.

The custom of foreign firms here is to fill all important and well paid positions with persons whom they bring out under contract, so that a person arriving without such document stands little chance of securing positions that pay living wages. Minor situations are filled by clerks, stenographers and typists who live in Shanghai at salaries ranging from $25 to $75 United States currency a month. The cost of living here is not less than in the United States and the climate is not uniformly suitable to foreigners.

Live and Learn.

Probably most of those poor children of London who are receiving the sea-water cure that is being talked about have never been to the seaside in their lives. There is a story told of a party of such who were given a day at a popular resort. When taken on to the beach the little scamps hastily threw off their clothes and rushed into the water for a frolic. One, who had never been by the sea before, got his mouth full of water. "Why," he exclaimed, as soon as he could, "some one's been throwing salt in!"—Tit-Bits.

HOLD ENGLISH HIRING FAIR

Decorations Are Used by Farm Hands to Distinguish Their Different Callings.

One of the oldest Michaelmas hiring fairs in England was held in the ancient market place of High Wycombe, Buckinghamshire, recently. From a wide radius, including parts of the three counties of Bucks, Berks and Oxon, farmers and agricultural employes in all departments flocked into the town early in the morning.

Harvesting having been finished, the attendance was much larger than usual, and there was a general disposition to "change hands," though the average terms of remuneration showed very little alteration.

Several old time customs still prevail, both at the hiring and in regard to the conditions upon which farm hands are engaged for the 12 months. For instance, plowmen decorate their buttonholes with strings of whipcord to denote their distinctive calling; shepherds display tufts of wool in their caps and their forelocks, and other farm hands utilize horsehair and fancy ribbons and rosettes for their personal adornment.

A good deal of time was occupied in "making the best terms," and in accordance with precedent of many years standing the engagements were conditional on the supplying of "beer," or "harvesting allowance," as it is called. The old fashioned custom of hiring servants in this way enlisted a good deal of public interest. The pleasure fair, relegated from the streets to a spacious enclosure in the town, attracted thousands, and it will be continued as usual for three days.

Way to Remove Tattoo Marks.

Once tattooed, always tattooed, was formerly the rule; but a French army surgeon, Dr. Tranchant, has discovered a method of removing tattoo marks, whether made with india ink or lampblack. According to La Nature, the process consists of first rubbing the skin until a thin layer of the surface is worn away, then applying a mixture of lime, slacked just before use, and powdered phosphorus. The tattooed part having been coated with this paste, a piece of gauze is laid over it, covered with a bandage. The dressing is removed after 48 hours. The scab is allowed to dry in the air, and comes away in about a fortnight, without leaving a scar. If any trace of the tattooing then remains, the treatment is repeated. Dr. Tranchant claims to have applied this treatment in a great many cases with perfect success.

Great Alaskan River.

Capt. John Backland, with the four-masted schooner Transit, arrived at Seattle from the Arctic with news that the Kubak river, hitherto believed to be a small Arctic stream, is a mighty river, navigable for at least 300 miles from its mouth.

News of the navigability of the Kubak river was given to those on board the Transit by miners and traders, who for the first time had thoroughly explored its main reaches for a great distance inland.

While they say that it is navigable for good sized vessels for at least 300 miles, it is their opinion that any vessel which could get over the bar probably could make its way at least 600 miles up the stream.—Seattle Correspondence Portland Oregonian.

HAVE THEIR EYE ON THE MONEY

Modern Prince Charlies or the "Pretenders" of the Present Day

Everyone knows the story of the boy King Manuel, who is living in exile at Richmond. But the recent Royalist rising in Portugal seems to have been in favor of Dom Miguel of Braganza, whose claims to the Portuguese crown were supported by thousands even when Manuel was on the throne.

Some years ago, when Manuel came to the throne on the assassination of his father, Miguel withdrew his personal claim. His first reason was that he sympathised with the boy king, his second that he wanted to be able to live in Portugal again. In his native country he had hitherto spent only three perilous days, disguised. Most of his life has been spent in Ireland, while his mother was till recently in an isle of Wright nunnery.

Immediately on King Carlos' assassination, Miguel, who was then living under the protection of the Emperor of Austria, issued a proclamation declaring that he was ready to respond to the call of his fatherland. But the Emperor was evidently of opinion that Miguel's fatherland did not call loud enough, for he insisted on his leaving Austria at once. It was then that Miguel generously withdrew his claims. But he has revived them now that Manuel is no longer king.

France has a Pretender in the Duc d'Orleans, a descendant of the old Bourbons. But the chances of ever seeing a French crown are exceedingly slight. Though there is a Royalist party in France, it is more in favor of the Bonapartes.

The Bourbons lost in 1873 a great deal of popular sympathy by accepting from the French Government a grant of two millions sterling as compensation. And the Duke of Orleans, who lives near Evesham, in Worcestershire, is not an acceptable claimant to the throne.

Though few people know it, Britain has a claimant for King George's England crown. She is a Bavarian princess, Maria Theresa. There are still Jacobites in England who support the claims of the old Stuart line.

There are three big Jacobite clubs, the Thames Valley Legitimists, the White Cockade Legitimists, and the Legitimist Order of St. Germains. Annually they lay wreaths on the monument of Charles I. in Whitehall. A few years ago the inscriptions on these wreaths were sometimes so seditious that the Government had to step in.

But these supporters of Maria Theresa are put in rather a ridiculous position by the fact that the lady absolutely refuses to "pretend," and treats the whole idea as rather a good joke!

Spain's Pretender is Don Jaime, at present an officer in the Russian Army, as are many other princelings. But he is not at all as energetic as was the famous Don Carlos, and, knowing very well that if he put in any active claim the Tsar would be sure to cut him adrift, he lies low. The Carlist wars, which once drenched Spain in blood, ceased to be possible when "Carlos VII. of Spain" died two years ago of heart failure.

The Carlist cause is, indeed, practically abandoned now. If King Alfonso is unseated—and Spain is full of discontent with the ruling dynasty—it will be to give way to a president.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

It is reported that further exploration of the James Bay slope of Ontario, as well as the Moose River estuary and the James Bay shore, will be undertaken next spring under the direction of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Commission.

PORT ARTHUR, ONT.

The Canadian Northern Railway propose erecting a new steel dock. This dock will be about 800 feet long, and will be arranged so that several boats can unload at the same time.

THE SALMON PACK

The pack of all kinds of salmon in British Columbia for the season of 1911 it is sad, fell not far short of seven hundred and fifty thousand cases. The total pack of sockeye on the Fraser River, it was estimated, approximated three hundred and sixty five thousand cases.

WAS TROUBLED WITH

Weakness and Palpitation OF THE HEART.

Through one cause or another a large majority of people are troubled, more or less, with some form of heart trouble.

Little attention is paid to the slight weakness of the heart, but when it starts to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beats fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, then it causes great anxiety and alarm.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can and will give prompt and permanent relief.

They do this by their restorative influence on every organ and tissue of the body.

Mrs. John J. Downey, New Glasgow, N.S., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I was troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart, would have severe choking spells, and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies, but got none to answer my case like your Pills. I can recommend them highly to all having heart or nerve troubles."

THE QUEEN OF ROUMANIA

"Carmen Sylva," responding to an invitation from a league of women in Munich founded to stem the tide of luxury, has addressed to the society an interesting letter, in which her Majesty expresses sympathy with the movement. "The decline of nations," the Queen says "is generally traceable to luxury. But one cannot draw a hard and fast line in regards to all peoples; plicity itself in another. Other Climate alone has a great effect on some countries. The term luxury is at the best relative, and what is luxury in one country may be simfactors have to be taken into consideration; for instance, many of the industrial class depend for a livelihood on the fabrication of what is termed luxuries." The Queen condemns excessive luxury.

THE LAST WILD PIGEON

A Lone Bird in the Cincinnati Zoological Gardens

One lone passenger pigeon, the last survivor of the species so far as is known, lives at the Zoological garden in Cincinnati. She is eighteen years old. With her death will end the last chapter of human greed and desire to kill which has no parallel and which is almost incredible.

Less than fifty years ago the number of passenger or wild pigeons was estimated in billions. All eastern North America abounded in these beautiful and harmless birds. The flocks were so large that when in flight they extended as far as the eye could reach in every direction. So great was their number that it took several hours for a flock to pass a given point. The bird hosts were often of such intensity as to obscure the sun.

The shot gun and other common implements that have made havoc in bird life were not murderous enough in this pitiless butchery. Nets and decoys, poles, clubs, and pots of sulphur beneath the roosting places hastened the extermination. The carcasses were left to decay upon the ground or to be food for hogs.

There are few if any more lamentable instances of man's destructive power and utter disregard of life in the animal or bird world than this. The extermination of the wild pigeon has served to arouse many to the grave necessity of protecting and restoring other birds before it is too late. The gulls, terns, grebes, egrets and ducks must be saved from the fate of the wild pigeon.

She entertains the children of the district for twenty miles around at her cottage.

WOMEN FOR GERMAN ARMY

German women are discussing a project launched at Düsseldorf for the establishment of feminine conscription. The proposal is that women shall be compelled to do military service the same as men, particularly as nurses in war time and as helpers in the commissariat, transport and uniform departments of the army, both in peace and war. Such expressions as have been obtained from well-known feminist leaders indicate only moderate enthusiasm for the scheme.

THE GEORGE'S GIFT

The King, who is Colonel-in-Chief of the Royal Marines, has decided that the greater part of the George's Coronation gift shall be used as a fund to assist young marine officers of exceptional ability to meet the cost of the final stage of their training. Over fifty thousand Georges subscribed, the amount collected being over $18,000. All the subscribers' names have been engrossed on vellum for presentation to the King.

BRONCHITIS, Huskiness, Throat Catarrh

Delightful Cure Discovered That Cures Quickly.

Old-fashioned remedies were administered through the stomach only, but as it is impossible to swallow anything into the lungs, little benefit ever resulted.

Strong drugs, such as opium, chlorodyne and cocaine, were resorted to, but did more harm than good.

Nowadays, when a doctor meets a case of catarrh — finds the throat filled with mucous—sore all the way down, he prescribes Catarrhozone because he knows it goes direct to the disease.

Catarrhozone cures by antiseptic balsams that are carried by the air you breathe direct to the source of the trouble.

It aids expectoration — clears away the phlegm—carries health-laden vapors to the sore, irritated tissues.

In one minute you experience decided relief with Catarrhozone and invariably it does cure every type of Catarrh, Bronchitis, irritable throat and hoarseness.

Just think of it—a sure cure without noxious drugs—one that is guaranteed and delightfully pleasant as well. 9 Catarrhozone only, complete for two months' use, $1.00; small (trial) size 25c, at all dealers.

CATARRHOZONE A SURE CURE.

HUGE WARSHIPS FIRST OF FIVE

Eight Thousand Tons Larger Than the Dreadnought and Three Thousand Beyond the Great Orion

There is being built at Portsmouth, a warship that will be 2,000 tons larger than the Dreadnought, and, further, will be able to fire a broadside more than twice as heavy as that of the record-breaking ship of 1906.

The ship is the first of the five armored vessels, provided for in the Navy Estimates of 1911-12 to be laid down. No name has yet been given to her, but it has been suggested that she should be named Marlborough, in honor of Mr. Winston Churchill.

The ceremony of laying the first keel-plate was performed by Miss Moore, sister of Admiral Sir A. W. Moore, Commander-in-chief at Portsmouth.

Her displacement will be nearer 26,000 than 25,000 tons—which means that she will be over 2,000 tons larger than the super-Dreadnought battleship Orion, completed only a fortnight ago.

Her armament will be the same as the Orion's ten 13.2 inch guns, but a warship that will be over 5,000 tons and instead of firing shells of 1,250 pounds, the weight will be 1,400 pounds. The broadside fire of the ship will thus amount to 14,000 pounds as compared with 1,500 pounds for the Orion, and only 6,800 pounds for the Dreadnought.

There will also be a great improvement in the weapons mounted for the purpose of driving off hostile torpedo craft. Hitherto, British ships have had only 4 inch guns for this purpose, firing shells of 31 pounds; but the new ships will have 16 six inch guns all firing 100 pound shells, ten or twelve a minute.

Modern torpedo-boat destroyers are so large and strongly built that the 4 inch gun could not be relied upon to keep them at bay, but the 6 inch gun will give the new battleship ample protection against this form of attack.

In case of a torpedo ever getting home on the side of the ship, however, the hull has been divided and subdivided in a manner, not hitherto thought possible. The result of this is that even if a torpedo should make a hole in the side not more than a very small part of the ship would be affected.

The new ship will also be faster than our previous Dreadnought battleships, having a designed speed of twenty-two knots in place of the earlier twenty-one.

When all five have been laid down there will be no fewer than thirty-two ships of the "All-big-gun" type built and building for the British Navy.

Sixteen of these will be ordinary Dreadnoughts armed with 12 inch guns. The remaining ships will be armed with the 13.5 inch gun, and thus will be super-Dreadnoughts.

A REMARKABLE MAILBAG

In Winter the inhabitants of St. Kilda, the little Scottish island fifty miles from the nearest land, are completely cut off from the outside world. Two or three times during the summer an excursion steamer calls there, but for the other nine months they can communicate with the rest of the world only by means of the unique postal arrangements called the St. Kilda mail. This is a tin canister, which is tied to a buoy made of sheepskin. Money to pay the postage is enclosed and a wooden label asks the finders of the mail to "please open." The contrivance is cast into the sea when a north-western gale happens to blow and, with good luck, it may reach the island of Lewis, sixty miles away. In 1905 the mail accomplished its journey in two days. But very often it is lost. On one occasion three bags were sent off together; two were never heard of again, while the third drifted ashore, two months after dispatch, at Dunrossness, in Shetland.

FATHER OF THE GAME

Clergyman's Tribute to the Man Who Founded the Football League

A glowing tribute to the late Mr. William McGregor was paid by the Rev. W. S. Percival at the Holloway Congregational Church, England, in the course of his sermon, for which he took as his text the quotation, "A Good Man." William McGregor, a man known to the sporting world as founder of the football league, was indeed a good man, and a white man, as all who saw him in his home, surrounded by games, literature and art, recognised. He was fond of mirth and fun which was always pure and elevated, and anyone who said that a Scotchman had not the sense of humor made a great mistake. He had sat by William McGregor's side during the progress of a league game, and also during the vigorous force and intense excitement of a cup-tie, and observed his enthralling enthusiasm in the game, and it was under such circumstances that his character shone at its best. There was no place in that heart for anything injurious to the spirit of the game. He was of unswerving integrity and unfailing honor, and the speaker never knew him to do anything mean or ever heard him charged with meanness.

A good many more things could be said in appreciation of such a great and good man who deprecated the pursuit of sport to the exclusion of everything else. His love of sport was infectious, but he never encouraged any man to leave anything to secure high places in the field of ball, cricket, hockey, etc., and the woman wielding her tennis racquet could go from these things to the higher and loftier service which lay before them, as it was not the greatest thing in life to live for sport alone.

LOCAL TREATMENT FOR WOMEN'S DISORDERS

The health we enjoy depends very largely upon how the blood circulates in our bodies; in other words, if we have perfect circulation we will have perfect health.

There is a constant wearing out of the tissues in every part of the body. The blood flowing through the veins carries off this waste or dead matter, while the blood coming from the heart through the arteries brings the fresh new living tissue, the essence of the food we have digested, to replace what has been carried off. This constant wearing out and expelling of the dead matter and the replacing of it with new matter, atom by atom, goes on day and night, until in about 7 years a complete change has been effected. Thus every man and woman has an entirely different body in every particle of it from what he or she had 7 years before.

It sometimes happens, however, from a variety of causes, that the blood becomes congested in certain portions of the body. This means that the blood vessels in these parts become weakened, and the circulation in that section of the body becomes sluggish and stagnant. The consequence is that the dead matter in that part of the body is only partially carried away, and that but little of the new, vital matter is introduced there to build up and strengthen the tissues and nerves.

This condition invariably exists in all cases of female disorders. The dead matter retained in the circulation, which should have been expelled, causes irritation and inflammation of the delicate membranes, and oppresses the nerve centres. This condition is the cause of the grievous physical and mental suffering which accompanies female troubles.

To obtain relief it is evident that the first thing to be done is to get rid of the dead matter which is being held in the circulation. If this dead matter is allowed to remain there a species of blood poisoning will result and nature will endeavor to get rid of it by forming ulcers, tumors, etc.

The above explanation will also show why ORANGE LILY is so successful in curing this condition. It is a local treatment, and is applied direct to the affected organs. Its curative elements are absorbed into the congested tissues, and from the very start the dead matter begins to be discharged. A feeling of immense relief, both mental and physical, accompanies it, and the improvement is constant and positive. This feature of the expelling of the dead matter is always present to a greater or less extent, and in some cases it is so marked as to be amazing. The case described in the following letter is not exceptional:

Dr. Coonley—I am thankful to Mrs. F. E. Currah, your Canadian representative, for my health restored by your wonderful remedy. I have suffered for 17 years, but not so bad until 2 years ago. Then I had a doctor, who told me I had a tumor, and could live no more than a year. If I went through an operation I would not live through it. A year later I sent for him again, and he gave me up to die. My husband then sent for another doctor, who performed an operation, and it did me much good. I doctored with him 3 or 4 months, but became so bad again that I thought I could live no longer, and I began to long to die. One day my husband came home and threw a slip of paper to me with Mrs. Currah's address and told me a lady had advised him to write to her for a treatment that would cure me. I said it was too late, that I would die anyway. I could not lift a teacup without hurting me. Then the first doctor told me I was worse than ever.—However, my husband sent for ORANGE LILY, and the third treatment brought away one tumor. Others followed, until 7 tumors had been expelled, 2 large ones and 4 small ones. I know if it had not been for ORANGE LILY I would have died, for I could not live much longer. I would have thought it cheap at one hundred dollars for a month's treatment, instead of one dollar. It is worth its weight in gold.—MRS. GEO. LEWIS, Huntsville, Ont.

The above letter is published with Mrs. Lewis' permission. All letters received are treated as being sacredly confidential, but occasionally some patient feels so grateful for being cured that she is willing to make the matter known for the benefit and encouragement of her suffering sisters.

ORANGE LILY is a positive, scientific remedy for all disorders of the female functions. As explained above these troubles are of local origin, and require local treatment. It is just as sensible to take medicine internally for female troubles as it would be to take medicine internally for a bruise, a boil or an ulcerated tooth. In all these cases some dead matter is being retained, and the cure is effected by employing local methods for expelling the dead matter. ORANGE LILY has antiseptic, soothing and healing properties, and also tones up and invigorates blood vessels and nerves. I am so anxious that every suffering woman may satisfy herself, without cost to her, that ORANGE LILY will cure her, that I hereby make the following

FREE TRIAL OFFER

I will send, without charge, to every reader of this notice who suffers in any way from any of the troubles peculiar to women, if she will send me her address, enough of the ORANGE LILY treatment to last her ten days. CANNOT RUN PAST DANGER SIGNALS

An Apparatus Which Will Control a Train Independent of the Driver or Fireman

Trains that can never run past danger signals, trains that can never collide in fogs—such is the mental vision of safe railway travelling conjured up by the ingenious invention of a young Darlington electrician. It is an invention in which the human element—which plays so vital a part in present-day railway working—is entirely obliterated, for neither the driver, nor the fireman nor the guard, nor any other person has the faintest responsibility in its working. Mr. J. D. Chisholm, of 26 Orchard road, Darlington, is the inventor of this device for effectually preventing railway disasters. He is only twenty-six years of age, and his capacity for invention he thinks, descended to him from George Stephenson, an ancestor on his mother's side. "Briefly," he said, "my apparatus controls a train independent altogether of the driver or fireman. By its means, a train travelling at any speed—sixty miles an hour or more—can be brought to a standstill by a very simple automatic electrical device which is worked in conjunction with the ordinary signals. The apparatus consists of three parts—a plunger, or shoe, attached to one of the railway lines and connected with the signalling-box, a contact brush underneath the cab of the engine, and a magnet and tension spring connected with the throttle of the engine. When the signal is put against the train the shoe or plunger is thrust upwards from the metals, so that if the driver fails to notice the danger signal the contact brush under neath the cab of the engine touches the plunger. This completes the electric current, and, automatically the tension spring forces the throttle back of the starting or stopping position.

"In other words, the steam is completely, and automatically shut off without the driver having a hand in it at all.

"By the addition of a magnetic coil the same apparatus can operate the working of the Westinghouse brakes, which could be put on automatically when the contact-brush touches the plunger."

A TRIP OF ADVENTURE.

A Small Craft to be Sailed Six Thousand Miles

An adventurous voyage, which recalls the days of Kingsley's heroes, is about to be commenced from Bideford, in Devon, where by the quayside, is lying a thirty-three-ton ketch, the Seal, which is to be sailed 6,000 miles to Durban. The Seal has already completed over a century of service mostly in the coasting trade round around the British Isles. Captain Reinertsen, an intrepid Norwegian sailor, who intends to make this long voyage, has named the boat the Seal, as he proposed to use her in the sealing trade in the South Indian Ocean. In English ports the ketch is known as the Purveyor, the name she carried up to the time of her purchase by Captain Reinertsen. In 1810 she was built at Southampton as a Government barge, and on being sold out of service has been variously owned at Bude and Bideford and as long as seafaring men can remember has been trading on the North Devon and Cornish coasts. Captain Reinertsen, a quiet-spoken, capable-looking sailor, looks upon a 6,000 mile trip in a thirty-three-tonner as an ordinary undertaking. He will navigate the boat, with a fellow-countryman, as mate, and has shipped a crew of three Bideford sailors. In conversation Captain Reinertsen said, after fitting the Seal out with tanks at Durban for her new rade, he will sail to the Crozet Islands, some 1,230 miles S.E. of Durban, where he has a permit from the French Government for seal-hunting, a business in which he has been engaged for some years Captain Reinertsen hopes to reach Durban in eighty days, but is provisioning for about six months.

Eight Years of Bad Eczema on Hands

Miss Mary A. Bentley, Montreal

Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

Miss Mary A. Bentley, 32 University St., Montreal, writes, in a recent letter: "About nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the backs of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not bear to bathe. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema.

"Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications the burning sensations were disappearing, I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding ease from Cuticura Ointment, it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Cuticura Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone. It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book, sent free on application. Address: Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 53 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

THE ETERNAL WALTZ

"The waltz, the waltz, the Vienwaltz,
You know the true from false."

This is the haunting refrain of the new waltz which has come to London and set everybody humming. It is Herr Leo Fell's latest triumph—"The Eternal Waltz"—which is making the audience sway to its fascinating rythm at the Hippodrome. The waltz has captured London. People dance to it in every ball-room until the milkman comes and whistles it on the area steps in the morning, while the barrel organ carries it far into the streets and alleys of the slums.

TRYING TO OUST LATIN

Oxford has been discussing the question of compulsory Greek, and for the time being Greek has won the day. In the University of Paris even Latin is now fighting for its life. It is not yet threatened officially with complete destruction, though it has already for some years disappeared from the purely scientific degree of science; but some University men with influence are agitating to turn Latin out of the curriculum, even for literary degrees.

DIDN'T GET HIS TAPESTRY

A Prince Who is Out the Sum of $6,000

A curious adventure has happened to the Prince de Wagram, who according to a despatch from Bordeaux, purchased a set of old artistic tapestries from the owner of the chateau, and now the tapestries are neither in the hands of the owner of the chateau nor the Prince. They are alleged to be in the possession of a third person, who was to forward them to the Prince, but that person also says that the tapestries are not in his possession. To clear up the matter the Prince lodged a complaint with the authorities. It is certain that he paid the sum of $6,000 to the notary of the chateau proprietor. It is certain, also, that the tapestries left the chateau, but whither have they wandered nobody seems to know. They date back to 1774, and are D'Aubusson tapestries, representing scenes from the fables of La Fontaine. They could not have gone astray of their own accord, and there is a suggestion that they may have got into the hands of a gang of tapestry robbers. A former member of this gang is mentioned as doing a term in prison for theft of tapestries.

EXPERIMENTING ON MICE

A German Doctor Makes Some Observations in the Study of Cancer

Some important experiments on mice afflicted with cancer have recently been carried out by Dr. A. von Wasserman, of Berlin. The experiments were based on the hypothesis that tumor cells, being abnormally quick-growing, must require a greater supply of oxygen than normal cells. If, therefore, it were possible to get some substance with a great affinity for oxygen into immediate contact with the tumor cells, without its exerting a poisonous action on the normal cells on its way, it might be possible to bring about the destruction of the tumor by starving it of oxygen. Wasserman prepared a solution of selenium, which has an affinity for oxygen, and the solution dyed brown all round. When this was injected into the bloodstream of mice it was found that, at the outset, the whole body of the mouse was stained pink, but that after a time the color disappeared from the body. If, however, the mouse were now killed and examined, it was found that the tumor was a bright scarlet, the compound having concentrated on the tumor cells. If the animal were kept alive and the dose repeated, in the long run the tumor softened and disappeared. Selenium is a most potent poison, and as it has as yet proved impossible to prevent some portion of the repeated doses given being absorbed by the normal tissues, 80 per cent. of the mice experimented on by Wasserman died. The other 20 per cent. were entirely cured of their tumors. The importance of Dr. von Wasserman's discovery lies not in its therapeutic value, but in the line of thought it opens up to those who are studying the problem of cancer.

KEPT THE BAND BUSY

Played a March Fifty-seven Times During a Funeral

An extraordinary will made by a Viccomtess has just been carried into effect in Paris. The Viccomtess was very fond of the town band of Riom. She left it $100,000 and in addition an income of $60 a year as provision for her pet dog. She also left it a book of music which had belonged to Marie Antoinette. But the quaintest legacy was to the village of Gannat, near Riom, or rather to its local band. The Viscountess left the band the sum of $200. But it was to earn it by playing Chopin's Funeral March all the way from the Viscountess's chateau to the cemetery. A codicil to the will expressed the wish of the Viscountess to be buried at Beaument and Beaument is just nineteen miles from the chateau. The Gannat bandsmen earned their $200. They played the Funeral March fifty-seven times during the funeral procession.

ONCE WEALTHY, NOW A LABORER

A Long and Adventurous Life Went Hard With L. B. Clarke

A touching story of how a long adventurous life has left him in sad straits, is related by Mr. Luscot Blair Clarke, only brother of the late Sir Caspar Purdon Clarke, the famous art director of the Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington.

Though once a wealthy rancher in South America, Mr. L. Blair Clarke is now working as a laborer at Southampton Docks.

Since returning to England he finds himself alone in the world and almost friendless. He is now in his sixty-third year.

"I have had a strange adventurous life," said Mr. Clarke. "I saw Lady Palmerston dig the first spade of soil for the laying of the East and West Junction Railway, at Towcester, in 1864. I worked at Westminster Chambers as a clerk, in the offices of the London, Worcester and South Wales Railway, which never came to anything. I wrote the first minutes of the board.

"Then, I went to Buenos Ayers with $300 and stayed in South America twenty-two years. I made a fortune and lost it in a revolution in the 'seventies,' and when I came home poor I found I was forgotten.

My grother Caspar helped me by introduction to people who now and then gave me work, and now he is dead—he died last March—I have no one to keep me from the workhouse.

I had an abcess in my jaw, which crippled me, and it's hard rough work. Caspar went to South Kensington as a student, and became famous, but I had no taste that way; the life of the Pampas had all my best years."

HAD A GOOD THING

The Gardener and the Boy Were Checked in Their Sporting Instincts

The sporting instinct develops early in some Australian boys. Reg., who is only a junior at the public school, discovered that his new pony could trot, and the gardener, noticing its abilities in that way began to take a very keen interest in the pony—feeding it well, grooming it voluntarily, seeing that it got regular exercise. One night the gardener took Reg. into his confidence. The immediate result was the formation of a racing syndicate, the nomination of the pony in the gardener's name for the trot at the pony meeting, and Morning Glory ridden by its owner, won handsomely. Reg. rode home flushed with triumph and found his father waiting for him. Someone who thought that he would naturally be quite proud of it, had told the father about his precious sons's achievement. "Where have you been?" he asked, seriously. "Oh just for a ride," Reg. explained, but he was perturbed on noticing that as he was undoing the girths on one side his father was slipping out the stirrup-leather on the other side. The next moment he was drawing something more from the event than the stake and bets. But the gardener always maintains: "If the boss hadn't found out and disqualified us both for life, me and Reg. would have skun the rise with that pony."

PEOPLE OF THE PAST

Interesting Relics of Twenty Centuries Ago Were Unearthed

A number of interesting relics have been unearthed in the tombs of Abydos by the representatives of the Egypt Exploration Fund. Access has been obtained to tombs of all periods. From tombs dating back to the first dynasty, the explorers have much to reward their investigations. On the floor of the tomb lay in scores of limestone vases with lids, many perfect, the contents unbroken and the inscriptions as bright and as fresh as when the mourners were buried (nearly 6000 years ago). At Abydos was found the remains of an early Egyptian beauty with rings on the fingers and bracelets on what had once been a shapely arm. There, too, were found dust-covered piles of cones, the use of which archaeologists cannot explain, and, most modern find—two quaint vases near the head of a woman, both receptacles, still containing the kohl with which she was wont to paint her eyes. On the arrival of M. Naville, it is intended to continue the excavation of the Osireion at Abydos, a great subterranean building connected with the Temple of Seth. This, it is stated, represents one of the most important tasks which have still to be undertaken in Egypt. To all students of Biblical history, this coming excavation of the "Mystery-Temple of the Pharaoh of the Exodus" is a matter of considerable interest.

KING GUSTAVE OF SWEDEN.

In addition to being a wise and strong, as well as a popular ruler, he has proved most important in the industrial life of the nation. He has a large interest in a Stockholm brewery, and is one of the most prominent builders in his kingdom. He has swept away numerous slum areas, having up-to-date buildings substituted under his personal supervision—a proceeding which has benefitted his country and greatly increased the value of his own estates.

A GLASS OF MILK

Not a Suitable Food for Adults Unless Combined With Other Diet

The man who consumes a couple of ounces of fresh butter at his breakfast may consume at the same time fifty-thousand million germs. This terrifying conclusion can be drawn from a lecture on "The Story of a Glass of Milk" given by Mr. W. J. Melbush, an expert on dietetics. "Milk in its early stages," he said, "is slightly germicidal, but very soon the germs begin to grow in a remarkable way, causing sourness which is necessary for making butter. At first the amount of bacteria in butter is almost appalling. A grain has been known to contain fifty millions, but in one day the fifty millions decrease to twenty-six millions and the numbers afterwards rapidly decline. In Holland they are living in hopes of the day when they will be able to make every kind of cheese they like—green, ripe, walking or talking—just by dropping into it the right kind of bacteria. Milk is not a proper kind of food for adults because the constituents are not in the right proportion. To get sufficient energy one would have to drink eleven or twelve big tumblers a day, with the result that one would be overloaded with fat and flesh-forming food. Milk, can, however, be made into practically a perfect food by combining it with other articles, such as bread, cocoa, or a little meat extract.

REPLACING THE AXMAN

A New Method of Felling Trees in Germany

The axman is being put out of business in the forests of Germany by the introduction of a new method of felling trees by the friction of a steel wire, which is able to work its way through a 20-inch tree in about six minutes. The wire is drawn rapidly about the tree and the heat generated by the friction is sufficient to burn a thin carbonized kerf, which is both smoother and cleaner than the cut of a saw. The charcoal layer adhering to the trunk is extremely thin and allows the structure and any disease of the wood to be distinctly recognized. It enables the tree to be marked with chalk, and at the same time serves to preserve any trunks that may be left temporarily in the foods. There are many advantages in this method, notably, no waste, decreased labor, absence of all apparatus usually required, and the machine can be used in close quarters not sufficient for axes chappers.

UPHELD THE MARRIAGE

The validity of a Scottish marriage performed in the presence of two witnesses by a cab-driver in a farmhouse has been upheld at Newcastle County Court. Elizabeth McNeill, a native of Carlisle, sued the Northumberland and Durham Miners' Permanent Fund who declined to pay her benefit, because she could not produce a marriage certificate to prove that she was the widow of a miner who was killed at Walbottle Colliery in 1910.

Two witnesses of the marriage testified to its having taken place near Dunfries, and one said he knew all about such marriages, having lived near Gretna Green, where, he added, the blacksmith's son still gave certificates of marriage.

NO HANDBILLS ON STREETS

As a result of M. Lepine's new regulations against the throwing down of handbills in the street, the appearance of the city is cleaner than it has been in years. A special force of police patrol the Boulevards on the lookout for offenders, but handbill distributors find few willing to take their bills.

SNAP-SHOTTING TIGERS IN INDIAN JUNGLES

Exciting Experience of Richard Kearton While Taking Picture Records

Richard Kearton, who has made a world-wide reputation by photographing birds and beasts in their native haunts, has returned to London after a trip to India, where he has been engaged in taking cinematographs in the jungle of the wild animals, upon which King George tested his prowess as a shot.

"Many of my photographs were taken from the back of an elephant, thus presenting views of the jungle exactly as the King saw it," Mr. Kearton said. "It took me twenty days to find a tiger, though tiger spoor were plentiful. The tiger I got had seized a bullock by the nose and had dragged him on all fours into a dense jungle, forming a tunnel by doing so.

"I went on my hands and knees along part of the tunnel, and found that one of the legs of the bullock had been newly eaten, so I returned and arranged a drive. With 400 men I cleared a space in the jungle fifteen yards wide, where the tiger was to be driven, put up a thin leaf screen to hide me from the beast, and waited on the ground, not up a tree, for him.

"I had no firearms, but I had three cameramen lying on the ground beside me. Photographs taken from a tree would not give the true result. I waited there for half an hour. I knew the tiger was approaching by the beaters, some of whom were up trees, tapping like woodpeckers; others were on the ground, making hideous sounds with every noisy thing they possessed—just as the beaters did for the King.

"The tiger came down the tunnel and out into the open, and I photographed him directly he got half way across. He gave vent to a number of most terrific coughs.

"The natives wanted to kill the tiger, since it was a maneater. They could not understand why I only wanted to turn a handle at the animal. Fifteen, saying they would be his next victims, got behind the bush with spears, and when the tiger was driven up to them, three of the men rushed out with their weapons.

"The tiger leaped from the dense jungle. The man on the right and the man on the left bolted. The man in the middle turned round to emulate them, but fell upon his face. Upon that the tiger threw himself upon him, with his claws in his shoulder, like a flash of lightning, and put his head down to the back of the man's neck.

"I shouted, thinking he was going to bite through the man's spinal column. The beast looked up at me, gave another great cough, growled savagely at me, and then jumped sidewise and disappeared."

FACIAL MASSAGE AID

Respiratory Apparatus Enables One to Breathe Under Water.

A device that will be found of assistance in methods of facial massage, where the patient is required to immerse her face in liquid for a period, has been patented by a Washington man. It enables the wearer to breathe freely with both nose and mouth under the surface of the liquid. A little clip fits over the nostrils and holds them closely enough to keep out the water, or whatever the preparation may be. A little tube has a mouthpiece attachment with a bit to hold between the teeth and a rubber shield that fits closely around the mouth. With her nostrils pinched shut and this respirator in her mouth, a woman may rest her face in a basin of massage liquid for as long as is necessary to have the skin thoroughly softened by it and prepared for the manual work. She breathes through the mouth, of course, and the air comes in through the tube.

AIR COMES IN THROUGH TUBE.

TO THE POINT.

The British working man came home late on Saturday evening. His face was red, his voice suggested jollity, and there came no welcome jingle from his pocket.

"Oh, I've had a fine time!" he said. "I've been to an Empire meeting. It was grand!"

He ceased speaking, and there was an ominous silence. He looked round suspiciously.

"What's the matter with supper?" he asked angrily. "Ain't it ready yet?"

His wife, who was sitting peeling potatoes, and trying to quiet a crying baby at the same time, rose slowly and handed him the infant.

"Here," she said, "take hold of your bit of Empire while I fry the pota toes."

WHERE WOLVES ARE THICK

Mr. Ferdinand Frederick of Pembroke, Ont., hunting on the north branch of the Petawawa brought down a large black bear which he dispatched while on the run. The bear was an exceptionally big one and extremely fat, the skin being one of the finest ever seen in town. Mr. Frederick stated that wolves in that district were very thick and were killing off many of the deer.

HERE'S A FORD MODEL T TOURING CAR

$850

Handsome—Foredoors—roomy—up-to-the-minute in desired details, strong, simple and backed with a record of five years' satisfaction—giving results in all parts of the world to more than 100,000 users. This beautiful motor car completely equipped for only $850 f.o.b. Walkerville.

FACTS from FORD

¶ There are no "glittering generalities" in FORD advertising.—It gives you the established Facts—we appeal to your judgment through Facts, not with claims—and you know it's more profitable to live with a Fact than to nurse a family of "claims."

¶ There's this about FORD advertising that makes it particularly distinctive and that is its positive harmony with Facts. It is just like FORD Model T—reliable, positive.

¶ We tell you FORD Model T is the lowest priced quality car and immediately follow with the Facts.

¶ Entire mechanical construction of Vanadium Steel, scientifically heat-treated—the very best as well as the most expensive steel made.

¶ The only motor car with the Magneto built into the flywheel as a part of the motor; the only motor car in which there are neither dry cells nor batteries. This is also a FORD Magneto—built entirely in our own shops.

¶ The lightest weight 4-Cylinder motor car in the world, size, power and capacity considered—60 pounds to the horsepower.

¶ The cheapest 4-Cylinder motor car in maintenance, 25 to 30 miles on one gallon of gasoline and 5,000 to 8,000 miles on one set of tires.

¶ A durable car is best evidenced by there being in active operation to-day more than 100,000 model FORD cars; the most widely known motor car, as it is seen in every part of the civilized world, it is the Universal Car.

¶ The FORD Model T has the lowest purchase price and running cost per mile per passenger of any motor car in the world.

FACTS from FORD

¶ The high quality and the low price of Model T FORD'S are possible because of:

1st. The extreme simplicity and accurately scientific design—the creation of the marvelous inventive genius of Henry Ford.

2nd. The scientifically heat-treated Vanadium Steel material. We emphasize this because it is vitally important that you should know the sort of materials used in the construction of the motor car you buy.

3rd. The most efficient automobile factories in the world, where the workmen are employed during the entire year building only this ONE WONDERFUL CAR.

4th. The large production—75,000 FORD Model T cars in one year.

5th. The Ford Motor Company devotes all its energy to the production of only one car; it finances the entire business itself, and this is a mighty force in manufacture; no borrowed money, no interest-bearing bond issues, no mortgages, but everything bought and paid for with spot cash, and sold the same way.

¶ There is intense significance in the fact that every third car sold in Canada last year was a FORD Model T. This significance increases when you know that every second car made in Canada this year will be a FORD Model T.

¶ FORD Model T cars would not be made in such quantities if established merit had not produced the demand. If the Model T had not satisfied its thousands and thousands of users.

¶ FORD Model T car is in largest demand because of its all round utility; it meets the motor want of everybody, from the man of leisure to the busy worker, from the doctor and professional man to the banker and farmer.

¶ Remember all FORD cars are sold fully equipped—we specify the equipment article by article. When you buy a FORD Model T you buy a complete car.

¶ In addition to FORD Model T Touring Car we have for prompt delivery:

Ford Model T Torpedo, fully equipped, f.o.b. Walkerville.....$775
Ford Model T Commercial Roadster, fully equipped, f.o.b. Walkerville.....$775
Ford Model T Town Car, fully equipped, f.o.b. Walkerville.....$1100
Ford Model T Delivery Car, fully equipped, f.o.b. Walkerville.....$675

¶ We have a series of valuable booklets covering important information for the owners of motor cars. These books will be mailed promptly on request. Branches and Large Distributors in all Principal Cities. No Ford Cars Sold Unequipped.

THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON MEMORIAL IN ST. PAUL'S.

Sixty years have elapsed since the Duke of Wellington passed away, and at last the memorial in S. Paul's Cathedral, London, to the victor of Waterloo is to be surmounted by an equestrian figure of the "Iron Duke." For many years the Dean and Chapter have had in their possession a sketch made by the late Alfred Stevens, who designed the memorial, and nine years ago a decision to add an equestrian figure was come to. A committee made itself responsible for the cost, which is said to be £2,000 and the work was entrusted to Mr. John Tweed, the sculptor. A few days ago the statue reached the Cathedral, and after the evening service workmen succeeded in placing it on the top of the memorial. The horse and rider are life-size, and weigh 25 cwts. The Duke's head is bare, and he wears a military cloak, and has his sword by his side. In his left hand he grasps the reins, and carries a Field-Marshal's baton in the right. There will be no formal unveiling ceremony.

MAY SEE BY WIRE

The problem of seeing by wire is gradually being solved, although the difficulties to be overcome before any general results will be obtained are still very great. One of the newest systems is that of Professor Rosing of the Technical Institute of St. Petersburg. It depends on the "seeing power" or sensitiveness to light of what is termed a photo-electric element. Professor Rosing has succeeded in constructing a receiving apparatus which is compact and which requires no complicating mechanism. The whole system is very ingenious and so simple that development of it to actual general use appears quite possible.

A fine pencil of light traces rapidly a picture on a screen and reconstructs any image facing the transmitting apparatus. Suppose, for example, that a man stood before the transmitter just as he might stand before a telephone instrument to speak. Two sets of compound mirrors move in such a way as to project his image—a small portion at a time—upon the sensitive photo-electric element. The person watching the receiver sees a dark screen, which is lighted up by a small fluorescent spot when a current comes from the element over the telegraph wires. This spot of light is caused by the invisible rays of a specially constructed vacuum tube, which strike the screen and cause it to glow, the strength of the glow being regulated by the amount of light falling each instant on the sensitive element in the transmitter.

The movements of the mirrors are also made to vary a series of electric currents which make the spot of light follow exactly the same course as the rays of light preceding from the person standing in front of the transmitter. The result is that as the mirrors reflect the image of the person on the element the other person sees the image reconstructed on the screen. The whole thing takes place in an instant, and after one complete cycle it takes place again, so that a continuous image is seen on the receiving screen.—New York Tribune.

The Nice Count.

Colonel Alexander S. Bacon, President of the Men's Equal Suffrage League of Brooklyn, said the other day to a reporter:

"Yes, it's true that you won't find many American peeresses enrolled under the suffrage banner. The girl who lets a foreigner marry her for her money is, anyway, a rather poor specimen."

Colonel Bacon frowned.

"There's a New York man,' he said, "whose daughter, during a winter in Nice, became engaged to a certain count. The New York man was rich at that time, but a few weeks before the date set for the wedding he went to smash.

"'My dear count,' he groaned that night, 'I'm very sorry for you. You are to marry my daughter—you were to have had $35,000 a year—but the crash has come. I'm ruined now. How sorry I am, count!'

"But the count gave the New York man a reassuring slap on the back.

"'Oh, don't you worry about me, sir,' he said, with an easy laugh. 'With a title like mine, you know, I can find another heiress to-morrow.'"—Washington Star.

USE CHEMICALS IN WAR SHELLS

Bombs That Contain Poisonous Fumes And Produce a Dense Fog

A new form of warfare—more terrible and revolting than anything imagined by fiction writers—if all that be claimed about it be true—is at present under consideration by the British Admiralty.

The details concerning the new warfare were discovered, curiously but all over the world.

and colonial military officers who replied to the following advertisement, which appeared in a London paper:

"WAR—Gentlemen of independent position, who are conversant with the requirements of modern warfare and who may be willing to take part (on directing certain important developments of emolument) in organising and directing certain important developments, are invited to communicate with———"

The "important developments" resame as are now being considered by the Admiralty, and are known by the title of "chemical warfare."

In "chemical warfare" shells and bullets are charged with various chemicals, which, falling among the enemy's army of fleet, can, the inventor claims, be made to produce:

1. Fumes which blind everyone within a radius of a quarter of a mile.
2. Fog, completely enveloping a a vessel or fort and too thick to be penetrated by powerful searchlights.
3. Fumes poisonous and instantly fatal.
4. Fire; literally setting the atmosphere on fire.
5. A device—not yet perfected—to scatter germs of cholera, typhoid or smallpox, among the defenders of a fort, or the garrison and populace of beleaguered town.

Such horrors of death and destruction are the invention, it is stated of a benevolent-looking old gentleman, with a white beard and a mild blue eye. He is, unfortunately, a cripple, but his brain is active and his discoveries may revolutionize warfare, if not abolish it entirely as being something too awful for civilised man to contemplate.

His description of chemical warfare and the part his discoveries will play in it was conveyed to the party of retired officers as follows:

"Chemical warfare is at once the newest and the oldest form of highly skilled adaption of the Shinfighting. 't is an elaboration and a highly skilled adaptation of the Chinese "stink-pots" and the Greek fire of the fire of the Middle Ages.

"Its chief advantage is that whereas modern weapons entirely on impact, chemical weapons do not. In other words, a shell in chemical warfare is near enough to kill a man if it lands a quarter of a mile away.

"In chemical warfare the target is not merely the ship or the man—it is the air for hundreds of yards all round. We don't have to hit at all; we use the surrounding atmosphere, and this is how we use it:—

"Take first of all, the fumes that blind. This is a discovery of mine I call 'Blindite.' It was an accidental discovery with which I nearly blinded myself. So powerful is it that you could get enough inside an ordinary 30 calibre bullet to blind all the people in an ordinary 15 ft. by 12 ft. room.

"A large shell, charged with "Blindite," and burst over a man-of-war, would blind everyone on board. In the fresh, open air the effect would last, perhaps, only twenty minutes, but in a closed room the effect would be permanent.

The Fog Shell.

"Another feature of chemical warfare is the fog-shell. The ingredient in this shell turns the atmosphere into dense, heavy fog for hundreds of yards round the spot at which they burst.

"In warfare the fog-shell could be put to manifold uses. It could be used to envelope a warship at sea and so prevent it from noting the movements of the opposing vessels.

"So dense is this chemical fog that the strongest searchlights cannot pierce it. A small torpedoboat could surround a Dreadnought with chemical fog and then sink it at its leisure.

"On land the fog-shell could envelope a battery, a regiment, or even an army, and the movements of the attacking chemical army would be completely concealed from them.

"The fire shell is charged with material of somewhat slow combustion. Wherever it burst the air all round is full of little blazing specks like a storm of red-hot dust. The temperature of the air would be raised to a degree at which human life could not endure, and all magazines would be exploded.

"Other chemicals I have which when burst in a shell would cause instant death from poisonous fumes, and there is the possibility—quite simple to conceive—of filling a shell with germs or bacilli, which would fill the enemy's atmosphere with dreadful diseases, poison their water supply, or set up an epidemic more deadly than any battle in the history of the world."

Even if the Admiralty allow these new horrors of war to go to a foreign country, the project is to be put before old military officers of both the Home and Colonial forces, with the object of interesting them in the formation of a band of experts, without Government aid or assistance, to test these new chemical discoveries to the fullest.

It is hoped, thereby, to make England, the leading country in chemical warfare, so that, if the next few years sees a sudden and complete revolution in fighting methods, Great Britain will be able to command the services of a regiment of chemical experts at a moment's notice.

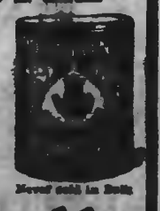
Here is a New Kind of COFFEE

And We Give You A Pot To Make It In—Free



To get to the heart of the coffee question, you must do as we did—get to the heart of the coffee berry. The coffee berry is protected by Nature from the insect world, by a tough inner shell or coat. This shell contains tannin and other bitter substances.

It is this shell, roasted and ground up with ordinary coffee, that causes indigestion, headaches and other ill-effects so common with coffee drinkers.

Yet there is no other beverage in the world so thoroughly wholesome, healthful and delicious as good Coffee when properly made.

Never sold in Bulk — Never sold in Bulk

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

is this good, wholesome, delicious coffee. It contains no chicory and by our special process of grinding, every particle of the bitter tannin-bearing shell is removed. We take out all the injurious parts. We leave the meat—the heart—the flavor—the aromatic essences that mean so much to coffee-lovers.

The Percolator, or French Drip Process, is the only way to make really good coffee. We have secured sole rights at last for a practical, economical, refillable French Drip Coffee Pot.

We will give it to you free so that you can try Dalton's French Drip Coffee as it should be made. Read our offer. We have put up Dalton's French Drip Coffee in two Blends

This is the Coffee Pot we are giving away with 2 tins of Coffee at 60c. per tin.

—MILD and STRONG. You can't tell which one you will like best until you try both. Dalton's French Drip Coffee is better and costs less than any other if made in Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot. That is why we make this special offer.

FACTS FOR THE CURIOUS

ELECTRICITY IN THE AIR BLAMED FOR ILLS.

A theory promulgated by a European physician, that there is altogether too much electricity purposes at large in the atmosphere, and that its presence is having a baneful effect on the human race, is discussed in American Medicine. The writer states:

"A new cause for toothache and certain nervous diseases has been found by a European physician in the high-tension electrical currents that are produced in the course of wireless telegraphy. This same savant is quoted as predicting a general increase of nervous ailments traceable to this same cause. He believes that the neurotic elements are so affected that a low-grade neuritis is produced, which progresses according to each patient's general physical condition, habits, etc.

"At first thought, this theory of atmospheric electricity exerting pathogenic action on the nerves or any other tissue seems unreasonable, but like many another new and original premise, the more it is considered the more reasonable it becomes. The insidious effect of the X-Ray on the skin and other tissues, the neuroses or neurotic tendencies frequently forces them to spend considerable periods in rooms where powerful dynamos are constantly running, and the tropho-neurotic affections so often encountered in physicians who use day in and day out, the ultra-violet, high-tension and other forms of electricity are all more or less common, and lend colour to the possibility that electricity has pathogenic as well as other properties about which practically nothing is known."

ELECTRO-PLATING ON GLASS AND CHINA.

An electrical discovery of far-reaching commercial importance has been made recently by a young Italian scientist, Quinton Marino, son of the Professor of Chemistry at Rome. By persistent and systematic research he has established a system by which all normally insoluble substances, metallic and non-metallic, can be plated with a hard and absolutely protective covering of the commercial metals and their alloys. In every department of life requiring the use of metals the discovery offers some benefit. To engineering it promises a revolution. The immediate commercial possibilities extend from a distinct development in the production of articles for personal adornment and domestic use, through the wide and exacting field of surgery to the solution of the vast problem of electrical transport. Hitherto the complete adhesion of metals to such materials as glass and earthenware has only been affected by burning or the use of cements. The abnormal cost of some of the finest decorative porcelain and pottery has been due to the large percentage of breakages in the burning-in processes. To-day the thinnest or thickest coating of any metal—lead or gold—can be applied at the ordinary temperatures. So thin may be this coating that the finest detail in a bas-relief remains unaffected, or so thick on the other hand, that engraving of the boldest type may be undertaken upon the metallic deposit.

CLOTH FROM NETTLES.

The search for a cotton substitute has been going on in Europe for a long time and many experiments have been made with the common nettle which has been a promising plant on account of the strength of its fibre, and its ready growth while under the most discouraging conditions, with a large yield per acre. The great difficulty has been in separating the fibre from the woody stem. In a method of treatment that has been worked out in the last two or three years, the dried nettle stems are boiled about half an hour in dilute soda lye, and the loosened fibres are then separated in a machine with revolving brushes. The material is then subjected to a number of alternate boilings in dilute lye and thorough washings, both under high pressure. The product is a mass of yellowish fibres, free from gum, that can be bleached, combed and spun into lustrous white yarn. This is claimed to have the smoothness and softness of flax, with the strength even greater than that of hemp. The yarn has been made into brilliant damask, and can be used—alone or with other threads—for upholsteries, ribbons, and a variety of fabrics.

A FRUGAL CHAUFFEUR

Few men could tell a story with greater gusto than the late Henry Labouchere.

"I got a car while I was in Italy," he told a party of friends, "and got an Italian chauffeur, a native of the town I was then staying in. I found him a most dangerous man. The first week we ran over a child; the second week we ran over a child; the third week we ran over a child. I had to pay an indemnity in each case, and my new chauffeur began to be expensive."

Mr. Labouchere spoke to a friend about it, and the friend asked for a description of the chauffeur. When Mr. Labouchere had given it his friend laughed.

"Oh, I know that man," he said. "He sticks his own children in the way."

"After that," says Mr. Labouchere, "I told the chauffeur he would have to pay the indemnities himself. We had no further accidents."

EGG MEMBRANE AS SKIN.

Dr. Max Staller, of Philadelphia, who recently discovered that the white lining or membrane of egg shells can be used with success as a substitute for human skin in grafting operations, explained his discovery to a medical society recently. Dr. Staller had with him a young woman whose life he saved by his new method, and, using her for a subject, he explained how he had performed the operation and its results.

Experiments have been made at the Philadelphia hospital for a period of more than three months, and in every case the victims of burns have been benefited, if not entirely cured. The woman whom Dr. Staller used as a subject was so fearfully burned last May in an oil stove explosion that the doctors did not believe she could live through the operation. Fresh eggs were secured and the membrane carefully taken off. It was cut in square pieces, placed quickly on the burned area and tightly bound with a wet dressing. Some weeks later when the dressing was removed it was found that the larger number of pieces had started to grow. A few scars now show the nature of the burns.

ARTIFICIAL OPALS.

After working patiently for fifteen years, William Rose, a lawyer of Independence, has discovered a secret process for manufacturing opals of the precious variety.

About all that he tells is that the opals are made of silica. He has known for a long time how to make the jewels, he says, but only recently discovered how to inject the fire into them. The iridescence is there, but can only be seen under a glass.

The inventor says, however, it is now only a matter of a short time until he will bring the colours to the surface.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

SPOTS ON MEERSCHAUM.

The usual way to prepare a meerschaum for colouring is to boil it in a preparation of wax which is absorbed a thin coating being held on the surface of the pipe, which is made to take a high polish. Under the wax is retained the oil of tobacco which is absorbed by the pipe, and its hue grows darker in proportion to the tobacco used. The specks on your pipe are probably the result of using the tallow. They will probably disappear in time, but it will hasten their removal if you rub the pipe when it is hot with a linen cloth. If they do not disappear you might remove the wax by rubbing the pipe carefully with a soft rag wetted with methylated spirit and dipped in powdered pumice, and then steep the pipe for some time in a solution of one part of liquid ammonia to two parts of water. This will remove the tallow and also the tobacco oil, and the pipe, when thoroughly dry, can be rewaxed.

CEMENT FOR CROCKERY.

One of the strongest cements for crockery and most easily applied, is lime and the white of an egg. To use it, take a sufficient quantity of the egg to mend one article at a time, shave off a quantity of lime, and mix thoroughly. Apply quickly to the edges and place firmly together, when it will very soon set and become strong. Calcined plaster of Paris would answer the same purpose as lime. If the jar is not actually broken apart, but only cracked, the only way to treat it is to paste strips of hog's or bullock's bladder, softened with water, over the cracks and dry at a very gentle heat.

DUST CLOTHS.

The following formula is given for preparing dust cloths: Mix 30 parts of paraffine with 10 parts of double refined rapeseed oil, heat moderately, and stir into it 1 part of melted gum benzoin (gum benjamin). Immerse the cloths in this liquid so as to become entirely saturated with it; wring out well, and dry in a shady place. The cloths do not injure even polished furniture, but rather enhance the brilliancy.

The Mill is Completed

From Cobalt we learn the new mill at the Beaver Consolidated Mines is practically completed, and this much-needed plant will probably begin to treat the immense reserve of low-grade ore within the next two weeks.

An important announcement which will prove of material benefit to Beaver stockholders will likely be made within a few days, and, when details are completed, will emphasize the shrewdness of President F. L. Culver.

Beaver Consolidated returned, during the final eight months of last year, 8 1-2 per cent. of its capitalization to the stockholders, and we anticipate another declaration of 3 per cent. will be made within the next few weeks.

The placing in operation of the new concentrating plant will increase the earnings of this company to such a marked degree as to practically assure a continuation of dividends at a rate of 12 per cent. annually. At present levels this would mean a return of about 26 1-2 per cent. on the investment.

A 30-ton car of high-grade ore is ready to be shipped from the Beaver, and this will go forward this week. The last shipment from this mine netted the company over $50,000, and the car now ready to be sent to the smelter, we are advised, contains similar grade ore, and will net the already strong treasury of Beaver Consolidated an equal amount.

WE RECOMMEND THE IMMEDIATE PURCHASE OF BEAVER CONSOLIDATED STOCK.

The Spice Of Life

(Short Story.)

BY ELIZABETH LINCOLN GOULD

As Mrs. Holden said good night to Mrs. Marston in the doorway of the Marston kitchen, both women took a long, satisfying survey of the starlit sky. "It'll be a prime day for county fair," said Mrs. Holden. "And it ought to be—many years as 't is since 'twas held in Bushby."

"It certainly ought," assented Mrs. Marston. "And I expect we shall both have a grand time and a sight of things to talk over afterward. You still hold to our plan of keeping apart, I suppose?" She looked rather anxiously at her old friend as she spoke.

"I do so," returned Mrs. Holden, after a slight hesitation. "Folks that have lived side by side upwards for twenty years, and been everywhere together, stands to reason they need to separate once in a while. You aren't weakening on it, are you?"

"No, indeed," said Mrs. Marston, quickly. "I've told Josiah how we've planned to start different times and take the two roads, and so on. He's agreed to everything; said he hoped our plans weren't such that he couldn't get a word with your Amos now and again. Men folks are so dependent on each other."

"Amos said the same to me," admitted Mrs. Holden. "I suppose they'll try to get off into some corner together. Well, good night again." And she stepped briskly across the short "neighbour path" that led to her own kitchen door. It had been carefully planned that Mrs. Marston should drive out of his dooryard at eight o'clock the next morning, whereas the Holdens were not to start until half an hour later; but it was not half-past seven when Mrs. Holden appeared at the Marston's door, with an apologetic air.

"I know we said we wouldn't see each other," she began, "but I do so rely on your judgment, Mary Anne. Do you think it's liable to blow up cool enough for me to need my grey shawl coming home over my new jacket?"

"N-No." Mrs. Marston considered a moment. "I tell you what—I'll take along my little black cape extra; you could have that in case of need."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Holden, eagerly. "Well, good-bye. I suppose we'll catch glimpses of each other during the day. Have you heard about Anna Stacey's—but, mercy me, I mustn't delay you a minute. That news will keep."

"Josiah," said Mrs. Marston, when they were well on the road to Bushby, "have you heard any news about Anna Stacey?"

"Anna Stacey?" repeated Mr. Marston, with a ruminative air. "Now who might she be?"

"My land," cried his wife. "You do try me, Josiah, if you are good as gold. She's the girl Willie Hobbs wants to marry. Now do you know?"

"M-m, yes, it comes to me now," said Mr. Marston. "No, I haven't heard anything about her that I can recall." There was a look of exasperation on his wife's face which for some reason or other failed to disturb her husband. He drove tranquilly on, talking of the fields and houses they passed, apparently not noticing Mrs. Marston's lack of interest in his chosen topics. When they reached the fair ground, he pointed out a group of people to his wife, and waved his hat to one of the men. "There are the Hillside folks you've laid out to keep company with to-day," he said cheerfully. "I'll set you down here so's you can join 'em without losing any time. I'll go pick out a suitable hitching spot." Mrs. Marston descended from the vehicle and gave her skirts a careful shake.

"I s'pose there isn't any sign of the Holdens yet," she said, looking over her shoulder and trying to speak unconcernedly. "Their horse is some quicker gaited than ours."

"I guess you forget they are going to stop in the village and collect her cousin Filura and the children," said her husband. "And when they come they're bound to keep away from us, so's to get that variety you've spoken of, aren't they?"

"When you get ready you can hunt me up." Mrs. Marston's tone was a trifle short. It was nearly noontime when Mr. Marston saw his wife again. She was closely surrounded by the Hillside group, but her husband managed at last to catch her eyes and beckon her toward him. "Where have you been?" she demanded, as she reached him. "These Hillside folks are all your friends more'n mine, anyway, and they kept inquiring for you till I'm worn out. I call it pretty work, me listening to a lot of talk about Hillside doings, and my own husband never coming near me."

"There now," said Mr. Marston, in his most soothing way. "There now! I've been with Amos Holden and his wife. Wait till I tell ye. Their cousin had been called away sudden by an accident to one of her husband's sisters, and she'd taken the children; and they don't know a soul here excepting those from home and the ones you're with, and she thought, considering your contract——" Mrs. Marston made an impatient exclamation and pushed by him. She had caught sight of a dear, familiar face, from which two soft brown eyes gazed wistfully at her.

"I'm not—I'm not keeping to our agreement," faltered Mrs. Holden, as her old friend hurried across to her. "I don't want to interfere with your good time or——" Mrs. Marston drew through her arm the hand outstretched to greet her. "Let's find a place where we can sit down," she said. "There hasn't been a minute since we started that I haven't missed you. It began with Anna Stacey—and what is it about her anyway? Here, I see a place for us. Those Hillside folks will be glad to be free of me. They've had me right on their minds, and made a piece of work trying to entertain me. Now, Josiah you and Amos needn't laugh. We've tried a new plan and found it won't work and——"

"I don't believe they hear you," whispered Mrs. Holden. They had not heard. Long before his wife's speech was ended Mr. Marston had drawn Mr. Holden off to look at a new variety of squash. Their backs had a contented air as they stood close together. "Just like children, men folks are," said Mrs. Marston, and she gave the hand resting on her arm an affectionate squeeze.

"And now about Anna Stacey?"

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth Its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of "Nerviline" around the stable has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. To cure colic, indigestion, and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth in the same class as 'Nerviline.' Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock, stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, 'Nerviline' is worth a dollar a drop.—James E. McCullough, Stock Breeder, etc."

You will not regret using Nerviline—but see you get it and not something else. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

NIGHT SIGNALS FOR AVIATORS.

The kind of night signal which aviators will need in the future is now being used at the Treptow Observatory, near Berlin, in connection with atmospheric experiments. It consists of a crimson balloon, a little more than three yards in diameter, carrying an electric light in its centre and a hygrometer, or instrument for measuring atmospheric changes, attached to a bell. The wires of the electric light are used as the guide rope of the balloon. When the balloon is sent up to a level free of fog, the registering instrument communicates with the bell, and thus the balloon's arrival in clear air is announced to those who are working it from the ground. These balloons are easily visible at night, and can be readily distinguished from other sources of illumination.

CAUGHT A BAD COLD.

DEVELOPED BRONCHITIS. SHE COULD HARDLY SPEAK.

Bronchitis begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness, and there is a dry, harsh, croupy cough.

After a few days mucous begins to be raised. This is at first white, but later of a greenish or yellow color and is occasionally streaked with blood.

Cure the first symptoms of bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and thus prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning to consumption.

Mrs. Edward Travers, Campbellton, N.B., writes—"I thought it my duty to write and let you know what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I caught a very bad cold which developed into bronchitis. I was so choked up I could hardly breathe. I tried many medicines but they did me no good, and I had almost given up in despair. A friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle and felt much better, and by the time I had taken four I was completely cured, and I can assure you I cannot say too much in its praise, as it is all you claim for it, and more."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

THE FELLOW WHO WINS

By Christian F. Reisner

The fellow who never smiles usually cannot be trusted. The man who cannot enjoy a good clean joke is a pessimist. The world needs a good many laughs. They make the blood circulate. They rest the nerves. They brighten the eyes. Life is a serious business at its best. But the world does not rest on our shoulders, as it did on the mythical Atlas. It will run without us. Do not take life too seriously.

Aim high. Ambition must always be higher than the present attainments. Great artists never paint another "big" picture after they have reached their highest ideal. A satisfied chap never pushes, he simply follows the crowd in a leisurely way. George W. Childs, when working for $1.00 a week looked over at the Philadelphia Ledger, and said, "Some day I will own it." And he did. A carpenter was using unusual care in building a judge's bench, for which he had taken contract. When twitted over carefulness, he said, "Some day I mean to sit there as judge." And he did.

The Jack-of-all-trades never becomes master of any. The fellow who bubs about looking for a soft snap soon becomes a hollow rubber ball. Better be the master of a small job than the mere hanger-on of a big one. Activity ought to be worthy a man. Domitian was a great Roman Emperor, but he spent his time killing flies. Some men occupy themselves with baby play.

Some people have eyes and see nothing. All good tagged bargains are not necessarily cheap. What would a God-carrier do with a stove-pipe hat?

800,000 COAL MINERS WILL STRIKE

Great Britain is Face to Face With a Most Serious Situation---Quit Work in Thirteen Days.

A CRISIS AT HAND

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 17.—Great Britain is face to face with the most serious coal situation in her history. This morning no fewer than eight hundred thousand miners handed in their notices, signifying that they will quit work in thirteen days. The colliery owners are insuring not only collieries but private residences as well against damage. The military authorities are also making inquiries in coal mining districts for facilities for billeting soldiers. The Government announces that it will take the crisis in hand early next week, although there is at yet no indication of how it proposes to attempt to break the deadlock.

SAFE AT LAST IN CIVILIZATION

Chengtu Methodist Missionaries Arrive Safely on This Side of the Pacific--The End of a Perilous Period of Uncertainty

Mrs. (Dr.) Hunter has received with delight that may be better imagined than expressed, a telegram from her daughter, Vieva (Mrs. H. D. Robertson, in these words:

San Francisco, Feb. 15.

"Leave to-day; Chicago Monday morning. Will arrive Toronto Tuesday. Vieva."

The conversational limits of the erborough from Mr. H. D. Robert- terpretation of these brief words. It is certain that the portion of the party of the greatest local interest is safe; and that the whole party is also safe is to be inferred from a letter received this morning in Peterborough from Mr. H. D. Robertson, written from Chang Sing some weeks since, presumably near the Coast. From this letter it is learned that the Cheng-tu missionary party under the escort of a hundred soldiers, had arrived safely at the point of embarkation for Canada. It is more than probable that the whole party came across the Pacific in the same steamer.

WORKMEN KILLED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., FEB. 17.—Two workmen were killed and five injured when a Pennsylvania westbound express ran into a work train, wrecking two cars, near here. Two of the injured have since died. Total injured, eleven. The wreck was due to the failure of the engineer to see the danger signal on work train through foggy weather. All dead or injured were railroad employees on the work train.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH M. BENSON

Mrs. G. Spilsbury, Downie street, received a message this morning announcing the death in Winnipeg of Mr. Joseph M. Benson, son of the late John K. Benson, Esq., who resided on Water street north. Mr. Benson leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife, Ida, daughter of the late Joseph Huston, Esq., who resided at the corner of King and Stewart streets; one son, Joe. Mrs. Charley Lowery, at present on her wedding tour in California; Tylie and Nora, Mrs. Brock, Weller street, is a sister. Deepest sympathy is extended from a host of friends in this city.

Card of Thanks.—Mr. Alfred Nash, one of the last Saturday's fire sufferers, and now residing at 220 Edinburgh street, desires, through the medium of these columns, to thank the many kind friends who contributed to the relief fund.

Ald. Gordon, One of the New Members of the City Council and Some of the Things He is Interested In

WILL ASK FOR CHARTER TO BUILD ELECTRIC LINES OUT OF PETERBORO'

Proposal Shrouded in Secrecy But General Plan is Believed to be Known---City Will Protect Its Interests---An Old Proposition in a New Form.

An electric railway radiating from Peterborough is again before the people in the form of a proposal which may be materialized. Mr. E. H. D. Hall, who is representing those interested in the scheme, says it may be a good opportunity for the building of an electric line from Peterborough into the country north of the city and also south to Rice Lake.

This plan has been mentioned so often already that people are inclined to be skeptical when it is mntioned, but in this case notice has appeared that a charter will be sought from the Legislature, giving the proposed company the right to build electric lines from the city to various points in the county.

The main scheme, as it has been unofficially outlined, is an electric road extending from Peterborough north through the Kawartha Lake district, to Apsley, and possibly a little further north, to meet the proposed railway from Ottawa to Athenley on Lake Simcoe.

To Tap Railway.

This latter road has been surveyed several times and engineers have been over it this winter. As the matter was stated to the Examiner by one who has tried to find what is passing this proposed steam line is from Carleton Place west, in a straight line to Athenly and then north west to Peterborough. According to the plans this would bring the line through the northern part of Peterborough county, and not far from Apsley. This is the scheme, as stated. Details are lacking.

In regard to the proposed electric line from the city, the Council is determined to watch any moves that may be made, and last night's steps were taken to be represented in Toronto, when the request for the charter is made to the Legislature.

Mr. Hall gave the impression that if the charter is obtained and plans are carried out, a line may be run south to Rice Lake. On the whole, the proposition is not a new one, but it is understood that those behind this scheme are sincere and with the securing of a charter the proposal may be announced and the present secrecy under which it is hidden may be removed.

MEETING TO DECIDE ON LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN

Whether or not a local campaign will be held this year in Peterborough will be decided next Tuesday evening at the public meeting of citizens that will be held in the George Street Methodist Church. It is not desired that any one shall be able to say afterwards, if a campaign is decided upon, that it is being forced upon the citizens against their will. The probable success of the campaign will be judged to some extent by the attendance and interest manifested at this meeting. For that reason it is hoped that every one interested in the cause of temperance will be present whether they are going to take an active part in the campaign or not, in order that the meeting may be a large and representative one.

A feature of the meeting will be the presentation of a report of the big convention held in Toronto this week by the Dominion Alliance, at which it was decided to force the temperance cause into Provincial politics. The report will be presented by the secretary of the League, Mr. A. B. Cunningham. It is anticipated that it will be decided to hold another campaign in Peterborough as the prospects of success are considered bright.—Com.

RECIPES FOR HOUSEWIVES

Spinach a la Creme

Turn the spinach from the can an hour before cooking it. When you are ready to do this, mince it fine and set over the fire in the inner vessel of a double boiler, the outer being filled with boiling water. When the spinach is heating make a roux in a frying pan of one tablespoonful of flour and two of butter. When this is a smooth "blend" stir it into the hot spinach. Season with white pepper and salt to taste, with a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Beat all together over the fire and cook for ten minutes, stirring often. Heat half a cupful of cream in a separate vessel with a bit of soda the size of a pea, and when it is scalding hot beat into the spinach. Cook three minutes more, stirring and beating all the time. Serve smoking hot, garnishing the dish with triangles of toast.

STREET PAVING

"In regard to this paving of the streets, I want to make myself clear. This is one matter I mentioned prior to election time. I want this Board to take it up, and push it through. It is high time this city had permanent works on the main street. I want a beginning made this year."—Mayor Bradburn, at the Board of Works meeting.

FOR STREET WATERING

Mayor Bradburn Does Not Favour Frontage Tax—Pay From General Tax--Reasons for Change of Opinion

WANTS FAIRER METHOD

The motion to pay for street watering by frontage tax passed at a recent meeting of the council has lost favor with Mayor Bradburn. When it was introduced, he said last night, he thought it would be a good idea, but, on considering it since, he had concluded that it should be paid out of the general tax.

"Last year a certain George street firm paid $6.25 as a street watering tax. This year they would pay 41 cents. Another paid about $15, and for this year's work they would pay $1.40. Now this is not fair to the man in the residential sections with the large frontage. The carts pass his residence only once or twice a day, while the George street merchants get a much better service. The man in the outskirts would be making up the difference between the George street tax for this and last year. I have changed my opinion on the subject, and think street watering should be paid for out of the general rates. Some who would receive no service might complain, but we cannot hope to satisfy everybody. Even those who do not get the service share in the advantages of the service on the streets covered." No action was taken last night.

BELMONT MINSTREL BANQUET

The Belmont Minstrels have another successful show at the Grand last night adding to the laurels they won on the opening night. There was a big audience present and the performance went through with snap and ginger, there being not the slightest hitch throughout. The entertainment once more proved itself as the most successful amateur minstrel show ever given in this city.

Afterwards the members of the caste held a very enjoyable banquet in Hooper's palm parlours. The tables were attractively decorated with the Belmont colours and an attractive repast was served by Mine Host Hooper. After an informal programme was given, nearly all the members contributing songs. Speeches were given by Messrs. W. McIlroy, C. P. Fee, Holly Shepard, W. Cochrane and Paul Trebilcock, all the speakers referring to the splendid success of the entertainment. The local speakers emphasized the fact that the Belmont Club would always have a warm spot in their hearts for Mr. and Mrs. Shepard.

After the banquet Mr. Shepard was carried to his hotel on the shoulders of the Belmonts.

SPECIAL LEGISLATION FOR RIGHT TO EXPROPRIATE POWER LINES IN THE CITY

Mayor Bradburn Called Special Meeting of Council to Ask That Law be Amended---Ald. Buller Wants Restrictions on What He Calls Promoters Who Seek Transactions.

PROTECT BONA-FIDE CO'YS

A special meeting of the Council was held Friday night with Mayor Bradburn presiding and the following aldermen present:- Ald. Gordon, Gillespie, Duncan, Brown, Graham, Johnston, Duffus and Buller.

"The reason I called this meeting," Mayor Bradburn said, "was for the purpose of passing a resolution in reference to the power situation in Peterborough. We find that as the law stands there is doubt as to our being able to use expropriating proceedings to take over the wires, poles and distributing plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Company. To clear up the matter and in order that there be no doubt we intend bringing in private bill before the Legislature asking for power to make the necessary expropriations. Last week we interviewed the chairman and members of the Hydro-Electric Commission and they requested us to bring forward a bill to this effect."

Ald. Johnston—Does the Government promise us assistance in getting the price right?

Mayor Bradburn—That is an after consideration. This is for the purpose of removing any doubt as to our right to expropriate pole lines, etc. We don't want to land into a law suit and will try to get the Legislature to alter the act. The reason is that we are a little late, but we think we can get it through. We will get the quotations as to prices later.

By-Law Passed.

The first reading of the by-law was made on motion of Ald: Gillespie, seconded by Ald. Gordon, and was finally passed providing as follows:

That in order that the said city may take full advantage of the provision of the Power Commission Act it is necessary that an act should be passed to amend the acts relating to the said city to enable the Council to acquire by expropriation the property, plant and appliances situated within the municipality of any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of applying light, heat or power for sale or as a commercial product.

Request to Commission.

Moved by Ald. Gillespie, seconded by Ald. Gordon that the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario be requested to lay out for the City Council a plan for the distribution of electricity in the city and advise as to the best means of procuring such a system with an estimate of the cost, and such other advices or suggestions as the Commission deems would be of service to the city, including the procuring and the cost of supply of power.—Carried.

Fee For Private Bill.

Moved by Ald. Gillespie, seconded by Ald. Gordon that a cheque for $100 be issued to the city solicitor to pay the fee required to be sent with the city's bill for private legislation regarding power, and that the cost of advertising in the Ontario Gazette be paid on the order of the City Solicitor.—Carried.

To Stop Promoters.

Ald. Buller—I see by a notice in the papers that there is a movement to apply for a charter for an electric railway running into the country north of this city. We are interested in this. Many of these people are really blocking our plans. I think we ought to pass a resolution to the Legislature asking that those wanting a charter be required to make a sufficient deposit to show that they are builders of a railway and not promoters.

Mayor Bradburn— In other words that they give assurance of building a proposed line in a given time.

Ald. Buller—If they intend to build they would not object to giving a guarantee.

Ald. Gordon—A franchise given to one of these companies might prevent the granting of a franchise to one that would intend to build. These franchises are often for speculative purposes only. The local member should be asked to see that if any franchise is granted to this company, it will be only on the terms that they begin construction operations within a certain time and that the work be completed within a certain time.

To Represent the City.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the Mayor be empowered to appoint a committee to go to Toronto when this bill for the charter is presented and ask the government to put restrictions in it that will protect the interests of the city.

Ald. Gillespie suggested that it be left in the hands of the city solicitor.

Mr. Hall stated in reply that there was nothing in the charter to prevent others from getting a franchise.

CHILD IS INJURED

Little Daughter of Mr. Jas. Harrison is Knocked Down by a Runaway Horse

IS IN HOSPITAL

The three-year-old daughter of Mr. Jas. Harrison was knocked down by a runaway horse this afternoon and as a result was so badly shaken up that it was considered advisable to take her to Nicholls' Hospital. Her condition is not serious. It appears that as Dr. McCullough was driving around the corner of Smith and George streets, a particularly bad corner, where perhaps fifty similar upsets have occurred, his cutter was capsised and the horse ran away. The Harrison child was struck by the flying horse and knocked down. Dr. McCullough was uninjured.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW AMUSEMENT HOUSE

Auspicious Opening of the "Red Mill"--Crowds Sought Admittance

Without fanfaronade or the presence of a brass band to mark the occasion, Peterborough's new amusement house, known as the "Red Mill," quietly and unostentatiously threw open their doors to the waiting public yesterday. Judging by the huge crowds that invaded the precincts of this newly fitted up moving picture theatre, the people of this city are not slow to recognise a good thing when it is thrust upon them. As indicated by the general tone of comment, the people who visited the "Red Mill" yesterday were more than satisfied with the excellence of its programme provided by the new and enterprising management, and it is safe to assume that with a continuation of the present high class performances, an interminable season of popularity will result.

The presence in the city next week of New York's greatest baritone singer, who will sing daily at the "Red Mill," cannot but add impetus to the success of this new venture, and it seems to indicate in a small measure the degree to which the new management is prepared to go in their endeavour to furnish a high class performance at a nominal charge for admission.

GRANT THE CHARTER.

Is the City Council, or some of the members taking a right attitude towards the application for a charter for an electric railway to run northwards from Peterborough? There can be objection to the granting of a charter for such a purpose if the conditions safeguard the public interests. The getting of the charter is the first step to putting the work in motion. A charter is the indispensable condition of successfully financing such an enterprise. The first question a financier would ask the promoters would be "Have you got a charter?" That would be the preliminary to every financial negotiation. There is no objection to granting a charter for such a railway enterprise, so long as it is provided that the charter is not exclusive and will not prevent the issuing of a similar charter to somebody else in case the occasion should arise. That is about all the city has to look out for—to see that no exclusive franchise, or one with other objectionable features is granted.

APPLY THE LAW.

The man who fruitlessly sits on the damp end of a log, in some of our northern waters, with his line and baited hook in the water, waiting vainly for a "nibble," not to speak of a "bite," need not look far for the cause of his fisherman's luck. If the fish are cleaned out of our lakes, and other waters, in the winter, by the illicit fishermen, there can be little expectation of finding good fishing in the summer, especially if legitimate fishing is practised sufficiently to help create the scarcity. A partial explanation of the poor luck some of us have in fishing is afforded by the capture by the fishery inspectors on Friday morning, of a big haul of bass and maskinonge. The Inspectors should have no difficulty in discovering the culprits and should make no failure in effectively prosecuting and punishing the law-breakers. It is a duty that they owe, not only to their employer, the Government, but to the public. The value of our summer resorts consists largely in the good fishing in these waters, and the public has a right to have the waters properly protected from poaching or predatory fishermen, destroying our fishing grounds.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT.

Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P. for East Peterborough, in his remarks in the debate upon the address in reply spoke glowingly of the increase in agricultural production since the Whitney Government came into power, as if this result was due to an administration of the agricultural department, that has become a synonym for inefficiency. To logically pursue Mr. Thompson's basis of argument further he is compelled to allocate to the credit of the Laurier Government the fact that since the Laurier Government came into power, the revenue of the Dominion has increased nearly four-fold—is a hundred million greater this year that it was fifteen or sixteen years ago. In 1896, the total revenue of the Dominion was 36 million dollars. This year it is 136 millions. If Mr. Thompson is inclined to attribute a generous share of agricultural progress in Ontario to the Agricultural College, he should also remember that if it had not been for a Liberal Government—resisting the opposition of the Conservative party—we should not have had the Agricultural College as it has been for the past fifteen or twenty years. When Mr. Thompson, as he does very properly, performs a little patriotic boasting over the agricultural Province of Ontario, it is perhaps expecting too much, to have him give credit where credit is due.

NO ROOM FOR A THIRD PARTY.

There will be considerable difference of opinion among temperance people as to the wisdom of the decision to make politics the field of action of the temperance forces of the Province. Temperance is a moral question, and in these modern days, we are not accustomed to very very association of morals with politics. This country is ruled by party government, and till some radical change comes in political methods and political feelings and forms of manifestation, party will continue to be the dominant factor in determining the character and political complexion of provincial and Dominion administration. We have had strong "cranes" of various kinds trying to give themselves permanent life, by being made the active principle of a party—a third party. Where are they now? Lost, cause and all, in the limbo of failure, and the cause the third party represented suffered injury and lost influence by being associated with the failure and collapse of the party. This failure argued no failure of the principle involved, but spoke volumes against the unwisdom of the means adopted to give it effect. So it is likely to be with any other third party, temperance, or otherwise; and it is surprising that the leaders in the temperance movement do not appreciate the probable futility of using politics, especially through the medium of a separate party as a means of triumph of temperance principles. Some of them have grown grey in the work, and many of them have had earlier splashes of gray in their locks through the worry and disappointment of seeing temperance always pushed aside by party politics, when it came to the point of decision. There will never, or, not for years, be a third party in Canada. We shall continue to be Grit and Tory, and whatever of third party there ment that oscillates between the may be will be the floating elewo chief parties, an element that is neither Grit nor Tory, only when under the flux of some temporary excitement they settle back into the respective ranks in which they were born, or pitchforked by prejudice, or training, or interest.

These conditions bring one naturally back to first principles. The only real, true, permanent, abiding, effective, moral reform comes from within, originates and remains in the man. The work of reform that is permanent begins with the man. It will be recognized that man cannot be made virtuous, or moral, by process, or force of law. The world was under divine law, perfect as its source, for four thousand years. Under that law man continued bad, and grew worse, and it was only till the influence upon his heart superseded the compulsion of law that man came to his own, came to himself, had his heart changed in a way that no law could do. Law may effect moral restraint, or amelioration, but it can never bring about real reform. We have ladies, with the best intentions, clamouring for a law forbidding the smoking of cigarettes. It won't work. The boy remains the same, with the same desire, and he only adds breach of the statute law to breach of the laws of health. His appetite, his human nature, which resents restraint, his inclinations, his weakness, all combine to defeat the law. A law might be passed to forbid women to wear petticoats. Would such a law be observed? Not at all. Forthwith every woman would wear half a dozen petticoats, if necessary, to show her contempt of a law that forbids a woman to do as she chooses, in regard to a purely personal matter, a law that infringes upon the exercise of her purely personal rights. Some old-fashioned things are still good. We used to place a good deal of dependance upon moral suasion, as an element in temperance reform. We shall yet have to settle back upon that as the main reliance. Preachers will tell us and we can see it ourselves that church membership doesn't make a man good. Unless his heart is reached, and changed, the old Adam remains. So, unless a man's heart is reached, and changed, in the matter of drinking, then law, third parties, temperance tickets, which will all be lost in, and swallowed up by, one of the two great parties, will be of no avail.

UNDER SCUGOG'S WAVES FOR SEVENTY YEARS

Mr. Stratton received this morning from Mr. J. T. Robinson, of Bobcaygeon, an interesting relic of pioneer canal building. It was an oak walking stick, neatly made from part of a piece of timber that for nearly seventy years was the sill of the Lock at Lindsay, which was built in 1842. Just seventy years. The action of the chemicals in the water has turned the oak quite black, making it veritable bog oak. This unique walking stick is gratefully appreciated.

TEMPERANCE PEOPLE TO FORM A THIRD PARTY

New Party to Make Its Entrance Into Politics at the First Bye-Election

Politics is henceforth to be the field of action of the temperance people of Ontario. This was decided at their conference in Massey Hall late yesterday afternoon, when the following resolutions were passed:

"1. That this convention renews its demand for legislation abolishing the bar-room and the treating system, and drinking in clubs, and the imposition upon the liquor traffic of such other restrictions as will most effectively restrain its evils.

"2. That no candidate or party that does not support the foregoing policy can be accepted as entitled to the support of electors who realise that the abolition of the bar-room is the greatest political issue in this Province to-day.

"3. That the Alliance executive immediately take steps to effect a thorough organization of voters to secure the nomination and election of representatives who can be relied upon to support the policy herein set out.

"4. That the Executive Committee be directed to appoint a subcommittee, whose duty it will be to plan and carry into effect political organization."

Prohibition the Polar Star.

"This convention has, as its polar star prohibition. With the help of God we will attain it."

In these words, Rev. Dr. Carman voiced the unanimous decision of the Dominion Alliance to enter more heartily than ever into the fight. The temperance forces will immediately begin to organize in every municipality. Not even the bye-elections are to be overlooked, and the very next one will be made the scene of a prohibition contest.

Thorough reorganization of their forces and the appointment of eight or ten men to do the work the executive had formerly failed to do was the policy Controller McCarthy advocated. This was strongly opposed by Mr. F. S. Spence, and Rev. Ben. Spence, who resented "this note of censure" of the executive. In spite of protests, however, Controller McCarthy's aggressive policy was carried.

The Chat with Sir James.

Disgust at the treatment received from the Premier was openly expressed by President Gibson, when the Queen's Park delegation made their report.

"When I went into Sir James' room he hardly deigned to look at me," said Mr. Gibson. "The discourtesy he showed us was not becoming a gentleman, let alone a Christian gentleman.

"Further, he gave no answer. I say he ought to have given an answer. And God helping me, Tory though I am, I'll make him answer yet".

On the other hand, nothing but eulogy came the way of N. W. Rowell, the Opposition leader.

"Mr. Rowell is a good Christian gentleman any party might be proud of," he said. "I say that, though I am a Tory and he a Grit. Sir James would give us no answer; but Mr. Rowell was fair enough to say that the Liberal party would formulate its policy, and make it known before the end of the session. We were well satisfied with the reception he gave us."

Rev. Dr. Carman counseled not placing too much confidence in either party, which are mere creatures of the hour, but to "go on with this fight as steadily as the march of a British regiment".

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case."
A. L. Wilson, Sparta, Ill.
Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills are "impossible" after one trial on account of their harshness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills do not act by sheer force but in an easy, natural way, without griping or undue irritation. They are not habit forming.

FAIR COLONELS

Many Women hold High Commissions in German Army

Many ardent advocates of the new feminism who feel that their cause is not receiving adequate recognition, overlook the fact that even in military matters in conservative Europe women have been advanced to places of trust and power and have even been placed in command of some of the best fighting organizations in the field. The holding of a colonelcy in an imperial regiment is regarded as an honour not to be lightly bestowed. Only a few even of the queens of Europe have been so honoured. Queen Mother Alexandra never received a regiment, nor did Helen of Italy.

The late Queen Victoria of England long held the command of a regiment; Dowager Queen Margaret of Italy is colonel of the Eleventh battalion of Prussian Light Infantry; Queen Charlotte of Wurtemburg is in command of the regiment which was the favorite of the kaiser's father, the second Wurtemburg regiment of Lancers; Wilhelmine of Holland commands the Fifteenth Prussian hussars and her mother, the Dowager Queen Emma, the Second Westphalian Infantry.

The regiment which guards the carriage of Mary Queen of England when she pays a visit to the Court of Berlin, is her own Fifth Prussian hussars. The kaiser's wife, Augusta Victoria, commands the Eighty-sixth Regiment of Prussian fusiliers, one of the crack regiments of the Prussian army. In addition to this signal honour, the kaiserin also is granted a commission in the Russian army as a colonel of the hussars of the Guard of Gronda. Carmen Sylva, the famous Queen of Roumania, dear to all soldiers because of her devotion and self-sacrifice during the war of 1877, is in command of the Second Battalion of Light Roumania infantry.

One of these famous European military women has recently come to Canada. The Duchess of Connaught, wife of the new Governor-General of the Dominion, is the nominal head of a regiment long famous across the water. Her Sixty-fourth Regiment of Prussian infantry was the favourite of her father, Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia. Prince Frederick Charles was the Field Marshal in the German army, who in the Franco-Prussian war at the head of his regiment, succeeded in capturing Metz after repeated failures on the part of other officers. The result practically assured the success of the German arms in that war.

The only woman to hold any office in a European navy and the only woman to boast of the title of admiral is Queen Olga of Greece. Queen Olga is most beloved by sailors because of her benefactions and it is said that she is especially favourable to the sailors of the Czar who become stranded in Athens. This is rendered the more probable as she is the cousin of the late Czar Alexander III. Her interest in naval matters is no doubt inherited as her father, the late Grand Duke Constantin Nicholaevitch, was an admiral in the Russian navy. Queen Olga's flagship is the armoured cruiser Admiral Makarov

The greater number of these women colonels are in the German army. Indeed, the idea of bestowing such an honour upon a woman originated with no less a personage than King Frederick William IV of Prussia. Now Frederick William, in his younger days, was a dashing, devil may care fellow, who didn't care a rap what any person thought or said, seldom took advice, because he thought his opinions only worth while, and paid no attention to any kind of gossip. He had a pretty sister, Princess Charlotte, who was as bold and energetic as he, and was altogether a girl after his own heart.

Princess Charlotte loved the out-doors, rode her splendid charger astride, followed the hunt with the first of the field, attended every military review and cheered among the loudest when a crack regiment passed So fondly did the Emperor cherish this pretty dashing sister that he permitted her the choice of her husband, by no means the practice among royalty these days, nor did she disappoint her brother in her choice. She married Czar Nicholas I of Russia, the finest soldier in all Europe. It was, as might have been expected, a marriage of true love. The royal pair were in every respect congenial and as a mark of his esteem for his new brother-in-law, Frederick William bestowed upon Nicholas the command of his famous regiment of cuirassiers. The Czar held this commission until his death; thereupon, the Kaiser, who was fond of the unusual, created the sensation of his life by turning the command of the Czar's famous regiment to the widow. It was the best regiment in the Prussian army. All the men were chosen because of their fine bearing and great stature. They were a regiment of stalwarts, and in the field fought as probably no other soldiers ever fought except, perhaps, the old guard of Napoleon.

In appearance, personnel and equipment, the Russian army had nothing else to compare with it. Organized by Frederick the Great, who scoured all Europe for giants to fill the ranks of his pet regiment, it had carefully been kept up to its high standard, and its bestowal upon the princess was the highest honour that could have been awarded her. She was delighted and the soldiers were as much pleased. When they passed the review stand, and realized that they were under the gaze of the beautiful princess-colonel, they were even more proud than when they were in command of the Czar of all the Russias. The influence of Frederick William's example in placing his beautiful sister in command of a crack regiment, spread all over Europe, and has endured to this day.

The effect upon the soldiers has been most wholesome. Soldiers who have fought hard and were proud of their achievements regarded it as a reward of their merit that they should be tendered to a revered princess or queen and under feminine leadership their valour was increased a hundredfold. More than fifty of the most prominent women in Europe now hold commissions in European armies. — Detroit News-Tribune.

Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar

In a 5-Pound Sealed Package"

"Of course I have always bought Redpath Sugar, as my mother did before me, because it is the purest, whitest sugar I have ever been able to buy. But this new Sealed Package is the finishing touch of cleanliness, and if I had never used Redpath Sugar before, I would certainly try the new Package."

The new Redpath Sealed Package is designed for just such discriminating people, who not only want the best sugar, but want it in the best possible condition.

Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar is first refined to absolute purity. Then, without being once touched by human hand, it is packed by automatic machinery and sealed air-tight in the 5-Pound Cartons. Thus in its trip to the wholesale warehouse, the retail store, and finally to your home, Redpath Sugar is perfectly protected from any taint or impurity. It comes to you as fresh and as clean as when it left the refinery.

Each Carton, automatically weighed, contains full Five Pounds of Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar. If you have been buying sugar by the bag or barrel, you will find a case of 24 Five-Pound Packages much more convenient in the pantry. Of course your grocer will still sell you Redpath Extra Granulated in bulk or in 20 lb. cotton bags as before if you prefer.

A MODERN MEDICINE FOR THE BABY

What mother cannot remember the times of her childhood when the castor oil bottle was brought into use—the dread with which she looked forward to a dose of it—the fight she put up when forced to take it. Surely all mothers will be glad to spare their little ones this discomfort—this dread. Modern science has banished the bad smelling, evil-tasting, griping castor oil and given in its place a modern remedy—a remedy pleasant to take, mild, though thorough in action, absolutely harmless, and something the little one won't dread. That medicine is Baby's Own Tablets — the only remedy used by thousands of mothers of little ones—the medicine that has forced castor oil and "soothing" syrups out of the home and has taken their place to bring health to baby and joy to the parents. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ENTERTAINING THE KING

It Costs Something to be the Host of Royalty

King George, like the late King Edward does everything that lies in his power to prevent undue trouble or expense being incurred by those whom he visits; everything that savours of ostentation is most obnoxious to him. At the same time it is necessary that a certain amount of formality should be carefully observed and all this runs into money. His Majesty, for instance, is invariably accompanied by an equerry, who, by reason of his position, becomes a member of the house party, while if the Queen travels with His Majesty, her lady in waiting has likewise to be included among the guests. It is very rarely that the King is attended by more than two body servants; while three maids as a rule, suffice for Queen Mary's requirements.

It is laid down that His Majesty must upon all occasions have a suite of apartments to himself, and it is desired that these should be as far removed from the members of the house party as possible. A similar suite has to be provided for Queen Mary when she is present. Not many years ago a well known nobleman who was entertaining the present King for the first time, spent over $10,000 in providing a new suite of rooms for His Majesty's occupation.

Whenever it is at all possible the King also desires that he should be placed in telegraphic and telephonic communication with the royal palaces so that he may be within easy reach of his secretaries and the chief officers of his household. Most country seats are to-day upon the telephone, but the telegraph is a very different matter, and when the late King Edward was once staying in the north of England his host spent $750 to provide a special telegraph wire. His late Majesty, as it happened, only required to make use of it upon one occasion, when he wired exactly eight words to Buckingham palace—surely the most expensive telegram that was ever sent.

His Majesty lives very simply so that in reality very little extra cost need to be incurred for food and drink upon his account. Naturally, however, those honoured with his company find it incumbent upon them to exert themselves to every delicacy in or out of season that can possibly be obtained. As much as a sovereign apiece has been paid for quails for the royal table before to-day, and as much as that for peaches when not in season, while twelve shillings a basket holding considerably less than a pound of early strawberries is regarded as nothing out of the ordinary upon these occasions. A short time before his accession it was estimated that one luncheon table for ten guests, at which His Majesty was present, had cost between $1000 and $1500 to prepare. And then all that the King ate was a plate of cold roast beef and some salad!.

Both King George and Queen Mary have a great liking for good music, so that those who are their hosts and hostesses spend almost fabulous sums to obtain the services of the most talented vocalists and instrumentalists of the day. Upon one occasion, some years ago, Queen Alexandra, having expressed her admiration for the playing of Kubelik, her host promptly wired to him and invited him to name his own terms for one evening's recital. Not only was the large amount demanded cheerfully paid to the gifted musician but special trains were provided to convey him to the house and to take him back to London again, a sumptuous dinner awaited him, and the smallest wish he expressed was at once complied with. What this evening's entertainment cost it is almost impossible to say.

The hostess of royalty is likewise called upon to disburse large sums. It is not good form for her to appear in the presence of royalty twice in the same costumes; during a week's visit as much as $5000 may be, and often is, spent upon gowns alone. Thus it will be seen to entertain the King and Queen is something that, on account of the expense alone, can only fall to the lot of the favoured few. But this cost is cheerfully borne and there are many people moving in society to-day who would willingly spend half of their income and more to be able to say that their Majesties had passed but a single night under their roofs.

THE STEAM TRAWLERS ON THE GRAND BANKS

The steam trawler which has all but driven the sail trawler from the North Sea, has begun to invade the Newfoundland Grand Banks, and fishermen are greatly concerned for the future of their industry. The steam trawler has been introduced on this side of the water by the French from St. Pierre, Miquelon, and St. Malo, Brittany. These steam trawlers have essentially interfered with the operations of the sailing crafts hitherto employed from the Canadian, Newfoundland and United States ports.

Hitherto, the cod, halibut and haddock fisheries on the Newfoundland Banks have been prosecuted almost entirely by sailing crafts, commonly known as bankers, and using appliances known as trawls. These trawls consist of long lines stretching away for half a mile, set on the Banks, with buoys at either end, and containing from 2,500 to 3,000 hooks, depending from the main line or trawl by smaller lines, and each baited with a piece of herring or squid. The method of fishing is, on the Grand Banks, for the banker to cruise about until she finds a likely spot for the trawls, upon which she anchors. Her crew, every two in a small flat-bottomed boat called a dory, leave her side and set the trawls in all ares around her, she being the hub, so to speak, of a huge wheel, of which the trawls are the spokes. The baited hooks are usually set at sunset, and in the morning the men overrun the trawls; that is, examine them, remove the fish that may be found thereon, and rebait the hooks; then, taking the catch to the vessel in the dories, the fish are gutted, cleaned and salted away into the hold, and so on until the vessel is filled.

Steam trawling is a different process altogether. Fast iron steamers are employed, and the trawl they use is a huge, heavy net attached to a beam fifty or sixty feet long, which in turn is supported by iron runners, or "shoes," at either end, elevating the beam a foot or two above the surface of the bank, along which the net is dropped, thereby gathering into the capacious maw of the trawl-net everything in the shape of fish it touches, and many other strange and curious objects, as well, including all the articles tossed or lost overboard from passing vessels, dead bodies, etc. The presence of these steam trawlers, all of which are French, on the Grand Banks is creating an extraordinary situation. There are no fewer than twenty-four of these steamers, where there was not one five years ago, and their success it is said not alone imperils the venture for the Canadian, Newfoundland, United States and French fishing vessels, but also their movements are proving disastrous to the smaller vessels.

INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION THREATENED.

The introduction of these steam trawlers into the North Atlantic fisheries threatens to bring about as complete an industrial revolution as did their introduction into the British fisheries in the North Sea. Twenty years ago thousands of sailing vessels were so employed, but now the fishery is carried on by but one-tenth of that number of steam trawlers. Formerly every enterprising fisherman owned his own vessel; but now the steam trawlers are the property of large corporations, and the skippers and crews merely earn employees' wages. This is what makes this prospective change so unpalatable to the fisherman on this side of the Atlantic. The wooden vessels are in most cases the property of their skippers and their crews. The trawls used by them are comparatively cheap, and the prosecution of the fishery calls for no large capital. If, however, steam trawling becomes general, a complete revolution will follow in this respect, and with the steamers the seal and present condition of a prosperous, contented, and enterprising fishing population will be destroyed.

A peculiar feature of this steam trawling on the Grand Banks is the fact that it is prosecuted entirely by Frenchmen, and the business has grown in five years from a single steamer to twenty-four. all of which happen to be doing so well that a further extension of the fleet is proposed. It is not difficult to imagine the effect of this flotilla cruising over the fishing grounds, where hundreds of sailing craft have the ocean covered over with their trawls, the huge beam trawls carrying away everything in sight, making the unfortunate sailing men furiously enraged both at the ruin of their gear and the destroying of their chances of fish.

GRAY HAIR

Dr. Tremain's Natural Hair Restorative will positively restore gray hair to its natural colour and keep it so. It is not a hair dye and will not injure the scalp. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Price one dollar. Sent post paid. Address The Tremain Supply Co., Dept. "P," Box 467, Toronto.

A "CURE"? FOR BALDNESS

The above expression is one which is used frequently in connection with hair preparations. Just exactly what is meant by it in each instance is a question. Baldness is not a disease and hence, does not permit of a cure. It is a result invariably to be traced to the dandruff germ and if the condition has become chronic, that is, if there is complete atrophy of the hair follicles, a "cure" is absolutely impossible.

Approaching baldness, seen in falling hair, may always be checked and if the hair follicles are not atrophied the hair may be induced again to grow.

This is accomplished by regular applications of Newbro's Herpicide which cleanses the scalp and kills the dandruff germ. The destruction of the germ does away with the accumulations of scarf skin and thus eliminates the most common enemy to beautiful hair.

Soft, glossy, fluffy hair cannot grow on a scalp infested with dandruff any more than a delicate plant can grow on an ash heap. The scalp must be kept clean and free from dandruff. The best remedy for doing this is Newbro's Herpicide which receives the highest endorsements from professional men, the stage and the best people everywhere.

Herpicide is sold and guaranteed in one dollar size bottles by all druggists. Applications obtained at all first-class barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

Address The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich., enclosing 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet.

GOOD RECIPES

A DIGESTIBLE PIE CRUST.

When properly made and eaten in moderation, pie is a wholesome food. But how seldom are its crusts and filling prepared with that care which is necessary to produce a digestible dish. A simple rule for pastry is the following: To every six large tablespoonfuls of flour add three ordinary tablespoonfuls of butter. Mix together with a knife, stir in seven tablespoonfuls of ice water and mix again. Add a little lemon juice. Then proceed as for any ordinary rule. This recipe does not contain as much butter as most pie-crust rules, and therefore is not so rich. The touch of lemon juice, however, gives the needed tenderness.

ALMOND CREAM PIE.

Two eggs, half cup of sugar, a scant pint of sweet milk, one heaping tablespoonful flour, large lump of butter. Mix well the sugar and flour, add the yolks of the eggs, well beaten; then the milk and butter; mix thoroughly and boil in double cooker; when it thickens sufficiently take from the fire and let it cool somewhat; then add half teaspoonful almond extract; beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth with a little powdered sugar and spread over the top. Bake the crust first, add the custard and whites and return to the oven until a delicate brown.

CREAM PIE.

One pint sweet cream, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, pinch of salt; heat to a boiling point; thicken with one tablespoonful of corn starch; take from the fire, add the yolks of three eggs, well beaten; flavour with lemon; bake in one crust. When done, frost the top with the whites of three eggs, one heaping teaspoonful sugar beaten well. Set in the oven one minute.

BAKER'S CUSTARD PIE.

Beat the yolks of three eggs to a cream; take one tablespoonful of flour and three of sugar, and sift well; this separates the particles of flour, so there will be no lumps. Then add it to the beaten yolks; put in a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of vanilla and a little grated nutmeg; next add the well beaten whites of the eggs, and lastly a pint of scalded milk (not boiled) which has been cooled; mix this in by degrees, and turn all into a deep pie pan lined with puff paste and bake from 25 to 30 minutes. For the crust use three large tablespoonfuls of flour, sifted; rubbing into it a large tablespoonful of butter, or lard, or half and half of each, and a pinch of salt, mixing with cold water, enough to form a smooth stiff paste, and rolled quite thin. Rub the crust with white of egg and brown before putting the filling in.

GOOD PRUNE PIE.

Soak the prunes over night in usual manner. In the morning stew them soft, then rub through a coarse sieve to remove the seeds, and to every quart of pulp add a lemon, seeded and chopped, and one cup of sugar. Bake in puff paste shells in a quick oven, making three pies. Or cover three pie tins with a thin layer of puff paste, prick it full of holes and bake in a quick oven. When done, spread the prune mixture between and ice the top crust or layer.

WARM APPLE PIE.

For one pie take one large cupful of flour. Sift in a quarter of a teaspoonful each of salt and baking powder. Rub in, with the finger tips, a scant half cupful of lard and moisten with ice water, cutting it into the dough with a knife. Pare and cut in small pieces as many good cooking apples as can be put into a deep tin lined with the paste. Sprinkle with sugar and little grated nutmeg — using about six tablespoonfuls of sifted flour. Add one or two tablespoonfuls of cold water and dot the top with bits of butter. Cover with a thin upper crust and bake about forty minutes.

LEMON RAISIN PIE

Delicious when made exactly by recipe; one cup of seedless raisins, chopped fine; one cup white sugar; one cup hot water, half teacup of corn starch; piece of butter size of egg; two eggs; one large ripe lemon, grate the rind of lemon into a saucer, extract all the juice and pulp; do not allow one seed or any of the white skin to get into the mixture or it will make it bitter; take all the ingredients and boil to thick cream consistency; beat the eggs very light before adding to the other ingredients; also mix one-half cup cold water to corn starch. Stir to a thin cream, then add to other ingredients, which are now supposed to be boiling. When the mixture is as thick as jelly, it is then ready to bake. Make a very rich pie crust, upper and under. Bake 30 minutes in hot oven.

There is no better medicine made for colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions, aids expectoration and restores the system to a healthy condition. For sale by all dealers.

RICHARD HALL & SON

Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., Inducted As Rector Of All Saints' Church

Impressive Ceremony Conducted by Bishop Reeve Last Evening—Appropriate Sermon Delivered by Rev. Wm. S. Major, a Former Rector of the Church—Service Was Largely Attended.

An impressive ceremony took place in All Saints' Church, last evening, when the Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., the new, yet already highly esteemed Rector, was inducted by the Right Rev. Bishop Reeve. After reading the declaration of assent enjoined by Canon 11 of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada, the Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's, read the mandate of induction. Evening prayer followed the induction ceremony, at which the Rev. Wm. S. Major, former Rector of All Saints, preached an appropriate sermon. Prior to commencing his sermon the preacher said: "I need hardly say that it affords me the greatest pleasure to be once more in All Saints' Church. As I look upon this beautiful building, I cannot help recalling all the ambitions, hopes, and struggles that we experienced together, and now that your ambitions have been realized, I think you will allow me to offer you my congratulations.

In the course of his sermon the speaker said:

"In these days of criticism and doubt, it is a duty to hold fast to the ancient landmark—the great fundamental principle of Christian doctrine — the incarnation of Jesus Christ. Until it became a concrete fact all things looked forward to it, the coming of Christ—and all subsequent movements have derived their impetus from this great truth If you eliminate the incarnation you have lost everything. It seems to me that on this occasion it is necessary to emphasize this, that as you stand before your new Rector tonight you may realize that that doctrine will constitute the central ground on which you will one day meet. The incarnation of Jesus Christ revealed God the Father. The Hebrew idea of God was one God. There was unfortunately a moral deterioration in the Hebrew people, but when the shepherds of the Plains of Bethlehem went into the stable and saw the incarnation, a new era was commenced. It was through Jesus Christ the Fatherhood of God was revealed.

This is the one great truth—that the Father sacrificed even himself for his children, and it is that truth which saves religion from being a mere intellectual application. Philip who was the first one to be called by Jesus Christ, saw that in him was embodied all that was promised by Moses and the Prophets.

The manifestation of God in Jesus Christ demands reason, it appeals to the heart; it demands obedience to the will. May I ask a question? Have you submitted your will to Christ? If not, why not?

One purpose, then, of the incarnation of Christ was the manifestation of God.

As I close, said Rev. Mr. Major, let me ask you to consider, to contemplate Him who is manifested in Jesus Christ—God the Father. In Him we live, and move, and have our being. Then, surely we can, one and all, trust Him, and we can sing, as we never sang before:

"Rock of ages cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

At the conclusion of the service, a half hour's social gathering took place in the Parish Hall, when, in addition to meeting the Bishop, those present had the pleasure of shaking hands with their former Rector.

A Sign of the Times

PEOPLE are becoming very careful about what they eat and drink—

The preference for goods in sealed packages—especially in food stuffs—is now quite definite and becoming more so every day.

We must frankly admit that there are sound reasons for this preference. Food stuffs cannot be exposed to varying atmospheric conditions without losing both strength and flavor.

Tea—of all articles of everyday diet (excepting coffee, perhaps) needs protection most, and best merchants have been quick to appreciate the fact. So much is this the case that the selling of loose Tea in bulk will soon be a thing of the past.

RED ROSE TEA

RED ROSE TEA reaches you with all its virginal flavor, strength and purity—

—It is sealed in air-tight packages—dust and damp-proof—

RED ROSE is a blend of the best Indian and Ceylon Teas.

—The former assures generous strength and richness—the latter that coaxing, delicate flavor, Qualities for which Red Rose Tea is famed.

Ask your Grocer for the 40c. package of Red Rose and you'll get better Tea—Tea that spends farther—for the same money.

You want "Good" Tea—well,

Work Of Paving Streets Will Be Commenced This Year

Board of Works Received Information on the Subject—Requests For Sidewalks Will be Taken Up at Later Meeting—Back to the Watering Carts.

BOARD HAD BUSY SESSION

A meeting of the Board of Works was held on Friday night, with Ald. Buller in the chair, and Alderman Gillespie, Duffus, Graham, Johnston and Mayor Bradburn present.

Mr. Wilmot H. Legge, representing the Warren Bituminous Paving Co., Limited, Toronto, was heard on behalf of his firm, and asked that the Company be given consideration in the city's plans to do street paving this year.

Mr. W. H. Lytle made a similar request to the Board. "I intend going into paving work this year and I am out after contracts. During the past three or four years I have studied it and have been indirectly interested in various work. I can give you satisfaction no matter what kind of a paving you decide upon. I am prepared to take a contract for the whole work, or for the base work, if any is done.

Mayor Bradburn—"When a company sublets the contract for the base, do they guarantee the whole work

Mr. Lytle—"Yes, they do."

Answering Ald. Duffus, he stated that granite blocks cost more on account of transportation. "You cannot sell it in a city because it is too noisy. The man who will sell you a noiseless pavement will get the business, especially in residential sections.

Ald. Johnston—"Are the gutters and curbing considered in the contract?"

Mr. Lytle—"In some cases. You should not put in a curb and gutter on George street; you should use a watershed. On Charlotte street west, you would have to put in a curb and gutter, at an additional cost."

Continuing, Ald. Buller stated that he had seen Mr. Munroe of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, who said that the question of double tracking George street would be taken up and a report will likely be ready when the paving question is brought up,

The Mayor's Request.

Mayor Bradburn—"In regard to street paving, I want to make myself clear. This is one of the matters that I mentioned prior to election time, and I want this Board to take it up and push it through. I think that it is high time that the city had some permanent work on the main street. Whether it is from Brock to Charlotte or from King to Sherbrooke street, I want to see a start made."

Ald. Buller.—"I made enquiries in Berlin and other places, and learned that notice was given that street paving was to be done and time given for those who had to dig up the streets, to complete it. Connections to be made, or services that had to be made after the street was paved, were, of course, done, but those putting them in had to pay for the repairs."

Mayor Bradburn—"I think the Board intends to go into this question and the first thing is to have the City Engineer find out what sewer connections remain to be made on George street, so that the property owners concerned may be given time to make the connections.

Ald. Johnston—"Couldn't the city lay the pavements the way the sidewalks are done?"

Ald. Buller—"Who is qualified to do the work?"

"What have we here?" Ald. Buller asked as he read the $1,250 balance due Mr. Willis Chipman. "What do you intend to do with this?"

Ald. Johnston — "Might as well leave it stand a little longer."

New Street Signs.

Messrs. W. and A. Kingdon submitted an estimate for painting the names of the streets—35c each for painting wooden signs, and 50c for enamelled iron signs, providing 500 of either were ordered.

Mayor Bradburn—"I suggest that you consider this when taking up the estimates and if we can afford it, that we have the signs put up. Let us first find out where we're at with the finances.

A request for a sidewalk on Princess street was not sufficiently signed. The ratepayers were notified to this effect.

Letters were read from local insurance agents regarding insurance for the pumping plant in the south ed. Ald. Gillespie said the applications were not definite enough.

Ald. Buller—"Do you want any insurance on it?"

Ald. Johnston—"The committee felt that the motors should be insured.

Moved by Ald. Gillespie seconded by Ald. Johnston, that an estimate be obtained of the damage if the motor was burned, and Ald. Buller try to get it insured.—Carried.

The Dickson Company's request for sewage connection for their property, on Harvey street, was taken up once again. The Provincial Board of Health has given permission to have a septic tank emptying into the river near there.

Ald. Graham—"They were to give us a piece of ground there if we would put in a septic tank if it did not cost over $1,200."

Mayor Bradburn—"The Medical Health Officer is opposed to any more septic tanks emptying into the river."

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that the Engineer report as to whether there is any means of removing sewage from the property.

A request from E. G. Patterson that the paving of a part of Hunter street, as petitioned for last year, be undertaken as early as possible this year.

On motion of Ald. Gillespie, seconded by Ald. Duffus, it was decided to leave it over until next Tuesday's meeting, for consideration.

A report was read from Engineer Hay concerning a request from the Bell Telephone Co. to put holes on King street, between Aylmer and Lewis streets, and recommending that no additional poles be placed there.—Received.

Mayor Bradburn: "We are trying to get rid of them and this would put more on.

W. H. Munroe wrote stating that land, at the corner of Brock and Downie streets, in which the Peterborough Light and Power Company are interested, has been flooded. The City Engineer will be asked to report on this point.

Mr. M. Neary wrote for the position of foreman of the work of constructing sewers during the coming summer.—Received.

Downie Street.

By this time Ald. Buller had come to communications that had been filed with last year's Board, and several of the Aldermen wanted an adjournment. One letter, dated Nov. 17th, from W. H. Spencely, said the Downie street creek was dammed up, flooding his place. The Street Commissioner reported that this had been attended to, but that in the Spring further complaints might be expected. The drain has not the capacity to take the Spring freshets, he said.

Mayor Bradburn—The Chairman might advise the Engineer's Department to watch this place.

Ald. Johnston—"Time enough to borrow trouble after a while. We are just knocking off a few of the high spots."

Mr. Evans stated that the old drain near R. C. Braund's property might be filled in now to Chamberlain street. The water would be carried off without it.

Street Watering.

Ald. Buller—"It may seem early, but I think we should begin to prepare for street watering in order to be prepared for the first dry days of Spring."

Mr. Evans—"The carts were not overhauled last year on account of the experiment with oil. We thought they might not be needed again."

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Graham, that the carts be put into shape for use.

The lowering of the railway grade on Smith street was taken up again, and the Mayor and Ald. Buller will arrange to see Mr. P. J. Lynch.

Ald. Johnston—"Let's go home."

Ald. Duffus—"The steps on Dublin street, at the corner of Bethune, are in a dangrous condition. The ice has frozen on them and pedestrians are unable to walk on them. They are a menace to those who try.

Mayor Bradburn — "You would think the people living in the corner house would get out and shovel them off."

Ald. Graham—"It happens that the Mayor owns the house at that corner."

Mayor Bradburn—"Yes, but I said the people living in the house, might look after it."

FRONT MARKS ARE NUMEROUS.

"The name of the particular size and shape of the cigars contained in a box is usually printed on the front of the box; hence the name 'front mark.' So the terms 'size,' 'shape,' and 'front mark' are almost interchangeable.

"Many Cuban factories and some domestic clear Havana factories pack cigars under as many as forty or fifty different 'front marks.' Some of these shapes are given arbitrarily chosen and fanciful names, which really do not represent an individual size, while others are inappreciable graduations from standard 'front marks.'

"As a matter of fact, there are only about twenty 'front marks' which are broadly recognized by the trade as representing each a differently shaped cigar. These begin with the Coquettas, a little 3 1-2-inch smoke, which is made to wholesale at $35 a thousand, and range upward to the Noblesses, which is a large and very expensive size.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

February 18, 1912.

(Copyright, 1911, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

The Ministry of John the Baptist. Mark i., 1-8; Luke iii., 1-20.

Golden Text—Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.—Matt. iii., 2.

1. Verses 1-3—Where are predictions to which Mark here refers? (See Isa. xl., 3; Mal. iii., 1.)

2. What reason is there to think that Isaiah and Malachi had John the Baptist and Jesus in mind when they wrote the words quoted by Mark?

3. What difference does it make to the potency and truth of Christ's gospel whether Mark was right or wrong in thinking these prophecies applied specifically to John and Jesus?

4. Verses 4-8—What did John's baptism stand for?

5. Show from John's teaching what he meant by repentance.

6. What difference, if any, was there in their standing with God between John's converts and converts to-day to Christianity?

7. Luke iii., 1-6—What literary and historic excellence can you point out in verses 1 and 2?

8. Whose son was John, what relation was he to Jesus, and what was there of note about his birth and training?

9. What are the moral equivalents of valleys filled up, mountains levelled down, crooked roads made straight, and rough places smooth.

10. When will the prophecy be fulfilled, "All flesh shall see the salvation of God?".

11. Verses 7-8—Who composed the multitude that came to John to be baptised?

12. What reason can you give to justify John in using such harsh language to those who came to be baptised?

13. What effect will any religious ceremony have upon those who are living in sin?

14. What are the "fruits" of repentance?

15. If a son persists in living in sin what benefit will a saintly father be to him in getting him into heaven?

16. Verse 9—What are the influences, already at work, which will culminate in the utter destruction of hypocrites and other hardened sinners?

17. Verses 10-14—According to John, how much virtue is there in good works as a means of salvation?

18. Why should all persons who apply to the church for membership get practically the same instructions at John gave those who applied to him for baptism

19. Verses 15-18—What was the difference between John's mission and that of Jesus?

20. In what sense was John inferior to Jesus, officially, morally, naturally, or otherwise?

21. What is the baptism of the Holy Ghost?

22. Verses 19-20—What are the facts in connection with Herod's imprisonment of John?

Lesson for Sunday, 25th February, 1912—The Baptism and Temptation of Jesus.—Mark i., 9-13; Matt. iv., 1-11.

P.C.I. Literary Society Meet

"Mock Council" Featured the Evening's Programme

The regular meeting of the Literary Society of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute was held in the Assembly Hall on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

No doubt the most interesting and unique feature of the programme was the Mock Council of 1912, presided over by "His Worship Mayor Stanton." The by-laws brought before the meeting were:

(1) The paving of George st. carried.
(2) Municipal coal yard lost.
(3) The Dog By-law.
(4) Woman suffrage. (Deputation headed by Miss B. Milan, a perfect suffragette).
(5) Milk By-law lost.

The programme consisted of:
(1) Amendments of constitution.
(2) Vocal solo, Miss E. Staples, accompanied by Miss K. O'Brien.
(3) Mock Council. Mayor C. Stanton; Clerk, B. Troupe; Aldermen: A. Gilbert, H. Hill, M. Carlisle, J. Collins, H. Eastwood, D. Huycke, G. Matthews, and M. Huycke.
(4) Instrumental solo, Miss A. Rudkins.
(5) Selection, Glee Club.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. R. A. Dixon, president of the society, occupied the chair.

NO ADVANCE IN TEA PRICES EXPECTED THIS YEAR

There has been a great deal of speculation as to the outcome of the present Chinese revolt and its bearing on the tea situation in general. Mr. Melville, of Thomas J. Lipton, when interviewed, stated that the indications are now far more favourable, some believing that the Chinese trouble will be over about February 18, the Chinese New Year. Though tea will not be cheaper, he does not believe there will arise any necessity for advancing prices to the consumer this year. The crops from China will probably be a little late coming forward, but these teas are used very little in Canada, except possibly for cheapening blends. The rapid advance last year in the cost of Ceylon and Indian teas has spent itself and the markets are now practically stationary for good teas, though for very common teas the market is somewhat easier. The consumers have doubtless, in some cases, been supplied with the lower quality at the old price, but they are not long deceived, realizing that they do not go so far as tea of really good quality.

NEW ARRIVALS IN CITY

A number of new arrivals have passed through the local immigration office this week and indications point to several more next week. This beginning in immigration circles is preliminary to the boom which is impending and is looked for about the middle of March. All of the new arrivals to date have been placed within a few hours after their arrival in the city.

There is a big demand for farm help, and applications to the office are pouring in daily. Some of them are extremely fastidious in their wants. The qualifications necessary for a new-comer to secure a position with some of them are unlimited. A great many of them would like to get a good strong boy about 16 years of age ,who can milk, drive horses, and in fact do everything that could be expected of a full grown man, with years of experience behind him.

Others are a little more moderate in their demands and incidentally are a little more successful in so far as results are concerned.

DOCTOR ADVISED HER TO TRY THEM

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Mrs. Bellivesu's Bright's Disease.

Now she can do any kind of work—why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular.

Pre Den Haut, Westmoreland Co., N.B., Feb. 16.—(Special.).—It is becoming a proverb in New Brunswick that no place is too small to furnish at least one person who owes his or her good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills. And this place is no exception to the rule. Mrs. Dominique J. Bellivesu, a well known and highly respected resident says in an interview:

"I took Dodd's Kidney Pills on the advice of my doctor for Bright's Disease ,and I am glad to say three boxes cured me completely. I can do all kinds of work now. I always keep Dod's Kidney Pills in the house in case we might need them."

Sometimes you wonder why people cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills are so enthusiastic in their praises of them. The reason is that they strike right at the root of ill-health. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys. That means that all impurities are strained out of the blood. It means pure blood, and pure blood means good health all over the body. Good health means good spirits; hence the enthusiasm.

Anyone having accounts against the Peterborough Hockey Club are requested to send them in at once for settlement to R. M. Glover, Secretary-Treasurer, at the Examiner Office. 6d

A HANDSOME MEMORIAL STONE

Highly Creditable Design and Workmanship by the Coughlin Monumental Works of This City

The Coughlin Monumental Works are displaying a very handsome memorial stone of their own manufacture. It is made of white granite, and is of the newest style of monument design, being an all hammered monument, without polish. The family name carved on the die is in bold relief in rounded letters. Mr. Coughlin claims it to be the best lettered monument that his or any other firm has turned out in Ontario. The work on this monument was done by experienced granite cutters with air tools. The workman that is accustomed to these tools can do the most difficult carving and lettering with them in half the time it can be done by hand. The Coughlin firm is now one of the leading Granite Manufacturers of the Dominion, having electric power for polishing monuments, and pneumatic power for cutting and lettering. They get their granite in the rough in carload lots, at a freight rate of about 12c per hundred pounds, while finished monuments cost about 33c per hundred pounds, besides saving nearly all the duty as the duty on the rough stock is very small.

This firm is now in a position to execute anything in the granite or marble line from a granite marker to the heaviest and latest style of monument.

Parties contemplating the erection of a monument or memorial stone will find it to their interest to interview the Coughlin Monumental works, or their representative, and secure all information necessary.

Special Services At S.A. Temple

There will be special services at the Salvation Army Temple this week-end. It is what is called in the Army circles a band week-end; the reasons of this is that the members of the band conduct the whole of the services during the week-end. This will no doubt prove interesting to a great many people. There will be special music by the band. The songsters will be rendering some special pieces, and on Sunday afternoon the boys' band will play one or two pieces. In addition to this, some of the bandsmen will be giving short addresses. Come and hear what kind of speakers they make. There will be lots of good singing; some of the old favourites. On Monday night the band will be giving a musical festival in the Temple, under the direction of Bandmaster W. Peryer. This will be an interesting and enjoyable evening for all who will come. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock. Come early to get a seat. All seats are free. Try and attend some of the meetings during the week-end, especially if you don't attend any church in the city. The programme of Monday night's meeting will be published in Monday's issue. —Com.

CLIFFORD LANE BRUCE RETURNS IN "THE THIEF"

His Late New York Success

The success of "The Thief" the Bernstein masterpiece, produced at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, which comes to the Grand Theatre, next Wednesday evening, for an engagement of one night, has penetrated to all corners of the world. Europe acclaimed it as the acme of dramatic writing, and America has done likewise. For two years it reigned supreme as the dramatic sensation of New York, and its presentation with a cast of unusual excellence, is a distinct innovation in this day of mediocre attractions. All over the country women flock to watch and absorb the development of its wonderful story. "The Thief" contains no tiresome sex problem; it tells the story of a woman's love—love for her husband so deep, so unfaltering as to cause her to sink to the level of a thief to hold it. She dresses to please his eyes. Their income is small. Clothes cost money. No longer able to satire herself to his liking on her income she strays from the path of rectitude and right and steals. With the money so stolen she dresses herself like her wealthy friends and her husband is pleased. That is, until he discovers the truth. Her confession and his denouncing of her, of course make a scene that has never been excelled in power and absorbing interest. Not to see "The Thief" is to have missed the greatest event of the year. The seat sale opens Monday morning.

OBITUARY

FREDERICK EGERTON DAROY.

A well known resident was lost to the city this morning in the person of Mr. Fred. Darcy, son of the late Mr. J. H. Darcy, who passed away at 160 Charlotte street at the age of thirty-seven years.

The deceased was a life-long resident of the city. For some time he followed the occupation of a machinist, after which he took up the theatrical profession, which calling occasioned much travelling. He later engaged in restaurant and hotel business, ultimately becoming proprietor of the Pool Room in Charlotte street, where he has passed the latter three years of his life. He was in creed a Presbyterian, and a member of St. Paul's Church.

He had been confined to his room since the 25th of November.

The late Mr. Darcy is survived by a sorrowing wife and one son, Aubrey. His demise is also lamented by his mother and two brothers, Warren, of Burleigh Falls, and Rollie, of Lakefield.

The funeral will take place at the Little Lake Cemetery on Monday afternoon at 2.30. (Private).

EXTRACTS FROM ARTICLE BY MR. GALLAGHER

Published in the Toronto Sunday World, February 18th, 1912

I have made powerful enemies, but when I am right, I fear not. Gen. 33:24, 26-28, Luke, 13:22, 24. Eph., 6:10, 12 13.

In offering the stock of the PorcupineFortuna Gold Mines, Limited at 15c. per share I have no doubt but some people, maliciously inclined,will say with just the right inflection: "Have you seen Gallagher's offering of cheap mining stock," and for the benefit of those who believe all that the "Big Interests" try so hard to inculcate into the minds of all, which is to the effect that no security has any dignity unless, firstly, it is a unit of a great big capital; secondly, unless it has a high par value, and thirdly, sells at around par or many dollars above; also that it is a very poor business to buy shares in any company that is not listed on the big exchanges.

The Press of the country, either through ignorance or paid space, have in the past fostered this belief, with the result that more money is tied up in non-dividend-paying securities that are listed on the exchanges each year, than is lost in the rankest of "Wild Cat" Mining Companies. So-called expert financial writers take notice—there's the glove.

For the past thirteen years I have been interested in mining, either operating mines of which I was a substantial owner or as manager for other people, and during that period I have been secretary and manager of a stock exchange and president of a bank, and have never before offered a share of mining stock to the public. Because of the important positions I held, I was many times offered strong inducements to allow my name to be used as an officer or director. I have been an officer or director in only three companies, and in these I invested largely. All these were close corporations, and none of the stock in any of the companies was ever offered to the public, and all were good producing mines.

I came to Ontario because the price of precious metals is not controlled by those interests, but before I decided to send for my family and make my home here, I spent several months making an examination of the mining camps in northern Ontario. This north mining country has held my interest since the early spring of 1906, when I made my first trip to Cobalt. I made a thorough examination of many properties while there and was strongly tempted to locate there permanently. Early in May, 1911 I walked into Porcupine, and was so much interested in the camp that I wired my wife at Joplin, Mo., to come to Toronto and meet me at the King Edward. I came out of camp before the R. R. was completed, and at that owners of mining properties were asking from two to ten times more money than their properties were worth, considering the development and values shown, and experience taught me that in time properties could be bought at right prices. I met my wife at the King Edward, and we spent some time sight-seeing and decided to move here as soon as I could dispose of my property in Missouri. I like this country very much, and am here to stay. In coming here, I decided to give the public the benefit of my knowledge and experience of mining and financial affairs. Any security I endorse will have merit and honest, intelligent management to back it up. I would rather confine my efforts to a strictly commission brokerage business as by so doing I can be unbiased in my opinions and select the best securities obtainable.

Respectfully,
JAMES F. GALLAGHER,
Manning Arcade,
Toronto, Ontario.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES

At the Y W C.A.—Mrs. Kendry will give her postponed lecture of two weeks ago, on Tuesday evening next, at the Y.W.C.A., taking as her subject, "Between the Old and New Testaments." All Association members and their friends are invited.

"The Servant in the House."—Rev. J. R Webb will preach a sermon on "The Servant in the House," in the Murray street Baptist church to-morrow evening.

Rev. W. S. Major to preach.—Rev. W. S. Major of Montreal, a former pastor of All Saints' Church, will preach at both services at All Saints' to-morrow, and no doubt will be given a hearty welcome by his former parishioners in this city.

SPECIAL LEGISLATION

Ald. Duncan— We can stop this in the future by making a stand right now. If the Government's attention were drawn to this, I think a measure would be passed to put a stop to this kind of thing.

Mayor Bradburn— I think that in any case a company would have to get the charter first and the capital afterwards.

Ald. Buller—If they are sincere in their plan to build they will have the money.

Mr. Hall stated that he was representing the company that are seeking the charter referred to. "I think that we would all be glad to see an electric railway running into the country north of the city. This may be an opportunity of securing it. Surely the Council does not wish to block us. Our getting a charter does not interfere with others. We are not taking an exclusive franchise.

Mayor Bradburn—We are protected if they are not asking for an exclusive franchise.

Ald. Gordon—Let us be represented and see when the company intends to begin operations.

Ald. Johnston wanted to know about the other railway schemes that have been mentioned from time to time. No one attempted to explain what they were or what became of them, and Ald. Johnston remarked that he did not think the City Solicitor should "be butting into these things anyway."

No action was taken beyond the motion already mentioned.

MISSION BAND CONCERT

The Mission Band of the George street Methodist church held a very enjoyable entertainment last night in the Sunday School room. There was a large attendance and the affair was a great success in every way. During the evening a candy sale was held. Following was the programme:

Piano solo, Isabella Baird.
Recitation, Olive Fife.
God Save the King.

MISSION BAND CONCERT

The Mission Band of Murray Street Baptist Church held a very enjoyable concert in the Sunday School room last evening. About fifty children took part. A pleasing feature of the evening was a chorus of ten boys and girls in which the different business men of the city were advertised. A flag drill by twenty girls was also an interesting phase of a well-appointed programme.

HANNA IS GRILLED

Minister Has to Explain Points in His Sins

MONEY LENDERS, LOOK OUT!

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Hon. W. J. Hanna bore the brunt of all the discussion in the Legislature yesterday. Hon. A. G. MacKay objected to a clause in the House of Refuge Act in which the punishment of inmates was left to the officials of the institution. Under the act, which was framed up by a committee of judges, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-council was never mentioned as having any authority in the matter. Sir James Whitney expressed surprise that such a regulation should prevail in a British country. He said the Lieutenant-Governor-in-council undoubtedly should be held responsible on all matters of this kind.

Mr. Hanna also had to account for a clause in the Health Act whereby compulsory vaccination for smallpox was enforced, on the recommendation of the medical health officer. Hon. A. G. MacKay contended that in cases where the M. H. O. was a responsible man, the rule would hold good, but in other cases where suspicion of a disease, being smallpox had brought about a scare in the neighborhood, he did not think it justifiable that the whole community should be subjected to compulsory vaccination, or the alternative of a fine of $25. He recommended that the matter be left to the chief medical health officer.

Mr. Hanna said the present law was being enforced, and it would be better to take one step at a time.

Hon. Mr. Foy introduced a bill respecting money lenders. It provides that where, in respect of money lent, the court finds that the cost of the loan is excessive, the court may order that the transaction be reopened, and notwithstanding any settlement or agreement to settle, may relieve the debtor from payment of any sum in excess of that adjudged as fair. It may order a creditor to repay any such excess, and may set aside, either wholly or in part, any security given in respect to the money lent. If the creditor has parted with the security, the court may order him to indemnify the debtor. The act provides that the powers may be exercised in any action by a creditor for the recovery of money lent and action by the debtor or an action in which the amount due or about to become due is in question. The act is not retroactive.

A clause provides that every money-lender shall be registered within one month after the act goes into force, and no person may carry on the business of a money-lender or enter into any agreement for money lending who is not registered. A penalty not exceeding $200 for the first offence, and on the second offence, imprisonment for six months, or in case of a corporation a penalty of $1,000 is provided. No prosecution for an offence under this bill shall be commenced without the consent of the Attorney-General. A penalty not exceeding $500 is provided for any money-lender who by false or misleading statements or promises induces any person to borrow money. The Government may direct the suspension of any person who has been convicted of an offence.

Hon. W. H. Hearst introduced a bill to amend the Algonquin National Park Act. It provides that during the the construction and after the completion of any railway passing through the Algonquin National Park, the Minister may appoint as many rangers, officers or guardians as he may see fit, for the protection of the fish, animals and birds, and of any other property or interest of the crown or the public therein. The expense and salaries in connection with the new system of protection must be paid by the railways. The money is to be a debt to the crown from the railway company, and is recoverable in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Mr. Rowell gives notice of a bill to be introduce on Tuesday next to regulate the hours of employment in underground work. The object is to prevent men working for more than eight hours out of the twenty-four, which will include the time descending and ascending to and from the scene of labor. In the case of emergency or imminent danger to life or property, the hours of labor may be extended. Any one who persuades, commands or allows labor to work in contravention of this act may be liable to fine or imprisonment.

Mr. Rowell gives notice that he will enquire of the Ministry as to how many petitions were presented to the Legislature or the Government in each of the years 1909, 1910, 1911, asking for legislation enabling municipalities to levy a lower rate upon improvements than that levied upon lands, or to fix the assessment valuation of improvements at less than their real value.

A Welland Canal Route.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—The Hon. Frank Cochrane was waited upon yesterday afternoon by a deputation of interests from Brantford and Dunnville urging upon him the advantage of a route from Port Maitland to Jordan Harbor for the proposed enlarged Welland Canal. They claimed that it would mean a saving of distance, less rock excavation, earlier opening of the harbors, in the spring, owing to the existence of natural currents. They also urged that it would mean a saving of distance.

The Minister of Railways promised to refer the matter to the Department for a preliminary enquiry.

Woman Nature Writer Dead.

Montreal, Que., Feb. 17.—Mrs. Annie L. Jack of Chateauguay, known throughout Canada as a writer on birds, flowers, fruits, etc., died yesterday morning.

WANT TARIFF RAISED.

Fruit Growers Want a Heavier Duty on Peaches.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—With the passing of a number of important resolutions of concern to those engaged in fruit growing industry throughout the country, the third Dominion conference of fruit growers, came to an end yesterday afternoon.

The chief resolutions passed were substantially as follows:

That a board of three fruit dealers in each province be formed as a committee to advise in the appointment of inspectors.

That $10,000 be voted by the Government as a grant to the next national apple show, provided that the promoters of that show are willing to offer $20,000.

That the Government be requested to raise the tariff on peaches.

That an apple box with a capacity of 2,200 cubic inches be made the legal standard throughout Canada, to come into effect within two years.

That the question of most suitable shapes for fruit packages be left over to the next conference, with the understanding that in the meantime an investigation shall be made, preferably by the Government.

That certificates be given by fruit inspectors on the payment of a reasonable fee.

That the Government be urged to inspect as much as possible at the point of shipment and that the Government have daily market prices cabled from agents in Europe during the shipping seasons and published in the daily papers throughout Canada.

Two standards for the apple barrel were adopted by the conference. One is the ninety-six quart size common in Nova Scotia, and the other the 112 quart size common in Ontario and most other parts of the country. Another resolution asked that the shippers' stamp on boxes of apples, the number of apples contained.

Speaking in connection with the resolution asking a boost in the tariff on peaches, Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, said the Government had appointed a tariff commission for the express purpose of investigating conditions pertaining to the tariff. He did not think tariff revision would be taken up piecemeal until the report of the committee on condition as a whole had been presented.

PLEADS FOR SIKHS.

Dr. Wilkie Eloquently Urges Admittance of Wives.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—"Give the Sikh a chance and he will make good in Canada. The law which excludes this class of people from British Columbia is a huge farce because of its unjust, unfair interpretation." Speaking to the Women's Canadian Club in the Guild Hall yesterday afternoon, Rev. Dr. Wilkie, for thirty years a missionary in India, endeavored to prove that these British subjects should be given different treatment at the hands of the Federal Government. He declared that it was an outrage that Japanese and Chinese should be allowed to enter Canada and the wives of Sikhs barred. He advocated entire Asiatic exclusion if one class was favored.

Classing them as fabrications and misinterpretations. Dr. Wilkie scored the newspaper stories which had characterized the Sikhs in Vancouver as seditionists and unworthy of any consideration. He wondered why families should be separated by an unjust law, and he strongly favored the admission of wives of Sikhs. Of the very few thousand settled in British Columbia, he said 300 were engaged in farming and 500 in dairying, which proved, in his estimation, that the class was not worthless. The province in the extreme west was practically unknown and needed cultivators badly.

"Sikhs as a body with whom I have worked for years, can be trusted," quoth he, "I have learned to love and admire them. In some cases they are not desirable citizens, but they can be easily cultivated into good men and women. They are the same stock from which we sprang. They are our equals in this regard, and they will be our equals in citizenship if given the opportunity."

He believed that the immigration officer of Vancouver was responsible and not the Ottawa authorities. If the people knew the facts he considered the monstrous wrong would be set right. There were only two courses—deport the whole crowd or eliminate the unnatural inhuman, immoral position of the Sikhs in Canada by allowing wives to join husbands. The present conditions caused the severance of home relations.

"India was won for the Empire by the Sikhs," he said. "These people are called brothers when there's a fight, but seditionists and niggars when they want a little concession."

ROWELL AT LONDON

The Liberal Leader Gets an Enthusiastic Reception

TELLS OF SEVEN SLEEPERS

London, Feb. 17.—Mr. N. W. Rowell, leader of the Ontario Opposition, spoke before a big gathering of Liberals here last night.

The meeting was opened somewhat late, owing to the train on which Mr. Rowell arrived having been delayed.

The retiring president, Mr. George S. Gibbons, opened the meeting with a short speech.

Mr. Rowell was loudly cheered. He told how he had made his start in political life in this city, and said they could see that he was back at it as vigorously as twenty-two years ago. He paid a tribute to the group of men at his back in Toronto, and expressed peculiar gratification over the return of Mr. Robert Sutherland, M.P.P., for his native constituency of East Middlesex. He told how Mr. Sutherland had already got the Government to move in legislation for the advantage of the horse-breeding industry. While the seven sleepers sleep at Toronto, still by persistent prodding they could be made to move, and he said a good service was being rendered the country by the educational campaigns that were being launched, and he urged upon Londoners to develop the London Liberal Club, which could be an influence not only in the city, but throughout the district.

The speaker elicited applause when he said that Sir James Whitney was omniscient and omnipotent. What he did not know was not worth knowing, and what he could not do was not worth doing.

A good deal of interest was being manifested in what the temperance policy of the Liberal party would be. Mr. Rowell recalled how prior to the late elections the announcement had been made that this serious problem would be carefully considered during the next Legislature, and the best form of legislation to remedy the liquor evil decided upon, when the Liberals would stand or fall by the policy to be adopted.

Progressive legislation for the betterment of the people would be advocated, and he believed the people would when the opportunity came tell the present Government to step aside and let the Liberals give the province that government which would give back to Ontario the proud position of the leading Province in Canada, which it held in the days of Oliver Mowat.

DO DYSPEPSIA OR STOMACH DISTRESS

Heartburn, Gas, Sourness and Stomach Misery Vanishes

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odours from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolue relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one 50-cent case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Pape's Diapepsin which will always, either at daytime, or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

May Turn State's Evidence.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—Intimations were said to have been received by the Government yesterday that some of the defendanst in the dynamite conspiracy cases were preparing "to tell all they know."

The statements followed the Government's charges that 40,000 letters and telegrams taken from the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers showed that Frank M. Ryan, the president, H. S. Hockin, the second vice-president, and members of the executive board and business agents conducted the dynamite plots through the mail, pointed out "jobs" to be blown up and maintained a system of destruction against non-union iron and steel contractors.

Asked if any negotiations had been opened with him concerning the defendants, U. S. District Attorney Charles W. Miller said:

"I wouldn't be surprised if it is shown that something like that had happened."

W. N. Harding, counsel for Ryan, and the international officials of the iron workers, held a long conference with Mr. Miller yesterday, but it was not disclosed what was considered.

Between now and the arraignment before Federal Judge Anderson here, on March 12, the Government will proceed with preparations for the trials, which probably will be early in May.

C.P.R. TRAIN WRECK.

Six Persons Badly Injured In Derailment at Chatsworth.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Running downgrade at forty miles an hour, C.P.R. train 706, bound from Owen Sound to Toronto, jumped the rails and was hurled down an embankment at Dead Man's Cut, near Chatsworth, yesterday afternoon, and six persons were more or less seriously injured. The train was due in Toronto at 7.50 last night, but did not arrive till after midnight. All the victims were men, and one may die. The cause of the wreck was a defective rail. The victims are:

Mail Clerk Fulton of Toronto, may die.

Arthur Shane, Toronto, badly injured internally, two ribs having pierced lungs. Taken to Orangeville hospital.

F. J. McNabb, architect, 33 Winchester street, Toronto, scalp wound and broken nose. Taken to Western Hospital.

Russell Savage, 30 Rolyat street, Toronto, scalp wounds, legs badly bruised. Taken to Western Hospital.

H. O. Parks, mail clerk, 242 Seaton street, Toronto, broken leg and badly shaken up. Taken to Western Hospital.

Harold Hanshaw, West Toronto, back injured. Taken home.

Conductor Hines and Engineer Little, both of Toronto, were in charge of the train. Probably the presence of mind of Little averted a more serious catastrophe. The moment the rails spread and the wheels were on the tiles he applied the brakes, but just gradually, fearing that to do otherwise might cause telescoping of the cars. At is was all the coaches, numbering five, cleared the rails, the mail and one passenger car going down a 25-foot embankment. The engine and the other coaches, although clearing the rails, lay partially on their sides.

Word of the derailment reached the C.P.R. office at 4.30, and an auxiliary was immediately despatched from West Toronto to the scene of the wreck. A train was taken north from Walkerton and the passengers and badly smashed baggage were transferred to it and brought to Toronto, arriving at the Union Station at 12.20 this morning. Two ambulances were in waiting, which immediately conveyed four of the injured to the Western Hospital.

When Parks was being removed from the baggage car on a stretcher one of the ambulance corps slipped on the ice, resulting in him being thrown to the pavement. He was picked up unconscious. Shane was taken off at Orangeville, being so badly injured that it was not thought advisable to bring him to the city. Two ribs pieced his lungs, and he is in a very precarious condition.

Fulton and Parks were mail clerks and Shane was a baggageman.

The engineer and firemen stuck to their posts and came out scathless.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The entire Norwegian Cabinet resigned yesterday.

C. O. Jones, postmaster at Bedford, Que., has been discharged for alleged offensive partisanship during the last election.

The Government will erect a new lighthouse near Lake Ontario Park, Kingston. Work will be commenced as soon as the weather is favorable.

In his fourth attempt within a week to enter Canada, Henry Soloman was taken into custody by immigration authorities at the Falls and deported last night.

It is currently reported that Mr. Frank E. Hodgins, K.C., Toronto, will be the Government counsel in the investigation of the Farmers' Bank before Sir William Meredith.

It is considered likely that J. J. Ritchie, K.C., of Halifax, N.S., will be elevated to the Supreme Court bench of Nova Scotia, in the place of the late Mr. Justice Laurance.

Jacob Cucu died at Regina yesterday as a result of being frozen on the prairie near Rouleau. Cucu said he would rather die than go through life without hands or feet and refused to allow an operation.

Congressman Berger says the U. S. does not need an army. "Texas alone," he says, "can whip Mexico in case of an attack. If the Canadians should try to attack us, I believe New York state could do the job."

Over 1,000 carloads of hay, bought in the Ottawa Valley for shipment to parts of Western Ontario, are held up for want of cars. As a consequence much suffering and loss may be looked for in Essex and Kent Counties, where hay is very scarce.

Chief Ryan, Gananoque, is looking for Alex. Pelow, arrested at Kingston, on a charge of theft in Gananoque. While the chief was taking him from the lock-up to the court room he suddenly grabbed hold of the chief, tripped him and made a safe escape.

Hebert Decision Monday.

Montreal, Feb. 17.—After court closed last evening Judge Charbonneau announced that he would be ready to give the Hebert marriage decision on Saturday morning. Mr. G. V. Cousins, chief counsel for Mrs. Hebert, found, however, that he would be obliged to be out of town to-day, and persuaded the judge to postpone the delivery of his judgment till Monday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

SAFE IS RANSACKED

Daring Robbers Get Away With $400 in Toronto

TWO MEN TIED TO CHAIRS

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Lurking outside in the dark until all the drivers had turned in their collections, two men, with faces concealed, at 7.30 last night entered the office of the Standard Chemical at the foot of John street, leveled revolvers at the cashier and knocked the night foreman down, unconscious. They then robbed the safe of $400, tied the two men to chairs and departed into the night.

Early this morning the detectives had not located the hold-up men, who had plenty of time to jump on a passing train and make their way out of the city.

The cashier, J. W. Mayo, 481 Brock avenue, a man of about fifty years, was just preparing to close up the day's work when the two robbers entered. Both wore woolly caps such as tobogganists wear, pulled down over the back of the head and fastened around at the front just below the nose. These caps were effectual as masks.

With Cashier Mayo was Geo. Ross, night superintendent of the plant. They were told to hold up their hands. Despite the fact that two guns were threatening them, Rose demurred.

"We mean business. You'll get killed if you don't put up your hands." Ross hesitated, was struck on the head with a billy and dropped to the floor stunned.

Stripping the safe, which had not yet been locked, of all the cash within and gathering up some money lying on a desk, one of the robbers stuffed his pockets with small bills and $50 in silver, while the other kept his eyes and his gun on Mayo and the stirring foreman, who was struggling back to consciousness.

The money secured, the robbers bound the foreman and cashier to chairs, tying the knots tightly and with care.

"There's other men outside and they'll be there for twenty minutes. Don't move," said the robbers, as they started for the door.

One turned back, and as an added precaution, tore the telephone from the wall.

About half an hour later a watchman, on his rounds visited the office and found the two men still tied, although they had squirmed and twisted and tried in every way to release each other.

Brides Need Not "Obey."

London, Feb. 17.—As a result of the recent suffragette wedding, at which the bride refused to promise to obey her husband, there is a prospect that the word "obey" will be stricken from the Church of England marriage service.

The matter came up at a meeting of lower house of convocation of the province of Canterbury, Thursday, and a resolution was adopted recommending that the 'Scriptural form of last exhortation in the marriage ceremony be revised."

The Dean of Canterbury objected strenuously to altering "an exhortation which contains passages from St. Peter and St. Paul on the grounds that these apostles were wrong."

The Dean of Winchester, however, insisted on the recommendation, and it was adopted with a slight modification.

The house also agreed to revise the collect following in the marriage service, asking for children for the couple. For this collect the committee proposes to substitute the following words: "Bestow, we beseech Thee, upon these two persons the heritage and gift of children."

Britain Prevails.

Madrid, Feb. 17.—A most important step in advance has been taken in the negotiations between Spain and France on the subject of Morocco. The Spanish Government yesterday accepted the British proposition in regard to the collection of customs, the proceeds of which are to be applied to the liquidation of the Moroccan loans from 1904-1910.

Spain had entered a decided objection to the collection of the customs by the French acting as the representatives of the holders of the loans.

The British proposal provides for the appointment of a Franco-Spanish commission composed of six experts, and this body is to be empowered to settle all questions relative to the Moroccan customs.

The only remaining question of importance between France and Spain with regard to Morocco is that of the territorial compensations which are to be made to Spain.

No Says Yuan.

Pekin, Feb. 17.—In the course of an interview with the Associated Press yesterday, Yuan Shi Kai said:

"Owing to lack of experience, the Republican Government will make many errors. Having been elected President of the Republic I will undertake the task."

Yuan Shi Kai said that he had a great admiration for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who had shown himself a true patriot.

The princes of the Imperial court are beseeching Yuan Shi Kai not to leave Pekin fearing that if he does so something will happen to the court, which trusts only to him for its safety and for the fulfilment of the pledges given by the Republicans.

Local Option in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Feb. 17.—Yesterday a large delegation from the Moral Reform Council, representing all the churches in the province, called on the Government and presented a lengthy petition for the submission of a local option vote in Manitoba.

The plan favored by the council will permit of the continuance of the wholesale liquor stores, which is less drastic than the usual temperance demand.

The Government advised the delegation that the subject would receive consideration.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

ORILLIA YOUNKERS STOPPED BEAR CATS

NORTHERNERS WON HANDILY BY 8 TO 2

Weight of the Visitors and the Soft Ice Proved Too Much for the Local Youngsters Who Had None of the Breaks.

HALF TIME SCORE 2 TO 1

The Orillia juniors put a crimp in the championship aspirations of the Bear Cats last night when the husky team from the north defeated the local juniors at Brock street rink by 8 goals to 2 in a semi-final game. The score looks as if the Peterborough youngsters were outclassed. Such, however, was far from being the case, they were beaten by a better team but on the play earned a much closer score and had they got any of the breaks would undoubtedly have closed the gap considerably. Out-weighed twenty pounds per man on an average they were at an immense disadvantage on the soft ice and the handicap was increased early in the game when Clancy and Kenneally, the two wing men, were injured. Although they returned to the game, the injuries they received had taken a lot of steam out of the two and the forward line was affected. With any luck, the Bear Cats should have had a lead at half time, but nothing broke right for them. Openings right in front of the nets were missed by inches, while on the other hand the Orillia team after a lot of futile shooting from outside, got two phoney goals, one on some careless work on the part of the Peterborough defence and the other from a face-off in the mouth of the goal. Throughout the opening period and for ten minutes in the second half it was anyone's game; after that period the visitors had the edge. Their weight enabled them to carry the rubber through the slush with much greater facility than the little Peterborough men and the latter never got going as in their other games. The soft ice made combination a difficult matter and the visitors checked back so persistently that individual rushes were nipped in the bud. It was apparent that the ten days' rest the youngsters have had since their last game did not do them any good.

Orillia have a big, fast team, averaging 155 pounds and they work from the drop of the hat to the final gong, their great back-checking being a feature. They have some clever stick-handlers on the line and showed great team-work as well as brilliant individual performances. MacNab and Cook made a steady, hard-working defence, although the former mars his effectiveness by his persistent tripping, which earned him four or five penalties last night. On the advance guard Jupp at right wing is undoubtedly the star. He has great speed and is a wizard stick-handler. Thornton on the other wing, the biggest man on the team, is a hard worker and a great rusher, while Mohan and Butterfield in the centre are fast and clever. Dwyer played a grand game on the nets for Peterborough. He was given lots to do, and the cool manner in which he handled the shots of the Orillia line earned him the admiration of the crowd. His work has improved every game, and the youngster is a goaler of real class. Milloy played his usual effective game at point. Denison was watched closely by the visitors and was not given a chance to be as prominent as usual. His reputation had preceded him, and the Younkers paid special attention to the big cover-point. At that he was in the limelight with some spectacular dashes. Clancy was going great guns until his eye was closed by being hit with the puck. He pluckily came back into the game after the injury had been attended to, but, naturally, was not as effective afterwards. Weir never let up any although the combination of Orillia's weight and the soft ice made the going pretty hard for the speedy little rover. Hall worked strenuously to turn the tide, and did some great checking, as did Kenneally. The latter was slashed across the face early in the battle, but refused to stay out of the game. It was not the best exhibition of hockey that has been seen here this season. It was not the up and down the rink variety at all, but consisted of a series of long assaults, first around one goal and then around the other. On hard ice it would have been a much more even and a more spectacular battle. The Bear Cats will go to Orillia for the return game on Tuesday, and are hoping for a change in the weather.

The teams lined up as follows:

The game opened at a furious clip with the teams rushing in turn, although the checking back was so close that few opportunities [illegible] given in the first [illegible] Dwyer was called [illegible] of several [illegible] wind by Ju[illegible] he handle[illegible] penalty for slashing, but no damage was done while he was off. Denison tore away with several spectacular rushes, but his shots from outside the defence were inaccurate. Clancy came back into the game and tore off a pretty dodging rush up the boards, beating Cook with a nice shot and the Bear Cats were in front for the first and only time during the battle. Orillia 0, Peterborough 1.

Mohan was penalized for tripping. The battle was remarkably even. Orillia were getting the most shots, but they were from outside, and were easily turned aside by Dwyer, while the Petes were getting in closer and having no luck when they got there. Clancy missed by inches when he got clean through, and Weir lost a golden opportunity when he shot wild, after taking a pass in the mouth of the nets. Just at this stage Clancy was struck in the eye by the puck, receiving a nasty cut, and he had to be carried off for repairs. Mohan was dropped by Orillia to even up. Denison got away for a beautiful rush, but Cook made a clever stop of Hall's shot. Clancy and Mohan came back, and almost immediately Kenneally was slashed in the face and had to retire, Mohan again being the Orillia man to be dropped. Orillia tied up the game when Denison passed to Milloy in front of the Peterborough nets. Thornton grabbed the rubber away from Milloy before he could break away and scored, Dwyer having no chance to get his shot. Orillia 1, Peterborough 1.

Denison and Thornton were sent away within a few seconds of each other for tripping. Orillia took the lead on an easy goal at this stage. Dwyer stopped a long shot from Butterfield, the rubber rebounding in front of the nets. When Milloy started away with it, Referee Hern called the play back and from the faceoff in the mouth of the goal, Mohan slammed one past Dwyer and the Yonkers were in front. Orillia 2, Peterborough 1. Mohan and MacNab drew penalties for tripping before the half ended.

The Bear Cats opened th second half, as if they were going to pull the game out of the fire. They carried the rubber down and bottled the Northerns up for a few minutes, but had no luck in their shooting, and finally the scene of hostilities was transferred to the Peterborough end, where Jupp scored on a neat shot following a face-off. Back came the Petes and for a while Orillia were forced back on the defensive, but they were checking so closely that the Bear Cats had few chances to score. Then Orillia drifted back to Peterborough territory, and Mohan sent their stock higher by accepting a neat pass and scoring, the first Orillia goal to be scored on a clean rush during the game. Orillia 4, Peterborough 1.

MacNab drew another penalty for tripping, but the odd man advantage did not favour the Petes, and from this priod on the visitors had the better of the argument. Their superior speed and weight had their effect and the last twenty minutes of the battle belonged to the Yonkers. Jupp was hurt and there was a delay until he was patched up. Then Butterfield went up and scored nicely. Orillia 5, Peterborough 1.

MacNab was again chased for tripping, and Denison followed for chopping Thornton over the boot. The slash did not slow the wing man up any, as he slipped up the wing with a pretty rush, drew Dwyer out of the nets and then slipped the rubber over to Jupp, who scored easily. Orillia 6, Peterborough 1.

Thornton also got the next on a nice shot and then Butterfield shovelled one through in a mix-up in front of the nets. The goal was disputed, but the goal umpire's decision was sustained and Orillia led by 8 to 1. MacNab was penalized again for roughing it, and while he was on the boards, Clancy scored for Peterborough from a scrimmage, leaving the final score 8 to 2.

The summary:

1—Peterborough, Clancy.
2—Orillia, Mohan.
3—Orillia, Mohan.

Half-time—

4—Orillia, Jupp.
5—Orillia, Mohan.
6—Orillia, Butterfield.
7—Orillia, Jupp.
8—Orillia, Thornton.
9—Orillia, Butterfield.
10—Peterborough, Clancy.

SUDDEN DEATH GAME IN THE TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE

Peterborough fans will get an opportunity of seeing two of the outside Trent Valley teams in action on Wednesday night of next week, when the Hastings and Lakefield teams will meet in a sudden death semi-final Trent Valley battle at the Brock street rink. Both teams are in fine shape and a fast game is expected. Each club will run an excursion to Peterborough per special train and there will be big doings when the crowds get together.

All Saints and T.A.S. will play their postponed Trent Valley League fixture at Brock street rink on Monday night. There is keen rivalry between the two clubs and it promises to be a battle royal from start to finish. Last time out the Abstainers won by 2 to 0, but the Saints claim that they will turn the trick on Monday.

Local Curlers Win The Round

A quartette of rinke from the Toronto Curling Club journeyed to this city last evening, and engaged in a friendly game with as many rinks of the local club. Peterborough won out with fourteen shots to the good, giving them a lead of sixteen shots on the round.

The Scotch curlers are due to sail from New York to-day, en route for home.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlains' Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

The Benedicts of the Examiner have accepted the challenge of the Bachelors, and the game will take place at the Brock street rink in the near future. A fast game of hockey is promised to the Peterborough hockey fans, who will learn with pleasure of this great game, and will undoubtedly turn out in large numbers to see the fast Examiner teams once more decide who will be champions for another season. Last year the Bachelors were the victors, but the Benedicts promise to turn the tables on last year's champions. The teams will line up as follows:

Bachelors		Benedicts
	Goal
[illegible]		Barringer
	Centre
Swanston		Johnston
	right wing
McKiely		Dillon
	left wing
Butcher		Myland

Bachelors — Spares, Manion and Heard. Mascot, J. Browne.

Benedicts—Spares Davies and Caniff. Mascot "Scotty" Galbraith.

The "Lindsay Commercial Travellers" challenge the Peterborough "Knights of the Grip" to a game of hockey, to be played in Lindsay on Saturday, March 2. The return game to be played in Peterborough the following Saturday.

Adamson & Dobbin challenge Adam Hall team to a game of hockey when ever an arrangement can be made for the rink.

Curling At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, MAN., FEB. 16.—The mercury aviated this afternoon, turning the streets into pools of slush. Undaunted by the consequent heavy ice, the curlers played from early morning till well past midnight in an effort to get the big events down to the jewelry classes to-night. The consistent successes of numerous rinks have tied play up, and it is doubtful whether even the big events can be concluded before next Tuesday. The strong rinks are nearing the jewelry classes. Flavelle, of Lindsay, and McAulay, of Southampton, are in the sixteens of two open events. Flavelle has reached the fours of the Patriarch event for curlers over 60 years. Thauburn, of Brampton, is in the eights of the McLaren competition, the Braden, of Winnipeg, remains the only unbeaten skip in the open events. This afternoon Braden met and defeated Finlay, of Winnipeg, whose record has hitherto been one of successive victories. In the Grand Aggregate Braden leads with eighteen wins and no losses, Finlay is second with sixteen wins and one loss, Thauburn and Flavelle each have fifteen wins and two losses.

Deftel and Dunbar, of St. Paul, have reached the fours of the Tuckett Double Club event. Dunbar is in the eights of the Tetley Tea and also in the finals of the International, and will meet either McLeod or Oldham, of Duluth, in the finals to-morrow.

JAMES F. GALLAGHER & COMPANY

Present the First Offering of the Stock of

PORCUPINE - FORTUNA GOLD MINES LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Compani

Capital Stock $2,000,000, divided into 2,000,000 Shares. Par Value $1.00 per Share. Treasury Shares 1,000,000 Shares. All Shares Common Shares, fully paid and non-assessable. The Company has no Bonds, Preferred Shares or indebtedness of any kind.

The company owns 3 groups in all, 6 mining claims, 310 acres, in the Porcupine Mining District of Ontario, described as follows: The Reany Mining Claim in Tisdale, being the southwest quarter of the south half of Lot Number Two, Concession One, Tisdale; the Mapes Claim in Deloro T. R. P. 814 (Called H. R. 926), and six claims in Shaw Township, called the James claims, being officially known as Claims Nos. 13884, 13885, 13886, 13887, 13888 and 13889.

GROUP NO. 1

The well-known Reany lies east of the Martin and Dome. The famous Dunn and Steel properties adjoin the Reany on the east and the Rose-Van Cutser claims, owned by one of the largest mining, engineering and brokerage houses of London (owners of Town Site Mine at Cobalt), adjoin the Reany on the west side. The Dunn and Steal vein runs into the Reany and has been exposed by stripping for a distance of 600 feet on the Reany. This vein has an average width of 20 feet and is heavily mineralized. (See Engineer's Report).

GROUP NO. 2

The Mapes claim in Deloro lies two claims south of Tisdale on the south of the Powell claims. On the east of the Mapes are the now famous Dobie Maidens and McDonald properties. The Boston Development Company, on the west, have made their spectacular strike on this same vein, which is traced through the Mapes property from the Dobie. The Sschumacher property lies northwest. The entire property lies in the main Dome ore zone, whose principal trend is northeast by southwest, which is the trend of the Dobie, Maidens, Mapes and Boston Development veins. Two-thirds of the Mapes claim is exposed and easily prospected. The Mapes claim is considered one of the most promising in its neighborhood, and, like the Reany, should develop into a good-paying mine.

Groups 1 and 2 are in famous Dome Ore Zone.

GROUP NO. 3

The six James claims in Shaw are too well known to go into detail in describing. It is sufficient to say that these claims have a well-mineralized ore body 150 feet wide, that with proper development will more than likely prove one of the great ore bodies of the Porcupine District.

SOLICITORS

Day, Ferguson and O'Sullivan. The incorporation, titles and legal matters of the Porcupine-Fortuna Gold Mines, Limited, have been executed by the above firm of Corporation Solicitors.

MINE MANAGEMENT.

There has been a great deal of unfavorable comment regarding poor management of many of the Porcupine properties, and in many cases we know this feeling is justified, but with our reputation established as Mine Operators, those who invest in Porcupine-Fortuna may rest assured that the management of this property will have the best advice obtainable.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT.

The Officers and Directors of this Company are well known bankers, business and mining men, who have proven successful in handling large financial institutions with profit to the shareholders and credit to themselves. Associated with the bankers and business men are mining men well known in the north mining country of Ontario. They have successfully prospected and operated in Cobalt, Gowganda and Porcupine, and have established reputations for progressiveness, reliability and intelligent operations.

OFFICERS OF THE COMPANY

TORONTO, ONTARIO.

Statutory Prospectus of PORCUPINE FORTUNA GOLD MINES, LIMITED, dated 13th January, 1912, and filed with the Provincial Secretary of Ontario.

Authorized capital, 2,000,000 shares of one dollar each, of which one share each was subscribed by the incorporators (who are also at the date of this Prospectus the directors) viz: James E. Day, John M. Ferguson, Edward V. O'Sullivan and James M. Adam (Barristers), and James F. Coughlin (Law Student), all of the office of Day, Ferguson & O'Sullivan, 59 Victoria-street, Toronto, the Solicitors for the Company. The balance of the stock, 1,999,995 shares is agreed to be issued to F. L. Mapes of Haileybury, Ont., Miner, under two contracts, dated 5th of January and 9th of January, 1912, between him and the Company for the transfer to the Company of eight mining claims in Porcupine. All the stock having been issued, the Company has gone to allotment, but by a contract between F. L. Mapes and the Company, January, 1912, he has agreed to donate 1,000,000 shares to be used for treasury purposes. The above contracts may be inspected any day at the office of the above-named Solicitors.

Qualification required of the directors is one share. No provisions are yet made for their remuneration other than allowance of fees and expenses for attending meetings, nor for underwriting or payment of commission on sale of stock, but the directors have power to fix their own fees and salaries, and to pay a commission up to 25 per cent. on sale of stock, and to sell stock at a discount If any of the said 1,000,000 shares are sold the amount agreed to be paid for same will be payable in full in one instalment. The above directors have no interest in the promotion other than Solicitors, or in promoters' profit which is in the shares issued. The preliminary expenses being government, filing and legal fees, are estimated at under $1500.

In the nine a.m. draw to-day Finlay pursued his winning by defeating Cullingford by 14 to 5 in the Purity Flour. Braden did not play. The Eastern rinks—Flavelle and Thauburn—struck their winning form in the Purity and McLaren respectively, while the St. Paul men scored another win in the Tuckett.

Prices Were Lower

Attracted by prevailing high prices and weather that suggested the passing of winter, the farmers with their wives and daughters gathered at the market to-day in unusually large numbers. The increase of the commodities on which the townspeople feel they have been held up resulted in a bear market, and although the opening prices were around last week's figures, it was not long until they broke, tottered and finally fell to a fairly reasonable basis.

Potatoes were not plentiful, but there was a fair offering. One farmer wanted $1.85 a bag and only a few yards from him another asked $1.90.

A former locl hotel man was trying to induce the latter to let him have a bag at $1.75.

"I've put many a deal your way; you can let me have one at $1.75. I don't want to buy more than that just now; they're too dear."

"Come around after awhile," was the answer, "and I'll see what I can do for you."

"Why, you will have them all sold," the ex-hotel-keeper replied, and the farmer only smiled. It was a case of bygones are bygones when a question of 15 cents are involved.

Further down the line a young farmer tagged his potatoes at $2. They appeared to be of good quality and this was his answer when buyers remonstrated with him, saying others were asking less.

"I can't help what others are getting," he said. "I've been getting $2 for this load and this is my last bag."

Still another farmer was asking $1.85 for potatoes which several men said were good enough for seed.

They were of medium size, and in these days might be accepted without a murmur.

"If anyone will take the fou rbags, he can have them at $1.75," the farmer offered, but there were no signs just then of a stampede to take him up.

Such was the potato situation. Whether the farmers got what they asked in every case is not known. They say they did and at eleven o'clock the most of them claimed that they were about cleaned out.

In the hall upstairs at that hour a woman was going out when she met two others who were also going home.

"What did you give for your butter?" she asked them.

"Thirty-five cents," one of the pair replied.

"My goodness! I paid forty cents a little while ago. Are you sure it is good?"

Then they passed through the door.

The fact is that butter sold all the way from forty cents, the opening price, down to 38c, 37c and 35c, and it was said that some sold later for 34c. Eggs likewise opened at 40c and dropped to 37c and 35c. Most of the sales in either case seemed to be made around the 37-cent mark.

Poultry was well represented. Turkeys were more plentiful than usual. Some of them were looking like "rare old birds." One weighed at least twenty pounds. It looked like the carcass of an ostrich. Beside it were several chickens that might pass for pigeons. The contrast reminded one of Mutt and Jeff.

Prices to-day were as follows:

Butter—35c to 40c.
Eggs—36c to 40c.
Chickens—$1 to $1.25 a pair.
Fowl—75c to $1 each.
Turkeys—$1.75 to $4 each.
Potatoes—$1.75 to $2 per bag.
Apples—Spys—Per bag, $1.75.
Lamb per lb.—12 1-2c and 15c.
Mutton per lb.—10c and 12c.
Pork per lb.—10c and 11c.
Beef per lb.—8c and 9c.
Hogs—live—$6.65.
Hogs—dressed—$8.50.
Baled hay—$17.
Loose hay—$15.

SEEN AND HEARD

His Preference.

Thomas Nelson Page, at a dinner in Washington, told a story about an old coloured man.

"On a bright, cold, snowy morning in the holidays," he said, "as old Uncle Cicero hobbled down the Main Street on his stick, a gentleman stopped him and said:

"'Now, Uncle Cicero, what would you rather have for a New Year's gift—a bottle of applejack or a pair of shoes?'

"'Well, sah,' said Uncle Cicero, tell God about that lion, and see what He says."

Presently Virginia came down.

"What did He say?" asked the mother.

"Oh," said Virginia, "He said it was all right. He said He had often been fooled Himself by that big dog of O'Neil's!"—Boston Traveller.

Unkind: "This wine," said Mr. Bluffer, proudly, "has been in my cellar for thirty years"

Mr. Kauler, who is something of a connoisseur, sipped his portion critically. "I don't wonder," he murmured.—Cleveland Leader.

"Is it possible," asked Dr. Fourthly, "that girls work in cigar factories?"

"I am inclined to think they do," said the influential member of the doctor's congregation; "I pulled a small hairpin out of a cigar I was smoking the other day!"—Chicago Tribune.

The Spender, with an ill-concealed sneer, handed this maxim to the saver: "Some people are so stingy that they are dishonest."

"And by the same token," responded the saver, with a raw laugh, "some people are so liberal that they are dishonest. Count them up, please, and see, in these days of liberal spending, which side has the majority."—Judge's Library.

Board Of Works Estimates Larger

Programme for the Year Requires Increased Sum Which Aldermen Say Must be Provided

The Board of Works' estimates for work during the coming year show a total of $26,530.00 as compared with $16,5000. Several items, however, will likely be taken out to bring the total down to about $20,000.

The following is Engineer Hay's bill of fare as Ald. Buller termed it at the Board of Works meeting last night:

Maintenance and Repairs
General street repairs	$1450
Hauling, spreading, etc., gravel	1900
Stone, crushed and rolled	3150
Street watering	600
Removing snow and ice	950
Cleaning streets	1200
Cutting weeds, trimming trees	240
Repairs, machinery and tools	575
Repairs, wooden walks	550
Repairs, bridges	650
Sewer maintenance	375
Sidewalk maintenance	50
Proportion of salaries and office expenses	1200
	$12,890
Special Works
Cutting down, water tabling, gravelling, Chamberlen, Princess, Hunter to Lift Lock, Rogers, Driscoll, Brown, Smith, Euclid, Caddy, Hazlitt, and Concesion streets	850
New culvert at McCarthy's	520
12 culverts, renewals	600
Diversion Downie St. creek	450
Protecting wall, Murray St creek	315
New hand rail, Beaver mead	130
Rebuilding McDonnel and Park street bridges	4925
Jackson Park bridge, new deck	450
Pumping Station, shed and fence	750
Pipe Drain, Rink St.	1512
Pipe Drain, Romaine St.	690
Road grader	250
New mixer (less allowance old one, $200)	375
New scraper	9
Rods for sewer cleaning	75
Proportion of salaries and office expenses	2100
	$13,640
Total	$26,530

I have included rebuilding of McDonnell and Park street bridges, $4,925, but one or both might be temporarily repaired for $360 and rebuilt in 1913. Also extension of Romaine and Rink street pipe drains might be partly done this year, say expenditure of one half, or $1100, which would reduce the total to $20,855.

Ald. Buller—What do you think of this?

Mayor Bradburn—Cut it down.

Ald. Duffus—Prune it.

Mayor Bradburn said he could see no wisdom in repairing the McDonnell and Park street bridges and then rebuilding them next year. He found that debentures could be issued for the necessary money, that the bridges could be rebuilt this year and the expenditure of $4925 could be spread over a term of 20 years.

Moved by Ald. Duffus, seconded by Ald. Graham, that the estimates be left with the Mayor and Ald. Buller.—Carried.

Ald. Graham said no allowance was made for crib work on Water street along the Goose Pond. The water is washing the street away slowly, and the sewer has been broken several times.

Ald. Buller—We might find the cost of a crib and concrete wall there and consider the same for Crescent street.

Ald. Buller saw a vision others have shared, that of a cement retaining wall around Crescent street and a fine driveway ,with other ,eceteras. He returned to the Goose Pond, however, by stating that the work would have to be done.

WEDDING BELLS

WATSON-PRESTON

In the presence of immediate friends Mr. Isaac Nelson Watson was united in marriage to Miss Mabel Preston of Lakefield this morning at the home of the groom's parents, 478 Rubidge street. The Rev. Jas. Rollins performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson will reside at 478 Rubidge street.

BISHOP-WALLINGTON

On Wednesday at 4 p.m. Mr. William Bishop and Miss Rose Wallington, both of Keene, were united in the bond of holy matrimony at St. Andrew's Manse by the Rev. Jas. Rollins. The bride was unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop will reside in Keene.

BOHN—KENDALL.

St. John's Church was the scene of a pretty wedding this afternoon, when Miss Alice Kendall and Mr. Albert E. Bohn, both of Peterborough, were united in the bond of holy matrimony by the Rev. Canon Davidson.

ECCLESTON—DENISON

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's church this afternoon when Miss Ethel Maud Denison, daughter of Mr. D. B. Denison of Peterborough, and Mr. Stanley Eccleston, were united in the bonds of holy matrimony by the Rev. R. b. Pogue.

The bride, charmingly attired in white corded satin with trimmings of seed pearl, lace and chiffon, and carrying a bridal bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley, entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away. The bridegroom was supported by Mr. Jack Eccleston.

At the conclusion of the nuptial ceremony, a dainty wedding repast was participated in at the National Hotel ,after which Mr. and Mrs. Eccleston left for a trip to Toronto and other points. The bride wore a travelling castume of mauve velvet with hat to match, and a Persian lamb and mink coat, the gift of her brother.

There were present at the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Eccleston, Mrs. A. W. McCarthy, aunt of the bride, and Mr. J. W. Eccleston.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Eccleston will reside in the city.

Judgment In Hebert Case Again Postponed

Examiner Special:

MONTREAL, FEB. 19.—There was another unexpected postponement in giving the judgment in the Hebert Ne Temere case this morning. About a score of newspaper representatives were on the job early, but Judge Charbonneau sent out a message to the effect that there would be no announcement to-day. Various rumours are out about the delay, but there is nothing official. The decision may come to-morrow.

THE MANITOBA SCHOOL QUESTION

Special to The Examiner.

WINNIPEG, FEB. 19.—Les Cloches de Saint Boniface, the official organ of Archbishop Langevin, is out to-day with a strongly worded reference to the new Manitoba School question. It says: "We therefore insist upon our inalienable and indefeasible school rights. We are not asking for favours, but are simply asking for justice." The article ended with a request that every Canadian Catholic redouble prayers and efforts in defence of Separate schools.

LAWRENCE STRIKE OVER

Special to The Examiner.

LAWRENCE, MASS., FEB. 19.—Thousands of operatives returned to work this morning, and it is believed that the backbone of the great textile workers' strike has been broken. Some women made trouble and attempted to prevent the men from returning to work, but a squad of police and militia and cavalry soon cleared away the rioters and arrested the ringleaders. From a labour standpoint the strike has been a failure.

The Shoe Man Peterborough

The original of this cheque was submitted to the Lorimer Investigating Committee, at Washington, to bear out the story of McGowan, the Elora youth, that he was paid $300 by Edward Hines, the big lumber man, and that only for the expenses of his trip to Washington. C. F. Wiehe, who signed the cheque, corroborated this, and McGowan's receipt for the amount, was also produced. The Burns detectives swore that in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, McGowan said he received $1,500 from Wiehe, acting for Hines.

SIXTEEN FREIGHT CARS DERAILED AT BLAIRTON

Accident to C.P.R. Freight Train This Morning Interfered With Traffic--Several Cars Were Up-ended--An Extra Train Had to be Put Into Service.

A wreck occurred on the C.P.R. at Blairton this morning, when sixteen freight cars were derailed. Some of the cars, it is said, were up-ended, and many others seriously damaged. In consequence thereof, the local could not obtain access to the city, and an extra train was put into service at Havelock, into which the passengers were transferred. As far as could be ascertained, the cause of the wreck was an open switch. It is not thought that anyone was injured.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE WATER COMMISSIONERS FOR 1911

A surplus of assets over liabilities amounting to $4,230.37, is shown in the statement of the Peterborough Water Commissioners for 1911. The assets total $530,149.49. The receipts for the year amounted to $83,417.91. Payments include, construction $13,716.30; new dam, pumping station, etc., $11,777.46; maintenance and repairs,, $15,064.03; interest $18,794.25; sinking fund, $9,370,23; consumers' construction $1,177.38, and the balance in payments to the Bank of Toronto.

Secretary-Treasurer Armstrong presented the financial statement, with the following introduction:

During the year there was expended in laying mains and setting hydrants $7,763.60 and in laying services $2,980.30, a total of $10,743.99 expended in ordinary construction work.

There was also expended on the new dam, pumping station and pumping machinery, $11,777.46. This includes payments on the original contracts and the cost of the protection wall at the east end of the dam.

The net water rates, including special frontage rates, amounted to $43,604.95. The expense accounts, including $18,197.70, paid to the city to meet interest on debentures, and $9,370.23 for Sinking Fund, and amount written off tools and plant for depreciation, amounted to $42,894.71, showing a profit of $709.24. In addition a new item of $1,800.00 appears in the revenue as power supply, being the amount due from the Canadian General Electric Co. during the year, which being added, makes a surplus on the year's operations of $2,209.24.

The details of the statement will be given in to-morrow's issue.

Charles McGowan, the Elora Youth, whom a Burns' detective declares he trapped into admitting that he committed perjury in testifying before the Lorimer Investigating Commission, at Washinton. McGowan, testifying on Feb. 7, swore that he made no such statement.

LIBERAL LEADER IN CARRIAGE ACCIDENT

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., FEB. 19.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the victim of a carriage accident this morning which might have resulted seriously. The Liberal leader was on his way to catch a train to Renfrew, where he speaks to-day. When at the corner of Rideau and Sussex streets, his sleigh upset. He was thrown out, but was not hurt. He walked the remaining distance to the station, apparently none the worse for the accident.

SNATCHED FROM THE GRAVE

Supposed Corpse Comes to Life While Being Lowered Into Grave

Examiner Special:

DULUTH, MINN., FEB. 19.—While the body of a three-year-old girl was about to be lowered into the grave, moisture from breathing was noticed on the glass of the coffin, and, on investigation, it was found she was alive, and was easily resusticated with stimulants. The child fell into a bucket of water three days ago and was thought to be drowned.

JOHN L. BLAIKIE DIED THIS MORNING

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, FEB. 19.—Jno. Lang Blaikie, aged 89, and president of the North American Life, Canada Landed and National Investment Co. and Consumers Gas. Co., and other big concerns, died this morning after a short illness. He was a Presbyterian, and a Liberal. He was born in Scotland, and leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters.

Will Petition The Council

A petition will be placed before the City Council at a future meeting, asking for permission to allow Mr. J. Parrott, who is physically disabled, to maintain a novelty stand at some convenient point of the city.

The petition is now being circulated throughout the city, and a large list of names of those who are willing to support Mr. Parrott in his desire have been secured.

The party in question has conducted a small stand in the lane adjacent to the Times Office on Hunter street, but he finds it too cold to carry on business there in the winter time, hence the reason for petitioning the council.

Corner George And Smith Scene Of Many Accidents

The accident, at the corner of George and Smith streets, on Saturday, which resulted in three-year-old Lillian Harrison being injured, is another reminder to those in authority that something should be done to ameliorate the dangerous condition of this corner, where no less than fifty upsets have occurred this winter. There is a very sharp curve to commence with, which is made much worse by reason of the car tracks being much lower than the road. As a result many vehicles turning the corner have canted on the tracks, and upset, causing runaways. This was what happened Saturday. Dr. McCullough, Brock street, was driving around the corner when his cutter upset, the frightened horse running along the sidewalk. The little Harrison girl was seated on a handsleigh in front of her home, on George street, sustaining a bad gash on the head and other injuries. Yesterday another physician was thrown out of his cutter at the same corner but an accident was averted by the quick action of some passersby in stopping the horse before it broke away.

J. T. Butler, First Vice-President of the Structural Ironworkers' Union, one of the labour leaders under arrest for alleged complicity in the "dynamite plot".

FUNERAL OF MR. ROBT. SHARP

The remains of the late Mr. Robert Harvey Sharp, who met an untimely end in Edmonton on Monday afternoon last, arrived in Peterborough by the midnight train and was accompanied by Mr. Jack Rae, of Edmonton.

The funeral took place at 2.30 this afternoon at the Little Lake Cemetery. A large number of the Peterborough friends of the deceased attended the funeral, and the floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful.

The Rev. H. J. Keith officiated.

CHILDREN INJURED

Ordinary Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physic Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Peterborough only at our store,—The Rexall Store. McDermid and Jury.

VARYING MODELS.

A public leader has other responsibility besides making provincial or national ends meet, and carrying out some stated policy in the interests of the country. He has a personal responsibility. He is by virtue of his position placed in the eyes of all, and it may easily come to pass that the trifles, the small things that he says and does in public view, may have a greater effect for good or evil than the greater achievements, settled in the secrecy of the Cabinet Council. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier, or Rt. Hon. Robert Borden come in contact with the public in a semi-official, or merely personal, capacity, their demeanour, their manner of reception of men, their manner of treatment of men, is noted, and makes its influence felt. No man can meet, or read, a truthful report of a meeting between citizens and Sir Wilfrid Laurier or Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, without receiving a lesson in manly courtesy, gentlemanly bearing, that can easily serve as a model, to every growing youth in the land. Next thing to being the noblest thing in a Christian country—a Christian gentleman—is having and practising the manner of a Christian gentleman. Sir James Whitney, with good conscience and good results, can point to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden in their intercourse with the public in a public, or personal capacity, as worthy models upon which men, young or old, can form their manners, but would he set himself as a model of politeness and courtesy to say, a temperance delegation?

GROUNDLESS FEARS.

The enemies of progress have always had a favourite appeal against progressive measures—any and every change that means disturbance of the existing order of things meant disaster and destruction of the foundation of society and of the state. This same cry was heard at the recent elections when a proposal of a little fiscal change was in question. The whole fabric of empir ewas tottering in its fall. Our brief Canadian history records many other instances. When this country determined to throw off the tyranny of the Family Compact, and, to remove the conditions of servitude it represented by moving for, and getting, responsible government, we had the destruction of British institutions thrown at us; we had the same in connection with almost every reform that has led to Canada possessing the most advanced conditions of civil enfranchisement, accompanied with the greatest national prosperity ad the closest possible intimacy of friendly relation with the Mother Country, and the other sections of the empire.

The progressive programme of the Asquith Government has produced its crop of prophecies of evil, that will be as abundantly discredited as in the past, of our own and British history. A London journal remarks that the most determined opposition to the bill of Mr. Gladstone, to establish voting by ballot, introduced some forty years ago, was accompanied with the most doleful prophesies of disaster. Lord Morel, in a review of that period, describes the fight against, and the fears from, the ballot, in these words:

"The Lords threw out the bill. It was novel, they said; it was dangerous; it had not been considered by the country or Parliament (after 18 days of committee and 40 years of public discussion), it was incoherent and contradictory, and to enact vote by ballot was inevitably to overthrow the monarchy. Even the mightiest of American orators had said as much. 'Above all things,' Daniel Webster had adjured Lord Shaftesbury, 'resist to the very last the introduction of the ballot; for as a Republican I tell you that the ballot can never coexist with monarchial institutions.'"

Even as late as 1909, Lord Rosebery, a former Liberal prime minister, fell into a panic, over the Lloyd-George Budget. He denounced the platform, of which it was a part, as "the end of all things". Even a year's experience has justified the legislation, and no public man of standing, or reputation, will be found to entertain an idea of molesting a measure that only three years ago was declared to be "the end of all things". The most "dangerous" reforms have been incorporated into the British constitution, and are accepted as only good. The alarm that came from the proposal had no justification. The panic which Home Rule, Welsh disestablishment, one man one vote, and manhood suffrake seem to create in some quarters will, upon trial, no doubt prove to be as unfounded as have similar panics over even more radical movements.

MR. ROWELL AND SIR JAMES.

The eagerness to hear Mr. Rowell was a compliment to him, which, the London Advertiser says, he repaid with a frank and lucid discussion of Provincial issues, adorned with an easy grace of speech. His account of his stewardship convinced his audience that the Opposition is more than marking time. It is striking out on progressive lines, sometimes blocked by the obstinacy of the Prime Minister, but on the whole it is giving a helpful stimulus to the Government. The vigorous prodding of the Seven Sleepers is having an effect. There is an attempt to forestall the Opposition in respect to tax reform, the development of New Ontario, and other questions which have been pressed by Mr. Rowell and his followers, and evaded by the Government until the eleventh hour.

Mr. Rowell's good temper and moderate language are in pleasant contrast to the Premier's roaring invective. Brusque manners do not necessarily imply straightforwardness. In the Premier's case there is accumulating proof that they are used to conceal very different qualities. His followers are in terror of the rough side of his tongue, but Mr. Rowell has no intention of being intimidated, though he will not demean himself by retorting on the Premier in kind. Sir James' assertion that he withdrew the proposal to convert the hydro-electric commission into a department of Government, because of the change of Government at Ottawa, was a clumsy attempt to cover up his retreat, and pricked the bubble of his reputation for candour. The proposal was put forward in Sir James' election manifesto nearly two months after the change at Ottawa. It was withdrawn because of the protests of the municipalities and of the Opposition, as Sir James well knows. Again he asserted that the $5,000,000 loan for New Ontario development had been decided upon two months before the Provincial election. To ask even his flatterers to believe this when not a word was said about it by any member of the Government until one week ago, is to put an impossible strain on their credulity. Mr. Rowell was well within the limits of fair political warfare in ascribing to the Premier a lack of sincerity and plain-dealing in these instances.

"5000 FACTS ABOUT CANADA" FOR 1912.

The 1912 Edition of that popular and indispensable booklet, "5000 Facts about Canada," compiled by Frank Yeigh, the widely known writer and lecturer, and author of "Through the Heart of Canada," is now out and is replete with new matter, including an outline map of Canada, a calendar and the new Census figures. In compact form is found a wealth of facts and figures of the Dominion that will prove a revelation of our natural resources and growth. The mass of information, gathered with infinite pains, should be in the hands of every intelligent Canadian, and the wide sale and popularity of the publication is easily understood. Copies may be had for 25 cents from The Canadian Facts Publishing Co., 667 Spading ave., Toronto.

THE CONDITION OF GETTING A GRAFT.

If there is anything you want at Ottawa, just make a noise like a Nationalist, and you are in a fair way of having it presented to you on a silver salver—you to keep the salver. The last gentleman of Nationalist persuasion to be presented with a nice fat job is no less a person than Mr. Ducharme, president of Le Devoir, the Nationalist organ of which Mr. Henri Bourassa is managing editor. Mr. Ducharme was, of course, the nominee of Hon. F. D. Monk, who is also one of the owners of Le Devoir, and the job he obtained for his Nationalist pet was one of the three Civil Service Commissionerships. A great combination that: Nationalist Bourassa, Monk. And to think of all the things that the English Conservatives of Quebec and Ontario are saying under their breaths at the idea of Bourassa thus bossing the job.—Saturday Night.

DIFFERENTIAL TAXATION OF LANDS AND IMPROVEMENTS

The issue has been fairly joined at the Provincial Legislature between municipal taxation that is destructive, between imposts that stimulate and imposts that restrict, between imposts that encourage and imposts that discourage, between imposts that facilitate productive enterprise and imposts that make such enterprise difficult. The Liberal policy of taxation according to the natural opportunities held is arrayed against the Conservative policy of taxing the holder according to the use he makes of them. There is also the attendant issue between the Liberal policy of municipal option in the exemption of buildings and other products of labour, and the Conservative policy of uniform Provincial authority over municipal taxation. The Whitney Government has determined that the municipal assessors shall be forced to pursue and levy upon every man who erects or improves a building, opens a store, establishes a factory, or does anything to augment the productiveness of industry and enterprise. The Liberal party has declared in favour of allowing municipalities when they feel so inclined, to tax only according to the natural opportunities held, instead of according to the good use made of them. In effect the Liberal policy would tax the man who injures the community by holding a store or dwelling site idle quite as heavily as the man who benefits the community by making the best possible use of an equally valuable site.

Mr. Rowell has introduced a bill embodying the leading feature of the Liberal platform on taxation during the recent election campaign. The bill permits municipalities to exempt entirely or in part all products of labour from taxation. It is a hopeful sign that Government supporters are desirous of weakening the force of the issue. Mr. Ellis of Ottawa, although a follower of Sir James Whitney, in other matters, has been doing some thinking on the incidence of taxation. He gave notice on Monday, the 12th inst., of a motion to introduce an Assessment Act amendment on Thursday, the 15th. Mr. Rowell had given notice on the previous Friday of his motion for the introduction on Thursday, the 15th inst., of a bill to amend the Assessment Act. The desire to get in ahead of Mr. Rowell's bill was revealed when the order of business was varied by the introduuction of Mr. Ellis' bill on Wednesday, the 15th inst. Mr. Rowell made a counter move, and secured permission to introduce his bill also on Wednesday. The Ellis bill permits a gradual reform by any municipality, a reduction of 40 per cent. being allowed in the assessment on improvement in the first year and 15 per cent. in each subsequent year until taxation is concentrated on land values only.

There cannot be too many assaults on the entrenched reaction of the Whitney Government. That an attempt is being made to turn the edge of the Liberal attack shows a wise recognition of its effectiveness. Although the Ministers are incapable of understanding the issue raised, they see that it may be the part of wisdom to prepare for positions on both sides of it. They cannot fail to discern the awakening of public understanding, and they naturally desire to secure some slight reflection of whatever credit may attach to the change. The Liberal party will certainly welcome the support of Mr. Ellis of Ottawa, and of any other Conservative who awakens to an understanding of this important issue.

WEAK SPOTS IN AGRICULTURE

Dr. McQueen, M.P., North Wentworth, Thinks There Are Too Many Frills on the Plough—Health Interests Neglected

Dr. J. McQueen, of North Wentworth, criticized the Government's policy with regard to agriculture, education and public health when the debate on the speech from the throne was resumed in the local Legislature. The work of the Agriculture Department did not touch the average agriculturist. This was not because the Government was not spending money enough, but the scientific methods were too cumbersome for the average farmer.

The Education Department, continued Dr. McQueen, had increased its administrative offices with new positions, costing over $17,000, without increasing its efficiency in the slightest.

Referring to the question of public health, Dr. McQueen said there should be a Minister of Health. It was true that $40,000 had been spent for public health, but what was that compared with the amounts spent for other purposes? Vigorous methods must be adopted to stamp out tuberculosis, he said. Last year the mortality in Ontario was 1,497, which represented a rate of 87 1-2 per cent of reported cases, as against 8 1-2 per cent in other diseases. He advocated compulsory notification in the case of tuberculosis, and isolation in sanitaria in every county.

Other members who participated in the debate were R. J. McCormick, East Lambton; J. Thompson, East Peterborough; J. W. Johnson, West Hastings; W. E. Sinclair, North Ontario; A. C. Pratt, South Norfolk; Colonel Anderson, North Norfolk.

BRITISH ARMY MAY ADOPT ROSS RIFLE

The Canadian Weapon Has Made a Fine Impression at Bisley

LONDON, FEB. 16.—Universal satisfaction is expressed in Canadian circles here at the news that Colonel Hughes, the Minister of Militia, has received no advice confirming the rumour as to the prohibition of the Ross rifle at the Bisley competition this year.

Pride in the prowess of the Canadian riflemen is very great here and it was at once realized that any measure forbidding the use of the Canadian rifle would practically put the Dominion marksmen out of the field. Again in view of the adverse opinions expressed as to the suitability of the British rifle in war and Mr. Bonar Law's statement that as compared with Continental weapons the British was very inferior, it was felt that if the years of British experience in gun making had not produced a better weapon than the Lee Enfield, the Canadian arm might be introduced for use in the British army.

Several expert English marksmen at Bisley last year expressed to your correspondent the highest opinion of the Ross rifle, which helped the Canadians to mark top score in several of the competitions and it was hoped that an impartial investigation might be made to test the excellence of the Ross invention. Lord Roberts' indictment of the British weapon has again raised the question. As War Minister Lord Haldane has to meet any attacks on the rifle in use and Canadians here hope that Dominion marksmen at Bisley this year will so demonstrate by their marksmanship the superiority of their rifle that the War Lord will authorize official tests to arrive at a decision as to the merits of the Canadian weapon.

For a sprain you will find Chamberlain's Liniment excellent. It allays the pain, removes the soreness, and soon restores the parts to a healthy condition. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

Postmaster Dismissed

It is understood that the Postmaster at Catchecoma, Mr. John Westlake, has been removed from his position as Postmaster, and Mr. Nelson Windocer has been appointed to succeed him. The Post Office will also be transferred to Mr. Windover's residence from Mr. Westlake's.

Constipation, Bad Breath Headache

When the bowels are constipated and you have stomach trouble and headache, try Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are so mild you can scarcely feel their action, yet so effective that the entire secretory apparatus is stimulated to healthy action.

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURE QUICKLY

Thus writes Mrs. D. P. Fowler, from Yarmouth: "I used to feel drowsy and heavy, my color was shallow, and there was usualy a bad taste in my mouth. I had vague pains all through my limbs, and an annoying headache as well.

"After one dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills there was a sudden change. I felt better, my appetite increased, and that exhaustion and depression gradually left me. Life seemed brighter and happier after I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills, so I strongly recommend such a good medicine."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills you certainly need; then why not get them now, and enjoy the abundant good health they are sure to bring you? Price, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1.00. At all dealers.

WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY

HUNDREDS CURED BY TAKING "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ont. July 27th.
"Last spring, I had a severe attack of Kidney and Bladder Trouble, and "Fruit-a-tives" cured these complaints when the physician attending me had given me up." JAMES DINGWALL.

The cause of Kidney Congestion and Pain in the Back, is that the bowels are badly constipated and the skin is inactive. Thus, the kidneys are forced to do double work in ridding the system of impurities,—and become strained.

"Fruit-a-tives" — the great fruit medicine — acts on bowels, liver and skin, as well as on the kidneys,—rids the system of all impurities, and completely cures all kidney congestion and pain in the back.

By JOHN MARCH

He stepped forward as if he were about to go and wring from her a denial of this colossal travesty of circumstantial evidence, which the devil himself must have devised, when, without any preliminary warning, he dropped, went down with a crash that made the china, the chandeliers ring, that jarred the whole room and influenced everything in it. The iron had entered his soul, and he lay there white and still in his first dark moments of nothingness, unconscious of Agnes's terrified shriek, unconscious of existence—for the first time in his healthy, hearty, wholesome life Felix Fleming had fainted!

CHAPTER XXXI.
THE WIFE OF HIS BOSOM.

It was late in the afternoon, and snowing. Johnson, the friendly waiter, who had assisted Paul to catch the mail train to Weyberne, stood in the hall of the "Pendennis," watching through the half-glass door the slow, feathery swirl of flakes. He was musing upon the winter's early advance, when a man of fine physique passed the iron palings, entered the gateway, and ascended the steps of the hotel.

The stranger was the tallest and the broadest man he had ever been called upon to behold, and Johnson looked at him with interest as he pushed open the half-glass door. He was handsome, too, he saw in a decided satisfactory way. There was no shilly-shallying about it, the first glance chronicled the undisputable fact, and the second encouraged and maintained the good impression. His features were good, remarkably good; a fair complexion had been coloured and tinted to a nicety by Nature's artists—the sun and the wind; the eyes were grey, and had a look in them as if they could focus an object some distance ahead. The bronze moustache, the ends having an upward curve, was dewily damp, and glistened in the light as the door swung to behind him.

"Mr. Farley in?" he inquired, in a pleasant, slightly anxious tone.

Johnson answered in the affirmative, and hesitated when the stranger asked to be shown the way to his presence. He was unwilling to disturb Mr. Farley, he said, because the last time he peeped into the little sitting-room behind the hall the gentleman was fast asleep. The real truth of the matter was that Mr. Farley was unwell, ill, Johnson thought, really, genuinely ill. He had not ordered a mouthful of victuals that day, nor the previous one. The table was strewn from end to end with papers, all kinds of litters, and the gentleman said he had no room, and no time for meals, but he had disposed of several cups of tea and innumerable cigarettes. The gentleman had been much upset by a telegram advising him of the expected death of a friend. He, Johnson, did not think the friend had died, but Mr. Farley had returned to town very queer, very shaky, and, he considered, very ill, with a cut on his forehead and some of the flesh shot from his thumb, which he had himself dressed, having been in the army and an orderly in the military wards. Therefore, if the gentleman to whom he was speaking were a friend of Mr. Farley's, he, Johnson, thought it would be wise to persuade Mr. Farley to see a medical man, and also to take something in the form of nourishment—he was glad to say, as luck would have it—there was soup going at six.

"I am a friend, a very great friend, of Mr. Farley's, and if you will show me his room I will undertake to see after him."

The man's face brightened, and he led the way immediately, stopping outside a door at the end of the hall.

"This small sitting-room Mr. Farley engaged on his return. He said he had a quantity of work to get through, and the coffee-room was not sufficiently quiet. The gas is on a little, sir; I lit it ten minutes ago; I didn't turn it up much for fear of waking Mr. Farley."

"Thank you," the squire said, slipping a sovereign into his hand in return for his comity; "thank you for your kindness and attention to Mr. Farley. We will make it right later on," and turning the handle noiselessly he entered and closed the door softly on Johnson.

The room was in semi-darkness and comfortably warm still, though the fire had burned low. The couch stood between the fireplace and the table, and Paul lay there asleep, the wounded hand in a black silk sling, and the other tucked under his head. Felix tip-toed across the room and bent over the couch.

Paul awake, alert, his nerves on the stretch, looking out for danger signals, and Paul asleep, unconscious of criticism, the muscles of his face relaxed, the emaciation, the weariness, the hollows beneath his eyes plainly visible, were totally different persons. Felix had no idea he was so thin, so worn, so clearly, unmistakably ill, and awhile back, a month, sure, he was fairly plump and looked so uncommonly well. This was a revelation; Felix was gaining an insight into what Farley had suffered, what he had endured while unswervingly prosecuting the physical and mental struggle he had waged in order to attain his doubtful inglorious ends. Presently, he dropped on one knee and looked more closely at the careworn face. Paul was so still, preternaturally still, scarcely breathing, that—a wave of sickening fear swept over him—great heavens! was the prize to be snatched from him within an ace of his grasp?

Psoriasis Was Cured

After Five Years of Suffering ---Three Doctors Failed and Said Case Was Incurable

Itching and Burning Was Terrible Until Relief and Cure Was Effected by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Psoriasis is another name for chronic eczema. It is the worst form of this dreadful itching skin disease. Once eczema has reached this stage it is usually considered incurable.

But here is a case which proves again the wonderful healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Not only does relief come quickly, but the resulting benefits are thorough and lasting.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes: "I thought it my duty to write you telling you the great benefit I received from using Dr. Chase's Ointment. For five years I suffered with what three doctors called Psoriasis. I doctored with three different doctors, with no good results, and one of our noted doctors told me if any one offered to guarantee me a cure for $50.00 to keep my money in my pocket, as I could not be cured.

"The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head. The itching and burning was hard to bear. At last my brother read in the paper about Dr. Chase's Ointment as a healer. I got 8 boxes, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise the ointment enough, and you are at liberty to use my testimony, as I hope thereby to induce other sufferers to try the same."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60c a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Addresses By Rev. W. S. Major At All Saints'

Former Rector Preaches Both Morning and Evening to Large Congregations

The services at All Saints' church on Sunday were largely attended, the occasion being marked by the presence in the pulpit, both morning and evening, of Rev. W. S. Major, a former Rector of All Saints.

The excellent and untiring services rendered by the Rev. W. S. Major during the time that he was Rector of All Saints, still remains vividly in the memories of those who were associated with the work of the church at that time.

Taking for his text the third chapter of Jonah, first verse, "And the word of the Lord came unto Jonah the second time, saying". The speaker drew from this, the subject for his discourse, saying, in part:

As churchmen, you will recognize that we are face to face with another season of death. It is time for us to take stock of ourselves, or, in other words, to subject ourselves to a very close scrutiny with a view to finding the weak points, and, if possible, to eliminate them. Generally speaking, we have, more or less of us, been failures during the past year. Is there any one of us who can look back over the past year of our lives without being burdened with a sense of fear? We have fallen short. There has been no lack of denunciation of the spirit; no inadequacy of the faith. It is not these that are responsible for our shortcomings, but it is our own lives which alone are to blame. We have given Him that portion of our lives which best suited us, and especially that part, in which no self-sacrifice is involved. Call to mind the record of Jonah's failure. After being aided by the faith of God, and bade to do his duty, he failed badly. God, then, did not cast him aside, but invited him to re-enter His service, and redeem the past. The love, patience, and kindness of God is so great, that he has given us another opportunity to reinstate ourselves into his services. It is a marvellous thing when we think of God's goodness towards us, and the opportunity we have of re-entering His service and redeeming our past failures. To use the words of the text, this opportunity comes to us a second time. Our failures in the past can be generally credited to two reasons. The first being our own lives. Sin has gained an absolute mastery over us. We have given up hope, and thought, of making progression towards the goal which God has marked out for us. We have drifted into a state of complacence. The second reason is, we have failed in our service towards God. It is for us, as sowers, to go out and sow the seed of eternal truth in the hearts of our associates. In this, we have also failed.

If we were to violate the natural laws, it would be to our personal detriment. If we violate the laws of society, we don't get a second chance, but we suffer the consequences thereof. But when we violate Christ's laws we are given a chance to repent. Christ stands without, knocking at the door of our hearts; if we fail to respond to His pleadings, then we must suffer the consequences, which are inevitable.

Oh how disappointed you are to see it.—Gray hairs take away that youthful appearance that you are so anxious to, and should keep,—for beauty and good looks depend so much upon natural colored, thick, glossy and healthy hair.

Every one is attracted to the woman with beautiful hair. Why not have it—get rid of the gray hairs—keep them out altogether by using

MAY'S HAIR HEALTH.

You'll be surprised how quickly it will restore those gray hairs to their natural color and how well it will keep them so.

It is not a dye but the most satisfactory and reliable restorer.

TROOPER BRACE FOR CHINA TO ENGAGE IN Y.M.C.A. WORK

Presented With Purse of Gold and Travelling Bag in Hamilton—A Sketch of His Career Shows Activity in Many Interests.

SON OF REV. A. H. BRACE

The Rev. A. J. Brace, son of Rev. A. H. Brace, a former pastor of the Park Street Baptist Church, was tendered a farewell banquet in Hamilton Thursday night last, by representatives of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, prior to his departure for China, to take up active missionary work. Appreciation was expressed of the service rendered by Mr. Brace, in promoting the Men and Religion movement, in Hamilton, and of his hearty co-operation in the various other phases of Christian work. He was presented with a purse of gold and a Gladstone travelling bag.

Mr. Brace resigned his position as General Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association in Victoria, B.C., in September, intending to sail for China on October 4th. Coming east with Mrs. Brace and their two boys to say farewell to their relatives the entire party of some twenty-five en route to China were detained on account of the Chinese revolution.

In the interim Mr. Brace has been very active in various phases of missionary endeavour. Through Mr. H. K. Caskey, he was introduced to the Men's Missionary Committee of Hamilton, and engaged as Executive Secretary for the Convention held last November. He had been for five years actively identified with the Laymen's Missionary Movement in the west, having piloted three conventions in Victoria, and came with enthusiasm and ideas to assist in the successful convention in Hamilton, which proved the largest in point of numbers and organization of the eleven conventions in Canada.

Mr. Brace will be engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in the colleges of China, and the board of Methodist missions has recommended him to spend some time in Japan among the Chinese students in the Tokio University, and at Shanghai and Hong Kong to study the Y. M. C. A. situation and commence language study before going up country to Chentu, where his work will be among the students in that city of half-a-million population, fast becoming modernized. Mr. Brace is appointed to this work by the Methodist Church of Canada in connection with their splendidly organized field in Szshuan Province, but his services will be given in connection with the Union University where the Baptists, Methodists and Friends Society have united in a strong educational work.

His Y. M. C. A. Work.

Mr. Brace was General Secretary at Victoria Y. M. C. A. for five years where he was instrumental in erecting the $125,000 building and equipment, now the best Association proposition in the west. He was closely identified with the sport life of the city as secretary of the Amateur Union, and was an officer in the Fifth Regiment Canadian Garrison Artillery. This latter feature grew out of his exeprience in the Boer War, where he served with distinction as a trooper in the Second Canadian Rifles, and also took up Y. M. C. A. work, organizing an army branch in his own regiment. He volunteered for Africa, while he was a student in the Victoria University. At the conclusion of the war he resumed his college work, graduating in Theology in 1904, and was ordained and called to New Westminster, B.C., where he spent two years before taking up Y. M. C. A. work.

Mr. Brace married Miss Blanche O'Brien of Stouffville, near Toronto, in 1904, and Mrs. Brace and their two sons will accompany him to China. They left on Saturday for Toronto, and Mr. Brace proceeded to Almonte to bid his parents farewell, his father is Rev. A. H. Brace, pastor of the Baptist Church. On Wednesday next, they will leave for the coast and finish their preparations for the trip to say farewell to old friends there, sailing for Japan, per steamer Empress of India, on March 6th.

LIBRARY NOTES

For the information of those who are making enquiries in regard to new books for the library, it may be mentioned that the Library Committee is now engaged in preparing a list of works to be purchased. A suggestion book has been placed at the receiving desk for the purpose of obtaining the opinions of such as would like to see particular volumes on the shelves. This book is free for all to make use of either in the way of making requests for purchases or in order to draw the attention of the board to any matter connected with our library economy, with a view to its possible betterment. The Library Committee is anxious to meet the wishes of the public as far as is possible, and it is hoped that the patrons of the institution will make as much use as they can of the means placed at their disposal for giving vent to their ideas.

At the beginning of the year a system of scrap-books was started, arranged so as to give the chief items of current interest in the world at large. Clippings relating to such subjects, as they are placed in the books are properly catalogued, so that there can be no trouble in finding articles on any particular question. Attention of scholars at the schools is especially drawn to this matter, as they will find many things helpful for school debates or essays in these books.

There is also a book entirely devoted to the municipal life of Peterborough and one also for the county. Those who are interested in our civic questions will always be able to find what they need without having to wade through endless files of papers for the purpose.

The librarian will always be glad to receive clippings from anyone on matters that are likely to be of interest to the community.

"Just a few minutes, children"

HUNGRY children soon become cross children.

But children never get cross waiting for Tillson's Oats, for they need never wait more than 15 minutes.

The Difference.

Governor Emmett O'Neil, of Alabama, met Private John Allen in New Orleans. "John," said the Governor, "this cotton market looks right good to me. I think I'll buy a little this morning and make some money." "Emmett," cautioned Allen, "don't do it! It's hazardous. Whenever I buy cotton I always feel as I did when I was in the army. When we were chasing the Yankees I thought we surely should land in New York or Philadelphia, but when they were chasing us I was sure they would run us into the Gulf of Mexico!"—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Had Boils On Neck and Arms.

Had Them Lanced But, Got No Relief Until He Used

Burdock Blood Bitters.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still, at the same time are very painful. They are caused entirely by bad blood, and for you to get rid of them it is absolutely necessary to put the blood into good condition. For this purpose there is no remedy that can compare with Burdock Blood Bitters. This preparation has been on the market for about 35 years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other for the making of pure, rich, red blood. Mr. H. J. Batten, Stratford, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled for several weeks with boils on my neck and arms. I had them lanced by the doctor, but as soon as one went others came. I tried all kinds of so called remedies, but could get no relief till I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I am pleased to say I am now quite free from those most painful things, and feel much better in every respect.

"My boy, of nine years, had a rash come over his back and legs, so we gave him a few doses and now he is all right again."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"THE SERVANT IN THE HOUSE" SUBJECT OF SPECIAL SERMON

Rev. R. J. Webb, of Murray Street Baptist Church, Delivers Inspiring Address to a Large Congregation Last Evening

"The Servant in the House" was the subject of an address delivered by the Rev. J. R. Webb to a large congregation in the Murray Street Baptist Church last evening.

"The atmosphere of the church today is dead," he said, "and the fault very often lies right down underneath the pulpit. Those of you who know the book know to what I refer. A minister is not a priest—no minister is a priest, he is a servant. When the veil of the Temple was rent in twain—from that moment the priesthood was for once and for ever abolished, and since then there have been no priests on the earth.

"In the Hebrews it says, 'Let no man take this honour upon himself.' There is no such thing as a human priest. Jesus Christ was the only priest. The man of the 20th century revolts at such usurpation as we find in the doctrine of the priesthood, and the danger is to the multitudes of men who would be led by this doctrine into pessimism and infidelity. Man, in the common-place language to-day, cannot stand for it.

"A minister is not the figurehead. If there is an expression abhorable to me it is the one that certain people say, 'We want to give him the respect due to his cloth'—the cloth! Is a minister to be characterized as 'the cloth'? A minister is not to be favoured more than any workman, but a minister has a right to every consideration to any other citizen. He is a servant of Christ in the community. He is not an Apostle—no minister is an Apostle. A great many of our worries would be gone for ever if we would take the drapery of error off this simple truth (the Bible) and read it as God has given it to us. The word apostle, taken from the Hebrew, means one sent away. If you look in a modern dictionary you will find it interpreted as one sent away to preach the Gospel. This is incorrect. Apostle means one sent away to witness the resurrection, so that no man nowadays is an apostle.

"I knew a man who knew Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. What would [illegible] said, I'm going to leave this as an inheritance to my son and have him say that he knew Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. You would say he was a fool — so he would be. He was a witness to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, but he cannot hand it down to anybody.

"Is it not enough to drive our brains to fever heat when men, who ought to rejoice to call themselves servants in the house, or ministers of Jesus Christ, men who certainly have no more manliness than the rest of us, men whose greatest distinction in the pulpit is ridiculous and obsolete and outside the belief are offensive and audacious? Is it not enough to make one's blood boil when they say we are apostles? There are none.

"On the 25th January of this year John Clifford was chosen by the dissenting Churches, apart from the Church of England, to present to Westminster Abbey a beautiful window in memory of one of the most loyal servants of Jesus Christ.' There is something there I like and something I resent. 'We of the Abbey.' I want to know who owns the Abbey. I want to know who built the Abbey. I want to know whose money supports the Abbey. But I am glad that he spoke of Bunyan as a servant of Jesus Christ.

"Men want brothers, not officials. They want comrades, not clerics. They do not want words but want the words made flesh as long as Christ can be exalted by it. When this is accomplished the drain pipes, as it were, of the Church will be cleaned out."

ALL YOU NEED IS A CASCARET TO-NIGHT

No Sick Headache, Bilious Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipated Bowels by Morning

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

THE S. A. BAND OUT YESTERDAY

Yesterday was like spring and a great many citizens enjoyed the beautiful warm sunshine. It was the first Sunday since New Year's that it was not down below zero. The Salvation Army band was again heard on the street, and their playing was enjoyed by the great crowds that were out. This is the first Sunday since New Year's that the band has been able to play on the street, owing to the severe weather.

Concert At S. A. Temple

A very profitable evening can be spent at the Salvation Army Temple to-night. The band with the help of the songsters will give a musical festival. This is one of the series of special concerts the band is giving during the winter months. The last one was largely attended and enjoyed by all present. A very nice programme has been arranged for to-night. Tickets have been issued for the concert, but if you have been unable to get one do not stay away. There is a welcome to all. Come early and get a seat, for a big crowd promises to be on hand. The programme:

ANNUAL MEETING

The Directors of West Peterborough Farmers' Institute met Saturday afternoon pursuant to notice. J. H. Garbutt, the President, was in the chair. There were also present Messrs. Moore, Chambers, Graham, Deyell, Gordon, Mann, G. W. Mann, A. McGee, Handbidge, Tellford, Brown and the Secretary. The President announced that the meeting was called to select a time and place for holding the annual meeting; also to decide whether they would ask the Department to send a speaker. The latter was decided in the negative. Two places were offered in Smith Township for holding the annual meeting on the afternoon of June 19th.

Messrs. R. N. Scott and G. W. Mann also extended invitations, offering their farms, both of which are ideal places for holding the meeting, which will, after the business is done, resolve itself into a picnic. The Woman's Institute of Lakefield are being invited to cooperate. A cordial invitation to all is extended. Some speakers will be invited.

The thanks of the Board of Directors was given to Messrs. Scott and Mann for the kind invitations extended to the Istitute. Mr. Mann's place was chosen on account of being more convenient for the Woman's Institute at Lakefield.

TWELVE BELOW IN WINDSOR.

In a letter received from Mr. Scrigley, former Commercial Master at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, he states that the coldest weather experienced in Windsor this year has been 12 below. He quotes this as a comparison with 32 below in Peterborough.

"Is It Wrong To Bet?" Answered In a Sermon By Rev. J. G. Brown

Gambling is Immoral—Is Hurting Sport—It Breeds Selfishness and is a Disrupting Element in Men's Relations to Men—Is Taking Money Without a Just Equivalent Given.

A CONSCIENCE NEEDED

"No one can urge anything in its favour" was part of Rev. J. G. Brown's conclusion to his evening sermon on the subject "Is it wrong to bet," at St. James' Church on Sunday.

"The Church needs young men to give evidence that their Christianity means something to them, and to have a conscience as to how money shall be gained and used; young men who will exert an influence to oppose the forces of evil in the world".

Rev. Mr. Brown defined gambling as a contract to give or receive money or goods without a just equivalent in exchange.

Asking the question, why do men bet, he said some men are influenced by the possibility of making money. Even when small sums are involved the chance of making money is a great impelling force. Some say they bet to keep up sport, some to back athletic teams, and some to back their word, especially at election time. A considerable number bet for the sheer excitement aroused, or for what they call, "the fun of it."

Discussing the relation of gambling to sport, Rev. Mr. Brown said that some maintained that gambling should be allowed with horse racing, or the race meets would not be held, and the breed of horses would decline.

"It was a good thing to find a few members of Parliament, when the Miller Bill was under discussion, who had the courage of their convictions to say that gambling was not a good thing and that without is there would be no interference with the breeding of horses. Some of these men were interested in the breeding of horses. If it were true that the breed of horses would deteriorate there comes the question, which is the more vital issue, the breeding of horses or the breeding of men. Christ said: 'How much is a man better than a sheep,' we might say how much is a man better than a horse?"

Betting on Athletics.

Rev. Mr. Brown next considered the making of bets on athletic contests, instancing hockey, and even football matches. Men say that they back the team. The players on the ice are doing all the work, while the bettors stand around in a ring, having an easy time and not contributing one iota of honest effort. It ranks the sport on a level with cock fights and similar contests. The bettors back up the game against another group of gamblers like themselves. All the gambling does not aid the game; in fact it is killing sport. The possibility of making money has introduced the spirit of professionalism, and not a very high compliment can be paid to that departure. Contrast the present day contests with sport as it was carried on in Greece, when the only prize was a chaplet of wild olive placed upon the victor's brows.

Let cards and dice remain the materials of gambling.

Who are the true lovers of sport? Those who foster it for money getting, or those who love it for itself, who play because they love it, or who watch and become interested in it because they love it? There is something of a man's life in his money, if it is only twenty-five cents. That is the price for a mechanic's hard hour's toil. Gambling is not making something out of nothing. Even if it is a small sum, men have had to toil for it. To win money by betting is immoral. It is gained without an equivalent being given in return. Realising the present high cost of living, the majority of men have need to be careful of all they receive, even the small sums.

It is often a matter of reserve to contribute to a Missionary Society, or other Christian work but it seems a matter of indifference to place five dollars on a game of chance.

An Evidence of Greed.

Betting for the sake of making money is an evidence of common greed. Old writers on morals have said that gambling is the daughter of avarice. The endeavour to get something for nothing is dishonest, no matter how it is practised.

Gambling emphasizes the evil of selfishness. It makes a man deal wrongly with his fellowman. He is not acting in a true, brotherly, or neighbourly manner. There can be no well-established relationship between men so long as one feels that another has taken something for which no value has been given.

Speaking of the practice of putting up money in support of one's word, Rev. Mr. Brown said that it was a serious reflection on a man's dishonesty, when his word is not accepted without a backing. In high-minded intercourse there is no need of such a thing.

Gambling leads men to dishonest means of influencing the results of issues. It is a stimulant to crime, and goes hand in hand with the passion for strong drink.

Rev. Mr. Brown said that it was pitiable that the statute permitted lotteries to be conducted at any church affair, even for charitable purposes. He also spoke against forms of speculation and stock gambling, and against the principle of holding raffles.

Women In Society

Lifeless Hair Doesn't Match a Graceful Form and Handsome Face

Glorious hair! how man women want it and how few have it.

The care of the hair is a puzzle to most women, yet any woman, no matter what her station in life, quire a wealth can easily acof radiant, luxuriant hair, so fascinating that everyone will admire it.

Use PARISIAN SAGE, that's the secret of beautiful hair. Use this refined, refreshing, hair dressing regularly, and soon dandruff will disappear; falling hair will cease; scalp itch will vanish and life and beauty will quickly appear.

PARISIAN SAGE is just as good for men and children as for women, and if it doesn't give satisfaction to any user money will be refunded. Large bottle 50 cents at Wm. Madill's and dealers everywhere.

Butter Sold Below 30 Cents

The closing hours of Saturday's market saw butter sold at from 28 to 30 cents, according to the assistant market clerk, and eggs selling close to the thirty-cent figure. The large number of farmers who came in were responsible for the surplus of produce, and apparently the late comers sold out for whatever they could get. One woman from Rice Lake was a late arrival and admitted that she sold out at less than 30 cents. A local grocer took a large quantity of butter at from 28 to 30 cents. Butter was selling at 37 cents retail to-day.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlains' Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

Price Of Eggs Going Down, Says Grocer

"Watch the bottom fall out of the egg market," said a grocer this morning. "If this fair weather continues the production should steadily increase, and in any case eggs should be plentiful within a short time. The price of potatoes should go down pretty soon, according to my way of figuring the situation. The recent importation of large cargoes will have a bear effect on prices, and right around Peterborough I know that farmers are holding back their stocks. I know one who has 200 bags. I offered him $150.00 for one hundred bags, but he told me he couldn't bear me. He wanted $200.00, cold cash. I do not know many with as large holdings as that, but I know there is a considerable quantity to be sold. You could buy some on Saturday for $1.75 ,I understand, and I am expecting to see them down to $1.50. I do not think they will go much below that, but I think that is all they are worth right now. The butter market should hold its own for another month and you can then begin to look for a decline. We have had enough of these high prices, and personally, I think we are due for a break".

EXCURSION TO GUELPH

The Executive Committees of East and West Peterborough and East Durham Farmers' Institutes met on Saturday at the Munro House to make arrangements for the usual Farmers' Institute excursion. Messrs. C. O'Reilly, A. J. Fallis, J. A. Vance, J. H. Garbutt, C. E. Moore and Wm. Collins were present. Mr. Vance was appointed chairman of the committee and Wm. Collins secretary. On motion it was decided to run the excursion to Guelph by C.P.R. special train on Thursday, June 13th, provided satisfactory arrangements could be made. The matter was left in the hands of the chairman and secretary. The latter is authorized to settle with the railway company and others after the excursion is over.

After some other details of business were settled the meeting adjourned.

"THE THIEF"

The unusual interest already evinced in the forthcoming engagement of "The Thief" would indicate that its presentation here will be greeted with th same popular favour as was bestowed upon this wonderful pal yin New York, Boston, Chicago, Toronto, Montreal, and all the other larger cities. And this interest is not confined to the regular theatregoers alone, but to people who do not often attend the theatre, except on an occassion when something of rare value is announced. It is generally understood that "The Thief" is one of those wonderful, absorbing heart interest plays which comes to the theatre only once or twice in the course of a season, and which everyone seems determined to see. A double interest is also attachd to this attraction for it not only gives us an opportunity to enjoy on of the greatest literary and dramatic successes of the decade, but also to renew acquaintance with the clever young actor, that all Canada is justly proud of, Clifford Lane Bruce.

"The Thief" will be presented at the Grand on Wednesday next, Feb. 21. The seats are now on sale.

OBITUARY

MRS. JANE WALKER.

A very sad death occurred this morning, when Mrs. Jane Walker, of 587 Patterson street, passed away at the age of forty-one years.

The deceased lady only arrived from Scotland in November last, and the sympathy of the community is extended to the husband in his sad bereavement.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon at the Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. McGRATH.

A very well known citizen of Peterborough has passed away in the death of Margaret Sheehan, wife of Mr. John McGrath, 697 Harvey street, which occurred on Saturday night. The deceased, who was sixty years of age, had lived in Peterborough all her life and was well known and highly respected. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and four children, two sons, Thomas of New York City and Leo of Hartford, Conn., and two daughters, Mabel and Kathleen at home. Two brothers, Mr. E. Sheehan of Bay City, Mich., and Mr. M. Sheehan of Mobile, Ala., also survive.

Mrs. McGrath was a faithful member of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, 697 Harvey street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

WATER SERVICES TO BE INSPECTED

The Water Commissioners at their meeting on Saturday passed a motion to engage Mr. J. R. Metheral and Mr. T. B. McGrath to assist in making inspection of the premises served with water throughout the city. They are to receive $2 a day and to work under the direction of Acting Superintendent Fawcett. Users of the water are to be advised of the fact that inspection will be made, and the inspectors will be given a letter showing that they have authority to do the work. This motion was moved by Mr. W. H. Hill and seconded by Mr. W. H. Moore. Mr. T. F. Matthews presided.

There are 3,000 water users in the city, and the Commissioners want to secure complete information of the individual services. The whole system is to be gone over. It has been found that some engage a plumber to put in extra taps, etc., and no notice is sent to the Commissioners, who want to make sure that water users are paying for all they receive. It is understood that several more inspectors will be appointed, the work being completed when the system has been fully covered.

WHEN HIS VOICE CHANGED

"My 15-year-old son," says Mrs. I. C Sherman, whose home is in Brooklyn, "caught a bad cold just when his voice was changing and could not get rid of it for about a year. Vinol was the only medicine that did him any good and it was just what he needed to drive his cough away and build up his strength."

If he had taken Vinol sooner, he would have been spared a whole lot of annoyance and suffering.

Bronchitis—cough is simply a sign of bodily weakness. When you build up the bodily strength and enrich the blood with Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, the cough is bound to disappear.

It is really the only natural and right way to get rid of these bronchial coughs that hang on so long.

In all weakened and run-down conditions of the body, whether in men, women or children, Vinol is exactly what is needed to bring back strength. We guarantee to give back your money if Vinol does not help you.—McDermid and Jury, Druggists, cor. George and Charlotte sts.; also, Payne's Drug Store, cor. DOES NOT INCLUDE A LINE TO RICE LAKE

A paragraph in Saturday's issue relating to a proposed electric railway extending from Peterborough associated Mr. E. H. D. Hall's name with it as if the information had come from him. Mr. Hall had simply stated that the charter being asked for is for a line from Peterborough into the country north of the city. The reference to a Rice Lake line was based upon an assertion by another party that this new application might in time include a Rice Lake line. Mr. Hall assured the aldermen that the charter was open to any of them who wished to read it.

POLICE COURT

A local man was assessed five dollars in the Police Court this morning. He appeared in court with one damaged optic, protected by a shield, and with a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct registered against him.

"Are you guilty of this charge?' interrogated His Worship. "Well I guess so."

"A pretty good guess," assented the Magistrate.

IN DREAD OF CROUP

Every mother dreads croup unless she knows about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Given in frequent small doses, at the first indication of trouble, this treatment loosens the cough and affords relief and comfort. Its use should be kept up until the child is entirely recovered.

HAD THEIR ORIGIN IN HAVANA

"Most of the marks originated in Havana and have been in use for many years. They were adopted by the early Cuban manufacturers, partly for their euphony and partly for the qualities which the words suggest.

DAILY FISH SERVICE

Mr. H. Bradshaw, whose grocery and meat shop is at the corner of Charlotte and Downie streets, has made arrangements to receive daily shipments of fresh fish during the Lenten season. His stock being fresh every day, can be relied upon as first class and strictly the finest procurable. He will have among other varieties, white fish, salmon, halibut, sea salmon, ciscoes, Finnan haddie, etc. Orders left at the store or telegraphed to No. 271 will have prompt attention.

HE WAS TALKING

Senator Heyburn is a pretty good talker but theer are some things which even he cannot make interesting to the ordinary citizen.

He was speaking on such a subject recently when a man went up to the Senate gallery. Meeting another man at the door he asked:

"Do you know who is speaking now, or are you just going in?"

"No," was the weary answer, given with a long, long sigh. "No, I have just come out. Heyburn is speaking."

"What about?"

The man passed his hand across his brow in a dazed sort of way as he replied, "I dun'no!"

WEDDING BELLS

DOHERTY—DORIS.

At St. John's Church, Keene, on Tuesday, Feb. 13th, Michael Joseph Doherty, of East City, was united in the holy bands of matrimony to Miss Mary Catherine Doris, of Keene. Rev. Father Casey, of Campbellford, performed the ceremony, and said the nuptial Mass. Many Peterborough and Douro guests were present. The happy couple will reside in East City.

BURFELT—HOWELL.

A very quiet wedding took place at All Saints' Church, Toronto, Thursday, Feb. 15th, when Alice Della, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Howell, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Sidney Burfelt, of Toronto, and was given away by her father, Mr. W. Howell. The bride was attired in a charming gown of cream gloria silk, carrying a bouquet of lillies of the valley. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. W. Holt, of Toronto. The bridesmaid was attired in apricot silk. The groom's present to the bride was a pearl sunburst; to the groomsman, a signet ring; to the groomsman, a pearl pin. The happy couple left for New York. The bride's going-away costume was a tailored-made suit of navy blue and hat to match, with mink furs. After their return they will reside at 139½ Olssington ave., Toronto.

IS ASQUITH TO RESIGN?

Rumours of His Retirement Believe to be Hushed—Sir Edward Grey Named for Premier

OTHER SIDE PRESENTED

London, Feb. 19.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The fact that no official denial has been given to the persistent report of the impending retirement of Premier Asquith and the succession to the Premiership of Lloyd-George or Sir Edward Grey, is in itself significant.

A well-known Parliamentary correspondent, John Foster Fraser of The Standard, claims to have definite knowledge of the subject.

"I am able to state," he writes, "that Mr. Asquith will shortly resign the Premiership and that, according to popular expectation, Sir Edward Grey, not Lloyd-George, will be appointed Prime Minister."

"Lorsburn will retire from the Lord Chancellorship, which office will be taken by the present Premier.

"When," continues Fraser, "this decision became known in official circles a while ago, the rank and file of the extreme Radicals, supporters of the Chancellor, started a campaign against the Foreign Minister, who is not in sympathy with Lloyd-George's socialistic reforms, and not by any means an enthusiastic home ruler. It wasn't because they were angry with Grey for having, as they supposed, almost led England to war with Germany, nor because he prevented war with Russia in connection with Persian affairs, that they baited him, but wholly because they wanted to drive him out of office. The only effect of the onslaught was to consolidate his friends. By his side stood Asquith, Lord Haldane, Lord Morley, Lord Crewe and other responsible Liberals, to whom so many of the rank and file of the Radical party owe much.

"Asquith intended to retire about the time Balfour did, but he waited till the return of the King from India. It's now an open secret that the great honor of the Garter, usually reserved for princes and for dukes, was conferred upon the Foreign Secretary on Asquith's advice. This signal distinction was intended as a rebuff to the extremists who repudiated Grey's foreign policy, and it has been rightly interpreted to mean that Asquith genuinely approved Sir Edward's diplomacy when our recent relationship with Germany was strained.

"It must be imagined," concludes the article, "that the Georgites, who preponderate in the Commons, will calmly acquiesce in the ousting of the Chancellor from the Premiership. On the contrary, they vouch they'll smash the Liberal party prospects, which Asquith painfully realises."

The debate will be shifted from labor and diplomatic to constitutional issues this week, and will be followed by a dull financial discussion. The three most important measures on the Government's program will be held back until Easter, and there will be no chance of passing them without a prolonged autumn session.

Another correspondent takes a brighter view of the Liberal party's affairs. He says:

"Despite the Chancellor of the Exchequer's quarrel with the doctors and the determination of the extreme Radicals to subject the Foreign Secretary to exasperating heckling over the Persian affair, Ministers have started off with an unexpected revival of confidence. Sir Edward Grey, after remaining too long in the background, is speaking at Manchester this weekend, and is reinforcing the Government by his dignified and persuasive oratory. Mr. Lloyd-George will be the hero of a suffrage demonstration at the Albert Hall next week, and there will be a full muster of Anglican clergy in the same hall for a vehement protest against the disestablishment of the church in Wales.

"Fatuous attempts have been made to represent the Cabinet as divided into two hostile groups over naval armaments and entente diplomacy, when in reality Lord Haldane, Mr. Lloyd-George, Mr. Churchill and Sir Edward Grey have been working in harmony under the direction of the King and the Prime Minister.

"Practical measures have been taken for removing the impression in Berlin that the entente with France and Russia is necessarily an anti-German bond that prevents a settlement of controversies and involves the necessity for warlaful armaments. The Radical prejudice against the Foreign Secretary has been weakened, especially when the King, by his extraordinary gift of the Garter has made it plain that Sir Edward Grey will be summoned and not Mr. Lloyd-George if Mr. Asquith retires during this year of political storm and stress."

Boy With $1,000 a Rolling Stone.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 19.—After wandering about this city and other nearby places on the Canadian side for two days, twelve-year-old Thomas McHale, who left his home in Corning, N.Y., Friday, was taken into custody by American immigration authorities last night, when attempting to re-enter his native land. He will be sent back to Corning to-day.

"I got tired of things at home, and thought I'd go to Canada to see my aunt," the boy told the American police, who took him off the hands of the immigration department. He had $6 in cash, and carried a bank book showing he has more than a thousand dollars on deposit in his home town.

Pioneer Woman of West Dead.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 19.—Mrs. E. Louise Greenvalley, a native of Quebec, aged 52, who claims to have been the first white woman to cross the Canadian Rockies, having come by the Dawdney pack trail in 1883, died yesterday. She lived in Winnipeg from 1890 to 1895.

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering, and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by all dealers.

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 19.—Posses scouring the neighborhood had found no trace of the bandits who attempted to hold up the Vandalia New York-St. Louis mail train No. 11, near Liggett, Ind., Friday night. Because of more than an hour's delay in making up a special train to carry local Sheriff Walsh and his deputies to the scene of the attempted robbery, and the cutting off of telegraph wires, the bandits obtained a big start on the officials.

Railroad officials say no effort was made to break into the cars and that so far as they know nothing of any considerable value was being carried. It is their belief that when the bandits failed to stop the train in the deep cut they gave up hope of getting any loot and made good their escape.

Jessimane In Kingston.

Toronto, Feb. 19—Joseph Jessimane, whose sentence to hanging was changed to that of life imprisonment for shooting James Lougheed one Saturday afternoon in Hayter street last spring, passed through Toronto streets Saturday morning for the last time. Sitting between two sheriffs, his wrists brought close together by cold steel handcuffs, he was carried to the Limestone City in the Grand Trunk Montreal train. He was apparently unconcerned about anything. The terrible sentence which hung over him seemed not to depress him in the least. Late in the afternoon he was handed over to the penitentiary authorities and for the balance of his earthly career will live within prison walls.

NO MENTION OF SCHOOLS

In the Resolution That Will be Discussed in the House This Week—Deals With Boundary Question

ROBLIN IS SILENT, TOO

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—The extension of the boundaries of the Province of Manitoba will be the subject of discussion in the House of Commons this week. It will precede the adoption of a resolution by Premier Borden, of which formal notice has been given as follows:

"Resolved, that it is expedient (a) to extend the boundaries of the Province of Manitoba northward to the 60th parallel of latitude and northeastward to the shores of Hudson Bay, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed to by the Legislative Assembly of Manitoba and by Parliament; (b) to authorize the Governor-General-in-Council to pay to the said province an annual sum of $381,584.10, being the equivalent of interest at 5 per cent. on $7,631,683.85, the difference between a principal sum of $8,107,500 and $475,816.15 heretofore advanced by the Government to the province for provincial purposes; such annual sum to be paid as from the first day of July, 1908, but subject, however, to the deduction of certain sums received by the said province and otherwise.

(c) To authorize the Governor-in-Council to pay to the said province in lieu of ownership of Quebec lands in the territory to be added (1) an annual sum based upon the population of the said province as ascertained by such quinquennial census thereof, such annual sum to be not less than $562,680 and not to exceed at any time the annual sum of $3,125,000, and (2) the sum of $201,723.57 towards the construction of public buildings.

As will be noticed, the resolution merely provides for the extension of boundaries and the question of separate schools does not enter, so that the debate will be shorn of much of the interest attached to it by reports of a Ministerial split on that question.

The resolution, as brought down, simply provides for the terms governing the allocation of the boundary lines of Manitoba on the extended territory without defining said boundary as between Manitoba and Ontario. The fact that the consent of the Manitoba Legislature must first be required to the boundary as proposed, practically means that the bill based on the resolution, cannot be dealt with this session since the Manitoba Legislature does not assemble for some days, and a long debate will undoubtedly have to take place before any resolution on the question can be put through. Meanwhile, Parliament here expect to prorogue before Easter, and the time limit for consideration of the bill would be too short for action before then.

Roblin Overlooks School Issue.

Lepas, Keewatin, Feb. 19.—Saturday night Premier Roblin arrived here with a dozen friends. He addressed a public meeting, but there was no political significance to his utterances.

It was expected he would announce his policy on separate schools in the new territory, and the boundaries, but he did not touch the school question, and merely referred insidentally to the boundaries.

Premier Roblin thanked the citizens and congratulated them on the choice of the town site. He thought it his duty to consult the people of the new territory.

Both Governments had arrived at an understanding on the boundary question, and he promised when the Manitoba House met, Feb. 22, a measure would be passed for representation of the new territory by one new member. The things asked for in the address would be granted as conditions would warrant.

Nine Saved; Eleven Lost.

Liverpool, Feb. 19.—The British steamer Cuban, which arrived here last night from New Orleans, brought into port nine of the crew of the British ship Erne, which was wrecked in a heavy storm at sea.

The Erne was bound from Boston, Feb. 1, for Buenos Ayres. The Cuban passed her on Feb. 6, in latitude 40 north, longitude 50 west, and rescued those of the crew who had managed to keep themselves alive. Six of the crew were drowned, while the master of the Erne, Capt. Pickett, his wife, the second mate and a passenger are missing. Only the cargo was keeping the wreck afloat.

Falls Seventy Feet.

Hamilton, Feb. 19.—After toppling 70 feet from the roof of a new building at the corner of Hughson and King William streets Saturday morning, Mike Orousi, a Pole, was picked up with none of the bones of his body broken. He was severely bruised, however, and it is feared that he is injured internally. He was taken to the City Hospital.

Yuan Shi Kai Pleads Ill Health and Urges the Election of Dr. Sun Yat Sen—Will Stay Till Relieved

TROOPS FOR MANCHURIA

Shanghai, Feb. 19.—Yuan Shi Kai telegraphed Saturday to Nanking requesting Huang Sing, the War Minister in the Republican Cabinet, to despatch troops to the north to assist in quelling the disturbances in Manchuria.

Yuan Shi Kai also telegraphed to Dr. Wu Ting Fang, the Republican Minister of Justice, and to Tang Shao Yi, his representative, urging them to endeavor to secure the election of Dr. Sun Yat Sen as President of the republic in his place. In his despatch he said:

"I am unable to control the involved situation in China, as I am suffering from impaired health. Now that the aims of the Republicans have been attained, I have accomplished my duty. The post of President of the Republic would only serve to lead to my ruin. I ask your kind offices and interest with the people of the country to elect Dr. Sun Yat Sen, to whom credit should be given. I will wait here until I am relieved. Then I will return to my home and resume my work as a husbandman."

The new constitution of the Provisional Government will be approved by the assembly at Nanking on Feb. 19, when it will be notified by a delegation, which will start for the north

Gen. Homer Lea, the American officer, who has been acting as military adviser to Dr. Sun Yat Sen, and who has been seriously ill, has now rallied and may recover.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen urged that an appeal should be made to foreigners to contribute to the relief of the famine in China. He said that owing to the life struggle and death struggle for freedom which had been going on in China, the administration was helpless, but he hoped hereafter it would not be necessary to make any appeal abroad.

More Plotting In Manchuria.

London, Feb. 19.—The situation in Manchuria has become much more acute since Kang Yu Wei, leader of the reform movement in 1898, and grand head of the Empire Reform Association, has thrown in his lot with the Manchurian viceroy, Gen. Chao Erh Hsun, against the new regime. The latter, according to a despatch from Tientsin, refuses to give up his office. The Manchu Prince Su is financing a movement to establish a constitutional monarchy in Manchuria.

Home Rulers Gather.

London, Feb. 19.—Home rulers were in the highest spirits yesterday afternoon in Trafalgar Square, where from 15,000 to 20,000 people assembled in support of the Government's proposed measure of self-government for Ireland. Liberals and Nationalists combined in the demonstration, members of the House of Commons occupying seven of the platforms.

Resolutions urging the necessity of giving as generous a measure of home rule to Ireland as is consistent with the maintenance of Imperial supremacy and suggesting that the bill be so framed as to be capable of early application to England, Scotland and Wales were adopted with the greatest enthusiasm.

William G. C. Gladstone, Liberal member of Parliament for Kilmarnock Burgs, a grandson of William E. Gladstone, the Liberal "Grand Old Man," who introduced the first home rule bill in 1886, was among the speakers. He said the democracy of this country had made the cause of home rule as its own.

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

A Bad Case That Proves Cramps and Stomach Disorders are Cured Fast by Nerviline.

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. R. Emerson, of Guys Hill, P. O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

NERVILINE AN INSTANT RELIEF

For cramps, flatulence, diarrhoea and disorders of the stomach and bowels Nerviline knows no equal—one million bottles used every year—fifty years on the market, that's proof enough of its merit. Large bottles, 50c., trial size 25c. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

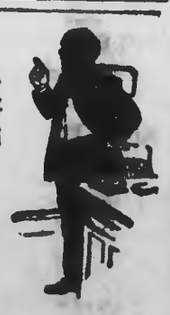
What Ails You?



Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical forest plants. "I Suffered Years With My Back."

Backache resulting from weak kidneys, a bad cold or other cause, usually renders the sufferer unfit for work and often results in permanent disability.

"I suffered for years with my back, or kidney trouble, and have tried a number of remedies from different physicians. More than a year ago, one of our local druggists induced me to try and after using them some three months I found a decided improvement in my kidneys, and I am glad to say that I hope soon to be fully restored to health." J. P. ALLEN, Ex-Judge City Court, Glasgow, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

As long as pain is present in any part of the body rest is impossible and the system becoming weakened is exposed to any form of disease to which the sufferer may be inclined.

GOOD GAME IN THE TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

All Saints and T. A. S. clash in a Trent Valley League game at Brock Street rink to-night and there promises to be some battle. In view of the defeat of Havelock by Campbellford on Friday night, to-night's game will have a very important effect upon the championship of this district. If All Saints' defeat T.A.S. to-night the Abstainers will have to win in Campbellford to tie the district. On the other hand a win for the Abstainers will leave them in a position where the worst they can hope for is a tie. The game to-night should be well worth seeing. The heavy going will suit All Saints and they may make things interesting. The T. A. S. line-up will be as follows:

Goal—McFadden.
Point—E. Lancefield.
Cover—T. Lancefield.
Rover—McPhee.
Centre—Halpin.
Right wing—O'Dette,
Left wing—Coughlin.

BEAR CATS SURPRISED THE TORONTO CONTINGENT

Lou Marsh of the Toronto Star saw Friday's game and has the following to say:

Similarly to the T.C.C.—Berlin game, it was a tough battle, up to half-time, just a question of which one would break first, with the odds in favour of Orillia. Until the break came it was a real classy game.

WILL BE HOT GAME

Peterborough broke first, and Orillia won going away, but just the same it was a rattling fine contest, and Orillia—it is natural to suppose that they will be the finalists—will give the Toroto Canoe Club seven, who are just as sure to win the other semi-final—a royal tussle for the honours.

LOTS OF CLASS

Indeed, Orillia displayed so much speed and stick handling ability, plus real hockey brains and strategy, here last night that the little band of Toronto sportsmen who saw the game backed up from even money on the championship round, to demanding odds of 10 to 7 on the final outcome with Orillia, the favourites—and they got some of their money down at that price, too. When Orillia trimmed Peterborough last night they defeated a far better team than the Toronto contingent had any idea there was lying around loose. The Toronto squad expected the Bear Cats to be a light lunch for the crack Orillians, but, to their surprise, they were given a sticky argument.

Orillia's persistent back-checking and their superiority in centre ice told the tale last night. Peterborough showed up with another one of those rattling good goalkeepers, who are epidemic in the O.H.A. junior series this year—if it hadn't been for Dwyer the score would have been 18-2 instead of 8-2; a good defence pair, and two pretty fair wings, but when the Orillia crew took care of Dennison, their star defence man, and harried their forwards to death by hornet-like back-checking, when they did break away for a rush, it broke their hearts, and the rout was completed when the visitors scored a couple of somewhat lucky goals from face-offs right in front of the nets.

PETERBOROUGH SCORED FIRST

Aboun 1,500 people, 200 of whom were from Orillia, saw the game. It was played on soft ice, but in spite of the heavy going, it was a ding-dong contest well into the second half, when, with the score 5 to 0 against them, the Bear Cats lost heart and slackened up a trifle, only to renew their courage a few moments later, and come on and fight it out to the bitter end.

Clancy drew first blood after 12 minutes of ding-dong hockey, with a nice rush up the wing. He was hurt during another excursion, the lifted puck gashig his eye. This took the steam out of him somewhat. Before he returned from the repair shop Orillia had commenced a bombardment of the Peterborough nets, which could have but one ultimate result. Even Clancy's return could not stave off the Orillia crew. They evened up on a melee in face of the goal, when Butterfield bulled it in, and went ahead 2 to 1, when Jupp slammed one in from a face-off just before half-time.

ORILLIA ALL THE WAY

In the second half, Orillia came strong from the go-in. Jupp got another lucky one from a face-off in front of the nets making it 3 to 1 in the first two minutes of the half. Thornton had a grand chance a moment later, with the net wide open, and the goalkeeper gone calling, but he missed it. Mohan got Orillia's fourth from a rebound from Jupp's shot.

Butterfield got the fifth on a nice for the sixth, while Thornton got the seventh alone. The eighth came from a grand mix-up. Peterborough scored the final goal, Hall netting it on a pass from the corner.

Dwyer in goal, Milloy and Dennison the defence, and Clancy were the best for Peterborough, and Kinnealy was fair, but Hall and Weir did not play the nets effectively.

STRONG EVERYWHERE

The Orillia team hasn't a weak spot. They are thirty-five per cent. stronger than last season, and as tricky as they make them. Jupp at right wing and Butterfield at rover both stood out by reason of their speed and stick handling. The rest of the crew are just as good as ever, and then some. Referee Wally Hern handled the game almost faultlessly.

CAMPBELLFORD BEAT HAVELOCK

Havelock, Feb. 17.—In a Trent Valley Hockey League game here last night the home team was defeated by Campbellford by 8 to 6. The half-time tally was 5 to 1 in favour of Campbellford, who had all the best of the play, but in the second half the Railroaders came back strong and made it interesting. The game was clean. The line-up:

Campbellford.		Havelock.
Grant		Darling
	Goal
Smith		Rose
	Point
Tait		McGuire
	Cover-point
Shannon		Quinlan
	Rover
Holmes		Ferguson
	Centre
Roe		Warren
	R. Wing
Weston		Curry
	L. Wing

Referee—Fred C. Waghorne, Toronto.

Local Septettes Lose To Lindsay

The basketball and hockey teams of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute dropped into Scugogville on Saturday to play off a friendly game with the L.C.I. boys. In a fairly speedy game, they trimmed the Mudville aggregation to the tune of 14-4. Both sides made good play, but the Peterborough boys had it on their opponents, inasmuch as they showed better form.

In the junior and senior hockey fixtures which were pulled off in the afternoon the two local septettes were less fortunate. In a gilt-edged contest, in which the juniors figured, the Lindsayites emerged from the play with six goals to their credit, the score being 7-1.

In the senior event, the locals got nothing worse than a goose egg to their credit in addition to a number of sore spots. The score at the end stood at 10-0 in favour of the Lindsay seven.

CURLERS WILL GO TO ORILLIA

The competition for the Orillia Cup games will commence on Wednesday, with four rinks aside, competing. Both ends will be played on the same day, with four Peterborough rinks in Orillia and four Orillia rinks here. If favoured with good ice the contest for the Neil-Sheppard Cup will prove an interesting event. The ice at the local rink was in fairly good shape this morning, but it would not take many more days of this kind of weather to render it unfit to play upon.

Preparations for the local Bonspiel are under way, and with the tightening up of the weather, a date for the event will be announced. With poor ice, a poor combination often has just as good a chance as a crack aggregation, and the local curlers are not ethusiastic over the "roarin' game" whe soft ice has to be taken into consideration.

Bell Telephone Won By 4 To 1

The Lock Works team gave the Bell Telephone seven some interesting opposition in a Mercantile League game at Brock Street Rink on Saturday night, and although the League Leaders went away on end and won by 4 goals to 1, they had a battle all the way. The Bell team scored the only goal in the first half but the Lock Works came back after half-time and tied the game up in thirty seconds on a nice combination rush. The superiority of the Bell team then asserted itself, and they rammed in three counters before the final whistle. Leo Derocher refereed satisfactorily.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

The Bear Cats will journey to Orillia to-morrow to play the return semi-final game with the Younkers. The local youngsters are determined to make a better showing in the North than they did on their own ice, and will go after the husky Orillia bunch from the drop of the hat. The team will line-up as follows:

Goal—Dwyer
Point—Milloy.
Cover—Denison.
Rover—Weir.
Centre—Hall.
Right wing—Kennealy.

On Saturday evening at the Sacred Heart Rink two teams representing the upstairs and downstairs of the Matthews Packing establishment engaged in a battle royal, with honours going to the upstairs seven by the narrow margin of 3 goals to 2. It was a hard fought but clean game, the winners putting up a game fight

Got A Pain In Your Back?

IF YOU HAVE HEED THE WARNING.

You get a pain in your back, and you wonder what is the matter. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Heed the warning; cure the weak, lame, aching back and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't do this, serious complications are very apt to arise, and the first thing you know you will be troubled with Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease; the three most deadly forms of kidney trouble.

On the first sign of a pain in the back, Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken

They go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the backache and prevent any further complications arising.

Mr. Stewart Johnston, Richardson Mines, N.S., writes:—"For years I was troubled with my back, and I had to give up work. I tried Dr. after Dr., and was getting no better. I had almost given up hope when I began to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I took three boxes of them, and found I was completely cured. I feel I owe my life to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet
For Schools, Hotels, Banks and Private Residences

Heretofore it has been impossible to install a Sanitary System of inside closet without water works and sewage, and you will agree with us when we say that the present outdoor system of closets are not only very insanitary, but are at the same time one of the most fruitful sources of both moral and physical ills.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet is constructed principally for families and public bodies who live in a district where it is impossible to have waterworks and sewage. It can be placed in any part of a Residence, Store, School, Hotel, Bank, etc.

We have secured the Agency for this valuable Sanitary Closet, and invite investigation of its merits.

Daily Stock Quotations

NEW YORK, FEB. 19.—Posner & Co.—We cannot ask people to buy Steel Common now, as there is nothing in the whole situation that lends the slightest encouragement for betterment in the shares. There must be another severe break of from 10 to 15 points in the market price of the stock before it will be once again in a sound position to buy with the fair expectations of future betterment.

Notice—New York Stock Exchange will be closed Feb. 28th, Washington's birthday.

New York—Reports coming to hand still affirm that the buying of Rdg stock has been of a high order, and that it is based on a near segregation. The buyers, however, are not buying on the advances, but during declines. We have reasons for believing that Rdg are having large buying orders. The speculative possibilities offered are good, it is said, and the stock may be forced up further to-day on the shorts.

New York—The show of strength that was displayed in the early trading to-day quickly disappeared under pressure of stock against reading forcing that stock down over a point. The selling was based entirely upon the idea that the decision in the Anthracite coal suit will be handed down by the Supreme Court to-day. Room traders generally assumed that if a decision is rendered, it will be construed unfavourably for the time and be used for unfavourable selling.

World—It is stated by highest authorities that Union Pacific will show 14 per cent. for the present fiscal year for the common stock, and the management has no intention of reducing dividends.

Liverpool opg wheat 1-8 to 1-4 lower, corn 1-8 lower. 1.30 p.m.—wheat 1-8 to 1-4 higher, corn 1-2 lower; hogs 63,000 left over, 3,250 provisions 5 C lower. Cattle, 27,000, sheep 30,000.

Carlots, wheat 40, corn 456, oats 98.

Baring New York—There is no change. A few specialtis will be put up occasionally, but the genarl lin seems to be in for good break. Around Saturdays high prices the active issues such as Union Steel, Smelters, Sp, Ca should be sold.

July cotton is a sale around 1045. (Financial—Up town professional operators in the stock market are planning to break prices. They are sending out talk of raiding and liquidation to come. Next week's developments from Washington, they say will bring a new selling of long stock. Exaggerated predictions of low prices are circulated in the street.

Washington—Private advices says there is no likelihood, as reported, from bearish sources that the Government will again proceed against the Standard Oil. The affair is closed, according to the high authorities in the Capital.

MIGRATION OF BIRDS

George F. Guelf, a well-known naturalist of Brockport, N.Y., has volunteered to give the Conservation Department the benefit of his observations on the migration of wild birds along Lake Ontario, a favourite route for both land and water birds:

"The migration of birds has long been a subject to which much time and study has been given by scientists, but for which no adequate explanation has ever been given. While it is believed that a number of combined influences may govern their periodical movements, it does not apply sufficiently in all cases. Some species do not migrate at all, others, the bulk of a given species, will migrate, while a number of individuals in the same locality will remain in the vicinity of their nesting grounds the entire year. Some species migrate but short distances, while others will travel thousands of miles. A number of birds that breed in the Arctic regions spend the winter in the central and southern part of Southern America. Two species of plover that breed in Arctic America do not migrate south on this continent but fly directly across the sea, where they begin their southern migration. Several southern breeding species show a decidedly northern movement after the breeding season. Considering the long distances that some species migrate, in some cases thousands of miles over land and sea, the accuracy with which they arrive at their breeding grounds is truly wonderful. With some species the records of spring arrivals for a number of years show but a few days variation. That birds habitually follow the same route year after year is well known. In some instances birds travel a different route returning in the fall from that which was used in their northerly movement in the spring.

JAMES F. GALLAGHER & COMPANY
Present the First Offering of the Stock of
PORCUPINE - FORTUNA GOLD MINES LTD.
Incorporated under Ontario Compani

Capital Stock $2,000,000, divided into 2,000,000 Shares. Par Value $1.00 per Share. Treasury Shares 1,000,000 Shares. All Shares Common Shares, fully paid and non-assessable. The Company has no Bonds, Preferred Shares or Indebtedness of any kind.

The company owns 3 groups in all, 6 mining claims, 310 acres, in the Porcupine Mining District of Ontario, described as follows: The Reany Mining Claim in Tisdale, being the southwest quarter of the south half of Lot Number Two, Concession One, Tisdale; the Mapes Claim in Deloro T. R. P. 814 (Called H. R. 936), and six claims in Shaw Township, called the James claims, being officially known as Claims Nos. 13684, 13685, 13686, 13687, 13688 and 13689.

GROUP NO. 1
The well-known Reany lies east of the Martin and Dome. The famous Dunn and Steel properties adjoin the Reany on the east and the Rose-Van Cutsee claims, owned by one of the largest mining, engineering and brokerage houses of London (owners of Town Site Mine at Cobalt), adjoin the Reany on the west side. The Dunn and Steel vein runs into the Reany and has been exposed by stripping for a distance of 800 feet on the Reany. This vein has an average width of 20 feet and is heavily mineralized. (See Engineer's Report).

GROUP NO. 2
The Mapes claim in Deloro lies two claims south of Tisdale on the south of the Powell claims. On the east of the Mapes are the now famous Dobie Maidens and McDonald properties. The Boston Development Company, on the west, have made their spectacular strike on this same vein, which is traced through the Mapes property from the Dobie. The Sechumacher property lies northwest. The entire property lies in the main Dome ore zone, whose principal trend is northeast by southwest, which is the trend of the Dobie, Maidens, Mapes and Boston Development veins. Two-thirds of the Mapes claim is exposed and easily prospected. The Mapes claim is considered one of the most promising in its neighborhood, and, like the Reany, should develop into a good-paying mine.

Groups 1 and 2 are in famous Dome Ore Zone.

GROUP NO. 3
The six James claims in Shaw are too well known to go into detail in describing. It is sufficient to say that these claims have a well-mineralized ore body 150 feet wide, that with proper development will more than likely prove one of the great ore bodies of the Porcupine District.

SOLICITORS
Day, Ferguson and O'Sullivan. The incorporation, titles and legal matters of the Porcupine-Fortuna Gold Mines, Limited, have been executed by the above firm of Corporation Solicitors.

MINE MANAGEMENT.
There has been a great deal of unfavorable comment regarding poor management of many of the Porcupine properties, and in many cases we know this feeling is justified, but with our reputation established as Mine Operators, those who invest in Porcupine-Fortuna may rest assured that the management of this property will have the best advice obtainable.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT.
The Officers and Directors of this Company are well known bankers, business and mining men, who have proven successful in handling large financial institutions with profit to the shareholders and credit to themselves. Associated with the bankers and business men are mining men well known in the north mining country of Ontario. They have successfully prospected and operated in Cobalt, Gowganda and Porcupine, and have established reputations for progressiveness, reliability and intelligent operations.

JAMES F. GALLAGHER & COMPANY
SUITES 8 and 9, MANNING ARCADE, 24 KING ST. W.
TORONTO, ONTARIO.

Statutory Prospectus of PORCUPINE FORTUNA GOLD MINES, LIMITED, dated 19th January, 1912, and filed with the Provincial Secretary of Ontario.

Authorized capital, 2,000,000 shares of one dollar each, of which one share each was subscribed by the incorporators (who are also at the date of this Prospectus the directors) viz: James E. Day, John M. Ferguson, Edward V. O'Sullivan and James M. Adam (Barristers), and James F. Coughlin (Law Student), all of the office of Day, Ferguson & O'Sullivan, 59 Victoria-street, Toronto, the Solicitors for the Company. The balance of the stock, 1,999,995 shares is agreed to be issued to F. L. Mapes of Haileybury, Ont., Miner, under two contracts, dated 5th of January and 9th of January, 1912, between him and the Company for the transfer to the Company of eight mining claims in Porcupine. All the stock having been issued, the Company has gone to allotment, but by a contract between F. L. Mapes and the Company, January, 1912, he has agreed to donate 1,000,000 shares to be used for treasury purposes. The above contracts may be inspected any day at the office of the above-named Solicitors.

Qualification required of the directors is one share. No provisions are yet made for their remuneration other than allowance of fees and expenses for attending meetings, nor for underwriting or payment of commission on sale of stock, but the directors have power to fix their own fees and salaries, and to pay a commission up to 25 per cent. on sale of stock, and to sell stock at a discount if any of the said 1,000,000 shares are sold the amount agreed to be paid for same will be payable in full in one instalment. The above directors have no interest in the promotion other than Solicitors, or in promoters' profit which is in the shares issued. The preliminary expenses being government, filing and legal fees, are estimated at under $1500.

SEEN AND HEARD

Robert Herrick, the novelist, was talking, at a dinner in Chicago, about the hard lot of the workingman.

"The workingman," he said, "has a sad time of it. He can't be said to live. The beauty of life is lost to him.

"There's a story, not without a grain of truth in it, about the humble workingman.

"A poor casual labourer, working on a scaffolding, fell five stories to the ground. As his horrified mates rushed pell-mell to his aid, he picked himself up, uninjured, from a great, soft pile of sand.

"'Say, fellers,' he murmured, anxiously, 'is the boss angry? Tell him I had to come down anyway for a ball of twine.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Invincible Chico sounds like the title of a newly risen Mexican bandit chief, but it's not. It is the "front mark" of a cigar. Just like panatela or perfecto.

The cigar manufacturer was talking: "What most people know about tobacco," he said, "won't ever hurt 'em. They let a flashy trade name be the distinguishing mark of their favourite brands. A name is a lot, but not everything.

"The words 'size' and 'shape' nearly synonymous in cigar terminology, and either word when used by the trade usually implies a combination of both meanings. That is, by either 'size' or 'shape' is meant the formation of a cigar—length, thickness and contour.

LAURIER LENDS AID

Sir Wilfrid Addresses Big Meeting at Renfrew

COUNTY ON ITS HONOUR

Renfrew, Feb. 20.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday threw the weight of his personal influence into the campaign for the election of Hon. George P. Graham in South Renfrew. At Eganville, in the afternoon and Arnprior in the evening Sir Wilfrid addressed a crowded meeting and was warmly received. At Eganville two meetings were held; one was in the town hall and another outside to accommodate the overflow. The ex-Premier and Messrs. W. L. M. King, E. P. Devlin, M.P., of Ottawa; T. A. Low, ex-M.P., and Dr. B. M. Connelly of Renfrew.

That fair play and the honor of the Conservatives of South Renfrew demanded George P. Graham's election was the dominant note in Sir Wilfrid's appeal to the electors. He also defended his administration of the affairs of the country, and referred to several of the transportation problems now before the House, promising his support of the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal.

The candidate then spoke of outsiders who were "butting into" the present election, notably some from the riding of North Renfrew.

"Dr. Reid started this fight and then went back to Ottawa and hasn't come back again," said Mr. Graham.

He had come to South Renfrew on the invitation of the Liberals and with the written pledge of twenty-seven Conservatives of the constituency that they would undertake to elect him.

Sir Wilfrid said: "There was an election on Sept. 21 last. You cannot have forgotten it and I have not. A storm—I will not call it a brainstorm—swept over the country and wiped my Government out of existence. I do not mind telling you I would have preferred to win, but I believe in taking my defeat like a man, so I won't repine, I won't lament but do just like the boys—spit on my hands and lay to."

The ex-Premier, after a warm tribute to Mr. Low and Hon. Mr. Graham, said of the latter:

"I have kept the seat next to me vacant for him and I believe he will ntil it. But there are men who said that if George P. Graham were to enter the House he would give them the devil. This is not a political question; there is no issue between us. We are not yet in a position to take issue with the present Government. I want to give them more rope—they may hang themselves.

After alluding to instances in which political leaders, after being defeated at home, had gone to other constituencies, Sir Wilfrid said:

"The Georgian Bay Canal is a transportation matter of particular interest to you people in South Renfrew. Some people want only the Welland and others only the Georgian Bay Canal. To these I say, 'O men of little faith, we need both of them.' You will ask me 'Why didn't you build the canal yourself?' I can only say that you cannot do everything at the same time. We tried to build the transcontinental railway, though Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, hesitated to engage in such a large project. And, sir, I can assure you whenever Mr. White resolves to build the Georgian Bay Canal, I can assure of my own and Mr. Graham's support."

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King urged less localism in regard to the present election. The man who had had the wide experience of Hon. Geo. P. Graham was the man whom South Renfrew should elect for the good of the country. Canada needed his services. Had not Conservative members resigned to make way for Hazen, Pelletier, Rogers and White, all members of the present council of the nation?

Must Remain Bachelor Maids.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 20.—In order to share in the estate of their father, the Misses Ruth and Tacie Morgan, daughters of William P. Morgan, a wealthy real estate man, must stay unmarried for life. The will of the father, just made public commands that the two daughters are to be given "a suitable living while they remain single." In the event of marriage, their allowance is to be completely cut off.

The Misses Morgan are prominent in society. The will of their father came as a great surprise to them.

Child Revives In Coffin.

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 20.—After being prepared for burial and apparently dead two days, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Maholechek, who live near Black Duck, was discovered to be alive as the burial service was being held. Three days ago the child fell in a bucket of water and was nearly drowned.

It was noticed at the grave that moisture had gathered on the glass of the coffin, and the body was removed. By the use of stimulants the child was resuscitated.

BILL IS REPORTED

N. T. R. Commission Changes Go Through Committee

KEMP GETS A DRUBBING

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—The House sat till after midnight in committee on the bill to reduce the N.T.R. commissioners to one man, and in the debate members on both sides were forceful. Hon. A. E. Kemp made his first appearance in the discussion and received a sound drubbing from E. M. MacDonald (Pictou).

The bill was reported at 12.45 a.m.

George W. Kyte (Richmond, N.S.) defended the commissioners and the policy of the late Government in regard to the railway. True, it had cost more than the original estimate, but so had all great public works. Between Mr. Fielding's original estimate for the N.T.R., which Mr. Kyte stated was $51,000,000, and the figures given to the other day by Hon. Frank Cochrane, was only $9,000,000.

Mr. Kyte claimed that the late Government had done well in securing a second transcontinental railway for Canada, at an expenditure of $80,000,000, in comparison with the $300,000,000 which the C.P.R. had cost the country under the government of the late Sir John A. Macdonald.

Hon. A. E. Kemp remarked that the Opposition were in a sort of apologetic mood. The situation in regard to the N.T.R. was one of the greatest bungles the country had ever got into, and the Government of to-day was perfectly justified in taking steps leading to the removal of the commissioners.

The question of cost, he said, was not the only charge against the late Government. The prime object in 1902 for building the road was that it should be an outlet for western wheat, yet, instead of completing the road from Winnipeg to Cochrane Junction, where connection to tide water could be had over the T. & N. O. Ry., they had completed the section from Quebec to Moncton, and it would be three years before the road would be available for crop movement.

E. M. MacDonald (Pictou) charged Mr. Kemp with misrepresentation. There was in existence to-day, and had been for a year, the line from Winnipeg to Fort William.

Mr. MacDonald took the ground that, with only one man in charge of the road, he might condone dishonesty, but the members of a board of several commissioners would be a check on each other. He charged the Minister of Railways with acting illegally in appointing, by order in council, Mr. MacPherson, the assistant to the chief engineer, vice-chairman, an office not authorized by the statute.

Hon. W. T. White declared that there was no use in blinking facts. The appalling difference between Mr. Fielding's estimates of $54,000,000 and the total cost of the road, as shown by the present Minister of Railways, of $236,000,000, raised a prima facie case against the late Government which they must explain away.

The interest to be paid by the Government, continued Mr. White, was $40,000,000, almost five times the $13,000,000 mentioned by the leader of the late Government.

"Is that a matter to be treated lightly?" he asked. "I say there has not been such a blunder made in this country since Confederation."

The Opposition seemed to think it did not matter what the road cost. Because, they said, the G.T.P. would pay three per cent. interest, it would not cost the country a cent. But what railway could afford to pay three per cent. over $200,000,000? It would have to earn $20,000 a day before it could pay this $6,000,000 a year.

"I want to tell them," declared the Finance Minister, "that every dollar of this $40,000,000 interest of this $236,000,000 comes out of the people of this country." From the standpoint of freight rate regulation, what chance was there for reduction under these circumstances?

The late Government, said Hon. Mr. White, were more responsible than anyone else for the present congestion in the western grain traffic. With only one line out of Port Arthur to the east it mattered not how many lines there were from Winnipeg to Port Arthur.

"You've got the wrong end of the line constructed first," he declared. "It is like a man beginning to build a house by building the chimney." The line will be a year late in getting to Lake Superior and three years late in getting to Cochrane.

"The cry at the first election was: 'Let Laurier finish his work.' We'll finish it, and finish it well, and I hope the end of the N.T.R. will be better than the beginning."

Hon. Frank Oliver wanted to know why the N.T.R. commissioners were held responsible for the alleged sins of the late Government. In closing up the expenditures of construction and material traffic arrangements there was the greatest need of careful supervision. There was more need for four commissioners than at any previous stage in the construction of the road.

Ontario Public Accounts Show Receipts Less Than Expenses

MR. MATHESON EXPLAINS

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Public accounts for the year ending Oct. 31, 1911, were presented to the Legislature late yesterday afternoon by Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary. They show that the total revenue for the fiscal year amounted to $9,370,238.99, and the total expenditure, $9,616,194.03. This leaves an apparent deficit of $249,190.13. The difference, according to Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, is accounted for by the fact that the Hydro-Electric did not pay interest on over $4,000,000 invested, which would amount to $173,000, and the T. & N. O. is credited in the statement with earnings of $515,000, while the actual receipts were $593,000, a difference here of $78,000. Another fact which accounts for considerable was that books were kept open for payments out to Nov. 18, but the receipts were cut off on Nov. 1. In the first week after the receipts were cut off enough money came in to pay all the difference. This amount will be credited this year.

The revenue was $2,400,000 larger than was estimated at the beginning of the year, which was $8,216,000. The increase in the receipts is accounted for by larger succession dues and taxes, which include the five per cent. tax on bar receipts.

The statements of assets and debts shows a surplus of $2,000,000. The total assets of the province are $26,936,060.30, while the total liabilities are $24,765,922.65.

This year the Hydro-electric will be paying interest, and probably pay its sinking fund. Already a check for $43,000 has been received from the Hydro, for the past three months.

It is shown in the accounts that the cash in hand is reduced from $3,082,000 to $1,503,000. This is due to the expenditures on the new Government House, Parliament Buildings, provincial prison, provincial museum, Osgoode Hall, reformatory for females, good roads, normal schools, Ontario Veterinary College and other institutions.

The cost of the new provincial prison will be paid for this year by the sale of the present Central Prison site.

The tabulated accounts of receipts show that the balance on hand at the beginning of the last fiscal year was $3,032,000. The amount at current account, exclusive of the special deposit, was $145,389. From the Dominion Government, by way of subsidy on population, the province received $1,879,343.80. While from another subsidy it received $142,414.48 and a special grant amounted to $240,000. The total of the three subsidies was $261,578. There is an increase in the grant of $132,986, owing to the increase in the population of the province.

Interest paid by the Dominion and interest on investments amounted to $132,284.

The largest revenue was received from lands, forests and mines, and amounted to $2,710,343. From licenses, $656,363 was received, which is $76,201 more than was received during the preceding year, on account of the five per cent. tax on bar receipts.

Law stamps brought in $104,155. Algoma taxes, $5,805. Educational revenue was $49,784. From the Provincial Secretary's Department $323,736. Game fisheries, $130,267. Agriculture, $147,167. Under the supplementary revenue act $854,859 was paid to the Government. This is an increase of $102,321, due to the increased tax on express companies, the tax on transfer of stock and the tax on racetracks.

Succession duties amounted to $983,195, and the funds deposited in lieu of bond payments for succession duties were $87,427. Casual revenue was $160,671.

From public institutions the province received a total of $274,300, made up as follows: From Toronto Hospital for the Insane, $54,057; Brockville, $16,926; Hamilton, $43,534; Kingston, $15,140; London, $38,485; Mimico, $18,673; Orillia, $12,911; Penetang, $3,461; Woodstock, $14,712; Cobourg, $551; Reformatory for Females, $10,457; Central Prison, $778; Central Prison, $778; Central Prison Industries, $45,555; Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, $515,000. Total, $9,270,833.

Statements of expenditures during the fiscal year show that more money was spent on education than any other branch of the Government, the total amount being $1,085,730; the maintenance of public institutions took $1,197,726. Other payments follow: Civil government $498,528; legislation, $275,260; administration of justice, $883,268; colonization and immigration, $106,905; agriculture, $620,261; stationary engineers, $6,698; hospitals and charities, $357,849; repairs and maintenance, $129,511; colonization roads, $451,111; charges, crown lands, $617,111; refunds, $67,336; miscellaneous services, $289,968; Hydro-Electric Power Commission, $91,328.

Sir James Whitney introduced two bills in the Legislature yesterday which will be of great benefit to street railway employes and miners. One bill will amend the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act, and will cover the grievances of motormen and conductors on street cars who, in order to put in a ten-hour day, have been compelled to string out their working time over a period of fifteen or sixteen hours. Sir James' amendment gives the Railway Board the authority to regulate the working hours regardless of any agreement at present existing between a municipality and a street railway company. All employes are considered in the amendment. When the bill is being discussed penalties will be inserted for contravention of the act on the part of any directors, superintendent, manager or officers of the company.

Another bill will amend the Mines Act by stipulating that no miner shall be employed underground in any mine for more than eight hours in any 24 hours, including the time in descending into and ascending from the mine. For every contravention of this act a penalty of $50 is imposed.

E. E. Fraser, Welland, introduced a bill to provide that elevator operators shall have proper qualifications, and shall be compelled to produce certificates of efficiency.

Alberta's Coal Commission.

Edmonton, Alta., Feb. 20.—Premier Sifton has announced a commission to investigate the coal situation in the province. The members are John Stirling, chief coal inspector; W. B. Powell, ex-president of the Mine Workers' Federation, and W. J. McNeil, secretary of the Employers' Federation.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

The steady gaze, the soul's yearning, influenced the sleeper; he stirred, the heavy eyelids lifted, and the great dark eyes were fixed on the squire's face.

"Hello, Farley!" he said, smiling suddenly; "what cheer?"

Paul turned his feet to the floor, sat up, and stared at his visitor.

"Have you come to stop here?" he asked anxiously, a hunted expression in his eyes.

"No, not here," Felix returned quickly, now perfectly able to interpret the look that puzzled him at times; "I'm on the other side, just down the street, you know, Paul, at the Friar's Heel. I wanted to see Hare, and I wanted to see you. I just gave Austin a look, set my traps down yonder, had a brush up, and stepped over here to ask you to come back and have a bit of dinner with me. There's turtle soup, red mullet, a broiled fowl, and a bottle of Duo de Marne, '71 vintage, to wash it down—does the menu appeal to you?"

Paul crossed his legs, leaned back and smiled.

"You are very kind," he said, gratefully, "very kind; but I don't feel at all peckish; in fact, I am off my feed, and," nodding at the litter on the table, "I have as much as I can get through with to-night."

"What have you had to eat to-day?" Felix asked, seating himself on the couch and ignoring the table.

"To eat? Oh, I don't know, anything Johnson likes to bring; I have no particular appetite."

"What is it you are doing?" glancing at the heterogeneous mass of papers on the table.

"Odds and ends. There are some communications from Wiseman concerning that estimate, three of Sir Thomas's speeches, some articles of my own, a Greek examination paper for Tom Hargrave, and one or two more things of a similar character."

"What do you work on? You seem to eschew food."

"Tea for one thing; tea is a stimulant, it pulls one together admirably, and—well, I smoke a goodish deal. You see, when one has a craving for food and the first mouthful chokes one, a cigarette comes handy. It soothes the nervous contraction of one's throat, and pacifies the wretched sensation lower down."

"Are you trying to kill yourself?"

"Good gracious, no! I am trying for a post under Government. There's Sir Thomas's letter about it on the table close to you, if you care to look at it."

Instead of looking at the letter Felix looked at him, and while he gazed Paul rose, placed a lump of coal on the fire with a pair of brass tongs and remained lounging there, his back against the chimney-piece, toying with his cigarette case.

"Do you stand a good chance?" Felix asked.

"Medium; I have an excellent testimonial from Sir Thomas. Will you have a smoke?"

"I wonder whether you will do me a favour?" Felix hazarded, gently drawing the proffered case from his hand.

"I will if I can," he said, eagerly; "you know I will."

"If—you know what an inveterate smoker I am—if I bring my allowance down to one pipe a day will you knock off the cigarettes, give up smoking until you are in a better state of health, say for three months?"

"I will," he said, readily; "and what is more, I'll do it without the sacrifice on your part. Why should you make a martyr of yourself, Felix? It won't be the easiest thing in the world; bad habits are not easily shunned. But I will do it to oblige you, because you ask me."

"Thank you," Felix returned, snapping the box and dropping it into his waistcoat pocket. "Now, is it possible you will grant me another act of grace? Please don't huff me, because I came up to town expressly to ask you this."

Paul laughed, hitched his heel on to the fender rail and slipped his uninjured hand into his trousers pocket.

"I would do anything in the world you asked me, provided, as I said before, it were possible."

"Well, it's this," said Felix, earnestly. "I want a holiday, and so do you. I have not been up to the mark since my accident, and I don't sleep as I did. I feel out of sorts, and I want a thorough change. I think of running over to America for a couple of months, and I want you to go with me."

"It's kind; it's overwhelmingly good of you,"—Paul swallowed something that made his voice husky, and resumed—"but it's out of the question; I couldn't afford it, and I haven't the time."

"I can afford it, and that is all that is necessary. You see, this shoulder is a confounded nuisance to me; I thought, perhaps, you wouldn't mind valeting me for a bit; I should not be any real trouble. There is not much beyond getting into my coats that I can't do for myself."

"It's not that," Paul said, moving restlessly and changing his feet on the fender. "I wish I could be of use to you; I wish I could help you. You have been doing things for me from the first moment I met you until now. I would give ten years of my life, Felix, to be able to return the least of all kindnesses you have shown me. I wish I could go with you."

"Why can't you? It won't cost you a penny."

"Beggars can't be choosers," he said, smiling; "I have my living to get."

"Get it when you return."

"This appointment would be snapped up; it's one in a thousand. I have applied for it, and I must stick to my guns. Besides, I am still in Sir Thomas's pay. I am working for him else I could not stay here. I am sorry. When do you go?"

"Not at all; I am not going alone," he said, and a dreadful uncomfortable silence ensued.

"What about Miss Agnes?" Paul ventured nervously; "couldn't she go?"

"I daresay she could, but I don't want her. I am in quest of a companion as much as a valet."

Paul looked at his foot on the fender while Felix stared at the fire.

"Paul," he said at last, looking up into the dark troubled face, his own rather white, his grey eyes very wistful, "it's all humbug about the companion valet; I didn't know how to get it out, but I want you to go with me as my wife—as my dear wife—will you?"

The next moment Felix had sprung to his feet, caught the swaying figure by the arm, pulled a chair from under the table, and guided him into it.

"It's all right, it's all right, come—come; it's all right. You don't mind me. You don't mind your friend Felix. You are used to me," he whispered, standing behind the chair and drawing the dark head back till it rested where Paul had often longed to lay his aching head; just where he could feel and hear the beating of that strong faithful heart.

"Yes, I do mind," he sobbed; "I mind you above everyone else in the world! I would have given my life to prevent your knowing this vile thing. I would rather have blown my brains out than—"

"My dear, my dear; don't take it to heart like that," he implored, wiping the great drops of moisture from Paul's forehead. "I came out with it too suddenly; but if I hadn't I should never have got it out at all, and I can't get along without you — you didn't expect me to, did you? You are my sun, my light, my life; as essential to me as my breath, and without this knowledge that you grudge me I couldn't have taken possession of you. I couldn't have turned this precious friendship, this love of ours, into the most perfect of all friendships; the most perfect bond and union that God has permitted to exist on His fair earth."

Paul gave a shivering, sobbing sigh, raised his free arm, and laid it around the squire's neck.

"You know this thing, you know me as I am—vain, careless of the welfare of others, unmindful of the misery I brought to those who were kind to me. You know, you have witnessed my selfishness, you have seen to what lengths I would go, you saw death itself made a stepping-stone to fame—and yet you ask me to become your wife—I don't understand it."

"Don't try," he said, soothingly, stroking the glossy hair; "don't trouble, don't bother this dear head about anything more. I am here to see after you, to take care of you, to think for you, and no man ever knew better than I what he's about. It's a wife I'm after, a friend, a companion, a comrade. It's the dear woman I've longed for, that I've begged Heaven to send me. I once told you whenever or whatever she was, when she came I should take her to my heart, and not question the Wisdom that sent her. I am not taking note of the garb you were sent in; I am thanking Heaven you are here; that a wise, loving Providence opened a way for me to grasp the answer to my prayer when it came. I am so happy, so thankful, so blessed. I am well nigh dazed with the wonderful knowledge that the grand festival in my life has come! Now, if you cry, Paul, I shall cry, too, and it won't do for the attentive Johnson to come and catch us two fellows crying in one another's arms—eh?"

Paul smiled through his wet eyelashes as Felix tured up his chin, wiped the tears from his cheeks, and tried to erase the blue shade from his upper lip.

"Will it wash off?" he asked.

"No," Paul said; "but it will wear off."

"How long will the process take?"

"A week perhaps, but not longer," he said, kissing the hand that was exploring his face; "you must know, you must feel, you must think, I have done wrong, and you ought to punish me—if you won't, perhaps God will."

There was a silence, in which Felix held Paul's chin in the hollow of his hand, and looked deep down into the depths of his glorious eyes. Finally he laid his cheeks on the hot, damp forehead, a world of tenderness and ineffable love in the action.

"You will never heard a word of that sort, a word of reproach, from me," he whispered; "if you hadn't done what you call wrong I should have dragged out a dull, lonely existence at the Manor and died a bachelor. I haven't room to feel more on that point, and as to punishing you," his voice shook. "I tried more on that point, and as to punishing you," his voice shook. "I tried correcting you once, Paul, and the memory of that punishment will haunt me to my dying day—it will spoil my whole life. You have no idea how it has worried me, how it teases me; I've never had a good night's rest since. Directly I close my eyes I begin that thrashing business. I can't get away from it. Last night I was in a dreadful state; it seemed I had battered you to a pulp, and—"

Paul lifted the arms about his neck, turned round, and confronted the distress in the grey eyes with a face expressive of the liveliest astonishment.

"Why, Felix," he exclaimed, rising and standing on the hearth, while the squire subsided into the chair he vacated, "you don't mean to say you have given that—that 'rotten show,' as Tom Hargrave politely puts it, another thought? I received no more than I deserved. If you had thrashed me every day while I was at Weyberne I should only have had my deserts. I did not really mind it; it was not such pain and suffering to me as you seem to imagine. The chemistry of the thing is this. Undoubtedly where the soul heralds an attraction, mind acts on mind, the influence being intensified and increased by the heat of an excited intellect, whereby the subtle sympathies would at once be potent and plastic. I don't pretend to define or understand the process, but I'll swear that in the excitement that night your mind met mine and engendered a like heat; it radiated and kindled a corresponding passion. You were actively insensible; I was passively insensible; in the heat and mental commotion you were unconscious of striking, and in the tenacious hold of your will and mind over mine I was equally unconscious of the blows struck—the fact of my riding Tom's machine the next evening to East Weyberne proves that I was not hurt, or, labouring under some sort of influence, I was not aware of any undue discomfort."

"You want me to believe you never felt that thrashing?" Felix asked, looking up into the dark, earnest eyes. "I am sorry I am so dense as to be unable to absorb such plain ethics; can't you go further and prove it never took place at all? The only antidote I know of for a mind poisoned like mine is marriage, Paulus. I don't say it will cure the disease, but it will allay some of the irritation. When can it be, heart of my heart?"

"When you like," he said quietly, smiling; "I am willing to sacrifice all feminine prerogatives to your peace of mind."

"Then if we are married and on the sea within the next fortnight, I need not feel I have bullied you into it."

"What about Agnes and Dr. Hunter, do they know?" Paul asked suddenly, sitting down on the couch, and remembering Cecilia Hay and her womanly attributes. "The doctor won't approve of this alliance."

"They haven't an inkling at present," he laughed, twisting round to look at him, "and Jack's approval is neither asked nor wanted; the whole question consists of whether you approve of me. Agnes will stay with the Hargraves until we return, and, what is more, postpone her marriage a month. I wonder what Master Jack will say to that—you look very white, friend Paul; have I tired you?"

"You are not likely to do that, Felix. I—"

Felix rose and looked at him anxiously.

"There is an hour before we dine," he said, taking out his watch. "I shall order you a plate of soup; you will eat it to please me, I know."

He went outside to waylay Johnson, and ordered a small quantity of soup with a glass of the best port stirred in, waited for it, and brought it in himself. Paul ate it without a demur while he meekly watched Felix tidy the table, and without a single protest allowed him to collect the scattered mass of papers, dump them together in one irregular, mixed pile, and tie them around with a piece of string.

Felix placed the empty plate on the bracket in the hall and returned to make himself responsible for the invalid's general comfort. He turned Paul's feet upon the couch, arranged the cushions with exactitude under his head and shoulders, busied himself immensely, and finally came around to the front, leaned over, and looked at him.

"I should very much like to take you in my arms and kiss you, but I am afraid of upsetting your disorganised equilibrium; there is such a quantity of extraneous love pent up here," touching his chest, "and you seem so frail I am nervous about touching you; I am more than half afraid of crushing the breath from that slim, lissom body. What shall I do with you, you dainty, delicate morsel of humanity?"

"Oh, I shall be all right," Paul said with quivering lips, "now the trouble is removed. You know, Felix, I have had a good deal of worry one way and another, and you yourself have been a fruitful source of anxiety to me."

"I can return the compliment there, friend Paul," he said, kneeling beside the couch; "you've played fast and loose with my feelings, you've hacked my heart about just anyhow, and now I expect to be compensated—one kiss, my soul, to live on through the night, will you kiss me—Paulus, Paulus, Paul—I'll stick to Paul, I'm used to that—will you? Do you call that nervous flutter a kiss? Dash it all, and from a fellow, too, who has served an apprenticeship at that sort of thing. Now, I'm a novice; I've never gone courting maid, widow or wife, but, by Jove! I think I can surpass that."

Hitherto Paul had been kissed by women, principally by a woman to whom he objected, to whom he entertained an instinctive aversion, and he was naturally considerably taken aback by Felix's masterful embrace, by the enthusiasm, the verve, the passion of his kisses. The pressure of the strong arm hurt his bones, and the heavy moustache pressed tightly over his mouth stopped his breath. He was making an altogether new and startling acquaintance with Felix. Felix had suddenly burst upon him in a new light; Felix was no longer a dear friend, a good comrade, but a strong, overpowering, passionate lover. The experience was bewildering, rather alarming; he felt confused, suffocated, hysterical. He loved Felix, he could not resist him, he could not hold his life through his lips! The hysterical idea, the foolish imagery of a nervous system out of gear frightened him, and Felix was all at once brought to his senses by a feeble flood of unlooked-for tears.

"There! I knew I should frighten you," he said, remorsefully. "Forgive me, and I promise never to let myself go again. I've always bullied you, haven't I, old fellow? Don't let me in future; sit on me; pull me up sharp; just—"

"It's not you, Felix; it's my thumb," he said tearfully; "I am nervous, run down, worn out with the pain in my thumb. You must not take me seriously, because the reaction, the relief, the removing of what I anticipated to be an abiding sorrow has unnerved me. I shall be better to-morrow. I shall be able to work. I've done practically nothing to-day, and work is a splendid tonic, it always braces my nerves. I shall begin to-morrow before breakfast—"

One of Lord Charles Beresford's tenants who conducted a small undertaker's establishment in Waterford was one day asked how the business was getting along.

"Grand, me lord!" he exclaimed. "I now have the luckiest hearse you ever saw. Glory be to goodness, 'twas never a day idle since I got it."—Tit-Bits.

Sciatica AND Lumbago

Suffered for Twenty-five Years and Could Get No Relief

Now Tells of the Wonderful Results Obtained by the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Sciatica, neuralgia and sciatic rheumatism are the result of a run-down nervous system. For this reason all treatments must necessarily fail which do not build up the nervous system.

Mr. Collins suffered for twenty-five years and never was able to obtain satisfactory treatment until he began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. While the Nerve Food forms new blood and restores the exhausted nervous system, the Kidney-Liver Pills invigorate the action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mr. W. T. Collins, Morpeth, Ont., writes: "It affords me pleasure to be able to speak favourably of two of Dr. Chase's medicines—the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I had been a sufferer for twenty-five years from sciatica, lumbago and neuralgia and tried almost all the medicines I could hear of, without one particle of benefit, until I commenced to use Dr. Chase's. I noticed an improvement before I had used two boxes, and the benefits obtained by continued use have been wonderful. I have so much confidence in these two medicines that I have recommended them to dozens of my friends, and I have yet to hear of a single case in which they failed to give satisfaction."

Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

MY DAUGHTER WAS CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"I send you herewith the picture of my fifteen year old daughter Alice, who was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was pale, with dark circles under her eyes, weak and irritable. Two different doctors treated her and called it Green Sickness, but she grew worse all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking three bottles she has regained her health, thanks to your medicine. I can recommend it for all female troubles."—Mrs. L. A. CORKRAN, 1108 Rutland Street, Baltimore, Md.

2 IN 1 FAMILY

Here is one of the many cases in which several members of one family have benefited from the household box of Zam-Buk. Col.-Sgt. Louis Elliott, 3rd Co., 49th Battalion, Peterboro, Ont., says: "The lower part of my face, cheek and chin broke out in small red pimples, which later festered and broke, forming nasty sores and dry scabs. The itching set up by these eruptions and sores was terrible, and seemed far worse during the night. All kinds of soaps, washes and ointments were tried in the vain attempt to get relief, even to bathing with carbolic acid and water. Finally I thought of Zam-Buk and straightway procured a box at the drug store. One night's application brought great relief from the intense itching, and as I kept on applying this balm daily, the inflammation was soon drawn out, and in less than a week's time the sores were thoroughly healed and every scab banished."

Mrs. Elliott, 139 Sherbrooke St., Peterboro, telling of Zam-Buk's effect on her younger son Walter, says: "He slipped and caused a wound on his right hip, which developed into a running sore. From this smaller sores spread until his lower limbs were covered with ulcers. These proved very alarming and I feared blood-poisoning! I began the Zam-Buk treatment, and it really seemed to aid like magic! In a remarkably short space of time the raw running sores were all healed. I am very grateful indeed for his cure, and I strongly recommend all mothers to keep Zam-Buk always handy."

WHAT ZAM-BUK WILL CURE.

Zam-Buk will be found a cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. A BEAUTY DOCTOR

How he Imposes on Some of the Homely Women of Paris.

The doings of a beauty doctor are at present occupying the attention of the Parisian authorities. He had many clients among women who were morbidly anxious to present a youthful appearance to the world, and willingly paid sums ranging from $300 to $2,000 for his services.

The clients took up their abode in the beauty doctor's villa in the suburbs, and lived in darkness for two weeks. After this period of preparation a certain ointment, made up by the beauty doctor himself, was put on their faces, which were bandaged, so that they had the appearance of mummies. At the end of a certain time, the bandages were removed. It was then seen that the ointment had acted; the skin began to peal off. A few days later the ladies found that there was new skin, and that there were no more furrows. They believed that the beauty doctor had indeed discovered the secret of perennial youth. Some customers, who had only had their faces treated, now demanded that their necks, busts and arms should undergo the same treatment. There were some who ordered the beauty doctor to supply a new skin altogether. The charge for treating the neck was $200, for the arms and bust as far as the waist, $400, and $1,000 for the whole figure. Actresses and society women were so treated, but a few months after the operation, these simple women found that furrows, deeper than ever, showed on the new skin. The wife of an advocate who saw that she was losing her hair as well as her skin, was so cruelly disappointed that, braving ridicule—for none of the clients had dared to complain—she lodged a complaint with the authorities, and claimed $5,000 damages from the beauty doctor. Berthelot, the judicial commissary, acting on a search warrant issued by an examining magistrate, called at the beauty doctor's villas, and seized bottles, pomades, and a number of letters from women who did not wish to grow old. He is still prosecuting his inquiries.

DISPATCHING PHONES

C.P.R. Will Equip One Thousand More Miles With Device

Over a thousand miles of new telephone circuits will be added by the C.P.R. to their present system next year. On most of the eastern lines the service has already been installed and has proved highly successful in despatching trains. A phone service will be installed on the C.P.R. short line to Ottawa, and with this exception, it is expected that all the phones will be placed west of Port Arthur.

The C.P.R. have already over four thousand miles of line equipped with phones, and when the program for next year is completed, it is expected that the railway will have the largest phone circuit mileage of any railway in the world. At present it stands second in this respect.

Public House Hours.

Brighton magistrates considered a report from the Liverpool justices, with regard to the curtailment of hours for licensed houses. They decided to take no action.

The Education Bill.

The Nonconformist members of the House of Commons have passed a resolution urging the Government to make the question of education the first business of the 1912 session.

The Candidate's Vow.

Mr. W. P. Grigg, the defeated Conservative candidate for the Romford Division of Essex, has made a vow that he will not smoke, dance, or play cards again until either a Unionist Government is returned to power or a Unionist member is returned for the Romford Division.

Council Meet in Bedroom.

The Cuddington Parish Church held its meeting in a bedroom, a fire having deprived the coucil of its usual meeting place. One councillor found a seat on the bed.

Bull's Fright at Clothes.

A shorthorn bull which was being taken from Maryport to Cockermouth Show, took exception to the Sunday clothes of the three men in charge of it, and charged them. It was driven into a shed by the aid of pitchforks but went to the show as quiet as a lamb, says the "Express," when the men changed into their ordinary working clothes.

Mother Saved by Son.

William Henry Blackman, a stevedore, was committed for trial at Southampton, on a charge of murder. The evidence showed that the accused attacked his wife with a chopper, inflicting nine scalp wounds, and afterwards surrendered to the police. Blackman's son, aged twelve, stated that when his father attacked his mother he went to the latter's assistance and pulled his father's fingers from her throat.

Eton and Lord Roberts.

In the presence of a large gathering of past and present Etonians, a portrait of Lord Roberts was unveiled by Lord Minto, in the School Hall at Eton. Lord Roberts, invited to say a few words, appealed to the boys to uphold the honour of thier school and country.

Westport Cattle Drive.

Arising out of disturbances near Westport, in consequence of the sale of cattle for the non-payment of rent by the tenants of Lord Sligo's estate, cattle and sheep were dirven off several grazing farms in the district.

Street Names in Irish.

At a meeting of the Glen Usneagh branch of the Gaelic League, it was decided to ask the Athlone Town Council to put up the names of the streets in Irish, and at the meeting of the Council it was agreed to have the names put up in Irish and English.

Laborer's Quaint Appeal.

In an application to the New Ross Urban Council for the repair of his house, a laborer said that "nothing had been done to repair his simulacrum dwelling, and when it rained the sleeping apartments resembled a series of shower baths in active operation ,with lights out and draughts."

Value of Goats' Milk.

Before the committee sitting in Dublin in connection with the Irish milk supplies, evidence was given by Lady Dunleath, who spoke with reference to goats' milk. Many babels, she said, had been saved by it, and to improve the breed of goats she had introduced foreign animals.

Cattle Placarded.

In the early morning, a few days ago, a cattle drive took place on the farms are near Westport. All the stock was recovered, and many of the animals had suspended from their horns, written in cardboard, "The land for the people and the road for the bullocks."

Degrees of Steutness.

"If I am too fat for the fever hospital, I am not a bit too fat to hold down the mad people," wrote Mrs. R. Geraghty to the Navan Guardians, adding that she had seen that $1.75 was paid to a woman employed to take care of a patient going to Mullingar Asylum, and that she was prepared to go at any call at $1.25. The Clerk said the matter would be considered.

Practical Joking.

The lines attached to the lifebuoys along the Dublin quays have recently been cut a night, and frequently the circular cork buoys have been thrown into the river without cordage. Several have been picked up near the mouth of the Liffey, whilst others being carried out to sea at night have been lost. The police have taken steps to stop this form of practical joking.

Cat's Railway Journey.

A cat pursued by a dog sought refuge under a train at Dalkeith Station. The dog was beaten off, but the cat could not be found. When the train reached Piershill Station, however, puss was seen hiding beneath the footboard of one of the carriages, having occupied that position during nearly half an hour's journey. The guard took charge of the cat, and it was sent back to Dalkeith in the evening.

An authority says eight million tons of rain recently fell on one day. No wonder the clouds had to drop it.

Gustave Monkeynut was the name of a defendant at Shoreditch. We can not trace him in Zoo's Who.

REFORM THE CIVIL CODE

The Next Big Task Likely to be Undertaken by the Government.

One of the next efforts of the Imperial Government, it is learned from a very trustworthy source, will be the introduction of a bill to reform the Civil Code of England, which, it is generally agreed, is sadly in need of reform. While it is, of course, impossible to say just what kinds of reforms the Government will recommend, there is a certain probability that the civil code of Germany, which the late Professor Makland justly described as "the most carefull yconsidered statement of a nation's laws that the world has ever seen," will be followed on many points, just as the German Labor Insurance Law has formed the basis of Lloyd George's much-discussed measure. A translation of the German code into English already exists and, strange to say, it is the work of a Chinaman, Chung Hui Wang.

Mr. Chung Wang, in his introductory chapter to the English translation, shows the steps by which the popular discontent in Germany was met—how the labors of the theoretical jurist were overhauled by the practical persons who would have to administer the law; by the politicians, who were quick to allege all sorts of attacks upon their own pet prejudices, and by the representatives of the commercial and industrial classes, who had to obey the proposed regulations.

In fact, the codification of the German law was a really difficult undertaking. There was a great deal of public feeling against it. The codification of British law would be perfectly simple, and there is no feeling against it—except among the lawyers.

DUKE OF ORLEANS

who is said to be arranging for financial backing to help him in the effort he has been making for years to have France transformed into a monarchy with himself on the throne. In a recent interview the Duke declared that he is confident of ultimate success. How he intends to bring about his desires is not known, and he doesn't say anything about it himself. Frenchmen in general look upon the Duke's schemes as a huge joke, despite the serious way in which he takes himself.

MURDERED FOUR PERSONS

Four persons were murdered and another one dangerously injured by a man named Guillaume Courmier, at Vicle-Comte, near Auvergne. Courmier was prosecuted some time ago for a slight offence, and evidence was given against him by M. and Mme. Mandonet, and M. and Mme. Verdier and their son Emile. To revenge himself Courmier determined to kill them all, and has done so.

HAD VERY BAD COUGH.

Tickling Sensation In Throat.

Could Not Sleep At Night.

A bad cough, with that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat, is one of the most aggravating coughs a person can possibly have.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will quickly stop that tickling in the throat which causes the dry cough that keeps you awake at night, for the simple reason that it is so rich in the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, it cannot help but do otherwise.

Miss C. Danielson, Bowsman River, Man., writes:—"Last fall I had a very bad cough and a tickling sensation in my throat. It was so bad I could not sleep at night, so I went to a druggist and told him I wanted something for my cold and he advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup which I did, and after taking one bottle I was completely cured. Let me recommend Dr Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to any one who suffers from a cough or throat irritation."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.
